Snow Slows Vote But Interest High

Civic Issues Scarce

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Voters in 139 cities, towns, villages and townships across Ontario go to the polls today to choose their civic leaders for the next three years.

And today's weather forecast seemed to match the voting mood—cold. Cloudy skies and temperatures around the freezing mark were predicted for most areas today as voters made their choice after campaigns heated by only a few issues.

In Metropolitan Toronto, 1,100,000 voters were eligible to mark their ballots in the five boroughs and the city of Toronto, which make up Metro.

Each borough had its own contest for mayor as council but the mayoralty race attracted the most interest in the city itself. There Liberal Stephen Clarkson was running on a party ticket against incumbent William Dennison, Con. Margaret Campbell and socialist John Riddell.

"Here's the parade. Pass it back in the lists!"

Transportation Requests Heavy

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Despite sloppy conditions underfoot, there was mixed opinion this morning as to whether the six-inch snowfall over the weekend would seriously affect the turnout of voters in today's municipal election in Belleville.

A check of some of the city's polling places at 11 o'clock this morning — an hour after the polls opened — indicated a poor early morning turnout.

But on the other hand campaign offices for the mayoralty candidates reported their phones were "ringing off the wall" as voters lined up transportation to the polls.

One of the mayoralty candidates said he did not expect the snow and resultant sloppy walking conditions would cut the vote appreciably.

"I still look for a fairly good vote," he said.

The same was true at the other candidate headquarters, with workers reporting they "were going crazy" answering telephone requests for cars.

But at the Chamber of Commerce polling booth where there were 176 eligible voters listed, only one voter had turned out till 11 o'clock.

And at Parkdale, where there is a triple poll with 800 voters on the list, only 10 voters had checked in just before 11 o'clock.

Again at the Albert College Manor, with 600 voters on the list, 10 people had voted by 10.45 this morning.

Voting opened at 10 a.m. at the city's 37 polling sub-divisions and will close tonight at 7 o'clock.

A flurry of voting was expected during the noon hour, with peak activity expected during the late afternoon and just prior to poll closing.

This year sees an all - time high in the number of Belleville voters eligible to cast ballots in the municipal election.

Following court of revision the number of eligible voters was given as 20,072 but last minute additions were expected to swell the list to a possible 20,200.

But what the actual turnout at the polls will be is another question.

At the last municipal election in 1967 with the mayoralty, public utility and aldermanic positions to be filled, there was a turnout of approximately 53 per cent.

Today, with snowflurries apparently dampening enthusiasm, the morning turnout was possibly below that of two years ago. But clearing skies indicated for this afternoon could mean an overall percentage turnout of at least equal to that of 1967.

Los Angeles Police Seize Machine-guns

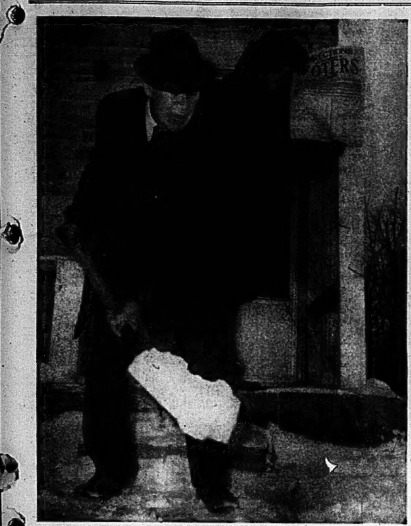
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities have confiscated 63 machine-guns, Nazi paraphernalia, a large quantity of ammunition and bomb components in three Los Angeles area seizures.

Gary Stalla, 32, a Los Alamitos reserve police officer, and Charles Hatfield, 26, of Buena Park, were arrested Sunday. Sixty-two foreign-made machine-guns and 50,000 rounds of ammunition were confiscated.



James Gary Steuard, 32, a Rowland Heights school teacher who said he was a rare gun collector, was arrested Friday. Three German-made machine-guns, components for making 43 bombs, and two Nazi-marked vehicles were found at his home.

Sunday night, police arrested Alan Ray Otto, 22, Steuard's brother-in-law.

Communists Call 'Summit' Parley

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today announced a Communist East bloc summit meeting will be held in Moscow early this month to discuss "topical international problems."

The announcement, carried by the official news agency Tass, did not identify topics to be discussed, but the unofficial reports had put German questions and detente between the East bloc and the new West German government of Willy Brandt high on the agenda.

Stormy Election

First real storm of winter was still blowing through city streets today as voting opened in city election. Poor weather Sunday and today dropped up to six inches of snow — expected to discourage early voters. Picture above capsulizes today's city scene. James Coltrell shovels snow from Station Street home while deputy returning officer Lois Rogers tacks up official poll declaration.

U.S. Barrage Blocks Massacre Investigators

SONG MY (AP) — An American artillery barrage today forced a South Vietnamese legislative group to abandon plans to visit the scene of the alleged My Lai massacre. The marines said they were firing at Viet Cong guerrillas.

Six shells crashed into an area about half a mile from the deserted village as the group of 11 South Vietnamese officials and some 35 reporters approached.

"Get away! Get down!" shouted a group of U.S. marines from a nearby rise as the group appeared just as the first of the shells was fired from a nearby fire support base.

Less than two hours before the investigating group arrived, a marine patrol reported killing two Viet Cong and wounding another in My Lai after taking "heavy sniper fire" from the village.

My Lai, a string of coastal hamlets a short distance from Song My, is supposedly abandoned, and many of the former residents live in Song My.

Another marine said he didn't think the group could have reached My Lai if the artillery barrage hadn't stopped them.

"That road is bad booby trap country," said Pte. Don Hanfield. "You'd probably have been wiped out."

New Massacre Charged

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam claimed today that South Vietnamese troops massacred more than 200 villagers in two provinces southwest of Saigon in October and November.

Attributing its information to the Viet Cong, Hanoi's official Vietnam news agency claimed the South Vietnamese troops also robbed villages in Ca Mau and Rach Gia provinces of 80,000,000 piastres (677,966) and destroyed 700 huts.

It identified only one village, Khanh Lam, where it claimed South Vietnamese troops killed or wounded 107 civilians. The report, however, did not give an exact date for the alleged incident.

Ban on Cars At Niagara Park Urged

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Parks Commission has made public a report which recommends a 25-year $13,000,000, redevelopment of the parks system, which would include banning private vehicles from the Falls area.

The recommendation to close Queen Victoria Park to car traffic is contrary to a 1966 report of the Ontario department of highways which recommended a four-lane highway to be built through the park.

The commission report, released Saturday, was ordered partly because the commission opposes the highways department proposal, claiming it would detract from the park's natural beauty.

James N. Allan, chairman of the commission, said no decision has been made on recommendations by a firm of Toronto architects following a 20-month study of the Niagara Parks system.

Charges Made Of Irregularities

TORONTO (CP) — Chief James Mackey of the Metropolitan Toronto Police said today two detective-inspectors have completed an investigation into allegations that members of the police department interferred with prosecutions of businessmen arrested for impaired driving.

Chief Mackey said in an interview that he would receive the report today from detective-inspectors Robert Bamlett and Cyril Cole.

"It'll take a while to study all its implications," he said.

News Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — A bomb explosion at McGill University late Sunday smashed windows in several buildings on the downtown campus. It was the second bombing in Montreal in 16 days. Damage to an unused greenhouse and other buildings at the rear of the campus totalled about $3,000.

Two Men Killed In Plane Crash

GRENBUSH, Ont. (CP) — Pilot Nevin Howard Longyear, 47, of Victor, N.Y. and John William Grievenor, Honeoye Falls, N.Y., were killed Sunday when a light plane crashed in the main street of this village 10 miles south from Brockville.

Another passenger, Elizabeth Longyear, 46, wife of the pilot, was taken to hospital in Brockville with burns to the hands and back. She was reported in good condition.

Police said the aircraft hit power lines and crashed, bursting into flames. It earlier made a forced landing in a farmer's field in heavy snow near here and the three occupants came into the village, bought gas and went back to the plane. The crash came on takeoff.

Four Taken to Hospital

Bound for Home After Parade, Belleville Girls' Bus Upsets

By LINDA GELDART
(Staff Reporter)

Gail Chapman's Jolly Buccaneers proved they were made of strong stuff Saturday night as the chartered bus they were riding back to Belleville overturned on a slippery stretch of the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway.

The mishap occurred at Morrisburg, about 25 miles west of Cornwall as the girls were heading home after marching in the Grey Cup Parade early Saturday afternoon.

Of the 3 passengers travelling on the bus, four were taken to hospital, but none was seriously injured.

Still in hospital at Winchester, near Morrisburg, are Bonnie Robb and Martha Bishop. Both are under observation. Karen Plant, who suffered a pulled neck muscle was treated and later released. Also injured was Mrs. Shirley Ferara who was also treated and released.

Mrs. Chapman, leader of the majorette group, her husband, and approximately eight parents were with the girls when the accident happened.

Mrs. Chapman talked about the wonderful time her majorettes had marching in the Grey Cup Parade.

"We went down with the idea there could be trouble in Montreal, but to my relief we saw none. The afternoon worked out beautifully".

"I suppose one thing that counteracts the accident is the fact that the group won an honorable mention in the majorette parade competition — I am so proud of them," added Mrs. Chapman.

Sixteen majorette groups competed in the prelude to the Grey Cup Classic, with the Regina Ridettes taking home first place. There were two third places, only two honorable mentions — the girls home by Scarbon one

Santa Parade Shaping Up For Saturday

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

"It's going to be a better parade than we've ever had. The response has been something . . ." says Belleville Donald Foster, who has taken on the responsibility personally to see that city youngsters don't miss the opportunity to see Santa Claus.

To continue his efforts to make a successful parade this year, Mr. Foster and several other people, who have volunteered their services, will hold a meeting Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Emergency Measures Organization building, to draft new committees and obtain other people interested in helping.

Mr. Foster has already organized some committees to handle all the phone calls — donations and volunteers are swamping him.

Committee members and volunteers now taking phone calls for various aspects of the parade include Jack Williams, chairman of the parade; Les Shore, treasurer; Mrs. Ruth Brauer, secretary; Allan Duffy, parade marshal; and Garnet Marriott, in charge of floats.

Also Ron Woods and Mrs. George Grant, in charge of costumes and walking personnel; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Collier, Ken Reid and Robert Emerson, deputy chiefs of Belleville Fire Department, who is looking after tractors and wagons for the parade.

There are still some items needed to bolster the parade framework — bicycle riders, wagons, tractors and cars for transportation.

A tentative parade route would see Santa travelling from the West Moira fire hall down Front Street past the Belleville arena and up Pinnacle Street to end at the Rec. Centre.

Mr. Foster said he hopes to serve doughnuts and coffee to people when the parade ends.

Chief on the Hot Seat

Belleville's Police Chief, Douglas Crosbie, was placed "under attack" Sunday night in The Living Room as young people and adults questioned him on law enforcement in the city. The centre is open Friday and Sunday nights at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street, as a spot where two generations can meet for discussions on areas of common interest. Other community leaders will be invited to take the hot seat in the future.

Dairy Princess Hurt in Crash

Ontario's Dairy Princess escaped serious injury early Saturday when the automobile in which she was a passenger caught fire after a two - car crash south of Shilling.

Lorene Archdekin, 18, of Brampton was one of four people taken to Belleville General Hospital after the crash. She was released after treatment for face cuts a hospital spokesman said.

Police said Miss Archdekin, in Belleville last week for the British Empire Dairy Show, was among passengers in a car driven by Marshall Trichlas, 17, of 49 Bridge Street West. It collided with a car driven by William Roy Goody, 22, of Marmora, on Highway 14.

Police said another passenger in the Trichlas car, Larry Tweedy, 17, of Avondale Road, suffered a broken leg. A third passenger, Stephen Ford, 18, of 368 Sidney Street, was released after treatment for minor injuries.

Mr. Goody was admitted to hospital with rib and chest injuries.

Newsprint Load Hither, Thither

TWEED (Special) — Eighteen tons of newsprint destined for a Toronto newspaper were scattered around Tweed early today when a transport trailer missed a curve in this village and ended up on its top in Tweed Park.

The southbound transport owned by Overnight Express Ltd. of Hull and driven by Denis Mayor, 40, also of Hull, skidded off the slippery snow-covered roadway on Highway 37, ripped out 73 feet of park fence and knocked over a telephone pole before coming to rest on its top.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $8,000. The driver escaped injury.

Late Saturday afternoon a two-car collision on Highway 62 north of Madoc resulted in a total damage of $200. The two drivers, Gerald Reid, 34, of Madoc, and Ivan M. Dafoe, 42 of Millbridge were only shaken up.

New Dark Age Real Threat As World's Poor Get Poorer

VIENNA (CP) — A crisis of worldwide importance is building up in the less developed countries, where two-thirds of the world's population lives, because of the need for foreign aid, Canada's International Development chief said today.

Maurice Strong, president of the Canadian International Development Agency, told the Canada Development Institute differences between poor have never been so much a large sca

"The impending

[illegible] ...ference of the developed countries in the foreseeable future, [illegible] ...ong said. But dire poverty [illegible] ...cing people to live in sub-human conditions has to be overcome.

"Today for the first time in history this is a practical proposition. I share the conviction of those who say that if it is not done, civilized life on our planet may not survive much beyond the end of this century.

"A new dark age is not a vague threat; it is a real possibility."

District Digs Out--Snowfall Varies Up to 9.4 Inches

Average 6 to 8 Inches Blankets Quinte Area

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Quinte district motorists were caught off-guard over the weekend as from six to eight inches of snow was dumped over the area from mid-morning Sunday.

The heaviest fall of snow was at the Outlet where 9.4 inches was reported. There were eight inches at Picton and Colins Bay: over six inches at Belleville; 5.8 inches at Tweed and 6.25 inches at Bancroft.

Snow was still falling at 9 a.m. today. The daily forecaster at the Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, said it would continue for another two hours.

Flurries were expected to continue throughout the day, with drifting in the open country.

But the fluffy, "white stuff" came unexpectedly.

Saturday's forecast called for snow south of the Great Lakes but cold air was expected to cover all Ontario by dusk evening. The forecast for Sunday was given as mostly cloudy and colder weather in the south.

In the city, street sanders were called out soon after the snow started Sunday morning, but not before motorists experienced trouble on the steeper grades.

Morning church goers had difficulty on East and West Bridge Street hills, and on Victoria Avenue and Church Street. City snowplows were called out at mid-afternoon on Sunday. Seven plows operated continuously during the night.

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crowder reported there were seven minor accidents yesterday during the heavy snowfall.

The most serious accident sent two Belleville girls to hospital where they were treated for minor injuries, then released.

Injured were Gail McDermott, 18, of 36 Lesley Drive, and Doris Thompson, 18, of 8 Forest Hill. They were passengers in a vehicle driven by Robert H. Klassen, 20, of Bleecker Avenue.

Police said the car collided with a parked car at 10.40 p.m. after sliding in the snow on Victoria Avenue.

Norman Manning, public relations officer for the Ontario Hydro Commission here, said this morning that so far the storm had not caused any serious power interruptions.

He added that crews would be ready should a power failure occur.

A Quinte Secondary School Grade 9 trip to Ottawa was cancelled because of this morning's snowfall.

Picton Records Eight Inches

PICTON (Staff) — To put shoppers in the Christmas spirit, Picton's sidewalks were blanketed with eight inches of snow this morning.

The count was officially recorded at the Ontario weather station at the water purification plant on Spencer St.

Snow began Saturday morning and by Sunday evening 6.8 inches had fallen. The storm continued Sunday night, dropping an additional inch or so, in spite of slippery driving conditions and poor visibility, only a few minor traffic accidents were reported over the weekend by town police and the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Prince Edward County roads foreman Ben Beghie said this morning that all the county's snow plows are at work. Three sanders were also in use. The snow plows were out yesterday for the first time this year and continued to clear county roads through the night.

Mr. Beghie described weather conditions in the country as "average for the first snow storm."

A spokesman for the Picton Public Works Department said sanders were used in town yesterday morning followed by a snow plow. Plowing continued in Picton until 6.30 a.m. today.

Trenton Accident-free

TRENTON (Staff) — Area residents for the most part escaped unscathed by the weekend snow.

In fact, the Trenton Police Department reported an accident-free slate since the snow started to fall Saturday.

Public works crews started to sand town streets at 10.30 a.m. Sunday, and have been working around the clock in attempt to clear them of 6.7 inches of snow which descended between 9 a.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. today.

The weather station at CFB, Trenton, said that although it was a heavy snowfall for this time of year, it was far from a record.

A weather office spokesman said that the 24-hour record for November is 12.7 inches in 1956 — while the 24-hour record for December was 11.2 inches in 1961.

A spokesman for Rathbun Bus Services Ltd., which services most of the schools in the Trenton area, said that all buses ran, although some were a trifle late. Students from Trenton High School said students were still arriving at 8.45 a.m., but that all buses had reached their destination.

The Brighton detachment of the OPP noted that viability was "very bad" Sunday and earlier this morning, but is clearing up now.

They attributed slippery roads to the rash of minor accidents — eleven in all since 9 a.m. Sunday. Most of the mishaps occurred on Highway 401 and were of a single - car nature. No injuries were reported.

Most serious of the weekend mishaps was a three - car collision Saturday evening on Highway 33 by the Sidney transformer station.

Two persons were treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital and later released.

Damage totalled $2,200 in the incident which occurred when a southbound car and a north bound pickup truck collided. A second southbound car then skidded into the wreckage. Police are still investigating the incident.

Voter Turnout Likely Down

By MALCALM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

The candidates in today's municipal election may have a chance to perform some eleventh hour heroics.

O. W. Larry, Trenton clerk comptroller, said this morning that the heavy weekend snowfall and adverse weather conditions will undoubtedly affect the vote.

"A lot of voters aren't mobile, and some won't want to drive, therefore the candidates best equipped to pick up the people and take them to the poll will fair the best," he stated.

"People are unpredictable, but if somebody is at the door with a car, they will vote — if not, they won't vote". Mr. Larry concluded.

Today's election appeared to arouse a great deal of interest among townsfolk, but Saturday only 46 people voted at the advance poll.

So the final turnout is a guess at best, with the inclement weather on election day. However, it is interesting to note that only 34 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballot last year and 41 per cent in 1967.

Regardless of the percentage turnout, six positions — mayor, four council seats, and one Public Utility Commission post — will be filled from among 11 candidates.

The polls here opened this morning at 10 a.m. and will close at 8 p.m.

Advance Poll Draws 250

The weekend snowstorm which dumped more than six inches of snow on Belleville may serve to cut today's vote, but advance poll activity on Friday and Saturday was about par with advance polls in the last municipal election in 1967.

City hall officials reported this morning that 250 votes were cast at the advance poll — just 10 less than in 1967.

There was just the one advance poll in the city — no split polling booth — at city hall.

Wish You Were Here

While stay - at - home Belleillians struggle with the cold weather and snow, local florist and former Public Utilities Commission chairman Reg Weese is adding to his fishing laurels off the Florida coast.

The Port of Movers News Press of November 25 reports that Mr. Weese, along with three other vacationers, fended off 11 grouper, five scamp, seven grey snapper, a 45 - pound giant sea bass, and a king mackerel.

Happiness Is A Storm

The first real storm of a new Quinte winter blew in the usual rash of frosty frustrations over the weekend. But for the small fry — as in this Trenton scene — happiness also is a blizzard, a fun thing to be enjoyed, even on playgrounds set aside for summer recreation. Storm dropped six inches of snow in Belleville - Trenton area before blowing out this morning.

Cross-overs in Trenton Become Law Wednesday

TRENTON (Staff) — This town's first pedestrian crossovers will come into use Wednesday Dec. 3 at 8 a.m.

There will be two of them — one at Dundas St. West at King St. and one at Front St. at Elgin St. A third crossover on Dundas St. East and Ontario St. will come into operation within the next two weeks.

These cross-overs are a right-of-way fig pedestrians to cross the street and they are not a right-of-way for motorists to use the pedestrian and the driver.

Exceptis stating these responsibilities are taken from section 67A of the Highway Traffic Act for the province of Ontario.

The driver of a motor vehicle must yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian by slowing down or stopping if necessary when crossing a crossover of the motor vehicle would endanger the pedestrian.

No pedestrian shall step from the curb or other place of safety at a point other than a crossover and walk or run into the path of a motor vehicle that is so close that it is impractical for the driver of the motor vehicle to yield the right of way.

In simple terms this means that the driver, when a pedestrian is in the cross-over, must give the right-of-way to that individual.

The cross-overs are marked by lighted signs hung in the centre of the street. A cross-over is not to be confused with the white lines or cross walks seen at other intersections. Police point out it is illegal to overtake and pass another vehicle within 100 feet of a cross-over.

Contravention of any of the provisions of the traffic act may result in a fine of not less than $20 and not more than $100.

Trenton Police Chief R. J. Rutherford said he hoped "pedestrians would use extreme caution until everyone becomes familiar with the cross-overs."

A committee of the RCHA Association of Kingston has been set up for the purpose of organizing a mammoth reunion of all ex-RCHA personnel who served with them at any time between 1914 and 1936. This also includes members of the 4th A. A. Battery who were with that battery in 1936. Committees have been appointed in several districts to help get names and to organize their branch and send in the results to the Kingston headquarters.

Plans are to hold the reunion in Kingston about the middle of July, 1970. Anyone in the Quinte district who qualifies and is interested is asked to get in touch with Reg Featherston, 102 Yeomans Street, Belleville.

The Duke of Edinburgh Unit will be holding a nomination night in conjunction with the regular general meeting on Thursday, Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. Be sure and turn out to make the candidates of your choice for the various offices. Any active member in good standing is eligible to be nominated. There will be a social hour after the meeting.

Bus Overturns

The majority of the girls were asleep or dozing when the accident occurred — the one factor that probably prevented more fatals and many more than bumps and bruises.

Mrs. Chapman related that there was no panic whatsoever. "In fact," she said, "I was quite amazed at the calm that prevailed."

Everyone escaped by breaking the front windows in the bus and climbing to safety. The group was then taken to a nearby service centre where they waited for the damaged bus to recover purses, coats mines and all other belongings.

They ended up getting home at 3:30 Sunday morning, with only four of their number in hospital.

"They were certainly grown up about the whole thing. The only problem I had was keeping them quiet so we could get organized," remarked Mrs. Chapman.

"You might say all kept their cool, and that we were very, very lucky," said one of the parents who was with the group.

A Moral Duty

Amid the horrified backlash from the allegations of massacre in Vietnam there is one element of straightforward conduct that deserves comment.

It is contained in the testimony of Ronald Ridenhour, 23-year-old former U.S. helicopter gunner. Now a student at a California college, Ridenhour is the man who made public details of the alleged killings at the village of My Lai.

Ridenhour was not a witness himself but he says he heard details of what took place from men who were there. These have been published, together with pictures of dead Vietnamese, and while the element of responsibility has yet to be fully determined there is no question that more than 100 men, women and children were gunned to death at point-blank range.

There has been a good deal of evidence that the U.S. military authorities in Vietnam have tried to hush up the entire matter. Of 12 men Ridenhour claims talked to him of the massacre, only one agreed to back up a report to the authorities.

Not surprisingly, Ridenhour has been receiving hate mail but he says most letters are in support of what he did. And it is what he says in this regard that has to do with the eternal verities of a world in which the dividing line between right and wrong has become blurred.

Ridenhour, it seems to us, is a young man who recognized a moral duty to alert the authorities to what he had learned and did not shrink from doing so.

"Right now I'm getting a lot of attention," he is quoted as saying. People are saying, 'What's his angle? What prompted him to do this? Money? There's no angle .This was just wrong . . . appalling.

"I'm not a hippie or anyone in that line," he said, describing his politics as moderate to liberal from a conservative background. "I do what I think is right and if others don't agree with me, I'm just sorry."

The moral dilemma that faced the men allegedly ordered to kill at My Lai, and the compounding of the events that followed by further orders to say nothing of the affair, are areas of decision recognizable by all of us — if not in such fearsome circumstances then in many another of life's compromising situations. What then is the path of honor? It is of the kind taken by Ronald Ridenhour.

Kids and Recreation

Two women at a Belleville lunch counter were discussing the relative merits of urban and country living and one was saying that in the country there is nothing for children to do.

"Children need to be exposed to different situations and new experiences," she was saying, and of course she is right in holding this opinion.

Country living does have advantages, however. Farming, for example, teaches youngsters self-reliance and gives them a feel for the outdoors. But beyond that, what is there to do?

It is true also that young people in the country or in small communities are adept at making their own fun, but is it right that they should be left entirely to their own devices in this regard?

Just what do rural schools offer in the way of organized recreation? Little more, we suspect, than a play period where the kids run around and work off steam but learn no particular sporting skill.

The fact is that youngsters in the country have little in the way of organized recreation outside school hours.

With winter on the way there will be opportunities for skating; and that is all to the good. During the remainder of the year however, there is a whole range of sporting activity which Canadian youngsters, unhappily, never experience.

Youthful Talent

Congratulations to the young people of the cast of "Dark of the Moon" who have afforded local theatregoers and many from ouside a new dimension in theatrical experience. We wish them further success and commend their youthful enthusiasm, not to mention their dramatic talent, to others.

Congressional Debate Anticipated

U.S. Plan to Outlaw Biological Warfare Has Reservations

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The initial favorable reaction to President Nixon's decisive step Tuesday towards outlawing chemical and biological warfare may evaporate somewhat with close study of the strings he attached to the package.

Nixon, apparently acting with unusual haste considering the scope of the decision, announced suddenly his promise that the United States would never use disease as a weapon of war and will destroy its stockpile of bacteriological weapons.

He also announced all but defensive use of chemical warfare weapons, but the White House made clear that the president did not include in his pledge tear gas and chemical defoliants which the U.S. is using in Vietnam.

This aspect of the decision undoubtedly will provoke a comprehensive congressional debate, putting the plan under closer scrutiny than would have been the case otherwise.

What Nixon is doing with regard to chemical weapons is resubmitting to the Senate the 44-year-old Geneva Protocol that prohibits its signers from using poison gas first.

Although the wording of the 1925 document is ambiguous— particularly in the light of subsequent technology—a large majority of the 80-odd signatory countries, including the Soviet Union, Britain and France, interpret it as banning in wartime such non-lethal chemicals as now employed in Vietnam.

The administration's argument in defence of its sort of unilateral interpretation of the Protocol is that the use of such gas is more humane than conventional warfare.

Initially, the mutterings of dissatisfaction—at home, at United Nations headquarters in New York and abroad—that the president had not gone far enough were pretty well drowned in the flood of enthusiastic support.

But critics made clear the task their opposition will take—the contention that the chemicals are used primarily to drive the enemy into range of artillery and bombs, not for humanitarian purposes.

Aside from such criticism, the announcement in total is seen by most observers as a move to gain prestige for Nixon himself and, more important, for the United States at a time when it is sorely needed.

According to reports reaching here, the story of the alleged U.S. massacre of Vietnamese civilians overshadowed by far the publicity in the world press of the Apollo 12 spectacular.

While Standing on Own Feet...

Youth Group Welcomes Criticism and Guidance

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

This letter is in response to a recent letter printed in The Intelligencer which stated that Mr. and Mrs. Concerned-About-Youth should stand up! We feel that Mr. and Mrs. Concerned-About - Youth have indeed stood up, but many people were too busy complaining to even notice them!

We represent the Roslin "Sing-out" a group of 50 teenagers not affiliated with any church group, nor related to any service club. We have found that through our theme "Up With People", we are able to reach all age groups. This theme really works — people respond if you have a message. Nothing can be accomplished by being "down" on people — either adults or teenagers — this only hinders progress. Instead, both young and old alike should realize that being "Up With People" is at least a step in the right direction!

We too have heard the pronouncement about the "state of Belleville's youth", but it surely is realized that this deals only with a minority of the young people. It seem that the press, radio, and television only emphasize the bad points — creating an impression that affects every teenager. The beneficial things done by teenagers are rarely mentioned, if at all. Do they not deserve any credit?

Certainly the parent-teen relationship is not all that might be desired in every home, but it can't really be termed "open antagonism"! We don't feel the blame should be put on the parents for being "inconsistent" or "too busy." A great share of the problem lies on the young people today. They complain that a various youth groups don't "reach" them, and don't "communicate" with them, but isn't it also true that, as teenagers, we are inclined not to listen to what others are really trying to say? This is where adult-teen co-operation becomes extremely important.

It was also mentioned that today's youth need "adult friends — not critics, censors, or dictators." Certainly this is partly true, young people need adult friends, but some of the best criticism our group has received has come from adults, who are genuinely interested in our group. This is not censoring, nor is it dictating to us what our next step should be: It is friendly help from people who are trying to help us to help ourselves. We have found in our group that it benefits everyone to talk out our problems with a panel of a few parental advisors. We reach mature decisions which are equally gratifying to both sides — as ARE constructive opinions ARE expressed. Now we are not told that we "do not know what we're talking about!"

No one joined our group simply because he didn't find his home "a compatible place to spend time with friends."

When we meet it is not to "get out of the house", but rather because we feel we have a task to accomplish and we have set out as one group to do our best.

"He has the right to criticize who has the heart to help" — we really think that criticism itself is helpful, and those who express their opinions should not sit back until they can find themselves in a convenient position from which to take action! Speaking out is important too!

"Would the real Mr. and Mrs. Concerned-About-Youth please stand up!" They ARE standing up — please people, don't knock them over!

Cape Breton's MacInnis

The Globe and Mail

The loud manners of Donald MacInnis, the Tory MP from Cape Breton, are cause, not so much for anger, as for anguish.

Mr. MacInnis has never been accused by his fellow MPs of having a sparkling sense of humor, or a high sense of honor. On occasion he has offered to settle an argument by stepping outside the debating chamber.

His latest outbursts which have brought the names of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's female acquaintances into the debates, with the insinuation they are being given Government patronage, should evoke a blush in his leader, his colleagues and most of all his constituents.

For Mr. MacInnis' constituents are people with many serious problems, a waning population, mine closings, and a heavy water plant that may never open. Helping to solve those massive issues would test the wisdom of the finest political minds of the nation.

Bill 63's Embattled Passage Leaves Legacy of Tension

Montreal La Presse: One month and 16 hours of debate in the national assembly (of Quebec): scenes in the street and monster demonstrations; decisions—among a handful of members — with incalculable consequences; a "silent" majority which remained too silent . . . It all ended with a vote of 57 in favor of Bill 63. The opponents numbered five; two abstentions and the absence from the chamber of 10 government members and 20 Liberals must be noted.

From all evidence, the outcome, even though the law has been passed, remains precarious. The province of Quebec is entering an extremely difficult era. There will be no peace of mind, for there will be groups to rekindle constantly the flame of dissent, as there will be men in politics firmly decided on stirring up new eddies. Nothing very pleasant awaits us at the outcome of this sinister adventure.

In any case, the hostilities are over and the new law's implications must be translated into reality. It is well-known what its opponents, who used a vocabulary of rare roughness, think of it. If they did not succeed in achieving a majority to block the bill, it is because their wild arguments were not enough to stir up the legislative mass, which preferred the Bertrand formula, that is, a "loyal try" at Bill 63.

We are in favor of this loyalty. We will have a general election in 1970, by far the most crucial event in our entire history, an event in which the electorate must have its say. They who should say what they want and how they want it—will make a definite choice between the advocates of a reversed absolutism and those who see themselves as the guardians of order without really being such wreckers and rotten eggs. But until this important day, we must try to live, and it is not in an atmosphere of division, tension, fear or frenzy that we will be able to rediscover the calm necessary to fruitful deliberations. The Bill 63 crisis showed that the representativeness of the legislature has been jeopardous, doubtful and fragile. This mechanism of representation remains, however, the best in the eyes of a great many. But it will no longer be enough to have it like a rite. It must be revived and reinforced. Above all, it must be proven that it is able to incorporate in a normal way the new and extremely dynamic energies that made their first show of strength over Bill 63. . .

For certain opponents, Bill 63 was only a new pretext for trying to make something other than the legislature the legitimate forum of democracy. It cannot be repeated too often that this position is dangerous and that it would not be justified to subscribe to it until all the other means of political institutions have been tried normally by the regular means offered by the existing system. . . .

An important chapter in the history of democracy in Quebec has just been written. But the chapters to come remain uncertain, for they could depend on the importance taken on by the forces which have hardly begun to show themselves, but whose appearance has given them an unsuspected strength, and fulness.—

Newspaper Slice of Life, Teachers Told

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

"The daily newspaper is a "slice of life".

As such, it brings the reality of the working world into the classroom, a lecturer at the University of Waterloo told a group of teachers attending an Intelligencer - sponsored "newspapers in education" seminar at Centennial Secondary School Saturday.

"The newspaper bridges the gap between textbook learning and the practical world," said Donald Noble.

Through slides and tape recordings he took the local teachers into Ontario classrooms where teachers have made imaginative use of the newspaper as a teaching aid.

They saw Grade 1 children learning to read and write by using words in newspaper headlines and by making a newspaper of their own.

He demonstrated the use of the newspaper in occupation classes in a Western Ontario secondary school.

The 15-year-olds in the class had a reading level of Grade 6 and were taking a two-year high school course.

"Their teachers have 200 days to give them the skills to enable them to cope with the working world," Mr. Noble said.

The newspaper's virtue lies in the fact it is not the thing that has "traditionally bugged these people" — the text book.

"It is a day-by-day record of what is expected of people by the working world," commented Mr. Noble. "Job seeking, budgeting, shopping, behavior patterns all are taught by examining the newspaper."

The students learn principles of citizenship by reading reports of court cases in the newspaper.

"They discuss why the accused was charged, whether or not the punishment fitted the crime and why the law in each instance is needed," Mr. Noble said.

The Intelligencer conducted the Saturday workshop in conjunction with local public and separate school boards and the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Teachers, sponsored by The Intelligencer to attend the annual seminars on newspapers in education at the University of Waterloo, spoke at morning workshop sessions. They explained how they used the newspaper in their classrooms on the elementary and secondary school levels.

Following group discussions in the afternoon, Mr. Noble conducted an evaluation and summary.

The Intelligencer provides free newspapers, teachers' handbooks and visual aids for classroom use in secondary schools in conjunction with the newspaper in the education program. A issue of the newspaper is one of the highlights of the program for each class.

Don Thomas And a Prize Pipe

Treasured Louis Riel Pipe Given to Hastings Museum

Pipes are part of North America's peace symbolism.

Recently the Hastings County Museum received a pipe that symbolizes the final act of violence in Canada's last domestic war.

The pipe, a handsome hand-carved meerschaum, stretching 21 inches from its slim stem to bowl, once was the personal possession of Louis Riel.

For more than 80 years it has been the personal trust of a Belleville family.

Present representative of the family is Don Thomas, former operator of the city's longest - established Front Street variety store.

The pipe, says Mr. Thomas, has been in his family's possession since 1885. It was brought back from the Northwest Rebellion by Wilmvat Ruttan, grand-uncle of Mr. Thomas, who tells the story this way:

When Riel led the Metis and Indians of Canada's western territories in revolt, Ruttan was one of the many young Canadians who flocked to the colors in the emergency. He went, west with a militia unit to join the fray against Riel, which ended with the storming of Batoche later the same year.

Riel was taken to Regina where he underwent the dramatic trial ending in a death sentence.

Throughout, Ruttan was one of the soldiers assigned to Riel's guard.

During the events at Regina he and the Metis leader apparently struck up a warm relationship.

On Nov. 16, 1885 the final, forlorn act of the uprising was carried out as Riel was escorted to the scaffold.

"They had become real friends, the two of them," recalls Mr. Thomas. "My uncle had always admired Riel's pipe."

When the time came for execution of the death sentence Riel handed the pipe to Ruttan as a memento.

Ruttan was one of the many Belleville citizens who flocked to the elegant smoker.

"Riel told him to take it—that he would'nt be needing it where he was going," recounts Mr. Thomas. "It's been in my family ever since."

Its possession has never been widely known outside the family.

However, Mr. Thomas is anxious that the pipe be preserved with its story intact.

"There's always the chance that in years to come somebody might sort through family possessions and not knowing what it was all about might throw the pipe out," he says.

He plans on giving it to the museum for display as part of its local memorabilia.

Chamber of Commerce Role Explained

FICTION (Staff) — Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce sponsored a dinner meeting at Prince Edward Yacht Club recently with guest speaker Donald Kingdon, secretary-manager, Lake Ontario Regional Development Council.

Introduced by Mr. George Shipman, Mr. Kingdon's topic was "Your Chamber of Commerce Movement."

"Having been connected with Chamber of Commerce before, as an employee, and through LORDC, the Chamber of Commerce movement has become part of me. The Chamber of Commerce movement in Canada is becoming more popular and more active each year. Our country is growing and so, your Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade must grow with it," emphasized the speaker.

"There are a great many views, opinions and ideas as to the aims and purposes of a Chamber of Commerce. There Mr. Kingdon, "that a Chamber those who believe," said her of Commerce is purely a back-slapping booster organization designed to brag as much as possible about the community and its prospects.

"There are those who consider that a Chamber of Commerce has but one function and that is to bring new industry into the community. Others believe that a Chamber of Commerce is a glorified tourist bureau, a manufacturer's organization, a retailer's section and many others. None of these views is wholly wrong, none is wholly right. A Chamber of Commerce is, to some extent all of these things but it is a good deal more."

"According to the textbook 'a Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization of the forward looking citizens in a community formed for the purpose of promoting the economic welfare of the community in which it lies' — and that is a good definition! But to my mind, the best Chambers of Commerce operate far beyond the strict limitations of a text book definition," said Mr. Kingdon.

Endeavoring to explain what makes a successful Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Kingdon stressed five fundamentals he described as essential no matter how large or how small the group.

The first of these was a capable and inspired council followed by a well planned program of work. Other necessary aspects of the successful chamber were active committees, enthusiastic membership and adequate finances topped by co-operation with other organizations.

Driving home the importance of co-operation, Mr. Kingdon referred to the rapport between the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce and the LORDC.

"The benefits of planning and discussing our mutual problems together is becoming an essential fact because of the rapid development that is and will take place in the future".

Mr. Kingdon outlined a dozen LORDC projects that have taken place within the past few years to illustrate the workings of the organization. He referred to the recent hearing in Picton to discuss the future of the old Prince Edward County gunnery range and recalled working in the past with Mayor Merryfield and his colleagues who were promoting the Quinte Skyway Bridge.

He also mentioned working with the late Mr. Lou Duncan of Proctor-Silex (now Proctor-Lewyt) when the company located here.

Said the speaker, "The Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce has always been an active "supporter of your regional development council and many representatives from here have served on our board of directors as Mr. Howard Mallett is presently doing."

Concluding his address, Mr. Kingdon described the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce as the community organization which is, or should be, the one to which everyone belongs willingly. It should be the community organization that everyone supports and from which everyone benefits.

"I know, as progressive citizens, you are interested in making Quinte's isle a better place in which to live and work, you will get behind your Chamber of Commerce and meet the challenge that lies before you," he said.

Mr. Kingdon was thanked by Howard Mallett, a vice-president of the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce now serving on the LORDC board of directors.

Rebel MP Weathervane Of Public's Opinions

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — The only independent member of the Ontario legislature believes he is functioning as a weathervane of public opinion for his colleagues.

Ronald Knight, the 37-year-old representative for Port Arthur, was interviewed during the weekend about his role in the house since he quit the Liberal party in September to sit as a "free member."

"All three parties are watching how I vote. They know I have no strings to anybody and I think they are starting to regard me as some sort of member of the general public, who will give a true reaction to what is going on."

Since leaving the Liberals to escape "a machine which is principally devoted to destroying cabinet ministers and other parties," he has voted twice with the government and four times with the opposition.

Mr. Knight said all three parties have approached him as a possible member—even the Liberals want him back—but they are beginning to realize he is a person "reared to make his own decisions and do what he thinks is right."

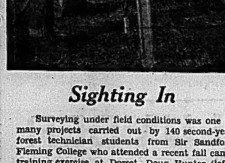
He claimed he can do more for his constituents as a free member than as a Liberal. He said he persuaded Labor Minister Dalton Bales to send two staff members to Port Arthur to study the lack of scheduled shipbuilding there this winter.

"If there were only four or five more free members like myself, things would really get done in this province."

Although officially disowned by the Liberal riding association in Port Arthur, he is confident he will receive strong support in the next election, although Ontario has never elected an independent.

"Our people vote for the man. I think they will continue to support me."

He says he offered to resign if a petition to recall him was made. But "no one has ever written a letter or made a phone call demanding my resignation."



Although his constituency is Port Arthur, Mr. Knight and his family make their home here because he was unable to find a parking area closer to Toronto for their mobile home.

He makes the 345 miles round trip each day to Queen's Park and flies twice a month to Port Arthur.

To Patricia Knight, there was nothing unusual about her husband quitting the Liberals.

"He felt he owed a debt of honesty to the children and me, as well as to the electors."

The Knights have four children, three of them adopted, and Mrs. Knight believes that she and her husband must be honest with themselves if they are "to properly prepare these children for life."

Indian Girl Works With CYC Group

OTTAWA (CP) — Barbara Wilson is not sure whether she's primarily a film-maker or a social activist.

One thing, though—she wouldn't want to be one without being the other.

A Haida Indian from Skidegate, B.C., in the Queen Charlotte Islands, she is one of five Indians working with the Company of Young Canadians in conjunction with the National Film Board's "challenge for change" program.

Miss Wilson's job as director and photographer for films about Indians requires her to present a cultural viewpoint of her people along with a degree of social activism, but she insists on looking at all alternatives.

"I like frank presentations and a realistic view," she said in an interview.

Some of the films made by her group, such as Ballad of Crowfoot, could be described as protest films. On the other hand, the point is that they are meant to establish communication within and among groups in Canada.

The 26-year-old beauty acknowledges that there is much publicity about Canadian Indians today "but you can never get enough."

She had an opportunity to meet many white people of varying attitudes when she was a hostess at the Indians of Canada pavilion at Expo 67.

"A lot of people thought it was a kick in the face—that the pavilion shouldn't have shown what we thought of the government or the white people.

"There were violent reactions —people who thought that it was garbage, that the hostesses were phoney Indians. On the other hand, the majority of the reactions were very good."

After the Expo job, she headed to Toronto where she eventually became bored working as a secretary in a real estate office.

Making use of her long-time interest in still photography, she landed her present job.

"I'm not limited to film-making. I do it because I like to do it, and though there is personal satisfaction, I don't do it for personal benefit."

Miss Wilson thinks she might like to return to the village reserve of Skidegate where "the older people could help me know more about my own culture" and where I could teach it to the younger children."

Brought up speaking English, she speaks only a little Haida. She plans to learn more of it when she returns.

"Our culture is not dying quickly, but if we leave it 10 or 15 years there'll be nothing left."

THE QUIET LIFE — Nancy Greene Raine chats on the phone as she relaxes at home while awaiting the birth of her twins. They are expected in mid-December. Being confined to the house also means cancelling promotion tours and personal appearances which have taken up much of Nancy's time since she retired from competitive skiing after winning the World Cup in 1968. (CP Photo)

Nancy Greene Takes Life Easy While Awaiting Birth of Twins

MONTREAL (CP) — "Looking back over the past year, I almost can't believe it. I've been so lucky!"

The speaker was Nancy Greene Raine, C an ad a's World Cup champion skier and top contender for the unofficial title of Mother of the Year.

On physician's orders Nancy is leading a quiet life until her twins are born, probably in mid-December. She is to rest as much as possible. This leaves her husband to buy the cribs, diapers, bottles and baby clothes.

"I had planned to get them later but since I can't go shopping, Al will have to do it —It'll probably be good for him," she added with a laugh.

Being confined to the house also means cancelling promotion tours and personal appearances which have taken up much of Nancy's time since she retired from competitive skiing in the spring of 1968.

But there are still a couple of things she can do to maintain a thriving business. One is to act as technical adviser to a European ski equipment manufacturer whose racing skis she endorses, and to keep an eye on the Nancy Greene line of skiwear.

Naturally, she has been swamped with requests for endorsement of various products. Small, obscure companies need her public support more than established, successful firms do, and are willing to pay much more to get it.

However, Nancy is not taking any chances on lending her name to sub-standard products, as much from personal pride as from a business point of view.

"If I went around endorsing all kinds of cheap things, I wouldn't live with myself," she said.

From the challenging world of international skiing, where she earned the nickname "Tiger," Nancy went to the demanding arena of public promotion.

Looking back, she says it was a lonely year.

"After a steady round of cocktail parties and appearances and meeting people all day, I went back to an empty hotel room. It seemed, well, empty.

"I met lots of interesting people, on planes and things, after I started to be recognized, but I was never in any place long enough to get to know them really well."

How does she like being a housewife?

"I think it's just great," she exclaimed. Until now, her adult life has been spent in hotel rooms and dressing rooms.

Now she and husband Al Raine, executive head coach of Canada's national ski team, have settled in a high-rise apartment building overlooking downtown Montreal and are collecting Canadiana furniture.

Nancy attributes her contentment to having achieved the goal she set for herself in skiing.

"I think the hardest thing for an athlete is knowing when to quit. It's easier when you've made it to the top."

She knows of people who dropped out before they reached their full potential and have never been really satisfied.

On the other hand, realizing that you have done your best and proven you are at the top of your field, you can retire without a sense of ambition nagging in the back of your mind, she explained.

Nancy says she has no plans to teach skiing at the world level.

It is not fair to members of a team to have the coach's wife or a has-been hanging around, grabbing some of the attention the team really deserves, she said. She also does not offer any advice to her husband—"he doesn't need it."

But while the national team was training on Whistler Mountain in Garibaldi, B.C., during the summer, Nancy did teach at a ski school nearby. The school was for anyone who wanted to attend and she says she would do it again, only to be near her husband.

At Garibaldi, the Raines lived in a condominium and Nancy, armed with an "I Couldn't Cook Either" book, began learning how to keep house.

"It was the only book that started at the beginning with what utensils to buy for the kitchen. When other cookbooks said 'cook slowly,' I didn't even know how slow 'slowly' was."

Things have improved since then, thanks to a "patient husband who'll eat anything."

She hopes to be back on the slopes by February, and figures that by the time the twins are six months old they'll be strong enough to be strapped on their parents' backs for an introduction to skiing.

When Al and I ski together, like on our honeymoon at Bugaboo, we ski free and wild and do crazy things. We keep looking for bigger hills. We don't care about style and form. If the snow conditions are bad, we go anyway."

However, they will be more cautious with the twins.

"Skiing is safer than walking down a slippery street. I'll ski 10 miles an hour slower and avoid rocks or anything that might throw me off balance."

While Nancy says she doesn't care if her children ever compete in athletics, she believes they can't help but be interested and interested in at least one sport.

"I think kids are naturally interested in sports. If their parents encourage them, they'll grow up co-ordinated and physically capable of doing several sports well."

It may be tough for Nancy and Al's children to be in the limelight that is almost unavoidable, but if there is any real conflict, Nancy says, "there is no question but that the kids will come first."

Disturbed Children Aided by New Service

TORONTO (CP) — A dedicated group of professionals and volunteers is providing a unique service for disturbed children despite limited funds and inadequate facilities.

The West End Creche, which started life as a nursery and developed into a treatment centre, would like to see satellite centres established to take the pressure off its program.

"We try not to have a waiting list; we try to place the child somewhere as parents aren't without service, but the service is not adequate, the child is not getting the treatment he needs," says chief psychiatrist Dr. Milada Havelkova.

Disturbed children sometimes are referred to a school for the retarded, she says, "but this is not treating the child."

The 29-member staff at the centre, some of them part-time workers, try to help the children, and their parents, to cope with the everyday world through highly personalized and individualistic treatment.

"I have resisted—and advise to keep resisting—expansion because individualization is lost," says Dr. Havelkova.

"The personal relationship with parents and children—this is the single important thing."

Now that the centre has come under the wing of the Ontario health department, centre officials predict a sounder financial base which should result in recruitment of the overcrowded facilities.

New System of Shorthand Successful

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. D. Scott Macnab has devised a new system of shorthand and calls it Hermes because "he was the fastest of the Greek gods."

She claims the shorthand can be learned in 4½ weeks, though most of her students take eight weeks, studying one hour daily.

Mrs. Macnab is director of a language academy in Durban, South Africa, but is spending a year in Montreal while her husband serves as visiting professor in McGill University's department of foreign law.

She began the school when she moved to Durban and realized the necessity of learning Afrikaans. Although a law was passed in 1923 requiring everyone who held a South African government job to be bilingual, it did not become effective in Durban until 30 years later.

While hoping to teach Hermes in Montreal, Mrs. Macnab says interested persons can learn it on their own, using her textbooks and the dictionary.

Her students, who number between 7,000 and 8,000 in South Africa, have achieved an average speed of 180 to 120 words a minute and "the slowest can do 80."

Mrs. Macnab says "there are no exceptions to the rules." Where possible, she has used letters of the alphabet and common mathematical and scientific symbols, such as the angle, triangle and degree sign.

Although she personally has never studied any other shorthand system, she says "as far as I can judge, mine is uniquely my own."

Ann Landers

Job Promotion Depends on Haircut

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am dating a swell kid. Joe got out of the service last year and went to work as a dishwasher in a hotel restaurant. It was the only job he could get without a high school diploma.

Last week Joe was promoted to food checker. His boss told him yesterday to either get a haircut, or say back to washing dishes. He makes $15 a week more as a checker, so it would be dumb to go back to washing dishes. He refuses to get a haircut because he insists nobody has the right to tamper with his personal freedom. So he chose the haircut.

The guys he works with call him Josephine and rib him something terrible. It makes he sick to see Joe standing by that check window wearing a silly haircut. Why are some people so mean? Please tell off the boss in your column. Maybe it will help. — JOE'S GIRL.

DEAR GIRL: The boss isn't mean. Laws set up by Boards of Health require food handlers to wear short hair or put on a haircut. Tell Joe to stop being so stubborn. If he cuts his hair, one day he might be a boss.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've read letters in your column about fathers, step-fathers, uncles and neighbors who were too "loving" with young girls. But you've never dealt with a problem that has me deeply concerned. It involves our 10-year-old daughter and her 13-year-old brother.

Mattie is crazy about Tony. She crawls all over him, hangs on him, sits on his lap, fools with his hair and follows him from room to room. Tony seems to like it. He calls her his "Baby Doll," and his "Cutie Pie."

When Tony brings girl friends to the house, Mattie gets jealous and behaves like a spoiled brat. He thinks it is "adorable." Some of his girl friends have let him know that his little sister's actions are obnoxious.

My wife says I must not say anything because it might put a dirty slant on a brother-sister love that is "beautiful." I see nothing beautiful about it. We have three other children and they don't behave this way. Please express your views. If I'm wrong I will eat crow. — TROUBLE IN BUFFALO.

DEAR BUFF: The attachment you describe is unwholesome and could pose a serious problem later. It would be healthier if that 13-year-old boy considered the adhesive antics of his kid sister annoying instead of adorable.

I discussed your letter with three behaviorist specialists. They agreed the awesome twosome should be broken up. Tony should live elsewhere if it can be arranged. The likelihood of a permanent incestuous relationship, (emotional or physical or both) is definitely present.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our neighbor's son was involved in sex crimes several weeks ago. This unfortunate tragedy has brought shame and disgrace to the young man's family. The story being circulated by the parents is that the boy was born with a genetic irregularity which caused him to do this terrible thing.

We believe it is a poor excuse and hope you will publish our views and debunk this crazy theory. — PORT SMITH, ARK.

DEAR ARK: The theory is not crazy. Scientific investigation has revealed an extra Y chromosome. This abnormality manifests itself in impulsive and out-of-control behavior. In other words, the inhibiting elements that keep normal people in line are lacking in certain individuals — like an automobile with defective brakes.

Brisket Pot Roast

By MARY MOORE

One of our enthusiastic male readers, Cam. B., sent me his version of my "years ago" pot roast. His enthusiasm infected me so much that I bought a brisket pot roast and invited six for Sunday's dinner and prepared it.

One of the things I like about brisket is the way it slices when it is cold but nothing could top the flavor of this lovely pot roast while hot. Added to my other satisfactions was the bargain price — 49 cents per pound.

BRISKET POT ROAST

Sprinkle 4-to 5-lb. tightly rolled brisket (see note below) sparingly with garlic salt

In heavy large pot such as Dutch oven or deep pressure cooker sear, without adding any fat, the pot roast on all sides on high heat until dark brown. This fills the kitchen with smoke so have your fan on and windows open. In a small bowl mix 2 tbsps. Brazil with 1 cup hot water and ½ cup chopped onions (or ¼ cup bottled onion flakes). Pour into bottom of pot. If desired spread top of roast with ¼ cup dairy sour cream. Cover and simmer 4 hrs., turning ¼ turn every half hour. At serving time remove to hot platter and keep warm. Carefully skim all but about 4 tbsps. fat from pan gravy. Make up to 2½ cups by adding pot water. Now sprinkle 5 tbsps. dry "instant" flour over top and stir until thick. (As you know I am using "instant" flour to test it thoroughly and this dry addition worked fine. But if you prefer to use the regular method stir 5 tbsps. all-purpose flour into ¼ cup cold water to make a smooth paste and stir this into the hot pan gravy until thick.) Serve gravy in preheated gravy boat.

Give your husband a boost by sharpening the carving knife for him. While this pot roast slices easily the slices are neater if the carving knife is razor sharp.

I served this with Cream Duchess Potatoes recipe for which I will give here tomorrow.

NOTES: 1) You can use cross-cut ribs of beef or short rib roast or rump roast for this pot roasting method. 2) ½ cup each chopped carrots, celery and green pepper may be added to pot along with the hot water and onions if desired.

Intelligent Women Responsible For Male Heart Attacks

By DORIS CLARK

Dr. Joyce Brothers says that when a man marries a woman more intelligent than himself he increases his chances of a heart attack by 15 per cent.

Seems an awful pity, doesn't it? It must mean that he practically bursts a blood vessel trying to keep up with her. Yet surely intellects are created only when Madam Too-Smart-to-Live rubs it in about her brilliance.

And what good is intellectual superiority anyway, if there aren't other character traits to make an effective personality? There are other things besides brains in this life.

Ladies, if any one of you is guilty of downgrading an overanxious husband, relax a little. Help him to relax. Praise and admire his good points and give him a heap of love. Until we do, there is no way that you can be raised as a high class human being.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband is retiring soon at age 60. I am wondering so much about the days to come — with delight and with trepidation! Do you have any books or booklets you recommend on any aspects of this situation?

One of the main worries is, how do we manage on a limited income in these days of inflation? I know we will, but would like all the help I can get. I have been collecting inexpensive recipes for two for some time. — One More Grateful Reader

Dear Reader: Of course you'll manage — but you'll do much better with some planning ahead.

First tackle your state of mind by reading Dr. Penfield and a number of others on the subject of retirement. I'll send you some names and ideas.

Trouble is, in the our first half century, we all think of ourselves as immortal, eternal, ageless. This may be true, but the fact remains that when we get around to 60 or 70 or 80, we deteriorate and eventually give up these mortal bodies of ours. If we aren't ready for it, age can come as a devastating shock.

If you learn how to grow old gracefully, the world can still be your oyster at 80. It calls for acceptance, optimism, self-forgetfulness, and rare good humor in the face of declining energy.

Dear Doris: My wife brought your item about the whole wheat bread recipe to my attention. The enclosed booklets are available and contain recipes of various types of bread baking. — One of the Staff at the Mill

Dear One: Thank you. These are beautiful booklets turned out by your flour mill, and the recipes go into a great deal of helpful detail. I notice instructions for making many kinds of bread — rye, coffee, cheese, Ukranian loaves, as well as an assortment of dessert breads and pastries. I will give your address to anyone writing in.

Ask Doris for the information you'll need. If she does not know, she will find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Starts French Schools

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than 150 children between the ages of three and six are registered this year in six special nursery schools in the Vancouver area. They will be given a working knowledge of the French language by next June, as a result of efforts begun by an Edmonton woman who moved here three years ago and couldn't find a nursery school where her own daughter could learn French.

White House Calls Parley On Feeding Hungry Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Tuesday will open a conference on food and nutrition designed, his architects say, to give immediate relief to the 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 hungry in the United States.

In advance of the conference — called the White House conference on Food, Nutrition and Health — the conference organizer, Dr. Jean Mayer, released Saturday recommendations of 36 groups made up largely of scientists, academics and members of the food industry.

These recommendations were reviewed by eight task force groups and their preliminary reports were released by Mayer.

Preliminary recommendations make it almost a certainty that far-reaching, revolutionary ideas will go to the White House but the initial impetus will be toward feeding the hungry.

"The continued widespread existence of serious malnutrition caused by inadequate family income is nothing less than a disgrace which must be remedied immediately," the Community Organization Task Force said in its report.

"The No. 1 priority, therefore, is to devise ways to put cash into the hands of the poor."

This group said the "minimum adequate income for a family of four is at present $6,570."

"In the absence of price controls on food and rent, this minimum should automatically rise or fall in direct correlation to

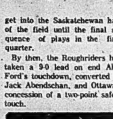
Russ Writes Own Scene For Farewell to Football

MONTREAL (CP) — Russ Jackson wrote his storybook farewell to football Sunday, demolishing some of the most hallowed myths in the game and the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The studious quarterback was playing the last game of a 12-year career as he led Ottawa Rough Riders to a 29-11 Grey Cup victory and he had forecast the manner of his going.

Two days previously, as he accepted the top awards in Canadian football, Jackson had looked ahead to Grey Cup victors and said:



"If you want a storybook ending, a Grey Cup win would be it."

He engineered that victory by ramming halfback Ron Stewart and fullback Jim Mankins into the line and by curling tight end Jay Roberts back into the wide-open area in front of Saskatchewan's deep pass defenders.

But the payoff plays were all passes—Roberts for 12 yards, Stewart for 80, Mankins for 12 and Stewart again for 30. Don Sutherin converted them all and picked up the other Ottawa point when his fourth-quarter field goal attempt was wide, but deep enough for a single.

It was a come-from-behind victory for Ottawa, who didn't get into the Saskatchewan half of the field until the final sequence of plays in the first quarter.

By then, the Roughriders had taken a 9-0 lead on end Alan Ford's touchdown, converted by Jack Abendschan, and Ottawa's concession of a two-point safety touch.

FRANK CLAIR
Breaks Jinx

Ford's booming punt single and Abendschan's wide field goal attempt which also went for one point—both in the third quarter—were the only other scores Saskatchewan could manage.

When Jackson and defensive captain Ken Lehmann accepted the Grey Cup from Prime Minister Trudeau, they needed a police escort to break through to the dressing room.

The victory came in the rubber match between the two clubs. Ottawa won 21-14 in 1951 and Saskatchewan triumphed 29-14 in 1966.

In defeating the Western Conference champions, Jackson and head coach Frank Clair demolished two Canadian football jinxes.

Never before had a player who won the outstanding player award played on a Grey Cup winner in the same year; never had a coach of the year led his team to victory in the same year.

Even Prime Minister Trudeau was caught in the record-breaking fever, His ceremonial kick off—flubbed into a mass of photographers 10 yards away last year—went for 28 yards to rank with some of the good shots the late Viscount Alexander used to deliver when he was governor-general.

The prime minister removed his otter coat and crocheted mitts for the attempt, but kept on his matching muffler and knitted Dutch boy cap.

Saskatchewan came out of the first quarter with a 9-0 lead but were behind 14-9 at the half. They cut the lead to 14-11 midway through the third but were behind 21-11 when that period ended.

Saskatchewan got the breaks early, when Bill Van Burkleo, punter and back-up quarterback to Jackson, slipped attempting to kick in the first quarter. Ken Reed recovered for Saskatchewan on Ottawa's 31.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster found halfback Steve Molnar with a short pass and Molnar went 27 yards pass-and-run for the touchdown.

Less than two minutes later, Ottawa was trapped on their own six-yard line after an illegal motion call and Van Burkleo stepped back into the end zone to concede two points but keep possession of the ball on the 25-yard line.

Ottawa stormed back in the second quarter, Jackson running for 18 yards. Then he hit Mankins to be the first to the 12. An offside call set them back five yards, but Jackson recovered that distance himself on the next play. Then he hit Roberts with a short toss, which the end took 12 yards to score.

Three minutes later, Ottawa went ahead to stay on a scoring play set up when fullback George Reed fumbled on Ottawa's 18 and Sutherin picked up the ball and carried it out to the 30. Jackson hit Stewart with a swing pass and Stewart raced 80 yards to score.

In the third quarter, Reed took Lancaster's pass up the middle for 40 yards on a play that went to the Ottawa seven-yard line. Two plays failed and Abendschan tried a field goal from 19 yards out. It was wide, but went for a single.

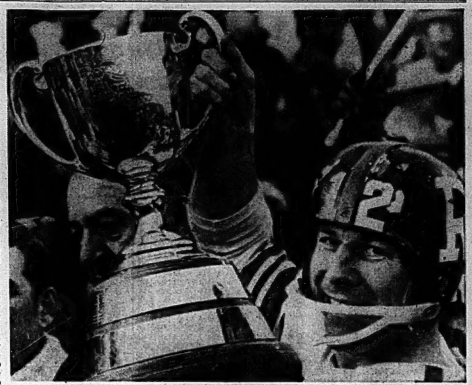
With the score 14-10, Ford missed a chance to put Saskatchewan back in the lead when he dropped a Lancaster pass in the end zone. However, he came right back with a 48-yard punt single for the West's last point.

There were seven fumbles in the game as both teams performed in rubber-soled shoes, running on a field that ranged from icy-hard in some spots to slimy and muddy in others.

It was a fumble that set up the Mankins touchdown in the third quarter. Bob Knoll fumbled a Van Burkleo punt and Danny Dever recovered for the East on the West's 27.

Mankins carried to the 12, then took Jackson's pass in the end zone.

Stewart who has said he may follow Jackson into retirement, took a flip pass from the quarterback early in the fourth quarter and squirted 32 yards to score.



Sutherin was wide on a field goal attempt which went for a single to end the scoring at 14:34.

The capacity crowd of 33,172 was not a record but the gross receipts of more than $465,000 was. It was the first $400,000 gate in Canadian football history.

Hordes of riot police—estimates of their number ranged up to 400—marched in as the game neared its close. In their hard helmets with the plastic visors and carrying three-foot long cop sticks, they ringed the field.

At the final gun they marched out and surrounded the taxiing fork goalposts.

The holiday crowd was noisy but orderly in the 25-degree weather and wind that ranged around 20 miles an hour.

Myths Go by Board In Ottawa's Cup Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Until Sunday, the player who won the most valuable player award in professional football was played on a Grey Cup winner in the same season.

Nor had the coach winning the nod as the best in the business ever won a Grey Cup the same year.

"We buried those myths today," said quarterback Russ Jackson after Ottawa Rough Riders whipped Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-11 in the East-West final.

"I was determined that my award wouldn't interfere with our game," said Jackson. He was named outstanding player of the 1969 season two days earlier. Ottawa's Frank Clair was voted best coach some time ago.

Jackson also won the most valuable player trophy in 1966, the year Ottawa lost in a Grey Cup game to Saskatchewan.

"But that wasn't the reason we lost. They were just a better club that day. Today there was no doubt about who should have won, either."

This was Jackson's final game in a 12-year career. He was asked whether he had applied for the job of general manager with Riders.

"No sir, I've applied for nothing," he declared. "I don't want to touch a football again."

At a nearby locker, halfback Ron Stewart also was enjoying lots of attention. He scored two touchdowns and in general was a standout for Riders.

Asked whether he plans to retire, as had been forecast earlier, he replied: "I want to take my time to think things over."

Ottawa didn't sign Stewart until the season opener because the club wanted to cut his salary. Congratulated on his fine game, he said:

"You have to show the coaches something so you can cash in at contract time."

Most of the Riders agreed the key to winning was stopping Saskatchewan fullback George Reed. They did it Sunday, limiting him to 28 yards in 11 carries.

Middle guard Ken Lehmann said stopping Reed meant Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster couldn't follow his game plan.

Field Same for Both Teams: Keys

MONTREAL (CP) — "If you could write your own script, it would be "great," said Saskatchewan Roughriders' head coach, Eagle Keys. "Unfortunately, you can't."

Outside the Saskatchewan dressing room after Ottawa Rough Riders' 29-11 Grey Cup win Sunday, Keys conceded: "They're the better team today."

"I think Russ Jackson called a good game," said Keys, who also singled out halfback Ron Stewart for praise on the Ottawa side.

"Any time you play on a spotty field, you never know. Anything could happen on a field like that. You knew that anyone could make a mistake, anyone could slip.

"You never know how it was going to be. Some parts of the field you could use running shoes and some you could use cleats."

However, Keys said he wasn't making excuses.

"It's the same for both teams."

He said Jackson, playing his last football game, turned Saskatchewan's blitz attempts to Ottawa's advantage.

"We tried to put the heat on him and we got burned when we did.

"I wish he'd gone a year sooner."

Keys said Saskatchewan was hurt by the loss of Jim Worden, tough-blocking tight end who did not play Sunday because of a rib injury suffered in the team's second Western playoff game against Calgary.

Asked to pick a turning point in the game, Keys selected Saskatchewan's failure to get more than a single point in the third quarter when George Reed moved 35 yards on a pass-and-run play to the Ottawa seven.

"Had we gone in and scored then, we might have had the momentum our way."

Collects 400th Point

Gilbert Joins Select Ranger Circle

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rod Gilbert, 29, in his ninth season with New York Rangers, has climbed into the National Hockey League team's 400-point club.

The Montreal native assisted on a goal by Vic Hadfield in a 3-2 tie with Minnesota North Stars Sunday night for his 400th NHL career point. A plateau reached previously by former Rangers Andy Bathgate, Camille Henry, Dean Prentice and Frank Boucher.

In other Sunday games, Bobby Orr collected a goal and an assist to lead Boston Bruins in a 4-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs, Gary Jarrett scored in give Oakland Seals a 1-0 decision over Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks beat St. Louis Blues 3-1 and Pittsburgh Penguins gained a 3-3 tie with Philadelphia Flyers.

Saturday, the Bruins tied Montreal Canadiens 2-2 while New York recorded an identical score with Philadelphia. Toronto whipped Minnesota 5-2, Detroit edged Chicago 5-4, Pittsburgh downed Oakland 5-3 and St. Louis beat Los Angeles Kings 3-1.

Walt Tkaczuk scored his 11th goal Sunday for the Rangers who stayed three points ahead of Montreal in the East Division.

Tkaczuk now has 27 points for fourth spot in the individual scoring race, just eight points behind Orr, the leading scorer.

Jean-Paul Parise and Claude Larose scored for the North Stars before 17,500 New York fans.

Goalie Gary Smith of Oakland and Roger Crozier of Detroit staged a shutout battle until 14:44 of the third period when Jarrett flipped the puck over a sprawling Crozier.

Goalie Tony Esposito of the Black Hawks was working on his fifth season shutout before a crowd of 16,666 at Chicago, but Ron Anderson picked up a rebound at 3:54 of the final period for the Blues' only score.

Bobby Hull scored his fourth goal in as many games with Gilles Marotte and Howie Menard also getting on the scoreboard.

The win left the Black Hawks just one point behind the fourth-place Red Wings in the East Division.

Orr stretched his scoring total to 33 points and controlled the play for much of the game as the Bruins climbed back to within two points of second-place Montreal.

John McKenzie, Fred Stanfield and Ken Hodge also scored for the Bruins before 14,831 Boston fans. Bob Pulford collected his fifth season goal for the Leafs.

Goalie Marv Edwards made 42 saves in the Toronto nets while Gerry Cheevers stopped 37 Toronto shots.

Former New York Ranger Prentice scored his ninth goal of the season for Pittsburgh to give them the tie before a crowd of 13,058 at Philadelphia.

Glen Sather and Keith McCreary scored the other Pittsburgh marksmen to beat Flyers goalie Bernie Parent. Jean-Guy Gendron, Bob Clarke and Jim Johnson put the puck behind Pittsburgh's Al Smith.

The Penguins and Flyers remain in third and fourth spots respectively in the West Division, with Minnesota second and St. Louis in a commanding lead.

The Leafs allowed the North Stars a 2-0 lead Saturday night before storming back with one goal in the second period and four in the final session before 16,485 fans.

Goals by Floyd Smith and Dave Keon gave the Leafs a 2-2 tie before Mike Walton beat goalie Cesare Maniago with two goals. Jim McKenny scored the final Leafs goal.

Bob Barlow and Bill Collins beat goalie Edwards for the North Stars.

Coach Johnny McLellan moved McKenny back from right wing to fill the defensive slack created by Rick Ley and Mike Pelyk, both sidelined with injuries.

Orr Picks Up Two More

Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins strengthened his scoring lead with a goal and an assist in weekend National Hockey League action, but Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues kept pace with two goals.

Orr collected his seventh goal and 28th assist for a total of 35 points. Goyette scored his 11th and 12th goals in go with his 20 assists, keeping him just three points behind Orr.

Ab McDonald of the Blues picked up three assists and, now is just four points back of team-mate Goyette.

Arnie Ends Year's Drought

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — The magnetic smile was back in place. Arnold Palmer had won again.

"This was as important to me as winning the National (United States) Open or the Masters or anything," the 40-year-old Palmer said after snapping out of a year-long slump Sunday with a three-stroke victory in the Heritage Golf Classic.

Palmer, Written off by many as over the hill and never likely to win again after he pulled out of the Professional Golfers' Association championship almost four months ago, managed a final 74, three over par, for 283.

That put him one under par for the tournament—the only man to break par on the treacherous Harbour Town golf links, a 6,655-yard, par-71 layout on this resort island.

He was three strokes in front of Dick Crawford, with a final 74, and Bert Yancey, who closed with a 72. They were tied for second at 286, one stroke ahead of Doug Ford, who had one of the two sub-par rounds on the final day, a 70. Homero Blancas closed with a 76 for 288.

ARNOLD PALMER

Jack Nicklaus had a 75 for 289 and announced he was through for the year. He made $3,633 and was mathematically eliminated from any possibility of catching Frank Beard in the race for the No. 4 spot on the money-winning list.

Palmer, the game's all-time leading money winner, hadn't since since the Kemper Open, Sept. 1, 1968—the longest victory drought of his remarkable career.

He'd been written off by many, who cited his age, the hip ailment that forced him off the tour for two months, the influx of new talent on the tour, the 50-plus victories that may have taken the edge off his desire.

THEY RE-GREW HAIR!

IN 12 MONTHS IN 3 MONTHS

Hair Specialist Here Tuesday

Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday, December 2, 1969.

Specialist, Mr. A. Draper will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair and Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1.00 to 8.00 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "cure-all". It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Roberts treatment cure baldness? "No!" say we cannot help men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually become coverage before caught in time!

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss—dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea— can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE"

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you are going to keep right on losing hair 'til you're bald—unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. A. Draper's room number when you make reservations, so come in at your convenience.

Examinations are given in private.

Ski-Doo is your number one choice in snowmobiles

Come see the 1970 reasons why

Number one in sales
Ski-Doo has introduced more people to the sport of snowmobiling than any other make. That's because Ski-Doo invented snowmobiling. And ever since 1959, when Ski-Doo put on a snowfield, Ski-Doo has been the undisputed snowmobile leader. Last year alone, Ski-Doo dealers sold over 114,000 models. That's more than the next six manufacturers combined. There are many reasons for Ski-Doo's great sales success. And a better choice of models is certainly one of them.

Number one in selection
For 1970, Ski-Doo offers five great racing series — each with a totally different personality. We're sure you'll find one to match your own. If it's luxury you're after, there's the Ski-Doo Nordic. If it's sporty action you're itching for, there's the Ski-Doo Citation. If you want a Ski-Doo that's long, comfortable and ready to go, there's the Ski-Doo Alpine. If you're looking for speed and power, there's Ski-Doo TNT. And if price is on your mind, there's the Ski-Doo 12/3. It's so low priced, a lot of people are buying two and three.

Number one in sizzle
Every one of our snowmobiles is powered by the world famous Rotax engine — designed exclusively for Ski-Doo. No other engine delivers more efficient power for climbing, low-rpm, just plain running around. And no engine acts better at all speeds — all temperatures. And this year, Rotax engines are more dependable, too. Every one is proven size, with more sic's, but down on cubic inches. And we believe for the most trouble-free performance in snowmobile history.

Number one in service
Your Ski-Doo dealer is a good guy to know. Not just because he sells the number one snowmobile. But because he can offer better service after the sale. He's a pro with know-how, ready to give you qualified repair service — whenever you need it. He's the man who offers a free 11 hour servicing check-up. Ski-Doo dealers even have a second service manual that gives them all the inside info. He's also the one person in town who can tell you where to find the best snowmobiling trails. If you want the number one choice in snowmobiles, in high-fashion driver sportswear and accessories, see your Ski-Doo dealer. He'll be glad to see you. For reasons why you go one better when you go Ski-Doo.

North America's number one snowmobile

go one better go ski-doo

Orillia: 3-1

Mo-Hawks' Jones Not Gloomy

ORILLIA (Special) — Davey Jones has been more upset with some Belleville Mo-Hawk when that, he was over last night's 3-1 loss to Orillia Terriers.

"I'm not unhappy at all," Jones confessed. "We played a good game, especially in the first period. Just to hold Orillia 1-1 for that long in their own rink showed our fellas we can do that to any club in this league."

"That long" was until four minutes remaining in the third period, when Gary Milroy put the Terriers ahead 2-1.

Al Osborne's first-period goal accounted for all the scoring in the opening 20 minutes, and Al Ferguson's 14th of the year midway through the second put the Mo-Hawks on a temporary even-keel.

Playing with four forwards in an attempt to get the equalizer, the Mo-Hawks let Clare Alexander slip through for a breakaway goal to clinch the Orillia win with less than two minutes to play.

Jones offered no excuses although he had three legitimate ones — the number of Mo-Hawks missing from Sunday's lineup and on the sick list.

Bill Armour may be in action by the Mo-Hawks next game Saturday in Galt. Armour also missed Friday night's 3-0 home loss to Oakville after an industrial accident to his thumb Thursday.

The additional virus-loss of "Shaker" Baker and "Weiner" Brown left the Mo-Hawks with only 12 players dressed for Sunday's game, and only Lou Kazowski, Lionel Bolly and

AL FERGUSON
Scores 14th

Greg Marchen to handle blueline chores.

None of the eight OHA Senior A clubs finds it embarrassing to lose to the first-place Terriers, who have only lost twice in 16 outings this season.

Orillia outshot the Mo-Hawks in each period, tesing Steve Rexe 33 times in all.

Besides getting Belleville's only goal and already equalling his 14 - goal output of 28 Mo - Hawk games last year, Al Ferguson also drew the locals' only penalty of the cleanly - played contest.

His first - period boeing minor was one of only three called in the game, none of which figured in the scoring.

Their seven - game unbeaten streak before Friday helped offset the Mo - Hawks pair of weekend setbacks.

Their 7-7-2 record is still good enough for fifth spot in the standings, two points ahead of Kingston.

The game originally scheduled with the Aces in Belleville for this Friday has been changed to Tuesday, Dec. 9 to make room for the Ellis Junior B "Pony Night" at the Memorial Arena.

Whip Byes 4-2

New Face Means New Luck for Juniors

The presence of newcomer Ron Jury protecting the Belleville goal against the Ellis Juniors to a 4-2 victory over Peterborough Don Byes in an Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey game at the Memorial Arena last night.

Jury, who played minor hockey with many of the boys on the club hadn't been on skates for two years but kicked out 35 Peterborough shots to help the locals record their second win of the year.

The win moved the locals into fifth place in the 6-team standings, a point ahead of Trenton.

The locals were talking to each other through the course of the game, something they didn't show in their first nine outings.

"The Belleville club were a much improved club from what I saw in Peterborough earlier," said Peterborough coach Jack Gibson. "I thought our club played well but they just beat us to the puck. That goaltender made some key saves for them."

Belleville coach Floyd Crawford was obviously delighted, but maintained his self-imposed silence on the Juniors' performance.

The locals who skated and hustled for a full 60 minutes the first time this year, missed a lot of scoring chances in the first half of the game as they had Peterborough on the ropes.

Belleville scorers were Danny Lupenette, John McConnell, Terry Meagher and Teddy Waite.

With a goal and an assist each last night, McConnell and Meagher moved to within one point of Kingston's Colin Louden in the race for scoring leadership.

Peterborough goal - getters were Gord Watts and Doug. Gibson.

Bantam graduate Kevin Dockrill from Picton along with Greg Burkitt played a very strong game on the blueline for the Ellis Juniors, giving Jury all kinds of protection as the Ellis defence as a whole cleared the puck well, not giving Peterborough many good scoring opportunities in their 37 shots.

Jerry Candler and Dave Smith played a fine two-way game for the locals hustling back to check whenever Peterborough were on the offensive side of things.

There were 22 minutes in penalties handed out during the course of the game with Belleville getting eight minutes, all minors.

The losers outshot them 37-34.

Belleville's next game comes Friday night at the Memorial Arena, 8.30 p.m. against the Trenton Golden Hawks in the club's annual "Pony Night".

Kingston Team Wins Grant Bird Meet

Although the championship for the Doug Grant Annual Badminton Trophy had to be decided in the final two matches, Belleville was left completely out of the picture.

In the tournament held at Belleville's Armouries Saturday, Kingston won top honors by winning 6 matches, Trenton was a close second with 44 wins and Peterborough placed third with 31 victories. Belleville won 23.

The events included Men's Singles, Women's Doubles, Men's Doubles and Mixed doubles, 144 matches in all.

"There are no individual winners in this event," said Garrison Badminton Club president Bill Waldron. "It is a team effort with every win counting as a point towards the Championship."

"This tournament has been going on for the past ten years among those four cities," said Doug Grant, donator of the trophy. "I hope the tournaments in the future are as good as the ones in the past."

Aces Deal Defeat

The Aces defeated OSD 7-1 in Belleville's Minor Hockey Juvenile action over the weekend.

Gord Bridge and Jim Poole had two goals each for the Aces. Harold Wilkinson, Roger Hinge and Ron Richardson all added single goals to round out the Aces scoring.

Teddy Markelow scored OSD's lone goal.

Kinsmen Bantams Still Undefeated

A 5-3 win over Peterborough Sunday left Belleville's Kinsmen Bantam all-stars as the only undefeated city all-star team.

Andy Ricketts paced the Kinsmen with a hat trick — his eighth, ninth and tenth goals in the last four games. Singles went to Mark Coates and Grant Goegan.

The winners drew nine of 17 penalties in the chippy contest.

The Towers Food City Novices and the back up 'B' team however were not as fortunate as Stirling Novice B defeated the locals Novice B's 3-2 and Peterborough downed the local A team 6-3. It marked the first loss of the season for the Towers 'A' Novices.

Mark Dobson, Rod McKewan and Al Houtbell scored for Stirling in the Novice B game.

Mike Bennett had two goals and Bobby Crawford one for the Tower's in their loss to Peterborough.

Bruce Evans, Collins Lewis, Maloney and O'Reilly scored for Peterborough.

Belleville's Maurice H. Rollins Pee Wee all - stars were blasted 7-0 by Peterborough Church League Sunday.

Gibson and Eastman had two goals each for Peterborough while Dettman, Dunn and Roy had the other goals.

The local Baker Minor Midget all-stars brought back a little spark in local Minor Hockey by gaining a 4-2 decision over Gananoque.

David Horwood had two goals for Belleville with Ricky Meagher and Brian Cousins adding singles.

Mangan and Wing answered for Gananoque.

Juvenile all-star results were not made available.

Lottery Tonight Decides Future of 500,000 Young Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States holds its first military draft lottery in 27 years tonight, with the fate of 500,000 men between the ages of 19 and 26 at stake.

There will be a big board with numbers and dates being posted one by one, a bit glare of lights; men and women jotting down every announcement and handing the notes to scurrying messengers. It may look more like a hot day in the stock exchange than a December night of selective service.

The numbers and dates will be birthdays—each one telling hundreds, or thousands, of men throughout the country their chances of being drafted in 1970.

Just outside selective service's Januzzo conference room where the drawing takes place will be a glass case in the lobby, containing a souvenir from the past.

It's a large glass jar used for the first draft lotteries in the First World War and again in the Second World War.

President Nixon revived the lottery—calling it "random selection"—last Wednesday by signing an executive order and a proclamation of tonight's drawing.

Even before Nixon signed the lottery into law, Lt.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director since 1941, had ordered a new jar.

Only 366 capsules—one for each day of the year, with an extra day for Leap Year—will be mixed and drawn.

The actual drawing is to be done by 53 young people, members of the Selective Service Youth Advisory Groups from the 50 states, the District of Columbia, New York City, a separate draft region, and Puerto Rico.

Whoever reaches into the jar —almost to the shoulder—will withdraw a capsule, open it, and read the date contained inside.

Then he will peel off a protective backing to expose the blue and paste the date next to the number "001" on the big board.

The number, and the date next to it will be announced once more, and the next capsule will be drawn by the next youth advisory and be stuck alongside the next number.

Where a man's birthday appears on that list will determine how fast his draft board will get around to him. Men with birthdays next to the low numbers can expect a draft call in 1970; those next to high numbers probably will not be drafted; those in the middle range face a year of uncertainty, waiting to see if the draft reaches them or not.

Another, smaller drawing will follow, but it's only to provide a way of deciding who goes first when men in the same draft board's pool share the same birthday.

In that one, the letters of the alphabet will be loaded into 26 capsules and their drawing will establish an order which draft boards can use by matching the letters with the initials of the men involved.

Five Men Drown As Ship Founders

HALIFAX (CP) — A search is continuing for one man missing after the Thomas J. Hodder, a former Newfoundland coastal freighter, sank Sunday off the coast of Cape Breton.

Four bodies have been recovered from the rough, cold waters about 12 miles southeast of Scatari Island off the Cape Breton coast— and Ian McGinness, 16-year-old son of the freighter's captain, was rescued by the Liberian tanker Geodor.

There was no word on his condition. A resident of Montreal, he formerly lived in St. Charles, near Souris, P.E.I.

The Herbert Baum, a German fishing trawler, made port at North Sydney, N.S., early today with the bodies of three men.

The body of the freighter's owner, John A. (Jack) Parlee of Montreal and formerly of Saint John, N.B., was picked up by the Canadian National ferry Patrick Morris.

Russian Attack Feared

China Hurries Defence Plans

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China is stepping up defence preparations, ordering the construction of air raid shelters and drawing up plans to evacuate major cities in case of an attack by Russia, reports reaching diplomats here say.

Since the Soviet-led Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia in August, 1968, the Chinese have shown signs of a genuine fear of a Russian attack.

The preparations have been intensified in the last month, the reports say. Even schoolchildren have been required to fill in forms stating whether they wish to stay with their parents or be evacuated in the event of war.

After previous signs that the six-week-long border talks with Russia in Peking have not been going well, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai launched a scathing attack on the Soviet Union during the weekend.

Speaking at an Albanian embassy banquet, Chou reiterated the Chinese charge that Russia and the United States are working together to suppress revolution and divide the world.

Chou, quoted by Peking radio, said the U.S. and Russia were talking of disarmament but were in reality "both engaged in arms expansion and war preparations."

"Confronted with these aggressive ambitions and war threats, the people of the whole world should heighten their vigilance, unite and make full psychological and material preparations," he added.

He did not directly name the Soviet Union but used the term "social imperialism"—a milder epithet adopted by Peking against Russia earlier this year.

Reports reaching diplomats in Hong Kong say a vast tunnel complex has been built in Canton, with main entrances in the city's central park and at important road junctions.

These tunnels lead outside the city to a hill and are believed designed to enable large numbers of the population to escape in the event of air raids.

City residents are digging air raid shelters under their homes, supervised by "Kaifong" (local residents associations) and urged on by army and worker propaganda teams.

Tenants of larger buildings are held responsible for providing shelters to accommodate 10 or more persons. Shelters built beneath large office blocks and apartment buildings have exits leading to tunnels.

Many old people are reported to have been moved already out of the cities and many factories transferred to rural areas.

In Shanghai, students and factory workers are receiving daily military training and orders have been issued for the construction of air raid shelters in every street.

A booklet is being distributed to Shanghai residents giving advice on what to do in the event of war and containing first aid instructions, the reports say.

Ships entering Chinese ports are being issued instructions on which anchorages they are to move to during an air aid.

In the countryside, preparations for possible war are reported to be just as intense.

In Paoan county in Kwangtung, for example, farmers are reported no longer to be required to study Mao Tse-tung's thoughts but must instead devote their spare time to defence preparations.

Ban on Christmas In School Lifted

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP) — A ban on all religious reference to Christmas and Hanukah — major Jewish holiday—in public schools has been rescinded after parents and children picketed the home of the school committee chairman and left an inflatable Santa Claus on his lawn.

"The program of observing religious holidays in the Marblehead public school system will continue as it has in the past," the school committee said in a statement Sunday.

The school department had issued a statement earlier saying: "All reference to the word Christmas will be eliminated in group activities planned in all Marblehead schools."

School Supt. Aura W. Coleman said the ban was adopted after a conference with clergymen of all faiths in this coastal community north of Boston.

Coleman said that during the Christmas season last year he received "numerous complaints" from Jewish parents about their children's participation in school holiday activities.

Santa Claus Parade Bans Christian Float

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Putting Christ back into Christmas has no place in a Santa Claus parade, a group of Windsor young people learned Saturday.

Windsor Jaycees, sponsors of the city's first Santa Claus parade since 1963, barred a float prepared by the coffee house committee of the Young Christian Workers because "it didn't conform."

Jaycee president Mike Brown said the float wasn't allowed in "because it wasn't in keeping with the theme of the parade, an old-fashioned Christmas."

Hard-hitting Rams Win 11th Straight

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Rams' defensive unit, one of the most feared in the National Football League, took on the league's leading passer Sunday and there was little doubt about the outcome.

The Rams' front line, known as the Fearsome Foursome, held Washington quarterback Sonny Jurgensen to only 30 yards in the air in the first three quarters and dumped him for losses six times as Los Angeles trounced the Redskins 24-13.

It was the 11th consecutive victory for the Rams—the first time an NFL team has won that many in a row in a season since Cleveland did it in 1953—and it wrapped up their Coastal Division championship.

Meanwhile, Bill Nelsen's pinpoint passing spirited Cleveland 30 yards in the fading minutes for a 28-24 victory over Chicago Bears to give the Browns the Century Division title.

Los Angeles will play Minnesota Vikings—who sewed up the Central Division championship Thursday by beating Detroit Lions—for the Western Conference title Dec. 27. There will be a preview of that showdown next Sunday when the Vikings travel to Los Angeles.

Cleveland will take on either Dallas Cowboys or Washington for the Eastern Conference title Dec. 28. Although the Redskins' Sonny Jurgensen is only 30 yards in the air in the first three quarters and dumped him for losses six times as Los Angeles trounced the Redskins 24-13.

The two conference playoff games will be for the NFL title and the right to go to the Super Bowl Jan. 11.

In other games Sunday, Baltimore Colts edged Atlanta Falcons 13-6, St. Louis Cardinals ripped Pittsburgh Steelers 47-18, Green Bay Packers checked New York Giants 20-16 and New Orleans Saints beat Philadelphia Eagles 26-17.

Gale Sayers, who scored a touchdown and rushed for 126 yards to set a new NFL league lead with 841, led Chicago.

It was the 10th loss in 11 games for the Bears, assuring them the worst season in their 50-year history.

Tom Matte's touchdown and Lou Michaels' pair of field goals powered Baltimore to a victory that didn't save the Colts from elimination in the Coastal Division.

Jim Hart passed for three touchdowns and scored one while Cid Edwards rushed for 128 yards and scored another as St. Louis handed the Steelers their 10th straight defeat.

Quarterback Don Horn, filling in for injured Bart Starr, connected on a pair of touchdown passes as Green Bay shook off a three-game losing streak by handing the Giants their seventh straight loss.

Rookie Tom Dempsey, who was born without half of his right foot and one hand, kicked four field goals—from 27, 40, 28 and 17 yards—that provided the difference in New Orleans's victory over Philadelphia.

Nats Settle For Draw

PRAGUE (CP-AP) — Canada and Czechoslovakia played to a 5-5 tie Saturday in the last of a five-game exhibition hockey series. In previous games, Canada tied one and lost three.

Billy Harris scored twice for the Canadians Saturday, while Brian Conacher, Corby Adams and George Watson fired single goals. Hlinka had two goals for the Czechs, with Machac, Farda and Hrbaty getting one each.

The teams tied 4-4 in the opening game Nov. 22 before the Czechs won the next three 5-2 last Sunday, 6-4 last Tuesday and 4-0 Thursday.

Bonkers Stalemate Play

The Bonkers and the Bruins played to a 3-3 tie in the first game of Northern Electric Hockey League action last night.

The Bonkers' scorers were Bob Taylor, John Bunnett and Ted Soule. Bill Goodfellow had two goals while Dwight Rathwell scored one for the Bruins.

Meanwhile, the Comets bombed the Dukes 14-4.

Wayne McMullin and Bob Brownlees had two goals each for the Comets while Terry Casselman, Wayne Brown and Larry Roote had one goal each.

Namath Loses Aerial Duel

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Daryle Lamonica won his individual war with Joe Namath in the battle of passers, but it was Oakland raiding parties which clearly knocked the wind out of the New York Jet stream.

Lamonica outdistanced Jaunty Joe in a matchup of top-flight quarterbacks as Oakland's bullish defenders blunted New York's offence en route to a 27-14 American Football League victory Sunday.

Lamonica connected on 19 of 35 passes for 333 yards and two touchdowns. Namath could only manage 10 of 30 for 169 yards and one touchdown.

The victory gave Oakland a half-game lead over Kansas City in the Western Division scramble. New York, by losing, was denied a title-clinching in the East.

Buffalo Bills nipped Cincinnati Bengals 16-13 and Boston Patriots walloped Miami Dolphins 38-23 in the other AFL games Sunday.

Booker Edgerson led the way in Buffalo's victory by stealing the ball from Cincinnati quarterback Greg Cook and running 10 yards into the end zone. The play occurred at 11:20 of the third quarter when Cook went to his right, looking for a receiver and Edgerson backed into the rookie, turned around and took the ball away.

Until then, the Bills were leading 9-6 on three field goals by Bruce Alford. Horst Muhlmann had booted a pair for the Bengals.

Fumbles plagued both teams. Buffalo recovered all seven of Cincinnati's bobbles and the Bills fumble twice, recovering one.

BEDS FOR DECORATION?

Used since ancient times as a substitute for sleeping on the floor, beds were also an important piece of decorative furniture, especially in Europe where they had inlaid designs and carved draperies. Bed design today is much more functional, yet still pleasing to the eye and room design.

Now that the children are grown, there may be some extra beds in your house which you can sell them with an Intelligencer Want Ad ... just by dialing 962-9171 and ask for Classified Ads.

2nd Thurlow

2ND THURLOW — Mrs. Harry Thomson, Mrs. Don Mitchell were guests of the Dept. of Agriculture at the Royal Winter Fair on Monday and Tuesday and stayed at the Lord Elgin Hotel, guests of the Province of Ontario.

The Neighbors Aid held a euchre on Friday night. Mrs. Gerald Stratton convened the euchre with several assistants. Sixteen tables were in play with prizes won by Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. Ada Donaldson, Mrs. F. Reddick, Dave Fordham, Raymond Higgins, Orval Stratton. Lucky draw was won by F. Reddel. Lunch was served and social time spent.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Lorne Mallory spent a few days with her daughters, Mrs. Fred Robson of Stayner, Mrs. Hartley Waterton of New Lowell and Mrs. Hudson Hilsden of Oshawa.

This district was well represented at the Santa Claus parade on Saturday afternoon in Trenton. Miss Carolyn Miller assisted the Dorothy Dickey Majorettes in the parade and gave them acrobatics and in baton twirling.

Mrs. R. Tate opened her home on Wednesday for Bible Study for the local women.

Home and School News

Bonarlaw

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Art, French and outdoor education in Hastings County Schools got a boost this month from the Home and School Council.

The organization recently presented cheques for the promotion of these subjects to county teachers.

The money will be used to buy Simple French readers for schools where oral French is taught, for reproductions of pictures and sculpture for a travelling art exhibition and for equipment to start outdoor education.

The money was accumulated over a period of years from fees charged pupils for the oral French lessons sponsored by Home and School in Belleville. The lessons were organized and given on a fee-paying basis before the Belleville Public School Board took over the teaching of oral French.

The lessons cost 24.2 cents a pupil, and each pupil was charged 25 cents. The surplus of eight-tenths of a cent, with interest, amounted to about $900 by the time the Home and School Council was relieved of this year into a county-wide body.

After assessing the needs of all county schools, a committee holding the money in trust decided to spend it in three areas — $400 each going to art and French and $100 to outdoor education.

Roger Greig, chairman of the art section of the educational advisory committee for Hastings County, will convene a meeting of art teachers to choose appropriate reproductions. The French readers for supplementary use will soon be in the schools.

BONARLAW — Levi Laton is undergoing treatment in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Don Leonard is a patient in Belleville General Hospital reported suffering with pneumonia.

Miss Judy Cosby, bride of the month was tendered a shower on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Rose. Judy received many lovely and useful gifts.

Miss Barbara McFaul, Peterborough spent the weekend at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Burkitt enjoyed a motor trip to Sudbury and visited friends and motored on to Manitoulin Island where they visited their daughter, Mrs. E. G. Burley, Mr. Burley and son over the weekend.

Mrs. George Thompson is visiting for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson and family at Hamilton.

Cheese Exchange

The following is a report of the cheese sold on the Belleville Cheese Exchange held on Wednesday, November 26, 1969. All cheese sold F.O.B. warehouse. Next exchange to be held on Wednesday, December 3 at 1.00 p.m.

Make Sure Your Jack Works And That Spare Tire Is Hard

By RAY STAPLEY

At the best of times it seems that a flat tire invariably happens when we are behind schedule, but the height of aggravation, especially when cold and dark, is to be stranded with a flat on a busy roadway and find that either your jack is inoperative or missing, or that the spare tire is flat.

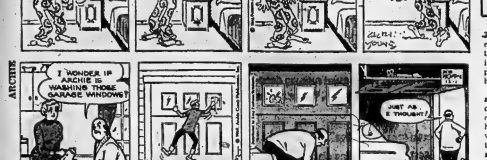
The jack frequently lies idle for long periods and for this reason it is often the last thing we ever think about.

A man I know was driving in the wilderness when a tire blew. When he opened the trunk to get the jack he found the base plate was missing. To improvise he placed a piece of plywood under the jack and proceeded to raise the car. The jack mechanism was badly rusted and it would barely work.

He finally got the wheel off the ground and tried to loosen the wheel nuts but they were seized and would not budge. In desperation he gave a hefty tug, the plywood split, and the shaft of the jack buried itself in the gravel.

On his next attempt he first loosened the nuts with the wheel on the ground and then jacked up the car. As he was at the point of removing the wheel, the car rolled backwards, dropped off the jack and crushed his finger. A passing motorist drove him to a doctor and a service truck finished the job of changing the flat.

This points up the need to check the jack's operation periodically and have it lubricated. Never use a jack if the base plate is missing, and before mounting the spare block the front and rear of one of the tires (not the flat one) before raising the car.



While riding back in a friend's car after a skiing trip last winter, we became aware of a bumping sensation, which turned out to be a defective tire. At about zero degrees we went about the grizzly business of changing it when a Department of Highways Courtesy truck stopped and offered assistance.

After mounting the spare wheel, our rescuer lowered the jack only to find that the tire was half flat and we had to drive slowly to the nearest service station to inflate it.

Tire pressure should be checked about once a month and be sure the spare tire is included. And, remember, after you have had a flat tire, there is no spare, so have the tire you removed repaired as soon as possible.

Drivers, especially women who have never had to come to grips with a flat, should ask their service station attendant to explain the tire changing procedure, or better still, give them a demonstration. At the same time, if the wheels have not been removed for some time, it is advisable to have the attendant alternately loosen and tighten each nut or bolt to check for possible seizure.

Children's Ills Get Mother Down

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: As a 39-year-old mother of two children I often feel I am at the end of my rope. My doctor is very understanding and has prescribed tranquilizers for me but this is not the answer.

Our 9-year-old son is hyperactive and very hard to handle. Our pediatrician has him on medicine which changes him from monster to angel within 20 minutes of taking the pill. I have had him to a special clinic and their only advice was to continue the medication. Every day is a battle of survival of the fittest. He seems to be getting much better each year so we hope he will grow out of this, but meanwhile I seem to be falling apart.

After nine years of nerve relaxing and having to be consistent in discipline in every move I make with him — I suddenly seem to be "losing my cool!" My sense of humor has disappeared.

Now, our 12-year old daughter is being evaluated at another clinic. She has always been a school problem. But because she was always so quiet, we thought her trouble came from living with her brother, who has made things very difficult for her.

Doctors haven't completed her examinations. They say she appears to be mentally retarded, but they can't be sure until they have a psychiatrist who has no visual or audio perception problems.

My feelings at this point are to stay in bed and hide under the covers. Our son is gaining more control every day, nevertheless I am becoming a weepy weakling. — Mrs. B.

Comment: Your apparently hopeless boy is improving; so may your daughter. Perhaps her trouble is in her eyes or ears. Many so-called mentally retarded children have become normal after appropriate treatment of ears or eyes. Meanwhile, have your own doctor keep you in control of your own nerves. Your children's improvement will also depend upon how the mother feels and reacts to their problems.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I was operated on for a ruptured appendix. Four months later I had a hysterectomy. In six weeks I had a gall bladder attack. X-rays showed stones. I know I have to be operated on again. My question is: How much time shall I let pass so I won't be shocking my nervous system again.

Comment: The decision, of course, will be your doctor's. But bear this in mind. Many people fret more waiting to have an operation than having it over with. It all depends upon your emotional make-up — and the actual need for early surgery. If you keep dreading further surgery or you again, I believe most doctors would say there's no hurry. But if the thought of operation keeps you up night after night, you will be shocking your nervous system more by delaying the surgery.

* * * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been having sporadic occurrences of cracking skin at one or both corners of the mouth. Can this be remedied? — Mr. C.

Comment: You might try vitamin B complex with large doses of riboflavin vitamin. Sometimes deficiency of these vitamins is a cause. If it persists, better see a dermatologist.

U.S. Prison System Deforms

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The nation's sharp rise in criminality in recent years has become one of the main anxieties of the American people, as it should. Crime is like a pandemic disease; it spreads if it is not checked.

But in dealing with disease, we do not sing with the symptoms — we seek for the underlying causes. In matters of social health, however, we are satisfied if we can diminish the surface symptoms, while the causes continue to spread.

Nowhere is this truer than in our vast uncertainty about the U.S. "correctional" system: which does not correct, but deforms, diminishes, distorts, perpetuates and multiplies the very ailment it purports to cure.

This past summer, at the American Bar Association convention in Dallas, the new Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Warren E. Burger, proposed a national conference on correctional problems, based on the fact that unless something different is done, "an increasing proportion of our population will become chronic criminals with no other way of life except the revolving door of crime, prison, and more crime."

While professing no plan of his own, the Chief Justice pleaded with the lawyers that "there must be some way to make correctional system better than the revolving - door process which has made 'recidivist' almost a household word in America."

Upwards of 70 per cent of the inmates of our penitentiaries are recidivists, or "repeaters" — that is, convicted in jail. This number is growing every year, and the few prison reforms that have been put into effect have not begun to keep up with the dramatic rise in the crime rate.

Obviously, strict "law and order" enforcement, which ends by putting men in jail and forgetting them until they are let out to repeat the only way of life they knew, is a self-defeating process. Especially when the most important thing a man learns in jail is how to become more successful next time.

As Justice Burger suggested, "We must explore more fully a limited confinement and work release. We must search for new incentive programs in permit reduction of sentences for those who will educate and train themselves in skills which give a man pride and identity."

If, he pointed out, we truly believe that the problem of securing an orderly society, guided by fair concepts of justice, is one of the great priorities of our time — then the disposition of convicted persons is one of the most important priorities in establishing a system of ordered liberty. I will deal further with this matter in tomorrow's column.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 2

Your birthday today: After a rapid start with dramatic changes in your thinking, the year settles in a few months to an upward swing, of greater intuitive powers and more effective planning. Sentimental interests become more important. For the very young the year is full of excitement related to parental activities. Today's natives have a natural gift for politics.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Use common sense to get matters going without stirring up criticism from other people. Information is noisy, irrelevant. Stay close to headquarters so you miss nothing.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Changes in details today distract most people and test your skills in sticking to the subject. Firm decisions are not likely. Take it easy.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Whatever you do now causes much talk. Don't leap to conclusions which, in the long run, do not hold up well.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Be alert for minor details. Get the co-operation of others is not easy at this point if your idea is difficult to describe or has some original quality.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Stay with established plans. Long term obligations signed today are likely to be difficult to meet later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Conflict between home conditions and work opportunity arises. Personal plans are tested and people talk. You can learn more by listening than by squabbling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Use a practical approach today and do things directly and without experimentation. Pursue matters while they're fresh. If you must travel, start early and take care.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Keep friendship and financial matters separate today. There is a great deal of discussion wherever your opinions differ. Wait for additional information before making decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22, — Dec. 21): If you stoically cope with minor annoyances, everything else is moderately successful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Exasperation mounts — are not clear. Correspondence is incomplete or confused.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your friends are all capable of involving you in deals that are just as stupid as they sound. Check your facts and figures but don't get involved in arguments over trifling sums. Seek intellectual diversion this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Work on those things which need no assistance from others. You are likely to find much bickering in a team.

'They Love Us'

Russians Overrun U.S. Moon Exhibit

MOSCOW (AP) — A United States exhibition showing a moon rock was overrun by Russians Sunday and police reinforcements were called in to bring the crowd under control.

The moon rock was not damaged but a booth where a movie of Apollo 11 was being shown was bumped out of shape by pushing, shoving crowds. The movie booth had to be closed temporarily.

Exhibit director Tom Craig said the line waiting to get into the U.S. exhibit was about 7,000 at its peak. The plate-glass front door was smashed by the anxious crowd but there were no known injuries.

Asked whether the crowd was friendly or hostile, Craig said: "They love us."

The education exhibit, shows modern U.S. teaching machines and other school equipment. The Apollo 11 movie and the moon rock were added attractions.

Cuban Refugees Run U.S. Cocaine Traffic

WASHINGTON (AP) — A select committee on crime hearing is scheduled to begin Thursday.

A committee spokesman said most of the smugglers are women who bring cocaine into Miami International Airport on scheduled airlines from Nicaragua and two other Latin American countries where cocaine production is legal. He didn't name the two.

"They fly out with many concealed on them," he said, "and they fly back looking just a little bit pregnant."

smuggling and distribution ring that uses women to bring in 50 to 70 per cent of the United States cocaine traffic will be spotlighted at congressional hearings in Miami this week, investigators say.

They say the ring is run by Cuban refugees who once smuggled cocaine through Havana and has the scope of an organized crime operation but has no known Mafia connections.

Sergeant Calls My Lai 'Point-blank Murder'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sgt. Michael Bernhardt, who was at My Lai, says "it was point-blank murder." He said he told officers: "I'm not with this, I'm not doing it."

A U.S. Army lieutenant has been charged with the premeditated murder of 109 South Vietnamese men, women and children during an army operation in the hamlet of My Lai in March, 1968.

Bernhardt and some veterans recall their experiences at My Lai in the current issue of Life magazine.

Sgt. Charles West, a squad leader at My Lai, said a briefing before the operation "put fear into a lot of our hearts; we thought we'd run into heavy resistance."

Capt. Ernest L. Medina, company commander at My Lai, "didn't give us an order to go in and kill women or children," West said. "Nobody told us about handling civilians, because at the time I don't think any of us were aware of the fact that we'd run into civilians."

F. Lee Bailey, a leading criminal lawyer, said he has been retained by Medina, who is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. He has not been charged in the case. Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., leader of the first platoon in Medina's company, awaits court martial for the alleged murder of 109 civilians.

Saturday, Calley also was charged with killing a South Vietnamese civilian 1½ months before the My Lai incident.

A military judge has ordered potential witnesses in the My Lai case "to withhold public statements until the court martial. Bailey, reached by telephone in Columbus, Ohio, said he would ask President Nixon to remove the restriction so Medina could offer a televised version of his recollection of the incident.

Bernhardt, currently stationed at Fort Dix, N.J., said: "The people who ordered it probably didn't think it would look so bad . . . It was point-blank murder. Only a few of us refused. I just told them the hell with this, I'm not doing it. I didn't think this was a lawful order."

Specialist John Kinch, still on duty in Vietnam, said he had been point man for the heavy weapons platoon.

"Capt. Medina was right in front of us," Kinch said. "Col. Barker, the task force commander, was overhead in his helicopter. He came though on the radio saying he had got word from the medevac (medical evacuation) chopper there were bodies lying everywhere and what was going on. I heard Capt. Medina tell him: 'I don't know what they are doing. The first platoon's in the lead. I am trying to stop it.'

"Just after that," Kinch said, "he called the first platoon and said, 'That's enough shooting for today.' Col. Barker called down for a body count and Medina got back on the horn and said: 'I have a body count of 310.'"

Former army photographer Sgt. Ron Haeberle and Specialist Jay Roberts, assigned to write about the incident for the brigade newspaper, recounted these episodes at My Lai:

—A group of soldiers tried to disrobe a teen-age girl. When her mother tried to intervene, both were placed in a group of other women and shot.

—A Negro soldier shot himself in the foot with a pistol to get evacuated after saying he couldn't stomach it.

—Soldiers stood around shooting and stabbing cows and pigs. One chased a duck down a trail, waving a knife.

Scott Wins Every Poll, Keegan Top Alderman

Mayor Scores Landslide Win

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

An election bereft of public issues, stimulating 44 per cent of the electorate, has shaped Belleville's city hall government for the next three years.

The public vote produced two personal triumphs.

Last night's electoral laurels went to:

(1) Mayor Russell Scott, sweeping the city's 10 polls away from Alderman Richard Ellis, his council colleague for the past two years and the man who scored a record aldermanic vote in 1967. It took four hours to tally the dimensions of the mayor's landslide — Scott 6,416, Ellis 2,508.

(2) Alderman Arthur Keegan, a veteran of 10 city hall years and an avowed supporter of Mayor Scott. He topped the polls with 5,787 votes, nearly 1,000 more than his nearest council competitor.

By virtue of the popular vote both men were last night's key local government figures, heading the 1970-72 council that also will include two women.

Other councillors, in order of poll popularity are Ald. Arnold Orr (4,874); Ald. Robin Jeffrey (4,722); Ald. Gerald Joyce (4,678); Jack Ireland (4,113); Ben Corke (4,005); Ald. Paul Russell (3,981); Donald Soutter (3,872); Jean-Smith (3,361); Ald. Enos David (3,286).

Ireland, Corke, Soutter and Smith are the newcomers in a vote that returned all aldermen seeking re-election.

Mr. Soutter, Intelligencer managing editor and Mrs. Smith chairman of the 1969 United Appeal, are newcomers to city government. Mr. Ireland and Mr. Corke, both Front Street merchants, served on previous councils.

Losing bids on the 10-seat council were made by: City businessman William Wills (2481), organized labor candidate Gerald Cunningham (2893), Belleville and District Labor Council past president Ray Bradshaw (2734) and city watchmaker Andre Mercier (2,623).

Outside the council arena, controversy paid off for Front Street jeweller Gagald O'Connor who put about the only issue muscle in a fiscal election. He challenged both incumbents seeking the two seats on the city's utilities commission — chairman Lyle Langabeer and commissioner John Deacon. The final count: Langabeer 5029, O'Connor 3,940, Deacon 3,189.

Victory came early for Mayor Scott running for re-election after a first term that saw unprecedented industrialization of the city's economic base.

In his Front Street committee rooms near city hall, Mayor Scott watched the trickle of early win build to a triumphant stream of conquered polls.

Ald. Ellis heard the returns in more subdued surroundings—beside the radio in the living room of his Sidney Street home.

The Scott victory gained momentum as reported in already successive.

At 7.36 p.m. with four of the city's 70 voting stations tallied, the score showed Scott 343,— Ellis, 63.

By 8 p.m. with seven polls in, the vote was Scott 515, Ellis 176.

An hour later 41 polls were returned. The lead was a runaway — Scott 3,396, Ellis 1,297.

Shortly after Ald. Ellis prepared for the ritual journey to city hall to publicly concede the election.

For him, political statistics had come full circle. In 1967, making his first council bid, Ald. Ellis had led the polls with 6,100 votes.

Total votes cast last night for mayoralty candidates — the plowed tabulations can come to the total vote cast — was 8,924.

In 1967 when Mayor Scott sought his first mayoralty term against incumbent Jack Ellis, the total vote was 10,731.

Home for Aged Burns

Fire Takes 55 Lives

NOTRE-DAME-DU-LAC, Que. (CP) — As many as 53 persons were missing today after fire raced through a home for the aged in the village of Notre-Dame-du-Lac, 120 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Provincial police said only about 20 of the 75 to 80 persons in the building were accounted for.

The three-storey wooden building burned to the ground an hour after the fire started at about 6 a.m., despite the efforts of 30 volunteer firemen and reinforcements from three surrounding communities.

In the home were 61 elderly patients, 17 of them crippled and unable to move about without aid, and about 10 staff members.

About 15 persons who managed to escape were taken to hospital, and six or seven others took refuge in private homes.

One male and one female nurse who got out told police they just had time to leap from windows after they saw the flames racing through the building.

Weather in this tiny community of 1,500 was clear and cold when the fire started.

The sleepy little town is on the main highway between Riviere du Loup and Edmundston, N.B., and on the Canadian National Railways line between the Maritimes and Montreal.

It is nestled on the shores of Lac Temiscouata in an area where lumbering is one of the main occupations.

Notre-Dame-du-Lac is 325 miles from Cabano, a town that was practically wiped out by fire along with its lumbering industry in the early 1920s.

Fires in homes for the aged, orphanages and schools in Quebec province have taken tragic tolls in the last 51 years.

Sixty-four children died in a fire at the Grey Nuns Orphanage in Montreal Feb. 14, 1918.

Early in 1927, 77 children died in a fire that started while a movie was showing at the Laurier Palace Theatre.

Forty-six pupils and teachers died Jan. 18, 1928, when fire roared through the Sacred Heart College at St. Hyacinthe, 20 miles east of Montreal.

Thirty-five aged persons and nuns died June 15, 1951, when fire destroyed Montreal's Hospice Ste. Cunegonde.

Aid Boost Is Linked To Product

"Speaking of Biafra, how are your children?"

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is increasing its expenditure on foreign aid programs, but only in line with the increase in its gross national product.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Monday the government had not abandoned its goal of contributing one per cent of the country's GNP to foreign aid, but it will not move any closer to that goal in 1970.

Canadian foreign aid work now amounts to about one half of one per cent of GNP. The gross national product was running, in the third quarter of this year, at an annual rate of $78,736,000,000, compared with $71,454,000,000 in 1968.

News Briefs

LONDON (CP) — A mysterious disease is killing off seal pups around Britain's shores. As in the recent case of thousands of dead seabirds, scientists are wondering if chemical contamination of the ocean is the cause.

France Ready to Admit Britain

THE HAGUE (AP) — President Georges Pompidou of France proposed today a six-point plan for reinforcing the European Common Market and said his government is "favorable" to admitting new members.

But he maintained his resistance to pressure from other Common Market members at their meeting here to recommending France to a specific date for the start of negotiations with Britain, Ireland, Denmark and Norway on their admission.

He said: "We think the preparatory work for negotiations should be finished in the shortest possible time."

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns, the Italians and the Luxembourg delegation repeated their insistence that the conference fix a firm date.

A probable compromise was suggested by Jean Rey, president of the Common Market executive commission. Rey urged the political leaders to commit themselves to the principle of enlarging the Common Market, but to leave to its council of ministers the task of setting a date, a timetable and procedures for negotiations.

Rey suggested the council should do this before the end of the year.

It seemed clear that the French had finally accepted the notion of a broader community, blocked so long by former president Charles de Gaulle.

At one point in today's discussions, Pompidou spoke of "the probable introduction of four new countries" into the community.

Watching Together

Trenton Mayor James MacDonald (left) stares intently at the tally board which tells the story of his defeat after a decade in office. Meanwhile challenger Duncan McDonald looks elsewhere, secure in the knowledge that he has unscaled the chief magistrate. The final tally was 1,730 to 1,281.

Duncan McDonald Wins Mayoralty in Trenton

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The ten-year tenure of Mayor James MacDonald ended abruptly last night when Trenton voters gave veteran councillor Duncan McDonald a convincing 1,730 to 1,281 majority in his second bid for the town's mayoralty.

"I'm very pleased and I can only interpret that the people didn't accept the policies and direction of the present council so they elected me." The Canadian Pacific Railway's passenger service representative said.

Following a dispute with the Mayor in October, Duncan McDonald resigned his position as Chairman of the Public Works Committee. Then councillor McDonald resigned his council position a few weeks later in order to contest the mayoralty in Monday's municipal election.

Noting that he was quite pleased with the makeup of the new council, the Mayor-elect added: "The next thing is to sit down with the new council and try and lay plans for next year."

He also said that, although it was premature for predictions, the capital budget should be one of the priorities of the new council because of problems in the past caused by its late approval.

The seven-year veteran of council said that he had been quite confident for the past two or three weeks because he "sensed the people wanted a change". The primary impetus for the overthrow came from the east side of the Trent River, the side on which he lives.

In fact he polled 62 percent — 1,056 votes — of his total on the east side's four polling subdivisions.

In contrast the incumbent Mayor drew only 401 votes from the town's east side — far too few for his 863-646 west side majority to overcome.

'I Had No Idea...'

Keegan's Landslide Leads Aldermanic Race

By HARRY HULHALL
Staff Reporter

With a veteran leading the way — all the way — the personnel makeup of Belleville's city council for the next three years has been wrestled into shape.

Mainly, the makeup is personally familiar. With the exception of two total strangers to municipal government, Belleville's 10 city councillors in 1970 will be either currently on council or are former aldermen.

Veteran in the vanguard of last night's civic election was Ald. Arthur Keegan who polled 5,787 votes to top the poll. Closest rival for the electorate's embrace was Ald. Arnold Orr with 4,874.

The new council:

● For the first time in more than a decade will boast two women members — Ald. Robin Jeffrey, third - place winner with 4,722, and Mrs. Jean Smith, 1969 United Appeal chairman, entering city politics in ninth place with 3,361 votes.

● Sees the return to city hall of two former councillors, both Front Street merchants — Jack Ireland (council 1958-63) running fifth with 4,113 votes, and Ben Corke (council 1965-68), sixth with 4,005.

Donald Soutter Intelligencer managing editor, is the only other newcomer on council with Mrs. Smith.

Mr. Soutter qualified for eighth spot on the success ballot with 3,872 votes.

Last night's election also saw a handy win for one council incumbent, a hard-won victory for another.

Industrial commission chairman Ald. Gerald Joyce slipped easily into fourth place, with 4,678 votes — Ald. Enos David, who moved slowly up the line of battle during the night, settling in tenth with 3,286.

Ald. Paul Russell took 3,981 votes to gain seventh spot.

Ald. Keegan, whose aldermanic triumph paced the sweep of Mayor Russell Scott — whose candidacy was decidedly supported during the campaign —was jubilant with his victory.

"I had no idea I'd head the polls," he reacted. "I thought maybe I might be third or fourth."

However, he declined to name the candidates he earlier had favored over himself.

With 10 years council experience to his credit, Ald. Keegan now easily qualifies as the dean of city hall government.

Ald. Jeffrey said she was "delighted — just delighted" to have Mrs. Smith join her as a second woman on council.

"I've always felt there was room for two or three women on this council," she added.

Ald. Jeffrey said she didn't always expect both women would always agree.

"But it will be moral support for me to have another woman's viewpoint on the council."

Mrs. Smith also was emphatic that the result would not necessarily see both women agreeing on issues.

"I'm going to be an individualist," she insisted. "I always have been."

Arnold Orr retained his large support of city voters by coming in second in the polls as he did in the 1967 municipal election. He polled 4,874 votes.

"There aren't any strong priorities," he said about problems for council to face during the next three years. "We've got to get these bridges completed."

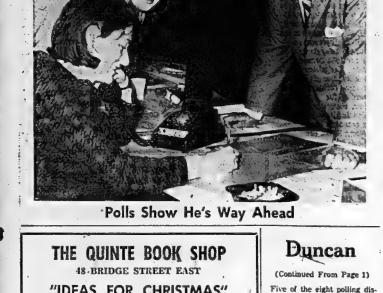
Urban redevelopment is essential," he added, "a matter of timing. The pure objective is long range planning. Belleville has suffered in the past from a lack of long range planning."

Mr. Orr commended voters for coming out in the snow to cast their ballots.

Jack Ireland, a former alderman, found that the voters were still behind him as he placed fifth in the election race after an absence from council of six years.

"When you're out of council, it's sometimes a little tough to come back," he said. "I'm very pleased. I ran against some tough opponents."

Mr. Ireland had some definite ideas about council and his position on it.



"We want to try and resolve any variances and work together," he said. "Let's have no council that works together."

He congratulated the mayor and fellow winning councillors and commented on the "nice, clean campaign."

"I'm looking forward to the mayor announcing the program for the next three years," he added.

"There are going to be lots of fights," was the only comment incumbent Aldermen a Paul Russell had to make after his successful run for a city council seat.

"I have no quarrels," he added. "All I want is a seat on the parks or recreation board; that was my platform."

Polls Show He's Way Ahead

IN MEMORIAM

HENRICKS — In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle Joel, Henricks, who died Dec. 3, 1967, age 19.

Beautiful memories that we have left,
Of his we loved dearly and never forget.
His loving smile and happy face,
A broken link we can never replace.
Sad was the parting no one can forget,
So sudden on earth the sorrow fell,
Heaven's gain was a treasure no one can steal.
Death leaves a heartache nothing can heal,
Sweet memories, missed, sister Gail, Jack and Brett.

HENRICKS — In loving remembrance of our dear son Joel, accidentally killed Dec. 3, 1967, age 19.

There is always a face before us,
A voice we would like to hear,
A smile we will always remember,
Of a son we loved so dear,
A cluster of beautiful memories,
Of a boy we'll never forget,
Sadly missed, sister Gail.

For many more years I'll sit and sadly yet mainly the stars are shining,
On a lone and silent grave,
Where we laid our only son,
Gone from this earth but could not leave,
Do not ask us if we miss him,
Or doubt such a vacant place,
Often we think we hear his footsteps,
And we his smiling face.
— Sadly missed by Mom and Dad.

Five of the eight polling districts threw their support behind the challenger. Of the three remaining districts, the incumbent gained a healthy majority — 329 to 210 — In only one. That was polling subdivision 3B for voters residing west of Victoria Avenue (including west side of Victoria Ave.) and north of Dundas Street West.
Voters in Polling Subdivision 1 gave Duncan McDonald his largest poll total and greatest poll margin when they cast 342 votes in his favor as opposed to 122 for Mayor James MacDonald.
Monday's election results were an about - face from the only previous mayoralty contest between the two men. In 1965 James MacDonald won handily by a 1,574 to 971 margin.
Duncan McDonald and the new council will assume office in January.

Family of 3 Homeless After Blaze
A Belleville family of three is homeless this morning after an early evening fire yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Badour, formerly of 142 St. Paul Street, and their 17-month-old son lost everything.
According to fire chief Leo Culhane, the blaze broke out at 6:11 p.m. while Mr. and Mrs. Badour were out voting in the municipal election. Unfortunately, their infant son was under the care of Mrs. Percy Rogers, who, with her husband, owned the building, but live next door.
The blaze broke out in the rear of the residence and the fire department has blamed the fire on overheated stove pipes from a Quebec heater.
"There was quite a lot of fire damage," Mr. Culhane said. "Nothing was saved. They lost everything."
Neither the home nor its contents was insured.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott yesterday won a landslide victory over Alderman Richard Ellis in an election that was devoid of any major issues.

The margin of victory was 6,416 to 2,508 in an election which saw the largest majority for a Belleville mayoralty candidate in many years.

The election was Mayor Scott all the way right from the time the first returns were received at city hall. And the margin rapidly widened as the polls came in.

The outcome was in direct contrast to the squeaker Mayor Scott won two years ago over then mayor Jack Ellis. The vote in that election was Scott, 5,447, to his opponent's 5,304, for a victory margin of only 143 votes.

For Alderman Ellis yesterday's defeat may have been a big disappointment, but for Mayor Scott the victory was taken as evidence of confidence by the electors.

"I thought the election might be decisive one way or the other, but I didn't expect this," he said.

Yesterday's election saw only 8,924 voters go to the polls for a relatively poor turnout. The vote was approximately 44.3 per cent, or 8,500 votes, with 20,100 eligible voters on the list.

By contrast, the vote two years ago was 10,751 for a 53 per cent voter turnout.

But working against yesterday's turnout at the polls was the inclement weather — more than six inches of snow which was dumped on the city over the weekend. The poor weather, together with the lack of any real election issue, told the voting story.

At the same time, however, the voting was higher than was expected and far above what was indicated by a relatively small turnout during the morning hours.

Up until noon, some of the polls reported only 10 to a dozen voters.

But heavy campaigning by the two mayoralty candidates, who had literally dozens of cars hauling voters to the polls, saved what otherwise would have been a disappointingly poor turnout.

Both mayoralty candidates expressed full confidence of victory and to Alderman Ellis the crushing defeat was a big disappointment.

Conceding victory to Dr. Scott at city hall, Alderman Ellis told voters that "you wanted Dr. Scott as mayor and you have him."

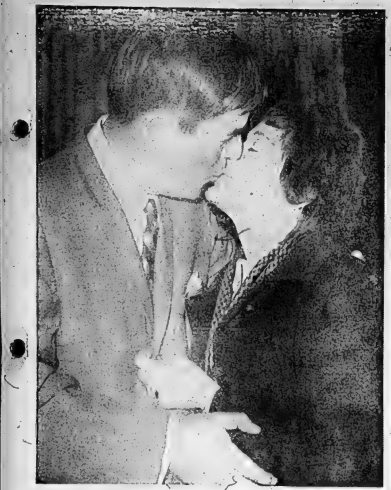
For his part, Mayor Scott foresaw a prosperous future for the city of Belleville and doubted that anyone would recognize the city three years from now.

Important matters for consideration by council included more ice facilities for hockey and skating, solving of the city's traffic problem and what action was to be taken with respect to urban renewal.

Mayor Scott complimented the Quinte Action Centre Committee for the excellent job done in raising $35,000 for an additional ice facility.

But he didn't altogether agree that Coleman Flats was the proper place for construction of the proposed ice facility.

"The Coleman Flats location was suggested because it was the only piece of city - owned land available."



He felt that the location of the ice facility should be turned over to the planning board. "They are the experts," he said.

The mayor was in entire agreement with the fact that Belleville needed more ice facilities, not just for hockey playing, but also for general skating. He said that possibly two or three, or maybe five such facilities were needed.

Mayor Scott said the new Dundas Street bridge would do much toward solving the city's east-west traffic problem. But something also had to be done about the rush-hour problem at Cannifton Road and College Street, and also at the north end of Pinnacle Street.

Any other projects which should be started for the benefit of the city would be brought to the attention of council, he said.

"Belleville is a great place . . . we just have to give it a chance and work together, everyone of us," he concluded.

Mayor's Wife Gives Him Victory Kiss

Weary Dick Ellis Realizes Defeat

They Wanted Scott, Got Him: Ellis

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The name of the game is politics.

How to score is not easily defined — unless you're a politician — which Dick Ellis emphatically says he is not.

Understandably, then, he does not readily articulate what happened last night.

Running against Mayor Russell Scott, he went down to defeat of sweeping proportions.

It was 11 p.m. at city hall when they marked up the final results of Belleville's 1969 mayoralty campaign. It showed Scott 6,416; Ellis, 2,508.

It took only four hours to finalize the statistics. But it had taken two years to prove how incontrovertible are the ways of politics.

It was election night 1967 that Dick Ellis made up his mind definitely to run for mayor.

That was the night he made his first bid for civic office — and astonished the electorate by harvesting 6,136 votes, the biggest poll ever handed a Belleville alderman.

"I was determined if I did well then I would run for mayor," he recalled last night, waiting for the 1969 polls to start reporting.

The vigil was staged in lowkey surroundings — in the Ellis home on Sidney Street.

The subdued, homey environment was typical of the entire campaign.

His campaign, he said, was based mainly on literature, distributed from his own commercial printing plant, and phone calls.

"You shouldn't have to organize that much for a municipal election campaign," he believed.

Issues and identities, because they're local, should be readily identified by the electorate.

The first poll reports came in at 7:56 p.m. Four polls showed Scott 243, Ellis 63.

He agreed it was a "healthy start" for his opponent.

"I run for mayor because I thought I could be a better mayor," he explained as the trail went on.

The roots went back as far as 20 years — when minor sports circles needed financing. He supported them, he recalled.

Then he discovered they needed a public vote. Terms on recreation and parks committees followed. Then he ran for alderman — and the electorate made up his mind about the mayoralty.

At 8:30 p.m. the latest tally showed 20 polls counted — Scott, 1,564, Ellis 500.

During those two years on city council he had one complaint, he said.

"I was a little frustrated. Things don't move fast enough for me."

By 9:02 p.m. 40 of the 70 polls were reporting. The lead had spread — Scott 3,396, Ellis 1,297.

The challenger remained unperturbed as a radio announcer added: "The mayoralty race is decided."

He would go down to city hall after the next report and concede, he said.

But, would he run again? The answer came without hesitation:

"This is the end of my political career sir. I'm not a politician, anyway."

Down at city hall the challenger and the mayor confirmed in his incumbency chatted in front of radio microphones.

The mayor indicated Richard Ellis would be needed on recreation committees.

Outside, ready to drive home to Sidney Street, Dick Ellis said he wouldn't comment on that at the moment.

Winners' Reaction Widely Varied

The reaction of the winning candidates ran from outright surprise to calm acceptance last night as final results of the poll-by-poll tabulation went up on the board in council chambers at City Hall.

Well-known Frost Street businessman and former city councillor Ben Corke, who ran in sixth spot with 4,005, said he was not too surprised at the victory that will put him on city council for the next three years.

Asked what issue he felt should be considered priority he said he felt this was more or less up to the "old-timers" on council for the time being anyway, because since his last term of office ended in 1963 he has not been as close to council affairs as he would have liked.

A newcomer to the election scene was Donald Soutter, who placed eighth with a total of 3,872 votes.

He said he had felt the tension of the past few days and that he had received good reaction from individuals he talked to before the election.

Explaining that he was slightly "discouraged" when the returns first started coming in, he added, "I guess you could say I was nervous."

"I am looking forward to the next three years," said the new alderman, "and I feel that planning is one of the big things to face the city in the next three years."

Mr. Soutter emphasized the importance of considering the expansion of recreation facilities in Belleville — particularly that of a second ice surface.

Another newcomer to city council will be Mrs. Jean Smith, who ran ninth with 3,361 votes.

Mrs. Smith, 1969 United Appeal chairman, remarked that she was both excited and thrilled over her win, and took the opportunity to thank her many supporters.

"It was a good race. All the aldermen ran well, and each should be congratulated," she said.

Turnout 44 Per Cent

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Despite adverse weather conditions and the fear expressed by some candidates that voter turnout would fall off for that reason — more than 40 per cent of the electorate — 8,500 voters — turned out to exercise their franchise for Belleville's municipal election.

Reports of voter turnout were very light in the advance polls — 250 — and in the voting earlier on election day.

However, the number of Bellevillians voting to elect a mayor to a three-year term and 10 aldermen did surprise a few of the pundits who predicted a smaller vote.

Soon after the polls closed officially at 7 p.m., returns indicated a solid win for Mayor Scott, a trend that continued as results were posted. The mayor had a 3 to 1 edge almost all night.

Mayor Scott came to city hall to greet his supporters about 9 p.m., and shook hands with Mr. Ellis, congratulating him on a race well-run.

An Experienced Council

Belleville's new council, with Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott still at the helm, is an interesting blend of experience and fresh talent.

Returned were incumbents Enos David, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, Gerald Joyce, Arthur Keegan, Arnold Orr and Paul Russell.

Of four newcomers, Ben Corke and Jack Ireland are former members of council whose familiarity with city affairs will give a new dimension to an already experienced body.

Joining them are Mrs. Jean Smith and Donald Soutter who while they are entirely new to council both have broad experience of city affairs — Mrs. Smith as chairman of the recent United-Appeal campaign and one who has been active in other civic matters; and Mr. Soutter as chairman of Belleville Week and one closely linked with city affairs through the newspaper profession.

Mayor Scott scored a handsome victory over his challenger, Richard Ellis. In the last election Mr. Ellis polled more than 6,000 votes, more than any other alderman and more than Dr. Scott's total in ousting former Mayor Jack Ellis.

The victory for Mayor Scott, despite the threat posed by Mr. Ellis' previous showing and his subsequent bid for public support, is a reflection of the electorate's desire for a continuance of present policy. Certainly a change at this time had not seemed warranted; Mayor Scott has displayed leadership, business acumen and integrity in the handling of the city's affairs and the vote is as much a measure of those qualities as it is of this need to maintain the present course.

As we noted in pre-election comment there were no serious issues, but nevertheless no lack of matters with which council must concern itself. The candidates themselves have put these before the people; among them — acquisition of more industry and provision of services, completion of the Dundas Street bridge and other unfinished projects; recreation for the young as well as for senior citizens; housing and waterfront development.

Candidates have laid emphasis on the need for overall planning, in co-operation with neighboring municipalities, careful control of finance even in the face of the increase in taxes which time and progress inevitably bring, and the need for a study of what one has described as "outmoded city zoning laws."

There can be no room for complacency; indeed this must be farthest from the minds of the new council as it faces a three-year term. The period should promises to be one of the busiest and most interesting in the history of the city. Meanwhile we feel the administration of its affairs is in good hands.

In passing we might note several interesting aspects of area elections — for one thing the election of Gerry O'Connor to the Public Utilities Commission, and the defeat of veteran John Deacon; the defeat in Trenton of James MacDonald by Duncan McDonald in the mayoralty contest and in Bancroft a two-vote margin for the "wets" in the liquor plebiscite.

'Forget It' Says Mitchell Sharp

Ottawa Has No Colonial Designs in Caribbean

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — There will have to be regret in the minds of many Canadians that External Affairs Minister Sharp has stomped on our favorite dream of an 11th province in the sunny Caribbean.

Mr. Sharp appeared before a Senate committee recently and he firmly put the damper on proposals that Canada might seek political ties with some of the Commonwealth Caribbean islands.

Apparently perturbed that talk of this kind among members of the Senate would worry the Caribbean politicians, Mr. Sharp was at pains to say Canada had no intention of replacing Britain in the islands.

An even firmer declaration came from Senator John Connolly, former government house leader in the Senate. He stated that Canada had no imperial ambitions in the Caribbean or elsewhere.

The ordinary Canadian probably has not thought about this matter in terms of imperialism or planting the Canadian flag in Jamaica, Barbados or Trinidad.

What has been in his mind, particularly during the long, cold winter months, is the thought that there could be a piece of Canada where the sun shone warmly, where people could bid beside sparkling warm water and get away from that everlasting snow.

It may have been the vision of Canadians too that if some of the islands became a part of Canada, that shorebone or other it would be possible to spend winter vacations there at a much cheaper rate than now applies.

But these wishful thoughts of Canadians seem to be in very remote prospect after the negative stand of the external affairs minister. He would not even agree that some of the leaders of Caribbean countries at one time or another had talked about union with Canada.

The only concession of any kind that Mr. Sharp would make to the Canadian glimpse of territorial holdings in the south was his careful declaration that any approach whatsoever for political ties between Canada and the Commonwealth Caribbean would have to come from the latter.

Mr. Sharp did not let on whether he would favor such initiatives from the Caribbean, but it may well be that the government thinks that getting involved in the Caribbean would not be a wise move.

There are grave economic and social problems in these newly emerging countries. To have one or more of the islands become part of Canada may, in the government's view, be something to be avoided.

Certainly the federal government does appear to have interest in the Caribbean and has aid programs to help this region. There is a feeling in Ottawa that Canada should have a special relationship with these nations.

The Canadian involvement is indicated by figures of Canadian investment in the Commonwealth Caribbean of about $500,000,000. Moreover a good many Canadians live there or visit. In Jamaica alone there are 1,500 resident Canadians and as many as 25,000 Canadians are visitors in a year.

This Canadian influence is also felt in Trinidad and Barbados. There is a movement the other way too — many students from these countries attend Canadian universities and emigration from the Caribbean to Canada annually runs to about 8,5000.

Mr. Sharp says the Canadian aim is to develop political consultation with the Commonwealth Caribbean countries and "avoid the establishment of constitutional links of a quasi-colonial nature."

Indeed, if Canada has a political plan for the Commonwealth Caribbean it is to encourage political integration there.

So it seems the ordinary Canadian who likes the idea of a Canadian province in the Caribbean 'where he might have a cheap vacation is doomed to disappointment.

Now—A Boys' 'Hush-in!'

Christian Science Monitor

"Fifty schoolboys kept quiet for eight hours during a 'hush-in' and raised $247 for charity." So recounts a news story from Bath, England.

Although we, like many another, have wondered whether the various "in" activities have not multiplied to the point of boredom, there is something both inviting and redeeming about a schoolboys' hush-in. It is the kind of ruse, which, by whatever name it might be called, would smell just as sweet in this noisy world.

A hush-in shows, we think, boys' genius for knowing just what is in that most quickly gets on their elder's nerves and to the latter's pocketbook. For the hush-in is no more than 1920's equivalent of the Victorian lad's promise to stop bedding his drum around the house if given a penny.

Parents early learn that the fittest phrase in the English tongue is not 'moon' and 'June,' but 'boys' and 'noise,' and that they are much likelier to be made of puppy-dogs' barks than the puppy-dogs' tails. And it is a slow lad, indeed, who does not also early learn that his inborn din-making gifts have a high blackmail and bribery value, if shrewdly applied.

At whatever the price, millions of elders will welcome the advent of the hush-in.

Better Playgrounds Needed

Peterborough Examiner

It is probably fair to say that there is not a city in Canada that has adequate neighborhood playgrounds. That is, places where young children can go—without having to take several miles or take a bus—unattended by parents and find absorbing activities.

Peterborough is comparatively lucky. But school playgrounds, as they are now, are not the answer, City administrator A. V. Craig questioned the need for a playground at this week's meeting of city council, saying the recreation commission has the use of school playgrounds in the west end.

Mr. Craig should take a brief stroll around a few school playgrounds.

If we can be allowed a quibble: A patch of asphalt does not a playground make. School playgrounds are notorious for their barrenness and it will not do to tell council to forget about playgrounds because there are empty school lots available during the summer months.

Playgrounds, if they are to be used, require imaginative planning with enough facilities and activities to ensure that they will not simply be dominated by the local 'tough kids'.

Nor will city council have done its duty if it acquires parkland in the west end and uses some of it for playground space.

Playgrounds must be neighborhood facilities and neighborhood does not mean the entire west end of the city.

Madoc Pupils Write

Pollution Problem Concerns The Young People of Canada

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We, the pupils of Grade Five, Madoc Township Central School, are concerned about the pollution of our water, air, and land. We would like to ask the people who read this column to help prevent pollution.

We know that the fumes from cars do not help reduce pollution any. In fact they make pollution worse. We are not living the people entirely for this because sometimes it seems that there is little they can do. But there is something they could do. They could write to automobile manufacturers and say that they would not buy an automobile unless it had a pollution control device.

There are many other things you could do. Can you think of any? Anything you can do to help prevent pollution would make the world a nicer place to live in.

Time for Care

The first major storm of the winter brought the inevitable crop of accidents. One involving a bus load of Belleville majorettes returning from the Grey Cup parade fortunately produced no more than minor injuries and a shaking up for the youngsters.

One girl, however, has been re-admitted to hospital for treatment of neck fractures.

A source of bewilderment to the careful driver who quickly adapts to the conditions as they change is the driver through inexperience or devil-may-care drive too fast, passing other vehicles in the process and increasing the hazards for everyone.

A Belleville family who had a nightmare seven-hour journey home from Montreal saw a number of cars in the ditch off highway 401. But their most unnerving experience was when a sports car followed by a larger vehicle passed and the sports car went into a skid and spun into the ditch.

Many were caught without snow tires and their problem was compounded by the formidable task of plows and sanders in covering a wide area.

Another potentially new hazard posed by winter driving is the increase in the number of snowmobiles. One driver told of being confused by the single lights of two small vehicles that seemed to be coming straight at him on a curve in Rossmore. Snowmobiles, they flashed past in quick succession.

This is a time when extra care is needed. Particularly it is a time to reduce speed. It is certainly no time for recklessness, whether one is behind the wheel of a car, piloting a snowmobile, or on foot.

Cities Need Federal Help

Hamilton Spectator

Prime Minister Trudeau, in effect, gave Canadian cities a federal brush - off in his impromptu debate with MP Philip Givens, former Toronto mayor, at the recent Liberal think - in at Harrison Hot Springs, B.C.

Cities need federal help, in expert guidance and in money, Mr. Givens said. He didn't overstate the case. Mr. Trudeau replied with Ottawa's traditional dodge — municipalities are provincial creatures, constitutionally. He threw the ball back to the provinces.

Mr. Trudeau was talking constitution: Mr. Givens, fact. Both were correct. But the constitution was 1867; the fact is now.

Cities are choking on their traffic, gagging on their pollution, breed ing poverty and crime, rotting at their centres and begging for governme nt handouts to keep their services running.

Unlike 1867, these days most Canadians live in cities. As the cities go, so goes the country. City problems, basically the same from Halifax to Vancouver, are national problems.

That doesn't let the provinces off the hook. They have cause to squirm. Most provinces, including Ontario, have done little to put their cities on firmer financial ground. Conditions in major cities are irrefutable evidence that the provinces have failed to fulfil their constitutional responsibilities.

Both senior governments have watched the cities collect proportionately smaller shares of Canadian tax revenues, while coping with rising demands for services. And they have seen them physically going to pot in the process.

The cities, generating most of Canada's wealth in productivity and taxes, are forced to rely on unreliable grant systems for operating and capital funds. Grants can be changed at the whim of senior governments, the major tax beneficiaries of the cities' efforts.

If the prime minister's response to Mr. Givens accurately reflects federal thinking, then the cities are in real trouble. They can't solve their own problems; the provinces have let them down; and now, apparently, Ottawa is turning its back upon them.

It's Ottawa's moral duty to act, in concert with the provinces, or in spite of them.

More Than 5,000 Died In Traffic Mishaps in 1968

Owen Sound Sun-Times

During 1968 traffic deaths in Canada totalled 5,251, an average of one fatality every 100 minutes. In addition, one person was injured on an average of every three minutes, reaching a total of 172,000. The death toll exceeds considerably the U.S. dead in the Vietnam war. More than 300,000 accidents occurred in which property damage exceeded $100 was reported, an average of 988 every day. As a result of these accidents, the total of medical expenses, insurance settlements, lost wages and property damage reached close to $1 billion.

The toll taken on our highways during 1969 will not be known for more than a month. During this month traffic will reach a wintertime peak over Christmas and New Years as millions travel over the two holidays.'

It is appropriate therefore that Canada's Safe 'Driving Week takes place during the first week in, December. If the idea of safe driving and the development of safe driving habits can be instilled, even in small degree, it may be possible that some of them will carry over and prevent a number of fatal accidents during the holiday season.

Mr. Benson's Relative Values

Montreal Star

Finance Minister Edgar Benson has corrected a report that he believes an unmarried person can live on $30 per week. But it shouldn't be all that difficult.

Considering the three essentials of the average Canadian budget — housing, food and a car — the minister's liberality is quite generous. At $30 per week a person can, with a little direction, have money left over to invest in Canada Savings Bonds.

The average rental in condemned buildings or vacant housing lots is seldom more than $60 per month, and the food bill for the average Canadian bogyar does not exceed $40 (unless he is a gourmet or a glutton). At $40 a month it is possible to enjoy a steady diet of hamburg, bread, potatoes and (on Sundays) spaghetti without the fattening meatballs.

Car costs can be greatly reduced by not using the vehicle, and with the economy the present citizen can have a monthly surplus of $20.

As a man who himself has to make do on a near-starvation salary of $500 per week, Mr. Benson is eminently qualified to speak of minimum survival.

Particularly so as Spiro Agnew might say, if you've seen one beggar, you've seen them all.

Alderman Jeffrey and Jean Smith Check Results

Women's Voice Strengthened at City Hall

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Not only did incumbent alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey run third in the aldermanic race — her uncle was elected mayor of Etobicoke, Ont.

Gathered at the Jeffrey home to keep their ears cocked to both Metro Toronto news and bulletins from city hall here were Mrs. Jeffrey's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Futcher of St. Thomas and Mr. Jeffrey's mother, Mrs. Helen Jeffrey of Belleville.

Mr. Futcher channeled his election day nervousness into driving voters to the polls and shovelling snow — not only at the Jeffrey residence, but for the neighbors as well.

"Mother made sure we had a good evening meal and baby-sat," said Mrs. Jeffrey.

As she awaited the election returns, the alderman, making a bid for her second term, expressed her concern at the poor weather.

"Many of our senior citizens just can't get out to the polls," she lamented.

With an early lead, and her re-election assured, Mrs. Jeffrey could only say, "I'm so very pleased."

* * *

She confessed she would have to start studying municipal law in preparation for her new duties.

Election night at the Smith household was as quiet as the candidate's campaign had been.

Mrs. Smith sent her husband out curling as usual in the early part of the evening. Her two high school aged sons, David and Mark, were not at home. David went to the Community Concert to turn pages for the accompanist. Mark baby-sat for a friend of Mrs. Smith's who was spending the evening at the Smith home.

By the time the scattered members of her family returned home, Mrs. Smith's victory seemed assured, and jubilation was in the air.

Two of the Smiths' sons were unable to be present. The oldest, an officer at Camp Gagetown, sent an encouraging telegram early in the day.

The second son is a student at the University of Waterloo.

"1967 was our big year," Mrs. Smith noted. "Our oldest boy graduated from Queen's and our second graduated from high school as an Ontario scholar."

"And every year since has been a big year for us," commented her husband, an engineer at Northern Electric. "Look at this," and he indicated the voting results that showed his wife running ninth in the aldermanic race.

They Lost the Race--But Not by Too Much

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

With almost every election there have to be losers and is the case of the Belleville election, only 10 of 14 aldermanic candidates could win seats on city council.

And in last night's election four Bellevillians fell by the wayside, making room for the victorious 10 aldermen.

Gerald Cunningham, William (Bill) Wills, Ray Bradshaw and Andre Mercier formed the losing quartet, following yesterday's snowy trek to the polls.

Did the stormy, snowy weather which dropped the voter turnout to 44 per cent of the eligible total, hinder the election of these four candidates?

Many think so.

William Wills stood eleventh in the aldermanic race, receiving 3,181 votes. His total was not far behind that of the tenth place finisher, Enos David, who collected 105 more votes for a total of 3,286.

Mr. Wills, concerned with the traffic problem in the city and a proper balance between residential, commercial and industrial tax assessment to provide a solid tax base, almost made it.

As the tabulation of polls drew to a close, he congratulated the winners.

"I congratulate the winners. The real winner will be Belleville," he said.

Asked if he would consider running again in the next election, he replied, "It's hard to say. A lot of water will have run under the bridge in the next three years."

Gerald Cunningham, representing the labor element in Belleville, seems a little more huffy of the situation three years from now, although he wasn't sure he would run again.

"Three years from now, someone from labor will be running, and three years from now someone from labor will be in," he said.

He expressed appreciation to those who had assisted him and voted for him and he congratulated the winners.

Mr. Cunningham was twelfth in the running for alderman, collecting 2,892 votes, 393 votes behind locking up an aldermanic seat.

Ray Bradshaw, who ran on a ticket of more industrial expansion to create more jobs, tax assessment and buying power for merchants, collected 2,704 votes, 553 away from a council seat.

He described the election campaign as a good and fair one.

"The voters spoke and this satisfies me.

"It was the outcome of a very able contest, giving Mr. Scott an opportunity to complete his work."

It was too early for Mr. Bradshaw to think about running three years from now.

"That's quite a way away," he said.

Andre Mercier completed the list of candidates, netting 2,023 votes. He was low man from the start when returns first rolled in.

"This was my first experience and I'm not sorry," he said following the tabulations. "I didn't even know I had that many friends in town. I'd like to thank them for their confidence.

"I might consider myself too old then," he added, after being questioned about his possible entry into the aldermanic race in 1972. "That's

Treating You Like Animals, Ex-Con Tells Students

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

An ex-con turned the prison system inside out this week — to show the realities of crime to Grade 8 students at St. Michael's Academy.

His recital of the hardships and inhumanity of prison life at Collins Bay, the minimum security institution near Kingston, drew ready sympathy from his young audience.

Until he added:

"They're treating you like an animal — because you treated somebody else like an animal to get there."

Butch, whose last name remains anonymous, now out on parole after serving one year of a three-year sentence for theft, "told it as it is", as part of his contribution to an organization called Contemp. Its 40-odd members are all inmates at Collins Bay, or ex-inmates.

Their purpose? After release they dedicate themselves to steering other young people away from the path they took.

They also provide services for former fellow prisoners still inside and those newly released.

Butch, who made his debut from prison into the straight world last Sept. 9, is the only member of Contemp now working in Belleville.

The expressions on the faces of his young listeners, their questions, and the buzz of their conversation after he left, proved the depth of the impression he made.

"It's nice to be noticed," he told them. "A lot of us steal and take narcotics and sniff glue for the same reason — we want to be noticed. But all the time our friends are noticing us, the police are, too.

"You think you're a big wheel because you stole," he emphasized. "But you lose your best friends when they find out and you lose your freedom when the police find out.

"So you only steal a dollar's worth of goods once in a while from a big store. You think big business can afford it," he told the students. "But if 10 people a day steal a dollar's worth of merchandise — and they do, here on Front St. — that's $10 a day or $60 a week. At that rate the storekeeper is soon out of business. How would you feel if that were your business?"

Butch hit at the youngster's code of honor.

"You think it's bad to tell on your friends," he told them. "When the police or other adults question you about a friends' actions, you try to protect him. All the time, he's laughing at you — because you're taking the load off him — taking it in the neck for him."

He startled his audience with the cold facts of a parolee's life.

"I can't leave Belleville to take my children to a Santa Claus parade in Trenton without my parole officer's permission," he related. "I can't make a purchase over $50 without permission. I can't visit the United States. I can't get a job, as long as I live, which requires my being bonded. And I can never lose my record. They don't forget about your record until you are dead."

Butch admitted prisons are more dedicated to punishment than to rehabilitation of the inmates.

"But they are changing," he added. "In the 1930s inmates were permitted one bath a week — now they get two."

He destroyed any romantic illusions the students might have garnered from movies and TV by cutting off a question about false imprisonment.

"If they sentence you to jail, they know you did it," he asserted.

"If you're in trouble, talk it over," Butch advised the students. "You may think it hard to talk about your problems to your parents, your teachers or any other adult. But it's a lot easier to talk now, than later when you're in a cell. Then, you will have 60 minutes a month to talk to someone from the outside."

Later, Butch discussed the reason for his one-man crusade.

"Every time I give my talk on what freedom is and how we lose it, I spot people in trouble. I can tell by when and how they meet my eyes. I hope they're hearing me."

Voters Turned Deaf Ear To Labor's Council Bid

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville voters once again have turned deaf to the bid of organized labor for a voice at city hall.

Latest labor-sponsored contestants spurned by the civic electorate is Belleville and District Labor Council President Gerald Cunningham.

And, with his defeat, Mr. Cunningham has charged that an "established machine" is at work in the city.

It was the third time the Belleville railroader sought election to council.

This time his contestants included Ray Bradshaw, who, although not an official labor candidate is immediate past president of the same labor council.

Mr. Cunningham placed twelfth in last night's balloting with 2,892 votes. Mr. Bradshaw came 13th — with 2,704.

Other unsuccessful labor spokesmen in previous elections have included Ian Reilly, a district shoe union representative and one-time NDP candidate.

Mr. Cunningham said he felt he was basically well-supported by "those working people who took the time and trouble to get out and vote."

"It's surprising to me that the new members running for council should receive such a large share of our city vote," said Mr. Cunningham.

He did not specify names.

"It becomes apparent to us that some established machine is apparently working to the interests of a certain group," charged Mr. Cunningham.

In future elections, he added, Belleville workers "must form their own establishment to ensure that those people who have worked towards their ends and in their interests are elected to office."

Mr. Cunningham said he was not certain if he would ever seek election again.

"But, one can be certain that the labor movement in this city will be most active to ensure we have people represented at the end of the next three years," he said.

"During that period we'll keep a very sharp eye on the proceedings and policies of city council."

People are beginning to think Datsun is a Canadian car

There's a legend that says foreign cars aren't a smart buy because it's hard to get them serviced and finding parts can drive you out of your mind. But Datsun is a foreign car. And it's a runaway best-seller.

How come?
Part of the reason could be because there are so many Datsun dealers around. Like 800 in North America. 200 coast-to-coast in Canada. Backed up by about two million dollars' worth of parts.
With that kind of support, Datsun just doesn't seem like a foreign car any more. It seems like a naturalized Canadian.

We don't mind if people forget that Datsun is an imported car. We've got lots of dealers to remind them. Test-drive a Datsun at any of the 200 dealers in Canada.

Western Skiers Prefer Comfort Rather Than Style

CALGARY (CP) — Ski shop operators say that Calgary has no snow bunnies. If you own a ski shop, they say, try as you might you just can't sell the average foothills customer fuschia stretch pants and chartreuse jackets—especially if they really are stretched and tight-shouldered.

The prevailing attitude here is, "Forget the frills, we're here to ski," said one shop operator.

The neutral-colored, down-filled jacket is in constant demand; for warmer weather on the slopes, the nylon overshirt, said another shop owner during a survey on what's selling in ski wear.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davey, formerly of Wellman, now Calgary announce the engagement of their daughter Judith Gayle to John Harlen Hulte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marius Hulte, Salem, Nova Scotia. The marriage will take place May 30, 1970 in Toronto.

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Terrence Law was honored at a shower held by friends and co - workers. The couple were also made a presentation by the employees of AOCO Limited. A party hosted by Mrs. William Smith co - hosted by Mrs. Stafford Haley and friends was also held for them.

Fur Hats, Scarves Top Fashion Accessories

NEW YORK (CP) — Fur hats, and now the long fur scarves, are this winter's top fashion accessories.

Fur hats are almost obligatory with the new maxi-coats in either wool or leather, so much in demand now particularly among the younger crowd. In addition, a long fur scarf can give that extra new fillip to the maxi or any other type of coat.

The movie Dr. Zhivago started the concept, and now that the maxi-coat has come into its own after some hefty pushes from the designers, the cossack-style combination is definitely dramatic.

Fur hats have been a status symbol for years, usually in expensive mink or sable. This year, with the growing interest in winter hats again, cheaper furs are being used, such as stencilled rabbit. Silver fox, while not too cheap, is staging a revival. Irene of New York designs it in a bell-shaped hat and teams it with a huge muff, twice the size of the hat.

The usual big fur pouf hat is still popular and is flattering to most faces. However, fur is being used in various shapes, from chin-strapped helmets to newsboy caps. Emme of New York even introduced an oversized cowboy version in dark mink.

In Toronto, Norman Royal Furs is featuring an exaggerated high-crowned fedora with softly pinched snap brim, especially effective in spotted furs, and a round-croken, small rolled-brim bowler in mink. Royal's designer, Mary McInnis, also likes mink in a toque type of high tunnelled crown, using a black-and-white herringbone design.

This line of design and contrast colors was introduced in fur coats several years ago. Now it will be increasingly seen in fur hats, not only in herringbone but in tweedy effects and in colored stripes.

In Canada, fur hats are logical for winter. Over the years fashion has dictated fur hats with cloth coats or matching fur hats and fur coats or a fluffy fur hat with a flat fur. This year, as in every phase of fashion, women mainly choose their own combination. Some prefer a fur hat with a cloth coat or just a long fur scarf with a short coat.

These scarves can fit into the "fun fur" category. Percy Lindzon of Toronto has dyed seven-foot rabbit scarves in color combinations to include wide bands of red, white and bright blue, white and green with red or orange and three shades of beige. Tossed casually to drape over one shoulder or wound a couple of times around the neck, they can add fun color to a neutral coat. Or if your old fur coat is beyond repair, why not make it into an extended scarf?

But fur can also be use elegantly for evening hats as Mr. Flemming of Montreal has shown with his mink sea urchins. On a frothy bubble of veiling, these urchin shapes are arranged to create an airy hat effect, with jewelled centres.

Men, too, are beginning to consider fur hats as part of their new fashion image. In fact, over the last few years anyone could see the start of this acceptance by going out to Montreal's Dorval airport where dashing men, young an old, were arriving and departing in jaunty brimless styles.

But the men were cautious. They seemed to feel secure only in masculine persian lamb. Now, men in other parts of Canada also have taken up the challenge. Men are even becoming more daring in their fur hat styling as well as the furs use.

WEDDINGS

LEVECK - PRICE

TWEED — St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church, Tweed was the scene of the recent marriage of Heather Marion Price and Michael Hubert Leveck. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Price, of Actinolite, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leveck, of Tweed.

The double - ring ceremony was performed by Dean C. E. Baker, assisted by Reverend I. E. Munro, of St. John's United Church both of Tweed. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length straight gown of crepe d'ange. French lace trimmed the roll collar, cuffs and the front of the gown. A full - length train also trimmed with French lace fell from her shoulders. A four tiered bouffant veil of silk illusion was held in place by a floral headpiece. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The bridesmaids Beth and Janet Price, sisters of the bride, were identical A - line floor - length gowns of deep rose organza over taffeta.

The elbow length sleeves had pleated ruffles with white crocheted trim. They carried bouquets of white daisy 'mums, entwined with rose ribbons and wore tiny white 'mums in their hair.

Ted Brady of Tweed was best man, and the ushers were Leonard and Louis Leveck, brothers of the bridegroom.

Following the wedding a dinner was served at the Log Cabin, Actinolite.

The bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a turquoise coat and dress ensemble with matching tulle and feather hat, and a corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of flowered chiffon over brown crepe. Her accessories were brown and she wore a corsage of yellow roses.

A reception was held at the bride's home where the couple was greeted by many friends and relatives.

For travelling to Eastern Ontario and Northern United States, the bride wore a blue crimplene dress and a charcoal grey coat, with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The couple will reside at 777 Water Street, Peterborough.

LAW — EADY

In Christ Church (Anglican) Belleville, Gail Elizabeth Eady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Eady, was united in marriage to Terrence Howard Law of Belleville. Rev. D. Hawkins performed the wedding ceremony.

The bride wore a street-length white two piece coat-dress ensemble of fine brocade. Her two tier shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was held by a wedding ring headpiece of matching brocade. She carried a white prayer book with gardenias and stephanotis.

Maid of honor was Miss Barbara Lang of Ottawa. She wore a short sleeved street-length gown of pastel blue and silver brocade, with matching headdress. She wore a corsage of pink carnations and sweetheart roses.

Best man was Rodney Law of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. After their wedding trip to points east, the bride travelled in a sea green jacquard crimplene dress, with a coat of jade green boucle trimmed with mink. Black patent accessories completed her outfit.

Upon their return the couple will reside in Belleville.

Club Activities

WHITE CANE CLUB

The November business meeting of the White Cane Club held at the Recreation Centre recently was presided over by president Pat Baverstock. Associate member Laurie Towzer was welcomed back after an absence of several weeks.

Harper McElrath introduced Mrs. Leonard Bedford and Mrs. Carl Reid, members of Albury Church on the Redperville road. A number of familiar and popular songs were rendered by Mrs. Bedford who was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Reid. The audience joined in on several favorites and Bob Gill thanked the women for the entertainment.

Mrs. Maude Rollins read the correspondence and the C.C.B. Council commentary for November. An interesting item contained therein was one from the "Cavalcade" publication of the Toronto region, Allstate Insurance Companies of Canada.

Six canoes were provided for the Kadadaion National Institute for the Blind for its camp at Lake Joseph, Muskoka through the efforts of Wildcat Allstaters.

Three lucky draw winners travelled with John Macdonald, Public Relations Officer for the C.N.I.B. to Lake Joseph for the presentation in August.

Following a guided tour of the camp the entire group felt that the C.N.I.B. was doing a wonderful job with its vacation centre. The vacationers gain a vast experience in handling new situations and have a lot of fun doing it.

The camp's director and staff expressed their appreciation for the gift of the canoes which were used for an overnight trip the same day that they arrived at the camp.

A sing song was enjoyed prior to the lunch served by the Kinettes. Sarah O'Shea expressed the appreciation of the club.

Cigarette Quitters Improve Well-being

By DORIS CLARK

There are few personal experiences people are as eager to relate — in detail — as their triumph in quitting smoking.

Or so it would seem from the enthusiastic response the federal health department has received to its request for authentic stories from exsmokers on how and why they kicked the cigarette habit.

They revealed there is no "One Way" which will work for everyone. Rather they detailed a fascinating variety of inventive methods smokers have worked out for themselves — each according to his own character make-up, smoking habits and particular motivation for quitting.

Among the wealth of ideas were many which would be a useful resource to a smoker planning his own method of attack — a fascinating encyclopedia of methods that have really worked — and could very possibly work for someone else.

The methods run the gamut from making bets, to introducing substitute activities and to being hypnotized. Whatever turns you on.

All insisted that an honest and driving desire to quit was the basic prerequisite. After quitting they speak of the almost-magical change for the better in health and well-being. All experience, for varying reasons, a decided increase in the enjoyment of living, are joyous (and proud of themselves) to have quit. — Canada's Health and Welfare.

Dear Doris: A friend has dated a girl a number of years. This year she isn't interested any longer. She gave him a nice pair of cuff links which he is going to return to her. Is this the correct thing to do?

He also gave her a number of lovely treasures which he would expect her to return. Would you kindly advise me how we could word a tactful letter to her — since he did appreciate her and thought highly of her. — The Song is faded.

Dear Song: All expensive gifts should return, both ways.

A note from him might say: "As it seems we will not be seeing each other any more, I am sending back to you the lovely cuff links which you gave me some time ago.

"I'll be grateful back to receive the glamor pin and the radio which I gave you as birthday gifts. Or I could be glad to call around at your house for them if you would let me know when you will be there. Your friend, John."

She will surely respond, but if she doesn't, don't belabor the matter. Chalk it up to experience.

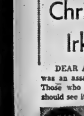
* * *

Dear Doris: I am 23, and was seriously dating a young man of 28. We discussed marriage and I found out I was going to give up a lot for him. I will be expecting his child in seven months. When I first told him I was pregnant he didn't get mad but he kept changing his mind about marrying me. Now it's got to the point where even if he did want to marry me for sure, I wouldn't marry him.

My parents don't know yet, and I'm afraid to tell them. They have been so good to me, and I don't want to hurt them. Is there possibly any place I could stay to have the baby and then give the baby up for adoption?

My ex-boy friend did tell me that he would help me financially but he just lied about that like he did with everything else. — Worried and Let Down

Dear Worried: Yes, my dear, there is help for you. A place to stay, a plan for your future.



But jump the first hurdle first. Mother and dad will be far more hurt if they have to wait to find out about your trouble later. Tell them, no matter what it takes.

Then have your mother go with you to your local child care service. I'll send you the address.

Christmas Newsletters Irk Many Readers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The best column you ever wrote was an assault on Christmas newsletters. Please do a re-run. Those who haven't seen it, should. Those who have seen it should see it again. Thanks — K.C. FAN.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR K.C.: Here it is, not only for you but for J.O. of Vallejo, Calif., R.R.L. of Alma, Mich., J.T. of Amarillo, Texas, I.D. of Bismarck, N.D., E.G. of Burlington, Vt., M and P or Superior, Wisc., S.T. of Layfayette, Ind., and others.

Dear Ann: Why do normally intelligent folks take leave of their senses at Christmas time? I refer to people who compose interminable chronicles of the year's activities and mail them to everyone who has sent them so much as a rummage sale announcement during the year. It is the height of ego-centricity to assume that anyone, save a few intimate friends, would wade through all that verbiage. I am galled by the attempts to portray glowing pictures of affluence and augress. I have before me several Family Newsletters from which I shall lift bits of pieces, changing the names and places for obvious reasons. I've strung together ten sayings to illustrate the point. Here's the composite:

"Dear Friends: What a great year! Jim was named vice-president of the bank! We celebrated by buying a Mercedes and flying off to the Orient. In addition to his Boy Scout work, Jim was co-chairman of the United Fund Drive. He continues on the board of Grace Hospital and is Treasurer of Kiwanis. His first love, however, is the Democratic and he is heading up The Committee To Fight Dutch Elm Disease.

After completing my term as Junior League president, I swore I'd take life easy but I am more involved than ever. I accepted the vice-presidency of the Garden Club and am still active in the D.A.R. I ran the Bake Sale for the Eastern Star again and we made $680. I also squeezed in flower arranging class offered by a Japanese exchange student. All this with my leg in a cast. Dumb me fell off a ladder while hanging decorations at the U.S.O. Center.

Jim, Jr., was elected class president and won his letters in football and basketball. He is on the All-State debate team and placed third in the national oratory contest. We were surprised to read in the paper that he had won a $100 prize in The American Legion Essay Contest. He neglected to let us know he had entered! Jr. has been accepted by both Harvard and Yale and can't make up his mind. Linda was elected vice-president of her class, Honor Society queen, sweetheart of the Phi Delta and was a finalist in the Regional Swimming meet."

And so it goes, Ann, until you could vomit. Next year I'm sending a newsletter to all the bores who have been sending us theirs. Here it is:

Dear Friends: We've had a rotten year. Bill was passed over for promotion again so he quit his job. He hasn't anything lined up yet but he's listed with the employment agencies and looks in the Want-Ads every day. In the meantime, he is drinking like a fish. Having him around the house all day hasn't done much for my disposition.

Bill, Jr. was defeated for homeroom monitor. He flunked French and will have to go to summer school to graduate. College is out. He can't get in anyplace. Bob hasn't had a haircut since August and had to hock his guitar to pay for repairing his Honda. (Thank God he didn't lose his leg. We were plenty worried.) Mary is protesting something and shaved her head two weeks ago. Her father is not speaking to her which is just as well because I think she is deaf from all that loud music. My mother-in-law's May visit lasted til August and I am back in therapy. As I write this the whole family is down with the flu and I'm exhausted. We hope next year is better. It couldn't be much worse. Love. — Mary.

Lady Florence Pollitt Honored

Lady Florence Pollitt, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary Patriarch Militant Association of Ontario was recently honored by Belleville L.A.P.M. Lodge No. 8 and Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 133 at a social evening in I.O.O.F. Hall.

Colonel Jenson escorted visiting dignitaries from Kingston, Oshawa, Picton and Belleville to the centre of the floor and Colonel Douglas Simpson (retired) master of ceremonies, welcomed each person present.

Lady Florence Pollitt was escorted by her husband, Brigadier General Larry Pollitt through a Canton Guard of Honor.

Lady Pollitt, as president of Ontario, has brought honor to the Belleville Ladies, noted Colonel Simpson. It had been almost 15 years since Lady Irene Aman had brought similar honors.

Lady Pollitt's daughter Barbara and husband (Mr. and Mrs. Glen Denike) Kingston attended but a son Fred of Whitby was unable to attend Dorothy Dickey's dancing girls won the admiration of all in several numbers. Three members of Kingston Lodge, Eva Brown, Ada Clark and Kenneth Down sang two numbers.

Sisters Lillian Williams and Maxwell Sills sang a duet in tribute to Lady Florence who then spoke briefly and several others offered their thanks.

Colonel Simpson expressed appreciation to all who participated.

A Number of Tasty Recipes Using All-time Favorite Potato

By MARY MOORE

Potato weather is here. I gave you a recipe for Pot Roast and I think the rich brown gravy goes well with mashed potatoes. They all three naturally should be served together. But never content with the status quo I decided to give the mashed potatoes idea a lift so I made Duchess potatoes with a tasty addition — sour cream. I did not add any butter and the sour cream was very fresh so the "sourness" was almost unnoticeable but the rich flavor was popular with my guests.

CREAM DUCHESS POTATOES

6 medium potatoes
1 tsp. salt
½ cup fresh dairy sour cream
¼ cup milk
2 eggs — yolks and whites separated

Scrub potatoes and trim out any blemishes. Boil with skins on until very tender. Drain and when cool enough to handle peel. Put into beater bowl and beat until mashed and free from all lumps. Add salt, milk and sour cream. Save ½ of 1 egg yolk in a cup and to it add ½ tbsp. cold water to brush top later. Add remaining ½ yolk and 1 whole yolk to potatoes and beat until blended and light. Beat egg whites and fold in evenly. Turn into buttered average-sized baking dish and peak up tip with fork. Brush top with egg-water mixture. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 min., until heated through and top is tinged with gold.

CRUMB FRENCH FRIED GREEN BEANS

Allow about 8 whole green beans per person. Wash and remove stem end. Leave bottom tip on. Dry beans. Shake in paper bag with ¼ cup flour and ½ tsp. salt. Then dip beans into 1 egg beaten with 2 tbsps. water. Drain and coat with fine cracker crumbs or corn flake crumbs. Drop about 10 raw crumbed beans into deep hot oil or fat at 375 deg. Fahr.— my fat was 1" deep — and fry for about 4 min. in all, carefully turning with slotted spoon at half time. Drain on paper towelling and keep hot until whole batch is fried. These will remind you of crumbed asparagus and are a beautiful addition to your vegetable repertory.

Cubs and Scouts Hold Father and Son Banquet

The annual father and son banquet was held Wednesday, Nov. 26 for the 1st Avondale Cub, Scout and Venturers at College Hill United Church. Rev. Vessey acted as host. A turkey dinner was prepared by the College Hill United Church Women.

President of the 1st. Avondale group committee Tony Spitters, presided as chairman and introduced special guests Arnold Welch, District Commissioner of Boy Scouts and J. Rollins, president of the District Council.

Guest speaker at the banquet, Inspector Blatchford of the Belleville Police Department, spoke on the responsibilities and training requirements of police forces in general and the importance of open lines of communication within the family unit as a deterrent to juvenile delinquency.

After showing some of the equipment used in law, enforcement, a question and answer period was conducted.

A presentation was made on behalf of the group committee and Women's Auxiliary of 1st. Avondale to John MacKinnon, Cub leader of 1st. Avondale in appreciation of his ten years' service.

U.S. Indians Seek $750 Million from Churches

DETROIT (AP) — Along with proponents of black power, woman power and youth power, Indian power is pressing for more influence in the churches.

Its case was presented Monday to the triennial general assembly of the National Council of Churches by leaders of American Indians.

"We are hungry, brothers," said Dennis Banks, a Chippewa Indian from Minneapolis in asking the council to approve a $750,000,000 program to advance the welfare of Indians. Banks is the newly elected president of the American Indian Movement.

The large-scale financial request paralleled black demands for church restitution to Negroes for alleged past injustices, as declared in the controversial Black Manifesto.

"The Indian people have endured 130 years of flagrant criminal atrocities," Banks said.

"Here in America, the Indian and the black have suffered and survived under the worst conditions known to man."

Wearing a red beret, "red power" button, red neckerchief and black velvet vest banded at the shoulders with strands of beads, Banks was among a delegation of 13 Indian leaders from across the country.

They said five other major Indian organizations, in addition to the 1,200-member movement headed by Banks, backed the proposals they made.

"It is apparent that no relief will come, unless Indian America comes to life," Banks said.

Declaring that Anglo-Saxon societies have historically "enslaved the minority races," he added that religions of such societies have perpetuated white supremacy, a white God and "defined us as heathens."

This attitude, he said, has been used to sanction aggressions, frauds, murder and genocide against the Indians. He related figures of low income, early deaths, high unemployment and other sub-standard conditions among the country's 750,000 Indians.

His appeal came in an afternoon of various other pressures and demonstrations by insurgent groups seeking wider recognition and prerogatives in the churches.

Black churchmen announced candidates for top council posts.

Rev. Leon Watts of New York, an American Methodist Episcopal Zion clergyman, was nominated by the blacks to wrest the general secretaryship from Dr. R. H. Edwin Espy, a white Baptist.

Another Negro clergyman, Rev. Dr. Albert Cleage, of the United Church of Christ Shrine of the Black Madonna in Detroit, was tapped to oppose an official white nominee, Cynthia Wedel, an Episcopalian or Anglican, for the council presidency.

The Council includes 33 denominations with 42,000,000 members.

An insurgent group made up of reform-minded white Christians took over the meeting Monday in a whirl of liturgical songs and incantations to "exorcise" it of demons.

Called "Jonathan's Wake," it wants the churches to dispense their wealth to the poor and develop a renewed Christian movement focused on zealous evangelism and action.

A woman caucus headed by Peggy Billings of New York pressed for more female representation. Youths also sought a greater voice.

Indians Worried About Land

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, who has been meeting Indians to discuss proposed government Indian policy, says the greatest fears about the proposals involve land security.

He told the Commons committee on miscellaneous estimates Monday that proposals to turn lands back to the Indians themselves have raised fears among various bands that the lands could be lost. "They are afraid that some fast operator will come around and take it."

Mr. Chretien said he is asking the Indians for guides in this area so they will get the security they want in the new Indian land act.

"The problem is to give them the freedom they want while ensuring that they don't become victims of the process."

Mr. Chretien also said he has written to all provincial education ministers asking for their co-operation in ensuring that Indian history is accurately portrayed. He said there are too many cases of white man's "victories" and Indian "massacres."

Municipalities To Be Represented

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's 14-member delegation to next week's federal-provincial conference will include two municipal representatives in recognition of attention being given to city problems at the Ottawa talks, Premier Robarts said Monday.

Mr. Robarts said in an interview that the municipal representatives, the first in many years to be invited to a federal-provincial conference, will be official members of the delegation.

David Low, president of the Ontario Municipal Association, and town clerk of Fergus, and Mayor Robert Speck of Mississauga, president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, have been invited to be the delegates.

The agenda for the three-day conference beginning Monday was to be released in Ottawa today by Prime Minister Trudeau.

U.S. Prison Policy Is Stupidly Cruel

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I cannot believe that the public is truly concerned about crime, its causes and consequences, as long as most people remain so ignorant, so vindictive, so hypocritical, and so stupidly cruel in their attitudes toward prisoners and prisons.

A century ago, most people felt the same way about mental illness. The mentally ill were called "lunatics," were scorned, and generally regarded as incurable. We have come a long way in the effective treatment of mental illness in a century.

But our so-called "correctional" system has scarcely moved an inch since the American Correction Association was formed 100 years ago. Our prisons are, for the most part a disgrace — ignored by the public, run by political hacklies, riddled with corruption, and turning out far more criminals than they take in.

Every honest professional worker associated with prisons knows this to be true. Doctors know it, chaplains know it, psychologists know it, probation and parole officers know it — the jail neither reforms men nor makes them penitent, but rather corrodes them, embitters them, cuts off their incentives, and sends them back into the free world in worse shape than when they entered.

The social cancer of crime in our midst costs our country billions of dollars, quite apart from the human suffering. In the last few decades, crime has risen four times as fast as the population, and it is obvious that punishment and prisons do not deter: Those U.S. states with the severest penalties do not have a lower crime rate than others. Harsher laws and stiffer sentences are meaningless in themselves, if our prisons are not converted from chambers of vengeance to halls of learning; if first offenders are not separated from habitual criminals; if the chance to learn a trade, earn some money, and have normal associations is denied or just given lip-service; and if the whole prison system continues to be administered by ill-trained, underpaid, "career" patronage workers who have a vested interest in perpetuating the injustices of the system.

If the moral argument does not move you — that men cannot be treated like animals and then expected to respond like disciples — then consider in practical terms, how wasteful, expensive, and ineffective the whole absurd business is. For a fraction of the cost of incarceration and security, we could obtain a hundredfold better results by putting the money into treatment of most offenders in their own community, as some enlightened countries already do.

Tomorrow I will discuss the sexual scandal of our prisons.

"Stop pollution!"

Says Julie Vandervoort, aged 11.

Save Our Trent!

The Campbellford Trent attracts everyone, local or otherwise. Sparkling blue in summer, spring or fall and beautiful in winter with frosty patches of ice.

Our rives of winding ribbon is being destroyed. Slowly we are losing it. Yes, the Trent is becoming polluted! The waste waters of Town along the Trent is ruining our rivers.

Stop Pollution!

But how? We needed help and we got it. The Ontario Water Resources Commission is building a plant to take away sewage. We will have clean water for drinking and spots.

I say - hurray for the O.W.R.C.!

Don't you?

City Jeweler Adds Sparkle to PUC Race

By HARRY MULHALL
and ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporters

A lack-lustre city election received its only bit of campaign sparkle from a Belleville jeweler.

And last night Gerard O'Connor, a new comer to civic affairs, received his campaign award.

City voters returned him as one of two commissioners to Belleville's public utilities.

To win the seat he took on two veterans — utilities commission chairman and four-year PUC veteran Lyle Langabeer, and two-year commissioner Jack Deacon.

Traditionally, the commission evokes a fringe campaign.

The civic election scene, bereft of major public issues, came alive at the edges as the three men staged their contest — Mr. O'Connor repeatedly hitting out at the two incumbents.

Main issues he repeatedly cited and questioned were hydro rates and the public's right to knowledge of commission business.

Last night the electorate made its choice. Mr. O'Connor took 2,940 votes, easily defeating Mr. Deacons' poll of 2,189. Mr. Langabeer stayed well ahead of the contest, polling a hefty 3,029.

In yesterday's battle, Mr. Langabeer, a Canadian National Railways locomotive engineer, and former school board member, lumped into an early lead and was never headed.

As poll after poll reported, Mr. Langabeer gradually increased his lead.

But the race between newcomer Gerry O'Connor and Mr. Deacon was much closer, although here again Mr. O'Connor gradually increased his lead. Within an hour and a-half of polls closing, Mr. Deacon had conceded.

In his re-election campaign Mr. Deacon appealed for votes on the basis of his experience on the commission.

On the other hand Mr. O'Connor, a newcomer to municipal elections, posed the question of the general public being entitled to know the details of commission business. He also wondered how the public utilities commission members could promise there would be no increase in hydro and water rates this year in the face of the rising cost of wholesale power and other increased costs.

Mr. Langabeer merely listed his associations — 20 on other community organizations — and appealed for votes on this basis.

For Mr. Langabeer and Mr. O'Connor, their different vote appeal approach paid off.

New Faces Will Fill Trenton Town Council

TRENTON (Staff) — Only one present or former councillor received the endorsement of Trenton voters in Monday's municipal election, but that man did it in an impressive fashion.

E.-M. "Ted" Parker, the current chairman of the finance committee, topped the polls with 1,781 votes, more than 150 votes ahead of his nearest rival — postal clerk George Greer — who received 1,597 votes.

Greer, who ran unsuccessfully twice previously, and two men who made their debut as council candidates earned council seats last night by capturing second, third and fourth spots.

Dr. W. R. "Bob" Patrick placed third with 1,314 votes while insurance agent Neil Robertson earned the fourth and final seat with 18 fewer votes (1,496).

Two of the three men who didn't make it were experienced in council matters. They were incumbent Douglas Kinney and former councillor Charles Hilton.

Kinney came home fifth with 1,112 votes while Gerrit-Bruinix polled 1,048 votes in earn sixth spot and miss the council boat for the second consecutive year. Hilton trailed with only 872 votes.

Parker's win was no surprise for he topped the polls two years ago, but it does rate as a bit of a shock that he is the only man selected with any previous council experience.

The three front runners (Parker, Greer, Patrick) earned two-year terms while the fourth man (Neil Robertson) will have to be content with a one-year term.

Robertson will be serving the remainder of the term vacated by Duncan McDonald who resigned recently in order to contest the mayoralty.

Some 40.8 per cent of the voting population trekked to the polls despite slippery roads and a weekend snowfall which deposited more than six inches of snow on Trenton and vicinity.

The turnout was at least par with that of the past few years for the percentage in 1968 was only 35, while in 1967 it was 41.

The remaining two seats on council are occupied by Paul Tripp and Stan Ketcheson, both of whom have one-year of their two-year terms still to serve.

Trenton Breakdown

TRENTON (Staff) — The following poll-by-poll breakdown reveals how challenger Duncan McDonald upset incumbent James MacDonald in the Trenton municipal election's two-man mayoralty duel:

| Poll No. | D. McDonald | J. MacDonald |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | 342 | 132 |
| 2A | 275 | 117 |
| 2B | 281 | 86 |
| 3 | 158 | 68 |
| 4 | 104 | 122 |
| 5A | 124 | 173 |
| 5B | 210 | 329 |
| 6 | 122 | 104 |
| Advance Poll | 23 | 17 |
| Totals | 1,739 | 1,281 |

Brighton's First Council Woman

Brighton (Staff) — "First and foremost" would be the best way to describe Mrs. Dorothy Brintnell following Monday's municipal election in the Village of Brighton.

The 49-year-old housewife and former clothing store operator was more than just the first female council candidate in Brighton's history after the ballots were counted — she was the foremost of five council candidates who battled for three positions.

"It's just wonderful and hard to believe; I'm very excited about it!" she said exuberantly when the final count was tallied.

The tally showed that Mrs. Brintnell drew 392 votes, 57 more than runner-up James Simpson, an incumbent who will be the lone 1970 councillor with previous council experience.

Robert Bailey, who garnered 287 votes, took the third councillor's seat from Ralph Tippett by a margin of 44 votes. Mr. Tippett's 243 votes gave him a margin of 51 over the fifth candidate, William Dunk.

Two incumbent councillors, Norman Roberts and Lisle Pownall, have already been acclaimed reeve and deputy-reeve of the Village of Brighton.

In the fight for the sole Public Utilities Commission opening, incumbent Terry McIntosh handily defeated newcomer Harold McColl by a margin of 421 to 169.

Mr. McIntosh will serve a two-year term while the reeve, deputy-reeve and three councillors will all serve one-year terms.

Clerk-treasurer Archie Edwards attributed bad roads and poor weather conditions for the 32.2 per cent turnout — 590 out of a possible 1,835 — of the electorate.

One Election Problem Is Quickly Solved

SNELGROVE, Ont. (CP) — Ever since King Henry VI gave up 500 years ago, the law has washed its hands of the problem of trying to control cats. On Monday, a veterinarian member of Chinguacousy Township council, just west of Toronto, came up with the answer.

Deputy Reeve Robert Williams had expressed concern that one of the township's many wandering cats might smother a baby in its carriage. No problem, said Councillor Jack Wallace.

"Get 10 cents worth of pepper and spread it around the buggy and you won't have a cat within 40 feet."

Nobody thought of that one when Henry VI abolished a feline control act during the 15th century.

Township Council Returned

HILTON (Staff) — Voters in Brighton Township expressed their satisfaction with township affairs Monday by returning their present council for the year 1970.

Incumbent Reeve Ray Chatlet and Deputy-Reeve Arnold Boes were previously returned by acclamation and the three Hilton councillors emerged victorious from a five-man race Monday.

Frank George topped the council poll with 416 votes — 13 more than runner - up Reginald McCann who drew the support of 403 voters.

Maurice Harvey earned the third councillor's seat with 362 votes and a 63 vote margin over challenger Robert Carlaw. Ivan Flindall brought up the rear with 172 votes.

Of the 891 voters — 36 per cent of the 1,530 total —cast the polls despite adverse weather conditions which cut the early-day turnout drastically.

Didn't Figure On Defeat: Mayor

TRENTON — James MacDonald accepted defeat graciously last night, but it must have been a bitter pill to swallow for the man who has served as this town's chief magistrate for the past decade.

"I'm a little bit surprised — I sure didn't figure on defeat," the hardware store proprietor admitted following preliminary tabulation of the ballots Monday night at Trenton Town Hall.

"I've been honored to have served as the people's mayor and it's been a good 10 years."

Defeat is a relative stranger to this silver-haired man, having visited him only once previously in his 17 years of municipal campaigning in Trenton.

After serving six years as a councillor James MacDonald challenged incumbent Ross Burtt in the 1959 mayoralty contest and was defeated by the margin of 47 votes.

He returned to oust Mr. Burtt the following year and won three more mayoralty contests before succumbing to challenger Duncan McDonald Monday.

The mayor noted that his previous 47-vote defeat didn't kill him but stressed that "I have no plans right now."

Nor was he certain of the cause for his defeat, but he did not wish to dwell on that topic Monday night following the biggest shock and disappointment of his political career.

Wets Win -- by 2

BANCROFT -- This village went wet last night — but only by two votes.

A recount may be called on the slim majority on the liquor vote.

Village clerk Jack Gordon said this morning 74.8 of the eligible voters went to the polls yesterday in record their opinion. A 60 per cent majority is needed to win a liquor vote.

Sixty per cent of the votes cast is 618.8, and the wets polled only 619 votes in favor. The drys polled 409.

Mr. Gordon will announce the results officially today, and the drys will have 14 days to apply to a judge for a recount.

The clerk said this is the third liquor vote in 14 years in the village. The earlier two contests were won by the drys.

PUC Veteran Re-elected

TRENTON (Staff) — One veteran of Trenton politics, Mayor James MacDonald, fell by the wayside on Monday's municipal election, but a second — Clifford Baker — won handily.

He outdistanced challenger F. J. Aziz by nearly 400 votes in the contest for the lone Public Utilities Commission vacancy.

The final count was 1,853 to 1,267 for Mr. Baker, plant manager who has served on the PUC for 11 years.

Challenger Aziz had questioned Mr. Baker's eligibility prior to the election because the incumbent had recently moved in Ameliasburg. However, the incumbent insisted he was still a legal candidate and asked for the public's support on the basis of the PUC's past performance and his own past performance.

Not This Year ...

Down, Ellis Top Murray Polls

WOOLER — The man who said "Murray Township council closed the door after four or five horses had been let out of the barn!" earned a chance Monday night to help remedy the situation.

William Ellis, the registrar of Loyalist College, and the man who made that pre-election statement, placed second among five candidates in Monday's Murray Township municipal election.

Ellis drew 594 votes — just 25 less than incumbent councillor Stanley Down who topped the poll with 619 votes.

Third man was former Murray Township foreman Clifford Wannamaker who gained 516 votes in his first political sortee. James Day, who had run for council unsuccessfully before, and newcomer William Lawson came fourth and fifth with 414 and 408 votes.

But the man who drew the most overwhelming support was incumbent James Quinn who captured the deputy - reeve's position by defeating former deputy - reeve Stewart Mainprize by a count of 873-to 398.

"I'm very pleased — I think we've got a good council and now we can sit down and work together for the benefit of the township," an elated James Quinn said after the final tally was in.

Harry Lafferty has already been acclaimed as reeve of the new Murray Township council which has a three — year term for the first time. This is in order to make the council and Hastings County School Board elections coincide beginning in 1972.

Despite poor road conditions the turnout was 37 per cent. This is slightly higher than the 1967 percentage.

Brrrr ...

Winter doesn't officially arrive until Dec. 21 — but you couldn't tell it by last night's temperatures in the Quinte district.

Coldest spot in the area was Bancroft where the department of lands and forests ranger station reported a low of 15 degrees below.

At Tweed the mercury dropped to 10 below early this morning. Overnight low in the Belleville - Trenton area was four below.

The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton, says the current cold snap should continue for at least two days, although warming slightly. Low predicted for tonight is 15 above.

Injured City Majorette Re-admitted to Hospital

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

One of the four Gail Chapman Jolly Buccaneers majorettes admitted to a Winchester hospital after the bus in which her group was overturned Saturday on the Macdonald Cartier Freeway has been re - admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

The group was heading back to Belleville after marching in the Grey Cup Parade on Saturday afternoon when the mishap occurred on a slippery stretch of the 401 about 25 miles west of Cornwall.

Taken to hospital for observation were Bonnie Robb, Martha Bishop, Karen Plante and Mrs. Shirley Ferara.

Bonnie and Martha were released Monday afternoon, and Mrs. Ferara was treated and released Saturday night.

Karen Plante has been re - admitted to hospital here for further treatment of a neck injury which she sustained in the mishap. She is reported in satisfactory condition. Her biggest worry at the moment, according to her mother, is the fact that she will have to miss a few parades — something that has never happened before. "But she should be home for Christmas," said Mrs. Plante.

The other two girls, Bonnie Robb, 14 and Martha Bishop, 12, were both brought home Monday, and disregarding the scratches and bruises, both appeared to have escaped the incident without any further injuries.

Most Folks Just Stayed Home Last Night

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The 44.3 per cent turnout of voters in yesterday's municipal election was higher than expected in view of the inclement weather, but the lack of any real issues was echoed in the slim attendance at city hall last night to see the election results posted.

Throughout most of the evening only slightly more than a dozen people took the trouble to get the election results first hand.

After the initial surprise at what was indicated a rather easy victory for incumbent Mayor J. Russell Scott, posting of the election results by a city hall staff member drew little response from the slim turnout.

With Mayor Scott's re-election seemingly assured, interest then turned to the aldermanic race headed by Alderman Arthur Keegan and the emergence of Gerry O'Connor as the possible winner of the second Public Utilities Utilities Commission seat.

The council chamber crowd remained slim until Mayor Scott's victory parade from his campaign headquarters across the street from city hall.

Slightly more than two-thirds of the vote was in, with Mayor Scott leading by a comfortable margin of nearly three-to-one, when aldermanic candidate Alderman Richard Ellis arrived to concede defeat and offer his congratulations.

"You wanted Mayor Scott and you have him," said Alderman Ellis as he conceded defeat in a brief statement. The crowd by this time had grown considerably.

For his part, Mayor Scott expressed his appreciation to the voters, to his campaign workers and in the "best campaign manager of all" — his wife, Marion.

Looking to the future Mayor Scott assured that "Belleville is a great place . . . We just have to give it a chance and work together — every one of us."

Clair Top Candidate for General Manager

OTTAWA (CP) — If Rough Rider owner David Loeb doesn't plan to become his own general manager, coach Frank Clair appears to be top candidate for the job.

The job is expected to become vacant in a few weeks as Red O'Quinn, Riders' general manager, is believed headed for the front office of the Montreal Alouettes. Friends say Sam Berger would not have laid out an estimated $1,000,000 for the Eastern Football Conference club if he wasn't sure O'Quinn would go with him.

Clair, in his 16th year as coach of Riders, has said he definitely wants to be general manager of the Ottawa club. He figures that after all the good football clubs he has produced for Ottawa—three Grey Cup winners in the 1960s—he deserves a crack at the job.

He even has an idea of his own replacement. He says Jack Gotta, now his assistant, would make "a great coach."

Loeb says he doesn't want to talk about a new general manager until and if O'Quinn leaves.

But if he doesn't want the job he had built up a national winner.

He did another rebuilding job after that and he did it while club directors, fans and football writers here were calling for his head.

The result has been winners in 1968 and 1969 Grey Cup games and a loss in 1966 in the himself, then Clair would appear to be the man.

Clair, 53, came to Ottawa in 1954 when the Ottawa team was going nowhere. Four years later he was out to take over the national final against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Now another big rebuilding job remains to be done in Ottawa.

Quarterback Russ Jackson has called his last game. End Margene Adkins plans to play in the United States next year. Halfback Vic Washington says he wants out too. Defensive halfback Gene Gaines has played out his option and tackle Tom Beynon has announced his retirement.

In addition, Ottawa place kicker Don Sutherin has his eye on a coaching job and halfback Ron Stewart is a doubtful starter for Riders.

Ellis Calls Off Heavyweight Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — The proposed heavyweight title bout between Joe Frazier, champion of seven states, and World Boxing Association king Jimmy Ellis has been called off in New York, leaving Madison Square Garden holding the bag.

"I learned a long time ago never to announce a fight until I have the signed contracts on my desk," Harry Markson, president of the Garden's boxing division, said Monday.

Markson said the bout, scheduled for Feb. 2, wouldn't be held because Ellis had changed his mind.

Markson said Ellis had agreed to meet Frazier, but apparently will meet Gregorio Peralli in Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 20.

He said that Angelo Dundee, who manages Ellis, had originally agreed last month to accept the Garden's offer of $150,000 against 30 per cent of all receipts. He said Frazier had agreed to the same terms through his trainer-adviser, Yank Durham.

But in Miami, Dundee denied that the fight had ever been set.

"I never accepted the Garden offer," he said. "We still want the bout somewhere, but the day of dickering as a fight manager is apparently over.

"They won't budge. We're not going to accept that $150,000 and 30-per-cent bid by the Garden."

Grey Cup Champs Have Big Rebuilding Job

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The furniture is back in the hotel lobbies in Montreal and the Autostade has been swept clear of Grey Cup debris to lie vacant under a dusting of snow until next spring.

Ottawa 29 Saskatchewan 11 is yesterday's news.

But if someone tries to tell you that football is in hibernation for the winter, laugh quietly—it has merely gone into in-camera session to prepare for the biggest rebuilding job in years.

Ottawa, Grey Cup champions for a second consecutive year, are in a state of upheaval.

Quarterback Russ Jackson, voted the outstanding player in the country, stripped off his equipment Sunday and said "I never want to touch a football again."

Defensive tackle Tom Beynon has decided on such a move, he would want Sam Etcheverry as head coach. Now a stock broker here, Etcheverry at quarterback and O'Quinn at end rewrote the Canadian Football League record book 13 years ago during Montreal's greatest days.

Don Sutherin, defensive back whose kicking carried him to second place in the Eastern Conference scoring this year, has been quoted as saying he would like to leave Ottawa to become an assistant coach in Montreal.

Kay Dalton, who this year built Montreal into a young club where the average age is less than 25, is the sentimental favorite to finish out the remaining two years of his three-year contract as head coach.

But Montreal and Ottawa aren't the only clubs with adjustments to make.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats appear to be working hard to rebuild as their previous glory on a program that stresses the pass over the traditional trench-warfare of ball control and hammering fullbacks.

Toronto Argonauts came close this year and their only real problem may be fining a replacement for veteran defensive halfback Ed Learn.

In the Western Conference, Jackie Parker filled out the unexpired term of Jim Champion, fired by B.C. Lions midway through the season. He has been reported interested in a permanent job as head coach in Vancouver or in the position left vacant when Neil Armstrong left Edmonton Eskimos at the end of the current year.

It was with Eskimos that Parker was three times chosen outstanding player in Canada, a record equalled only by Jackson who did it this year.

Joe Zaleski has gone from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, a team scrambling to rebuild to the stature it enjoyed under head coach Bud Grant who left to take over a similar job with Minnesota Vikings which he has made a power in the National Football League.

Only Saskatchewan Roughriders, under the guidance of tactiturn Eagle Keys, remain relatively unscathed. In Ron Lancaster, Keys has one of the few fully experienced quarterbacks left in the WFC.

Jerry Keeling of Calgary Stampeders is a veteran back new at starting quarterback where he replaced the award-winning Peter Liske, who also went south.

Terry Evanshen, brilliant but slightly built split end with Stampeders, has said he wants to try his hand in the NFL or AFL.

Paul Brothers, whose passing for B.C. down in their late-season drive under Parker, had the quarterback job on the West Coast.

Corey Colebour and Charley Fulton shared quarterback duties with the Eskimos and while the Edmonton club had the best defensive record in the land, C-le-b-r-e and Fulton couldn't guide them into the playoffs this year.

Wally Gabler made a difference in Winnipeg when he moved there from the Argonauts, but again, not enough of a difference to lead the limping club into the playoffs.

In summation, the teams which make it into the 1970 Grey Cup game in Toronto may make it there as much on the acumen of their recruiting sergeants as on the strong arms of their field generals.

Trade Winds Stir in First Day 'Alou Among Speculative Vanguard

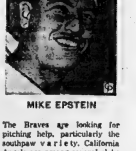
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The trade winds stirred anew today with Mike Epstein,

FELIPE ALOU

Felipe Alou and Rick Reichardt among the name players in the speculative vanguard after a quick opening session of baseball's annual winter meetings.

The trade market was at a standstill Monday as club officials fenced for bargaining position after breezing through the major league draft in 35 minutes, without turning up so much as a Bo Belinsky in the hopper.

But action was expected to pick up briskly today, with most of the 24 teams seeking help before the Dec. 15 deadline for inter-league swapping. And Epstein, Alou and Reichardt were reported on the block.



Washington Senators, hopeful of returning slugger Frank Howard from the outfield to first base in 1970, possibly would part with incumbent first baseman Epstein, a 30-home-run man in his own right last season, in a package deal for a second baseman and catcher.

Manager Ted Williams has served notice that the Senators might make a major trade "just to liven things up."

New York Yankees, among others, are ready to do business for Epstein and at the right price.

"We've always had a hankering for Epstein," said Yankees general manager Lee MacPhail, "but we haven't been able to put anything together. Whenever we talk trade with anybody, they want our No. 1 and 2 pitchers."

Alou, a topflight outfielder plagued by injuries in recent years, has been mentioned as a possible showcase attraction in Atlanta Braves' swapping bag.

MIKE EPSTEIN

The Braves are looking for pitching help, particularly the southpaw variety. California Angels are among several clubs who have expressed interest in Alou.

Many teams, including Baltimore Orioles, American League champions, covet California right-hander Andy Messersmith. But Richard L. the former $200,000 bonus baby, appears the Angel most available. And the recent acquisition of hard-hitting outfielder Alex Johnson from Cincinnati Red makes Reichardt all the more expendable, if the Angels can get a No. 4 or 5 hitter in return.

Cleveland Indians could be among the most active traders, with such as Tony Horton, Max Alvis and Larry Brown as bait for one or more proved pitchers.

The Indians, with the most losses in the majors last season, got the first pick in Monday's draft, and selected southpaw Larry Staab, a 13-game winner for Los Angeles Dodgers' Spokane farm club in the Pacific Coast League last season.

Montreal Expos picked up pitcher John Strohmayer in the morning round and took a pitcher and a catcher for their Vancouver affiliate in the afternoon.

Strohmayer, a 25-year-old right-handed pitcher was drafted from the Triple-A Des Moines farm club of Oakland Athletics.

The Expos also went to the Oakland farm system for Fredrico Velasquez, a 22-year-old catcher, who was born in the Dominican Republic. Vancouver also gets right-hand pitcher Brent Foshie from the Texas League Amarillo roster o Sfan Francisco Giants.

There were 19 players selected, 13 in the first round at a cost of $25,000 each in the major league phase of the draft. In contrast to last year's draft, when Belinsky, picked by St. Louis Cardinals, was among several journeymen tabbed, the club apparently went for youth this time around.

Pitcher Jack DiLauro, plucked off the roster of the New York Mets' Tidewater, Va., club in the International League by Houston Astros, was possibly the most familiar name.

DiLauro, called up by the Mets from Tidewater last May, compiled a 1 record, mostly in relief, for the world champs but did not appear in either the National League playoff or the World Series.

Seven clubs, including the Mets, went into the session with frozen 40-man rosters and did not draft. Two others, Oakland and San Diego, had roster openings but also abstained.

Argo Flanker Free Agent for Hockey

TORONTO (CP) — If Toronto Maple Leafs are worried about all those passes going astray, one of the best receivers in the business is at their disposal.

Bobby Taylor, an all-star with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, said Monday he has become a free agent as far as professional hockey is concerned.

Taylor said he was released Saturday by the Philadelphia Flyers organization after a five-year pro hockey career in which he has never progressed beyond the minor league defenceman, he has a career record of five goals and 10 assists in 133 games.

The 29-year-old Argo flanker said he has received permission to skate himself into shape at Maple Leaf Gardens and that the Leafs will talk to him in a few days if he has not been signed by another club. He played last season with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League, a Philadelphia farm club.

CFL Annual Meeting To Consider Gambling, Injuries

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said Monday the annual CFL meeting in February may consider the problem of player injuries and their connection with gambling.

Gaudaur was back home in Burlington resting up after the Grey Cup game in Montreal, where it was not known until just before game time Sunday that Jim Worden would not play for Saskatchewan Roughriders due to a rib injury.

The National Football League demands that teams disclose player injuries to the league office which then distributes the information to the public to prevent gamblers gaining an edge on the batting public.

Orr Still Leads Scoring Pack Esposito Top in Goaltending

MONTREAL (CP) — Every time young Bobby Orr gets in the way of an opponent's shot, Harry Sinden, Boston Bruins coach, cringes.

And little wonder.

Orr, described by many hockey people as the National Hockey League's most complete defenceman, is only bothered by the sometimes-sagging Bruins blue line corps, but he continues to pile up points as well.

Orr currently leads the individual scoring race with 35 points on seven goals and a league-leading 28 assists. His total is more than double his output of last season in the same number of games—22.

Picked as an NHL all-star in his first three seasons, Orr looks well on his way to a fourth straight berth. His scoring pace is such this season that he is only four points behind the pace set by Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks at the same point last season.

Centre Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues remains hard on Orr's heels, trailing by three points on 12 goals and 20 assists.

Ab McDonald, also of St. Louis, is third with 28 points, one more than Walt Tkaczuk, New York Rangers' young centre. Tkaczuk's 27 points are two more than another New York Centre—Jean Ratelle.

Phil Esposito of Boston, defending scoring champion, is sixth with 24 points, only four fewer than he had in as many games last season when he set the scoring record of 126 points.

Tony Esposito of Chicago, brother of Phil, continues to lead the goaltenders with a 1.81 goals-against average, despite the 5-4 loss suffered by the Hawks at Detroit Red Wings Saturday—a defeat that snapped Chicago's undefeated streak at 10 games.

Esposito leads the league in shutouts with four.

New York has the longest unbeaten streak of any team this season. The Rangers string now extends over 11 games without a loss, including eight wins. This is the longest run for a New York team since the 1939-40 season when the Rangers went on a 19-game undefeated streak.

Carol Vadnais of Oakland Seals is the individual penalty leader with 95 minutes, while Boston holds the club honors with 382 minutes in 22 games.

Let Me Think A Minute

BCI Senior Basketball player Mike Scarlett tries to diverge team-mates Jim Wright and Terry Clarke during a practice session at BCI yesterday. BCI Seniors won Bay of Quinte Championships last year.

Coaches Estimate BCI Team to Beat

Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, winners of Bantam, Junior and Senior Boys Basketball for the Bay of Quinte last year are hoping to repeat their victory again this year.

"All three of four teams will be contenders again this year," said senior coach Wally Beever. "We only have one player back from last year but the boys have got the desire to win."

BCI seniors last year lost out to Cobourg for the Senior "AA" playoffs for COSSA while the junior and bantam teams went on only to be defeated in COSSA.

"BCI is going to be the team to beat in the senior division anyhow," said Quinte Senior coach Barry Turpin. "Our club has the potential but lacks experience with only one player on the squad from last year." Centennial is the team to beat as far as Jamesboro bantams go.

Moira are hoping to repeat their football fame by bringing another COSSA championship to their school.

"Our seniors are vastly improved over last year," said coach Brian McKenzie. "Although we lost the first game this season last week, the wins will start coming as soon as the boys get organized."

Moira juniors lost out to Quinte in the Bay of Quinte playoff last year.

"It is going to be a tough junior league this year, added McKenzie. "Quinte and Centennial are going to supply strong competition."

Centennial Seniors who finished last year's season in the cellar have three players back from their 1968 squad, the most of any school.

"We have no height, said Centennial senior coach Dave Sellers. "Our tallest man is six foot. We'll have to run faster than any team and outplay every team more than any other school if we expect to win this year."

The Bay of Quinte championships will be held in the last week of February at Centennial Secondary School with COSSA scheduled for the first week in March.

Aluminum Tied With Belvedere

Aluminum Stars moved into a first place tie with Belvedere Hotel Hockey league with a 3 - 1 victory over Central Taxi last night.

Belvedere Hotel and Stinson Construction battled to a 3 - 3 tie in the other scheduled league game.

Ron Pointer got the first Aluminum goal with Bill Rushlow getting the assist. Then Rushlow scored an unassisted goal early in the second period. Ron Urch rounded out Aluminum's scoring with Ron Pointer and Don Moore being awarded the assists.

Andy Prudden scored Central Taxi's only goal with the assists going to Doug Bolte and Terry Casselman.

There were 18 minutes in penalties handed out in the game with the winners getting the gate for eight minutes.

In the Belvedere, Stinson game Paul Brown scored twice for Belvedere with Don Moreau and Brian Nolan assisting on the first goal and Nolan getting a assist on the other. Belvedere's third goal was scored by Len Stewart with Elmer Cain and Paul Brown assisting.

There were only six minutes in penalties in this encounter. Belvedere received four minutes.

Mel Barriages Win Third Game

Belleville's Mel Barriages of the Quinte Women's Hockey League improved their record to three wins and a loss by defeating Picton Rocketten 2-0 on Sunday.

Sandra Chaus scored at the five minute mark of the second period, Marg Reid was given the assist.

Then in the third period Linda Empey scored an unassisted goal for the Barriage win.

The locals got two penalties in the game. Charlene Quinn was allotted three minutes for roughing and Sharon Lumas was given three minutes for slashing.

Terri Stevens recorded the shutout, her second in four games.

Although the Barriages defeated the Rocketten for the Canadian Dominion championships last year Sunday was the first time that the locals have ever defeated Picton in regular season play.

Midget Coach Optimistic About Start

Belleville's Blake Kerr Midget all-stars coach Bob Burrowes is optimistic when he talks about his team's two losses in the first two scheduled league games.

"We have a good club," commented Burrowes, "Most of the fellows just finished playing football and haven't started to get on track yet. With a little more shooting we would have won those two games."

The local all - star squad have only five players on the team from last year, Roger La Moore, last year's regular goalkeeper, Peter Ackerman and Dale Caul, two second year defencemen with the club and Rick Meagher, Doug James, second year men on the Midgets forward lines.

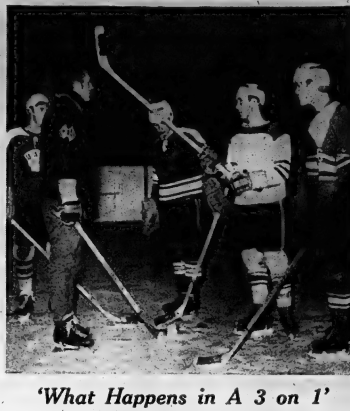
"Most of the boys have played all - star right from the start," added manager Tom Neill. "We have a lot of boys from last year's Kinsmen bantam champions, so something has to start clicking."

In exhibition play this season the locals have recorded two wins and two losses. Prior to the opening of the season with the Midget team defeated Gananoque 6-2 in Gananoque and downed Peterborough Church League midgets 4-1.

Two Sundays ago the midget all - stars from Kingston defeated the locals 5-4 and Peterborough Church League downed them 3-1 last Sunday at the Memorial Arena.

Trenton defeated the Belleville team 3-0 and Gananoque beat them 1-0 in the only two league games played this far in the schedule.

"We might be losing hockey games," added Burrowes, "but not by any embarrassing score. In Trenton I must have counted four different times our boys hit the post. With a little more work I predict a noticeable finish by our club.



There are not really any points stronger than any others, commented Burrowes. "That's the way I like it . . . A team that plays together, wins together."

There are four other teams besides Belleville supplying opposition in the Midget division of the Minor Hockey Association, Gananoque, Picton, Napanee and Trenton are the competing teams against Blake Kerr Midgets.

"We couldn't have a better sponsor than Blake Kerr," stated Burrowes. "He is a terrific person."

"A great deal of thanks should go to the parents for not interfering with their sons' hockey," added Burrowes. "They have been very co - operative."

"I said it once already and I'll say it again . . . If the boys decide to play hockey this club will go a long way," was Burrowes' final comment.

'What Happens in A 3 on 1'

Belleville's Blake Kerr Midget All-Star coach Bob Burrowes gives his defence a question and answer period during a practice session. Peter Ackerman, Dale Caul, Tim Yohn and Ted Eves all pepper questions at the coach.

Merchants Increase Lead

Downtown Merchants increased their first place lead in Belleville's Gas House Hockey League last night with a 3-2 victory over second place Mustangs.

In the second game Marysville recorded their first win of the season by defeating Mulroney's 6-3.

Carl Boomhower had two for the Merchants while Ralph Boomhower had the other.

Smith and Mulvihill scored for the Muslangs.

There were 16 minutes in penalties in the game with the Merchants getting 10 minutes.

Wayne and Larry Pascoe had two goals each for Marysville while Dave Hurst and Carm Milligan scored single goals.

Mulroney's marksmen were Brian Smith, Kevin Allan and Wayne Waite.

City Hall Election Scene: Smiles 'n' Chuckles 'n' Kisses

The polls closed and — at Belleville city hall last night — happiness became an election victory. The sweet taste of success brought various reactions. For Gerald O'Connor (left) city jeweller winning his first public election as utilities commissioner, a winning grin seemed tinged with disbelief. For Ald. Paul Russell and Ald. Robn Jeffrey (centre), a kiss marked the end of election-night wait for results. For Ald. Arthur Keegan and Ald. Arnold Orr (right) it was an exchange of congratulations as they headed the polls.

Eleven Are Charged Under Breath Test Law on First Day

By CRAIG ASPINALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

At least 11 Canadians were charged Monday under a new law which orders compulsory breath tests for suspected drinking drivers, but not all police departments were prepared for the tests.

Nine persons were charged in Ontario; the others in Manitoba.

Police departments in some areas reported they were unable to exercise their new power immediately because of a lack of equipment and trained personnel, or because they had not yet received orders.

Other departments were following a policy of using breath tests only as part of the normal routine of checking suspected drinking drivers, rather than instituting a system of spot checks to catch violators.

The first Canadian to be charged under the new law was a 36-year-old Toronto man charged only 50 minutes after the law came into effect midnight Sunday night.

He was charged with having more than eight one-hundredths of one per cent of alcohol in his blood while driving. He also was charged under the old Criminal Code section dealing with impaired driving.

Under the new law, conviction on the basis of the results of a breath test makes the accused liable to a minimum fine of $50 and a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine or up to six months in prison—or both.

Refusal to take the test also is unlawful when the arresting officer has "reasonable and probable grounds" to believe that the driver is impaired. The same penalties apply as when a test is given and failed.

In Winnipeg magistrate's court Monday, one man who took the test was fined $250 on a first conviction for impaired driving. A second man was remanded on charges of refusing to take the test and of impaired driving.

To take the test, the suspect blows into a mouthpiece at the top of the machine. Air from his lungs passes through a solution which changes color on contact with alcohol. This color is measured against a color scale by a meter to ascertain the alcohol count in the blood.

Although test results vary from person to person because the rate at which alcohol is absorbed into the blood stream varies among individuals, a general example can be given.

For a 150-pound man who drinks 2½ to six ounces of liquor in an hour, the test would show an alcohol level of .08 per cent an hour later. A 200-pound man would need up to eight ounces of liquor for the same reading.

Despite the new law, police officers in many areas expect no increase in the number of persons charged as drinking drivers. The legislation is expected only to make it easier to prove the guilt of persons charged.

Dennison Re-elected Mayor in Toronto

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The highlight of municipal elections held Monday across Ontario saw political veteran William Dennison beat a vocal rival and a Liberal party novice to win his second three-year term as mayor of Toronto.

The 64-year-old mayor turned back bids by Margaret Campbell, a former member of the city's now-discarded board of control, and Prof. Stephen Clarkson, 32 year-old leader of a Liberal slate, to win his second term as chief magistrate.

But in Toronto, as elsewhere in the province, the voters' turnout was light. A little more than 35 per cent went to the polling booths, compared with 33 per cent in the 1966 Toronto election.

Elsewhere turnouts ranged from 20 per cent in Kitchener, where Mayor Sidney M. McLennan was returned by acclamation, to 58 per cent in Barrie.

In some places the snow was deep on a cool and cloudy election day.

Kenneth Focarty, 46, lawyer and former council member, was elected mayor of Ottawa over four other candidates.

Charlotte Whitton, four times mayor of Ottawa and a familiar name to most Canadians, easily won re-election as an Ottawa alderman.

Hippies Held in Tate Murder

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — A grand jury today was expected to issue arrest warrants for five persons following the arrests of a man and a woman in connection with the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six other persons.

The arrests, announced Monday night, followed a raid on a secluded desert hippie commune where many of the women were reported wearing only beads.

Miss Tate, wife of movie director Roman Polanski, was found stabbed to death Aug. 9 in her rented home in fashionable Bel Air. She was eight months' pregnant. Her husband was in Europe at the time.

Police Chief Edward Davis told a news conference Monday that an arrest warrant was issued for a second woman. The man and the two women were once residents of a commune, known as The Family, in Death Valley on the California-Nevada border.

Davis said the man, 24-year-old Charles Watson, is in custody in McKinney, Tex., and Patricia Kenwinkel, 21, is being held in Mobile, Ala., pending extradition proceedings. The other girl, Linda Louise Kasabian, 19, is being sought in hippie encampments in New Mexico, police said.

Watson and Miss Kenwinkel were arrested during a raid on a mountain-ringed desert valley Oct. 10, when three separate police forces closed in on the hippies by plane and four-wheel vehicles known as dune buggies.

At the time, police believed the hippies were a gang of car thieves. A high degree of secrecy was maintained because the hippies had spotters with walkie-talkie radios posted on mountain tops to warn of intruders.

Twenty-six hippies were arrested in the raid, including 19 women, many of them wearing only Indian-style beads, police said.

Davis said Watson, Miss Kenwinkel and Miss Kasabian were involved in the bizarre slaying of Miss Tate, who was found stabbed and her body linked by a white cord slung over a beam to that of her former fiance, Hollywood hair stylist Jay Sebring, 35.

Davis said the three also were involved in the slaying of millionaire supermarket owner Leno LaBianca, 44, and his wife Rosemary, 38, in a house 12 miles away Aug. 10. Both Sebring and LaBianca had hoods over their heads when they were found.

The other victims in the Tate house murder were wealthy coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, Voityck Frokowski, 37, both friends of Miss Tate, and Steven Parent, 18, a friend of her housekeeper.

"Pig" was inscribed in blood on the Tate house door. "Death to pigs" was written in blood on the LaBianca's refrigerator door.

Davis said the hippie group rode motorcycles and had a special way of life which had religious elements in it, but he did not say what they were.

The police chief said the group had lived on the Spawn movie ranch about 50 miles northwest of Los Angeles on the weekend of the murders and had moved to Death Valley soon after.

BEDS FOR DECORATION?

Used since ancient times as a substitute for sleeping on the floor, beds were for the rich, a rare piece of decorative furniture especially in Europe where they had inlaid designs and costly draperies. But design today is much more functional, yet still pleasing in the eye and room design.

Now that the children are grown, there may be some empty beds at your house . . . you can sell them with an intelligencer Want Ad . . . just by phoning 962-9171 and ask for Classified Ads.

CASH ISSUE OF

$150,000,000

NON-CALLABLE

GOVERNMENT OF CANADA BONDS

DATED DECEMBER 15, 1969

Bank of Canada is authorized by the Minister of Finance to receive subscriptions for a loan, to be issued for cash as follows:

—1 year 8% bonds due December 15, 1970
Issue price: 99.90%
Yielding about 8.11% to maturity
Interest payable June 15 and December 15
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000

and

—1 year 9¼ month 8% bonds due October 1, 1971
Issue price: 99.75%
Yielding about 8.14% to maturity.
Interest payable April 1 and October 1
There said one half months' interest payable April 1, 1970
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000.

Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire for cash a minimum of $75,000,000 of the new Bonds, if open for sale to maturity.

Proceeds of the cash offering will be applied to the redemption of $175,000,000 of Government of Canada 5½% Bonds due December 15, 1969 and $53,000,000 of Government of Canada 6¾% Bonds due December 15, 1969.

The new 8% Bonds due October 1, 1971 are an addition to $45,000,000 of 8% Bonds due October 1, 1971 and dated October 1, 1969.

The new Bonds will be dated December 15, 1969 and will bear interest from that date. Principal and interest are payable in lawful money of Canada. Principal is payable at any Agency of Bank of Canada. Interest is payable at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank without charge. Definitive bonds will be available on December 15, 1969 and thereafter in two forms: bearer form with coupons attached and fully registered form with interest payable by cheque. Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to Government transfer requirements where applicable).

The new Bonds are authorized pursuant to an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Applications for the new Bonds may be made, subject to allotment, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

In addition, Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire from the Government a further $50,000,000 of the new Bonds, open as to maturity, in exchange for $50,000,000 of Government of Canada Bonds due May 1, 1970 which will be placed by the Minister of Finance in the Securities Investment Account.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted a moderate loss in light mid-morning trading today.

A sharp loss Monday interrupted a four-day rally.

On index, industrials were down .04 at 183.38, western golds 2.76 to 195.81 and base metals .29 to 116.26. Golds gained .34 to 102.39.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 685,000 shares compared with 607,000 at the same time in the previous session.

Losses outnumbered gains 178 to 81 with 218 issues unchanged.

Nine of the 17 industrial components were lower, seven higher and one unchanged.

Paper and forest products led the industrial decline with MacMillan Bloedel down ½ to 23¼ and Canada Packers ½ to 23½.

Mattagami dropped 2 to 25¼ and Abitibi ¼ to 12¼. Mattagami is developing on a property in the Sturgeon Lake, Ont., area in which Mattagami has a 60 per cent and Abitibi a 40 per cent interest.

United Westburne was down ½ to 13¾ after a 1 to 2 loss in Noranda ¼ to 35¼, Pacific Pete ¼ to 27¼, Ranger ¼ to 10½ and Bell ¼ to 49¼.

Falconbridge rose 1 to 164, Alberta Gas Trunk ¼ to 20¾ and Sherritt ¼ to 29½.

On index Monday, industrials were down .84 to 183.41, western golds 2.81 to 198.57, base metals 1.22 to 116.59 and golds .01 to 159.96.

Volume was 2,179,000 shares compared with 2,725,000 Friday.

Losses outnumbered gains 208 to 108 with 263 issues unchanged.

Twelve of the 17 industrial components were lower, led by pipelines, Beverage, communications, merchandising, real estate and food processing stocks were slightly higher.

Bell Telephone, Trans - Canada fell 1 to 32 and Alberta Gas Trunk A 1 to 20.

Bell was unchanged at 44¼. Bell plans a $230,000,000 equity offering early next year.

SCD Manufacturing rose 1¼ to 7¾ despite annual earnings of 64 cents a share compared with 74 cents last year.

Dominion Industrial Bank slipped ¼ to 22¼ although annual earnings were $1.10 a share compared with 95 cents in 1968.

Placer fell 1¾. The company expects an annual operating net of $1.60 a share compared with $1.30 last year. The company earlier said it expected an operating net of $2 a share.

Premium Iron Ore lost 1¾ to 7¾. The company released drill results from its Kyak Bay property in Ungava, Que.

Cygnus Mines gained ¼ to 14¾ after reporting annual earnings of $1.24 a share compared with 79 cents last year.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Tony" Quinn of Tweed, recently graduated from St. Michael's College, University of Toronto. Miss Quinn is now attending O.C.E. in Toronto.

Canada Needs Map-makers

EDMONTON (CP) — There is little private-enterprise mapmaking going on in Canada, despite the country being one of the great areas of challenge in the field, says a leading cartographer.

J. J. Klawe, professor in the geography department at the University of Alberta, says the field embraces both art and commerce, but it is highly-underdeveloped.

Mr. Klawe said in an interview there are large scale maps—they often differ from country it county—and it is from these that other maps are derived or copied.

In Canada the basic scale is one inch to 50,000 feet, but only about 28 per cent of Canada has been mapped on this scale, said Mr. Klawe, vice-president of the International - Cartographic Association.

He said the problems resulting from this are numerous. For example, maps for Banff and Jasper national parks are in great demand, mainly from tourists. But the newest sheet from which maps of these areas are made were compiled in 1936 and last revised in 1957.

He said the task of covering the whole of Canada with the smallest-scale map was completed about a year ago. Canada now is covered on this scale of one inch equalling 250,000 feet.

Mr. Klawe said the only commercial map making until recently was production of road maps by oil companies. Commercial firms have begun to fill the gap, but the deficiency remained glaring.

Mr. Klawe said there isn't a Canadian publisher of school atlases, a basic education tool, and even a no-publication road map atlas is produced by a U.S. firm and really is a map of North America under another name.

As far as topographic mapping is concerned, British Columbia had been active for any length of time, although the Prairie provinces have had it had been looking seriously into the lack of maps in the Atlantic provinces.

Prince Edward Island, he said, has been making "exciting progress." The province is being mapped on a one five-thousandth scale, which shows great detail on an area. Additionally, P.E.I. has introduced its the metric system to its maps.

Progress Reported On Rink

DESERONTO — Even though the weather over the past week has been bad at times, a surprising amount of work has been done on the open air rink at the Community Centre. Installation of the boards has been completed, and all have been painted. A white primer coat now covers the boards on the inside, and a sealer has been applied to the outside. There is still hope that a second coat of white can be put on the inside before winter sets in.

Work has progressed on the change house, also, and a few hours will see it enclosed and heaters installed so that the inside can be finished off.

Last Monday the Napanee Hydro crew set up the poles, and Wayne Cummings is ready to go ahead with the wiring. The P.U.C. employees will install the lights.

Mr. Layfield, chairman of the Community Centre Board, is loud in his praises of the many volunteers who have worked so devotedly to carry the project to a conclusion.

Ontario Medicare Attacked By Opposition in Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — An amendment to cut health department estimates by $12,000 —the amount of Health Minister Thomas Wells' salary—was defeated 47 to 30 Monday night in the legislature.

In debate on the amendment, Opposition members attacked the province's new medical health insurance plan and warned it will bring down the government.

The mover of the pay-cut motion, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, said the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan should be amalgamated with the Ontario Hospital Service Commission. He said OHSIP should pay 100 per cent of fees set by the Ontario Medical Association instead of the present 90 per cent, with doctors having to justify increases in this schedule.

After the motion was defeated the house approved the $297,731,000 spending estimates of the health department.

Mr. Wells said no province in Canada pays the full 100 per cent fee schedule and the government is checking on how many doctors charge patients the other 10 per cent.

He said the government will make changes in the scheme to fit it into a total health plan to be announced early next year.

Mr. Wells told the house the government plans to build a $24,000,000 community health centre in Toronto to replace a 112-year-old mental hospital at 999 Queen Street West.

—Tom Brennan yielded to opposition objections and withdrew a government motion that would have speeded up public hearings into the controversial research animals' bill. He was told there were still 50 or so briefs to be heard.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

There's a saying that work never killed anybody. But I disagree. Not only can it kill the man, but it can kill the spirit and happiness in the wife and home. A woman doesn't like a beachcomber type of lazy husband who doesn't provide for the family. Neither is she unconcerned about the one who spends most of his waking hours at work.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband spends far too many hours a day, week, year, on his job. Twenty years ago I went along with it. I dreamed of the day when he would no longer have to work so hard. We would be free, I thought, to do the things we enjoy. But any hopes for a change are practically gone. I've been on tranquilizers for several years in order "to take it." He works harder and longer than ever. We have dinner together only one evening a week.

Any chores around the place are taken for granted to be my job. No one can doubt I have been physically overworked for years. The housework is only part of it all. The lawn work is mainly mine. So is the painting and decorating. Even painting the garage and outside of the house. I even wash the cars whenever I can work it in.

Everyone needs some one close to talk. Usually their spouse. When this becomes something that is saved for vacations, then it is unnatural and unbearable. I wonder if I should hold out longer until the children are grown up and married. Perhaps we will then be closer together. All I can do now is sign off as (Have Had It).

Comment: I doubt that the children leaving the roost will solve the problem. Often it intensifies it. Have you tried a marriage counselor? Tranquilizers are certainly not the answer.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is there anything that can be done to correct bow legs? I am 26 years old. I am quite desperate. I am so self-conscious about it that I even hate to go out of the house. — Miss L.

Comment: Legs have been broken in the operating room straightened, placed in casts for months. But before I would even consider such a procedure I'd consult with an outstanding orthopedist (bone specialist). He will tell you about chances for success, cost, how many weeks of disability, and any other problems.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is 37 years old, slightly overweight, and in pretty good physical shape. He is constantly burping. I have been after him for months to get a thorough checkup, but I'm talking to the wall. Thank you for any light you may be able to shed. — Mrs. W.

Comment: Before you go through an expensive series of X-rays and other tests, ask your family doctor to check on whether or not he is an air-swallower. Many people unconsciously keep swallowing air and keep burping like your husband does. Stop air-swallowing; presto! burps disappear.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 3

Your birthday today: Your coming year is full of movement and perhaps a change of profession. The temptation is to scatter your energy over a broad range of diverse activities. Existing romantic ties are strengthened by current events. New contacts emerge to fill any gaps — if you want them. Today's natives follow practical arts and are likely to do well at physical sports.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your more generous side takes over. Working conditions improve and practical matters fall into place. Sudden impulses may lead you to excesses or indiscretion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Put new schemes and ideas to work on creative projects. Good news is presented in the mails. Prepare for a passing moment of confusion or misunderstanding.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Everyone around you considers to be restless, but matters smooth out somewhat. All projects work better if you indulge in a fair amount of exercise.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Bright ideas sparkle and may lead to carefree spending. Think big, but add something to your savings account before shopping.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Get to the point in your discussions with loved ones. Caution is indicated for any unusual financial efforts, but everything else shows progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Personal pastimes become profitable and very interesting. Listen to relatives carefully and meditate before reaching any firm decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 —Oct. 22): Despite some mixup in your figures, business should be profitable, travel feasible, relations more agreeable. Anything sentimental assumes a special glow which will be long cherished.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): It may surprise you to find how deep are ties of real friendship. Family matters are under encouraging influences. Those eligible begin new home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Travel offers better contacts. Luckily your schedule coincides with those of other people. Useful information is available if you make even a superficial search. Deception in emotional issues is now of crucial importance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Strangers present new suggestions and opportunities. You can make good use of a novel idea if you begin early. Keep any romance lighthearted and uncomplicated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20—Feb. 18): Pause for inner guidance as you work through today's mixed influences.

PISCES (Feb. 19—Mar. 20): A little more effort can bring you contact with people who are able to help your pet projects through technical counsel.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found 5 unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very satisfying improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and just important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

White Paper on Tax Reforms Is Called 'Red Manifesto' by PC

OTTAWA (CP) — Complaints focussed on alleged threats to small business at some members of the governing Liberal party joined the Commons opposition in a general look Monday at the government's white paper on taxation.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), delivering one of the more vigorous assaults, called the document a "Red manifesto" and added "the whole thing smacks of totalitarianism."

Finance Minister Edgar Benson, who invited suggestions for improving his white paper proposals, was "a small-town book-keeper" who could not grasp the significance of the tax recommendations. Small farmers and businessmen would lack money to pay the recommended capital gains tax.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) said the white paper is far from being radical. One sure sign that it was conservative was the fact that most newspapers across the country have supported the proposals.

"It is a sham to suggest that this document does anything to deal significantly with poverty," Mr. Broadbent said in the second day of debate on the proposals. Mr. Benson himself had said publicly poor people will continue to be taxed.

The Economic Council of Canada estimated that in 1967 a married couple with two children required a minimum income of $4,200 just to get by. But such a couple would still be required to pay income tax.

At the regular 10 p.m. adjournment, there were still MPs who wanted to speak. As a result, the expected referral of the white paper to the Commons Finance committee was put over.

Tom Goode (Burnaby-Richmond), one of the Liberals who sought changes, said higher rates of corporate tax would be disastrous for small business and lead to a great restriction of growth in Canada.

On the same theme, Harold Danforth (PC—Essex — Kent claimed increased taxation would rob businessmen of funds needed to develop their operations. Incentive would be destroyed. It would become impossible for businesses to be handed down from one generation to another.

Prices Debate Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition tried unsuccessfully Monday to get emergency Commons debates on price rises and on unemployment in Eastern Canada.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) sought a debate on the need for public inquiries into the "sudden rash" of price increases in the automobile, steel, nickel and oil industries.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux disallowed the motion on the ground that the situation described by Mr. Broadbent has existed for some time and is not a sudden emergency.

Mr. Broadbent asked during the question period later if the government would empower a Commons committee to investigate price rises in the auto, steel, nickel and oil industries.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said inquiries by the prices and incomes commission are private but the commission reports will go to a Commons committee for examination.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked which government department discouraged a quick settlement of the strike at the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. last summer.

Mr. Stanfield referred to a broadcast interview by John H. Young, chairman of the prices and incomes commission.

Mr. Basford said he would make inquiries after he had seen a transcript of the interview.

U.S. Wants Toll Boost On Seaway

OTTAWA (CP) — American pressure for higher tolls on the St. Lawrence Seaway poses a critical situation next year for Canadian users, says the Great Lakes waterways Development Association.

President Stuart Armour of the Association says American interests spearheaded by U.S. railways and Atlantic ports will try to have the existing toll rates increased in discussions with Canada next year.

The association says it represents more than 60 Canadian users of the seaway and it has prepared what it calls a new study of tolls, presented privately Friday to Transport Minister Don Jamieson and being circulated to other cabinet ministers as well as members of Parliament.

The association says the Canadian government in next year's talls review has to be persuaded to resist any tolls increase or the seaway's future will be "placed in jeopardy."

Existing tolls average $2,000 daily to keep a lake vessel in operation, says the study, and a ship loaded with general cargo must pay as much as $23,904 for one-way transit of the Montreal-Lake Ontario seaway leg and the Welland canal.

"Much evidence has already accumulated that certain interests in both Canada and the U.S. will endeavor in 1970 to have tolls raised on the seaway, the only international waterway on this continent now subject to user charges of any kind," said Mr. Armour.

In 1966, the U.S. refused for a second time a Canadian request for higher tolls to help offset losses piled up by the seaway. Canada imposed lockage fees on the Welland canal in 1967.

Canadian Castro Would Be Disaster

OTTAWA (CP) — George V. Ferguson, editor emeritus of the Montreal Star, startled the Commons external affairs committee Tuesday by predicting the eventual doom of the idea of a bilingual Canada.

In an appearance before the Commons external affairs committee, Mr. Ferguson also spoke out against any plan to "repossess" foreign-owned industry, and warned that if a Canadian Fidel Castro ever arose the country would immediately be overwhelmed by the United States.

"A bilingual Canada in the long run is probably doomed," Mr. Ferguson said in a reply to a question from Marcel Prud'homme (L-Montreal St. Denis), thus touching off a long series of rejoinders and critical questions from both French-speaking and English-speaking MPs.

Canada's ultimate destiny was to do its work in English.

"We should work hard to preserve the French identity . . . but in the very long run I don't think there is any answer to the fact that English is the working language in North America, as it is becoming in Europe."

Ready for Expansion Of Common Market

Will Fix Terms At June Talks

THE HAGUE (Reuters) Common Market leaders have cleared the way for expansion of the six-nation community and also headed off a mushrooming internal squabble about farm policy.

Besides the major commitment to draw up by the end of next June their joint negotiating position on entry talks with Britain, the six nations made a series of vital decisions Tuesday for the completion and development of the community.

The first of these was the recognition that priority must be given to reaching a definitive regulation for financing agricultural policy by the end of this year, as required under the Treaty of Rome which founded the community.

This was a French demand, which has now been endorsed by the other five partners—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

But at West German insistence, the paragraph in the final communique on this point was followed by a reference to farm surplus control and the need to cut growing support costs.

The countries also affirmed their agreement gradually to transfer their income on customs duties and levies on imported goods to the community treasury to finance the farm policy.

At the same time, they stated their readiness to increase the powers of budgetary control of the European parliament, which until now has had purely consultative status.

However, France is still unwilling to agree to direct elections to the parliament, and Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said the issue remains to be settled.

Now Most Britons Dislike Euromart

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Telegraph published a Gallup poll today indicating only 36 per cent of the British now favor joining the Common Market, a sharp change since Prime Minister Macmillan first knocked on the door and was turned away in 1961.

Major factors in the change of opinion appeared to be the country's recent economic improvement, which boosted confidence that Britain can make it without joining the continental nations, disenchantment with the repeated rejections and expectations of higher food prices because of Britain's insistence that farm prices be kept up.

Those polled were asked if they approved of the government's application for membership. Forty-five per cent said no, 36 per cent said yes and 19 per cent were undecided.

Two years ago, 43 per cent were in favor, 40 per cent against and 17 per cent undecided.

Red Allies Plan Reply To Brandt

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia and its six Warsaw pact allies met today in search of a common policy toward friendship overtures made by West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Government and Communist party leaders, foreign ministers and officials from East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria conferred with Kremlin leaders on "topical international problems," official announcements said.

But informed East European sources saw the main aim of the secrecy-shrouded summit, for which no detailed agenda was announced, as an effort to co-ordinate East European policy toward overtures by the new West German socialist-liberal coalition government.

Breath Test Guideline

Wishart Gives Drivers Leeway

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said Tuesday his department recommended in a Nov. 7 memorandum to Ontario police that the minimum enforcement level for breath tests for drinking drivers be .1 per cent alcohol in the blood.

Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) said earlier Metropolitan Toronto police were enforcing levels of .1 per cent or higher.

Mr. Wishart said the legislation specifies an alcohol level of more than .08, which makes .09 the practical level. Considering the variation in accuracy of the province's testing units, his department recommended the minimum enforcement level of .1.

He said the memorandum suggests that police or technicians take two separate samples and that the first should not be collected until the driver had been with the officer for 15 minutes. The second could be taken after a further 15 minutes. If the samples showed a variation of more than .02 per cent, a third specimen should be taken, the memo said.

Mr. Singer said he had been told that Crown attorneys planned to prosecute drivers with high readings on charges of driving while impaired and having an excessive alcohol-blood count.

The attorney-general said he would be "a bit shocked" to find this happening. "I don't see how you could charge two offences. . . .

He said the province has 92 breath-test units.

Changes Sought In Taxes

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce Tuesday presented an annual policy statement to the Ontario cabinet and asked for changes in the areas of sales taxes, corporation taxes and succession duties.

The group requested:

—Revision of sales tax legislation so that all articles used in the production of goods be exempt:

—Abolition of succession duties and refunding of 75 per cent of federal estate taxes;

—Removal of sales taxes from building materials;

—Exploration of the possible advantages of taxing government enterprises;

—Waiving of federal and provincial sales taxes on all pollution control equipment;

—Exemption from business assessment for plant and equipment installed for pollution control;

—A conditional grant structure to make economically feasible to industry the acquisition and/or use of land exclusively for pollution control.

The statement asked the government to discontinue artificial lending federal machinery for the collection of corporate income taxes.

Ontario should revert to the practice of allowing the federal government to remit these corporation taxes in the same way as it does for right provinces, Quebec and Ontario now collect their own.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A strong northwesterly circulation of colder air will send down across the Great Lakes late Tuesday, giving widespread snowflurry activity and some snowsqualls in the lee of the lakes. This wintery weather pattern will continue throughout today. Moderating winds, partly cloudy skies, decreasing snowflurry activity but continuing cool temperatures are expected for Thursday.

NATO Parley Opens

BRUSSELS (CP) — Defence ministers of the NATO countries met here today with proposals for the possible use of nuclear weapons in Europe high on the agenda.

The nuclear defence affairs committee will discuss a new series of guidelines for using tactical atomic weapons in the field, clarifying conditions under which NATO forces would resort to them in the event their outnumbered conventional forces were overrun by those of the Warsaw pact nations.

A small planning group has been working for a year on the new rules—one of NATO's most worrisome problems—on the assumption the Allies could fight only a short time in a conventional war in Europe.

Up to now there has been no clear-cut definition of how and when the atomic arsenal would be called into play. Also, the pre-atomic consultation procedure among the Allies is regarded as cumbersome.

Both the plans for selection of battlefield targets and the consultation machinery are overhauled in the planning group's report. Informants said the report was likely—though not certain—to be approved today by the defence planning committee which Defence Minister Cadieux is attending for Canada.

The proposed new policy, it was understood, will be to refrain in the first instance from firing on Russia but to attack battlefield targets in other Warsaw pact countries involved in any fighting.

U.S. Military Court Rejects Plea to Ban Massacre News

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals has ruled out a ban on further news and pictures about the alleged massacre of South Vietnamese civilians at the village of My Lai.

Tuesday's unanimous decision emphasized that the colonel who will preside at the court martial of Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., seems to have all the power he needs to screen out any prejudicial publicity.

Publishers have the job of seeing that news stories are proper and accurate, the decision said, and military judges have the job of guarding court martials against outside influences.

"Neither should be permitted to overwhelm the other," the unsigned opinion said. "For both a responsible press and a fair trial are constitutionally protected."

The ruling seems to support the view that gags on the press have not been authorized by the U.S. Supreme Court and are probably unnecessary to assure a defendant a fair trial.

Moreover, the decision evidently does not accept the popular notion that a clash between the public's right to know and the defendant's right to a fair trial is inevitable.

Maj. Kenneth Raby, Calley's military defence counsel, and Capt. Aubrey Daniel, the prosecutor, had asked jointly that the court issue a pre-trial injunction against all American radio and television networks and stations, news services, newspapers and magazines.

They would have been ordered "to cease further publication, broadcasting, televising, or otherwise disseminating through any mass means of communication, any accounts, quotations, or statements by any person concerning any acts or events which were allegedly witnessed by him or her" in the Vietnam village March 16, 1968.

They also would have prohibited use of "any photographs, sketches, or other pictorial reproductions purporting to represent the bodies of persons allegedly killed in the village."

Youth on the March

Youth is on the march — but they aren't protesting to end the war in Vietnam or to ban the bomb — they are all part of a newly-formed Youth Corps at Nicholson Catholic College that equals involvement and commitment to life. The group recently collected 700 cans of food for the Christmas Exchange, to assist needy families during the festive season.

Police Report Action Urged

PICTON (Staff) — A report of a survey by the Ontario Police Commission concerning the adequacy of the Picton police force remains a topic of discussion in town council.

"We had a report done, now are we going to act on it?" asked Councillor William Lane Monday night.

Council has not expressed its opinions yet regarding recommendations in the report for a meter maid and an additional constable for the police force. At the November meeting of council, certain recommendations of the report were turned over to the finance committee for discussion. Committee chairman Donald Thompson told council Monday evening, "It was the feeling of the finance committee that an informal meeting with members of the Picton Police Commission was a good idea but the fall assizes now being conducted, prevented it from being arranged. "No further action was taken regarding the report at this month's council meeting.

Redner Wins Ameliasburg Council Seat

Rodger Redner is the newcomer on Ameliasburg Township Council as result of Monday's municipal election which saw only 22.4 per cent of the eligible voters go to the polls.

Township clerk William Nightingale said, however, that considering the inclement weather the turnout at the polls was as good as could be expected. The vote saw 655 residents exercise their franchise.

Returned to office along with Mr. Redner as result of Monday's vote were present councillors Lyle Vanclief and Arnold Wetherall. Dean O'Hara was the defeated candidate.

There was no election for reeve or for deputy-reeve as both positions were filled by acclamation. Russell Thompson is the reeve and Norman Post the deputy-reeve.

Casting Your Ballot Cost $1 Per Voter

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

How much does it cost for a Belleville voter to exercise his or her franchise in a municipal election?

The answer is that in an election such as Monday's, in which approximately 44 per cent of the electorate turned out to vote, the cost was almost $1 for each vote cast.

A total of 8,824 voters went to the polls on Monday and City Clerk Adam Stalker expects the cost will amount to at least the $8,647 provided in this year's budget.

Salaries for the 140 deputy returning officers and poll clerks represent the largest single expenditure and this year, with pay increases to $22 and $18, will cost an additional $700.

Next costliest item is printing of the voters lists, followed by polling booth rental and overtime for city clerk's department prior to election day and for taking returns on election night.

And this year deputy returning officers and poll clerks are entitled by law to receive holiday pay. So DBOs will get an extra 44 cents for their day's effort, while polling clerks will receive 36 cents — in addition to their election day pay.

This year the city clerk's department was comparatively quiet on election day. There was little of the customary rush of other years by people seeking last minute addition of their names to the voting list.

Their Zest, Involvement Feed Needy Families

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The point of youth is involvement, whether it be in their music or what they believe in.

But probably the biggest point about youth, much to the dismay of those older, is their complete and all - encompassing devotion to a cause.

Not only are they thinkers, but much more — when they believe in something, they do any number of things about it.

This was the situation and these were the attitudes of the young people at Nicholson Catholic College recently as they spent the better part of a day collecting canned food from city residents to help make Christmas brighter for families in need.

Approximately 80 students knocked on doors all over Belleville, asking for donations of canned food — and they termed the response "magnificent."

Sister Anna Moran, who assisted the students, said the 700 cans of food donated by Bellevillians will be given to the Christmas Exchange to further aid the many families who would otherwise go without.

"The students are also preparing food hampers which they will deliver to various families sometime before Christmas", added Sister Moran.

The majority of the students participating were members of newly - organized Youth Corps in the College, initiated this fall.

"You might say this was the first project of the corps — the first big project," explained Sister Moran, who is the corps's moderator.

The aim of the corps is to get young people involved in the needs of others, to come to a life commitment by finding meaning to their lives, while experiencing different degrees of service.

"Action is the begining and end of the Youth Corps," remarked Sister Moran.

"It taps the resources of those who have begun to search for meaning and to stir those who have been vegetating and to change those who have been running from life."

The corps take involvement in three steps, the first of which is the involvement of the students in smaller projects, such as gathering food for the needy.

The second step is getting students working on summer projects — spending time in the summer months working with underprivileged families in larger cities and other parts of the country.

As a final step, graduates can leave for underdeveloped countries to assist in numerous projects.

This final step will probably not be taken by a great number of students, but several will find their way to countries where they can help people to build better lives.

"The first money-making venture corps sponsored was a dance in order to collect money for the trip to the Youth Congress held in Hamilton," said Sister Moran.

There are no specific qualifications necessary in order to join the corps — that is no certain age or academic standing — just anyone who interested in helping other people.

The corps plans a student rally at Nicholson in the near future to stir up school spirit, but particularly involvement among members and non-members.

The next project is another dance to raise more money to fill Christmas hampers for needy families.

"I hope the corps will continue in years to come. It was the idea of the students, they are enthused about the whole thing, and if the interest stimulated by the corps continues, this is only the beginning of many worthwhile projects," concluded Sister Moran.

Operation Manna On Move

PICTON (Staff) — Operation Manna gained the support of town council Monday when it was moved to declare "Biafra Week" here, beginning December 7.

The project, organized by Rev. Robert Jones, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton, and Rev. Peter Breedveld, Bethany Christian Reformed Church, Bloomfield, is a fund drive for Biafran relief.

Mr. Jones addressed council saying, "Tonight Peter and I on behalf of many clergymen, ask council to bless our concern for the children of Biafra in a special way; we ask if it is possible to have next week Biafra Week in Picton."

Mr. Jones briefly outlined the program scheduled for the seven day drive to raise money to fly food into Biafra. Next Monday night a film will be shown at Picton theatre with all proceeds for fund raising campaign. Special guest speaker in Picton United Church on Wednesday evening will be Stanley Burke former CBC national newsman and Biafran war opponent. Door to door canvassing will brin g Biafra week to a close on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Santa Village Newest City 'Subdivision'

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville's young Christmas-spirited citizens are going to have two sources of Yuletide fun this year — and probably for many years to come.

Firstly, there will be a Santa Claus parade after all and, on top of that, they will have a miniature Santa Claus village to visit.

The Santa Claus village is the project of Stu Meeks, proprietor of LaSalle Ambulance here. He decided to go ahead with the idea when it was announced earlier this fall there would be no Santa Claus Parade.

"I got a little fed up," Mr. Meeks said. And not being able to run a parade, he set up the village for the children in Belleville.

"It's something for the kids. We wanted a place for them to stop and go in and see Santa Claus."

The village is composed of 12 separate buildings in an 80-foot block set up in front of LaSalle Ambulance.

"We considered setting it up behind Belleville City Hall, but it would have added costs," he explained.

However, there is hydro power at the ambulance headquarters and the fact that Mr. Meeks and his men are on duty 24 hours a day allows them to watch over the project.

Santa buildings will include a post office for mailing letters to Ste. Nick, winter scenes, two toy-testing buildings run by some of Santa's helpers as well as a headquarters for Santa Claus himself.

There will be candy, donated by the Belleville Kinsmen Club, as well as other donations by Belleville merchants. Some of the lumber being used at present in constructing the village was donated as well.

The only materials needed by Mr. Meeks and his "elves", who have been working while off duty to build the village, are decorations and lights for inside the buildings.

Construction has been delayed slightly due to Belleville's early snowfall, Mr. Meeks is doubtful the village will open on schedule. It was slated to open when Santa returned from the parade this Saturday. However, when it does open, it will be open until Christmas Eve.

Mr. Meeks and his "elves" have been working on the village for about a week now. It has been constructed so it can be moved and stored.

"Right now we're planning it as a yearly thing," Mr. Meeks said. He hopes to add to the village year by year so that it grows as a tradition and a source of fun for Belleville's children.

Banner Production

Flags are readied for flying over Belleville's Santa Claus Village by Lois Akey and ambulance operator Stu Meeks. Mr. Meeks plans to produce colorful Christmas environment on East Dundas Street lot where city youngsters may visit Santa and see toy-testing among other activities.

Youtheatre's Dark of Moon Held Over 3 Days

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

The highly successful and critically acclaimed Dark of the Moon will be held over for three nights of a third week, it was announced this morning.

The play, the Belleville Theatre Guild's Youtheatre production, will be seen next week on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 11, 12 and 13. It is continuing right through this week until Sunday.

Acclaimed young resident director Roy Higgins explained this morning that the play was receiving "standing ovations every single night."

"The response to the show has been fantastic. We've been sold out every single night," he added.

Of this week tickets remain only for Sunday night and they are going fast.

Mr. Higgins said the hold-over would give Belleville theatre - goers who have not seen the play a chance to support their young people.

"There's still out of town people coming to see the play, as well," he said.

Dark of the Moon is the story of a witchboy who, upon falling in love with a human girl, becomes human for a year. The performance of Belleville's young people, coupled with costume and set design by Lindsay Hallam and special sound and lighting effects by Dave Fisher and Chris Steenberg have caused raves from Pinnacle Playhouse patrons.

The play is completely handled by young people including production and backstage positions.

"Dark of the Moon never would have been possible if not for co-operation from parents of the young people involved. Each and every parent has assisted us by enabling their son or daughter to attend rehearsals and performances," Mr. Higgins added.

"I think they must understand how much the Belleville Theatre Guild means to these young people, not to mention the play."

Lazy Digit Dialers Beware! Bell Has Finally Caught On

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Better limber up that right index finger — Bell Telephone has thwarted dialers who used shortcuts to avoid spinning seven numbers around the dial to ring a number.

Soon after the telephone company announced its customers would have to dial seven digits instead of just five, the mechanically - minded discovered a way around the ruling.

By dialing the numeral "one" on the dial, or by simply flicking the receiver once, it was possible to dial only the last five digits of the number and get your party.

But only sometimes — and that's why Bell decided to step in.

As Bell's Belleville manager George Thompson explained the situation, one-third of the numbers on the local exchange could be reached by using one or the other of the shortcuts. Two - thirds of the numbers could be reached most of the time. But the shortcut often resulted in wrong numbers, to the intense annoyance of many customers.

So the Bell company modified its switching system. Now all seven digits must be dialed to ring a number.

"Activating all switches" is the term the company uses to explain the change.

A switch is activated for each digit you dial," says Mr. Thompson. "When an exchange has only a few telephones, we don't need as many switches to dial a local number, but they must be there for long distance calls coming in. That was the situation in Belleville, when five-digit local dialing was sufficient. But to avoid wrong numbers after people discovered the dialing shortcut, we found it necessary to activate the remaining two switches ip the local exchange.

As a result, lazy telephone users will have to activate their index fingers — and their memories, to remember those seven digits — and use them.

Four Townships

Fire Protection Sought

PICTON (Staff) — The townships of Sophiasburg, South Marysburg, North Marysburg and Athol are seeking a fire protection agreement with the town of Picton.

Tentative proposals to be incorporated in the agreement were presented to the Fire and Emergency Committee at a meeting last month. The proposals were discussed at length by committee members and it was decided to hold a special meeting to consider negotiations.

Chairman of the Fire and Emergency Committee, James Bird, told council last night that it will probably take place next Monday evening .The owners of the four townships concerned with securing fire protection will confer with members of the committee.

Lack of fire protection in Sophiasburg township was emphasized this fall by a $30,000 blaze destroying the home of Ronald Byford. Neither Bloomfield nor Picton fire departments could answer the alarm.

Regulations prevent fire fighting equipment from these two municipalities from venturing beyond their specified territories. Until Camp Picton was phased out this summer its fire fighting brigade answered most of the rural alarms.

With the closing out of the military base the townships became aware that arrangements for fire protection would be essential.

Free Yule Parking

PICTON (Staff) — Red violation flags will be popping up on all parking meters lining Main Street soon, but not one shopper will receive a ticket.

The town of Picton is making a Christmas gift of free parking for all motorists from Dec. 11 to Dec. 26 inclusive. While the town has done this in previous holiday seasons, it was the opinion of council that many residents were unaware of the special parking privileges.

Deputy - reeve Donald Thompson noted that "about one half the people paid while the other half parked at no charge."

It was decided last night that shoppers should be informed via advertising of the free parking days during December.

Nation on Trial in Wake of Alleged Massacre

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — The resurrection of an alleged massacre that long lay buried with its civilian victims and in the conscience-stricken minds of its witnesses may turn out to be the knockout blow to a weakening will to continue an unpopular war.

One thing seems certain: When Lieut. William Calley faces court martial on charges of slaying 109 Vietnamese men, women and children in the tiny hamlet of May Lai in mid-March 1968, he will not be on trial alone.

The war in Vietnam itself and those who devise its military strategy will surely come in for a major share of the questioning.

Since the stories of the alleged massacre broke only weeks ago, the reaction has been public revulsion and official condemnation both at home and abroad. But the last chapter—the effect it will have on the war and the U.S. as a nation —has yet to be written.

Administration officials here privately concede they were slow to foresee what they now regard as major international consequences from the My Lai massacre stories.

One administration source is quoted as saying that at a minimum, My Lai will be a setback to U.S. strategy in the war because of its damaging effects on U.S. prestige and its declared standards. This could wipe out any gains President Nixon has made in riding out the two recent national war moratoriums.

At the worst, another official comments, My Lai could become the breaking point for the American tolerance level of the war. If Americans conclude that what the war is doing to the nation is not worth the goals it set in the conflict, it would be impossible to pursue the fighting.

One thing most of the U.S. experts agree on is that My Lai already has given the Communist countries their greatest propaganda windfall of the war.

This has become particularly evident at the Paris peace talks, where the My Lai stories pulled the pins from under U.S. efforts to bring the North Vietnamese as "inflexible" in the negotiations.

Too Many Accidents

Lately it seems there has been a disturbing number of accidents involving young drivers and passengers in their teens. The mishap near Stirling in which Ontario Dairy Princess Lorena Archdeckin was injured was only one such incident.

Miss Archdekin was not badly hurt,-but others have been less fortunate. Two teenage girls, one from Oshawa, the other from Kingston, lost their lives recently in separate accidents.

This is Safe-Driving Week and it is an appropriate time to list ten steps the Ontario Provincial Police recommend will increase the chances of avoiding a serious accident.

Here they are: keep both hands on the wheel and both eyes on the road. Never tailgate, allow one vehicle length for each ten miles per hour of speed. Always signal intention to make turns, lane changes or passing. Slow down before entering curves. Never pass on hills or curves. Don't drive after drinking. Fasten seat belts and lock car doors. Drive defensively.

Obey these rules and the chances of remaining accident-free are good.

Montreal Calm

Montreal is congratulating itself on the friendly and relatively trouble-free atmosphere which prevailed in the city during Grey Cup weekend.

Traditionally an excuse for disorder, the Grey Cup in Montreal produced little more than the normal boisterous behavior associated with the occasion.

True, there were the 150 women who took to the streets to protest some by-law and got themselves arrested, but nothing either by way of political altercation or social celebration that called for more than routine police work.

One incident in connection with the above calls for comment. That is, the arrest and apparent rough handling by Montreal police of a young Canadian Press photographer. Peter Bregg, 20, says police prevented him from taking pictures of the demonstration, damaged his camera and later exposed the film to the light, thus rendering it useless.

If harassment of press photographers in such circumstances is all too common, it makes the police action no less questionable, and particularly when it takes place in a country where freedom of the press is supposed to be the norm.

Seasonal Thoughts

Here we are in December and winter has arrived in typical fashion.

In the southern hemisphere summer, by contrast, is reported in some areas to have got off to an early start. A month of drought conditions in New Zealand for example resulted in damage to crops and water shortage.

But a recent Auckland report spoke of a break in this trend bringing cool and blustery weather, with water breaking onto the freeway near the harbour bridge linking the city with its North Shore area.

And just as naturalists in Canada claim they can predict what kind of winter is ahead, so too an early growth of New Zealand's red-flowered pohutukawa tree is supposed to be a sign of a long summer.

Some roads in Auckland, following the windy conditions, were reported "blood red" from the scattered pohutukawa, which few Zealanders regard as their Christmas tree. Nothing like that here, though — just the prospect of our own bleak kind of winter beauty — to be crowned, we know from experience, by those beautiful, crisp, sunny days of January and February.

Good Time to Quit

What more successful conclusion to a sporting career could have resulted than Russ Jackson's last hurrah in the Grey Cup. The Ottawa Roughriders star ended 12 years in professional football with a stirring performance that earned him the spot of outstanding player of the game.

In sport the path of stardom is littered with those who have made it, only to stay in the game too long and lose both the skill and the glory. This is a good time to quit, for Jackson is 32 and the game he has played with such enthusiasm and success is a tough one.

To turn to another realm of sport, that of golf, it is good to see that Arnold Palmer has resumed his winning ways. At 40, and suffering from bursitis, this great competitor was thought to have come to the end of the road; but here he is making a comeback with his first win since September, 1968.

Can he keep it up? So long as the hip ailment (which had much to do with his slump) gives no more trouble, we predict that other successes lie ahead for him.

"Listen Stouthardt! Your Harrison Hot Springs undercover assignment is over so please stop galloping in here yelling 'stop the presses' every time you get a tip!"

America's Crime-Ridden Cities

Kitchener Waterloo Record

A grim face is faced look into the future of big American cities is attempted in the report of a U.S. presidential commission headed by Milton Eisenhower, brother of the late president.

The commission was given the job of inquiring into the causes of mob violence in cities. Its finding, almost incidental, was that poverty is the main cause. Its report gains its impact from its description of what is likely to happen if present trends continue.

Life in big American cities, the commission gloomily predicts, will become almost intolerable. After dark the streets will be a lawless jungle. Lawabiding people will spend their off-work hours holed up in fortress-like apartment buildings.

The easy answer of the commission, that crime can be correlated with poverty, seems to best the question. If putting an end to poverty were the surefire recipe for putting an end to crime, the crime rate would be on its way down, not up. Before welfare measures became public policy, poor people were poorer than poor people are now.

If poverty were the basic cause of violent crime, we would have more crime in poverty-stricken rural areas, because the rural poor, in Canada or the United States, are now worse off than the urban poor.

It is, at least in part, because welfare measures are more generous in the cities that the unemployed and the out-of-luck drift from rural areas to urban. The slums grow and spread because their inhabitants are slightly less poverty - stricken there than they would be back home in the small town or on the farm.

The cities breed violence. In other words, simply because they are big. As they attract more people and as their low-income areas get more crowded, the tensions of overcrowding grow until something snaps in human brains and the rot is on.

The lesson of the Eisenhower report, if there is one, is that city people will defeat their own hopes for pleasant and orderly living if they let their cities get too big.

This answer, unfortunately, begs another question. How big is too big? Does anybody know? Certainly at the 100,000 mark we already see the crime rate rising in a notably lawabiding Ontario city like Kitchener.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The French colony of Mauritius, an island in the Indian Ocean, was captured by the British 159 years ago today—in 1810—because it constituted a threat to British vessels in the India trade. Upon restoration of peace between Britain and France in 1814, British possession of the island was confirmed by the Treaty of Paris. The island had been called Ile de France by the French who had claimed it in 1715.

1894 — Novelist Robert Louis Stevenson died.

1936—Mrs. Wallis Simpson left England for France eight days before King Edward abdicated to marry her.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—three Russian armies took Miskolc and Satoral Jaujhely, last large German strongholds northeast of Budapest; American 3rd Army smashed over the Saar River taking Morhange Limberg and entering Saarlautern; Tokyo was bombed by American Superfortresses for fourth time in nine days.

Peterborough Loses Airline

Peterborough Examiner

There is obviously very little consensus over the question of whether or not Peterborough needs an airline. Harold N. Miller, head of the now almost defunct RoyalAir, insists we do not (however, we should remember that if Mr. Miller were to acknowledge the need for an effective air service in and out of Peterborough he would essentially be acknowledging that he and RoyalAir were incapable of providing it).

But even the comments of Mayor Joseph Cumrik and Industrial Commissioner Ronald Williamson, both of whom are anxious that Peterborough have a good air service, seem to suggest that neither is convinced that one is really seriously needed.

Mayor Cumrik says Peterborough businessmen who do extensive travelling have their own planes and do not need a public service. Mr. Williamson acknowledges that the lack of a public air service will hurt his industrial promotion but he also fails to show why Peterborough needs such a service.

And if that is what an air line's function is supposed to be — that is, moving business executives and aiding industrial promotion — then there should as Mr. Cumrik already pointed out, be very little surprise that RoyalAir was unable to make a living on that kind of fare out of Peterborough.

In fact, if that is the function of an airline, then it is clear Peterborough does not need air service and we might as well forget the whole thing.

However, that is not the whole story.

There are about 85,000 people in Peterborough and surrounding district whose travel requirements have to be considered.

And it is highly probable that if an air service in and out of Peterborough were conveniently scheduled and if the people of the area were made fully aware of it, it would receive patronage.

A Brainwashed Society

Regina Leader Post

David Reisman, the eminent United States sociologist, tells of attending a discussion session with a group of university students. The "adult" moderator began the session with the statement: All of you have used marijuana, of course . . ."

Reisman stopped the proceedings right there, and after a little coaxing found out that only a very small handful of the students had ever tried marijuana.

Parents are left with the worry that if their child is not using at 10 or 11, he or she must be socially retarded and needs to be prodded into interests that will arrive in their own good time.

Sometimes one gets the feeling that the greatest service the experts could perform would be to keep their expert opinions to themselves more often.

Juggling with Grant Funds

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Slightly disgusted was the only way to describe our reaction to one of the resolutions endorsed by city council recently.

We are referring to a resolution submitted for city council's consideration by the City of Barrie, and our objections are not so much to the suggestion as such, but to the reason cited for it.

Barrie would have the provincial government replace residential tax reduction funds with unconditional grants to municipal councils instead of grants to defray education costs. The Residential Tax Reduction Act, designed to ease the burden of tenants and home owners, will not apply in 1970 according to recent government statements. Instead, the funds will be used to reduce the burden of school taxes

Perhaps the Barrie resolution would have made some sense if it had stopped there. But it went on to suggest that ratepayers would get the idea that school boards were cutting taxes and councils increasing them and that councils would be put in a bad light.

The suggestion is petty politics in its most glaring form. Both council and school board members have a duty to put public office on the basis of achievement and ability, not on who can hide the best by shuffling the grant money provided from the provincial coffers.

If the resolution had stated councils were in a better position to distribute grant money where needed, we might have been sympathetic. But pitting the vote position of councils against school boards is just a bit too much to stomach.

Prairie Province Prepares For A 1971 Homecoming

Regina Leader - Post

This time next year the finishing touches will be in progress preceded the Saskatchewan Homecoming festivities of 1971. There are many community celebrations planned as well as province-wide contests and pageants. The success depends on the interest and support of all Saskatchewan residents. The year should be an exciting reunion with old friends, relatives and former neighbors. It will also be an ideal year for their own vacations as a "see our province" tour is planned.

It will also be an ideal time to tidy up and renovate. There is plenty of natural beauty in the province but a general and concerted drive to paint up is in keeping with the fall and throwing what amounts to a year-long party. Since beauty, like charity, begins at home, it is to be hoped that there will be a plan, somewhere, to have the Albert Street bridge a new lease of life. The bridge was built in the early 1900's and even as it does a man-made lake, it was for some time the object of considerable amusement and was referred to as the longest bridge over dry land.

Most people however have had cause to eat their words since the bridge now represents a main route in and out of the city. Visitors for the first time, either by car from the south or by rail traverse the bridge in order to reach the heart of the city. To file over it is for more than 50 years was envisioned by its original architects. It is right therefore that the many hundreds of people who do see it cannot enjoy it in its present beauty. Time, climatic conditions and dirt have obscured the original lovely colors. Perhaps a sandblasting job will restore some of the beauty and a touch of paint will give new lustre to the provincial coat of arms and other decorative themes on the bridge.

It is said that first impressions are of vital importance. The sprucing up of the bridge is of particular importance when the province is expecting a huge influx of homecomers and daughters. The fact that the bridge now spans a necklace to rival the beautiful than it was 40 years ago, thanks to the continuing Wascana Centre project, is an additional argument for its return to a state of beauty.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1949.

The operation of parking meters has retired the city $18,000 since the first 11 months of the year, it was stated today by Alderman Arthur Armstrong, chairman of city council traffic committee. This was the amount which after expenditures for salaries and maintenance had been paid. Gross receipts from the meters totalled $18,230, it was stated.

The annual ceremonial parade and inspection of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment (Reserve) has been slated for December 14 at the Armories. The inspection will be carried out by Brigadier G. Walsh, CBE, DSO, area commander.

30 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1939.

Extending their efforts as the need arises, the St. Alban's Chapter of the IODE will hold a patriotic band concert and program at the Capital Theatre from which all voluntary contributions will be used entirely for the war work projects of the Chapter. The Belleville Municipal Band under the direction of Lieut. Fred Johson, along with vocalist talent supplied by Thomson Hall and Wilhelm, R. D. Arnott, KC, MPP, will act as chairman.

40 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1929

At a Liberal meeting here from the South Hastings and Belleville Liberal Clubs were re - organized and the following officers were elected: South Hastings - president - Charles Hanna, Belleville; 1st vice-president - Peter McLaren, Tyendinaga; 2nd vice-president - Dr. Boyce, Deseronto; secretary, William Thompson, Belleville; treasurer - Dalton Clarke, Hungerford. Belleville, President, G. Hollinshead; 1st vice-president - Mist Anna Hurley; 2nd vice-president - George H. Griffin; secretary, John D. O'Flynn; treasurer, Thomas Harris.

50 YEARS AGO

December 3, 1919.

An Alumnae has been formed by the graduate nurses of the Belleville General Hospital with Mrs. Edward Bowerman as president and Miss Grace Geen as secretary.

A re-union of the officers of the 80th Battalion will be held in the city this evening with a banquet at the Hotel Quinte.

The Empire Day campaign in connection with the Local Board of Trade is going over well; no less than 200 new members have been secured.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burgess will leave shortly to spend the winters in Vancouver and Seattle.

Orr Home

Local Landmark Is Gone

Letter to Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In the name of progress the city of Belleville has once again destroyed an important landmark. I am referring to the Orr house which was recently torn down.

How shortsighted the council is! In a few years there will be no evidence left of the heritage from our early settlers. In an area where such value is placed on ancestry, it is indeed ironic that people are destroying the concrete expression of those ancestors.

Such houses are historically important. They also offer an aesthetic alternative to the cement boxes that sometimes pass for architecture today.

I hope that the city council will at least put a picture of this historic landmark in the museum they build.

SUSAN BEEVOR.

Potter's Vote Foils Opposition

TORONTO — Dr. Richard Potter yesterday prevented the Ontario government's controversial animal research bill from being sent back to the legislature for redrafting.

The bill was up for discussion before the legislature's standing health committee, of which Dr. Potter is chairman.

A motion by Toronto Liberal MPP George Ben at a meeting of the committee called for sending public hearings on the legislation, redrafting it and returning it to the committee for further public representation.

Committee members voted 7-7 on the motion and Dr. Potter broke the tie in the government's favor.

If Mr. Ben's motion had been successful the bill could not have passed in the current session, expected to end in about two weeks. Agriculture Minister William Stewart has said he wants the legislation passed before the session ends.

The committee heard nine briefs, including one from the Canadian Council on Animal Care praising the bill's principles but suggesting amendments, before Mr. Ben made his motion.

Opposed to the bill were a representative of the Animal Defence League, two private citizens and an Anglican priest.

Support came from the animal-care group, a man who has had a kidney transplant, a spokesman for the Ontario Veterinary Association and representatives of the Ontario Institute of Agrologists and the research institute of the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

Ameliasburg's New Firehall

Ameliasburg's all steel construction firehall was officially taken over by the municipality recently. It's been less than a year since the township decided to establish its own fire protection services. The station is located on the Rednersville Road just west of the village of Rossmore.

Hees Urged To Prevent Legal 'Pot'

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Home and School Council has directed a letter to George Hees, urging him to do what he can to prevent the legalization of marijuana.

The letter reads in part, "The Prince Edward Home and School Council and its local associations are greatly disturbed by the recent drive for legalization of marijuana. To-day, the least, it seems at this time, rather unwise and irresponsible. Mr. M. Mahoney who is working on drug research at Queen's University, assured us that hardly any research has been done in this field, and that legalization now may very well lead to self - destruction."

Michael Mahoney was guest speaker at a meeting of the North Marysburg Home and School Association last month. In his address he outlined the dangers of drugs and spoke strongly against the legalization of marijuana.

Referring to the letter sent to Mr. Hees by Home and School Council, its president, Christian Kristalyn, remarked "I think we should try to awaken the people to the goings going on around them. Let us speak up before a serious mistake has been made. It may be easier to prevent it than to correct it."

PARTY PLANS FOR TOTS — by Kate Harris

Parties are exciting and provide some of our happiest childhood memories, but they have to be planned, especially for the 4-8-year-old group, dealt with in this book. The author covers everything from invitations to refreshments around a Theme, and there are both winter and summer parties, all with simple to make decorations and easy to play games.

BETTER SUPER 8 Movie MAKING—by Myron A. Matzkin

The amateur movie maker who likes to entertain his family with home movies, will find this book full of helpful tips. Everything from lenses to the various kinds of exposure, editing and titles. If you own a movie camera and would like your home movies to be interesting and professional, this book would be most helpful.

AROUND THE HOUSE LIKE MAGIC — by Jean E. Laird

Mothers, would you like to spend more time relaxing with your family? This book by Jean E. Laird gives many ideas and a great deal of information. These articles were originally published in newspapers and magazines, and delighted readers throughout the country. Mrs. Laird's pointers on cleaning, sewing, cooking, health hints and entertaining to name a few, are all tried and tested by this creative writer. She believes in utilizing what you have and does so in many ingenious ways. Reading this book could save a busy homemaker both time and money.

BEQUEST OF WINGS —by Annis Duff

Mrs. Duff writes this book about her own family's enjoyment of books, with rare sensitivity and understanding. She describes how exposing her children to books at an early age, and sharing their delight and wonder, has opened doors in many directions to other forms of art such as music and painting, as well as to stimulate them to seek further information on a variety of subjects through the treasure chest of knowledge books.

GETTING ALONG IN THE TEEN-AGE WORLD — by Virginia Veeder Westervelt

What adult would willingly be a teenager again! Not many of us I'm sure, and yet this should be the most carefree, exciting and rewarding time of life. In this book about teenagers and their problems, the author deals with most of the common situations and worries of a teenager's world with sympathy and understanding. She points out that they can work out most of their own problems if they know where they are going and why.

HOW TO RAISE CHILDREN AT HOME IN YOUR SPARE TIME — by Marvin J. Gersh, M.D.

At last a book written by a pediatrician with a sense of humor. Dr. Gersh, a practising physician with two children of his own, deals with the raising of children from babies to adolescents in a commonsense and practical manner. His humorous treatment of his subject makes this an enjoyable, easy to read book. Especially recommended for over-anxious parents.

MAKING FAMILY GET-TO-GETHERS CLICK — by Virginia W. Musselman

With the Christmas season fast approaching, a time of family gatherings and tradition this book may give you some new ideas to make such events more memorable. The emphasis should be on people and planning. The author covers every sort of family gathering from picnics and holiday trips to the traditional ones such as Christmas and Thanksgiving.

Claim Made Aid Given Relative

TORONTO (CP) — Police Chief James Mackey, confirmed Tuesday that one of the cases of alleged police interference with court prosecutions now under investigation involves a senior police officer who may have quashed an impaired driving charge against his brother-in-law and got him out of jail.

The brother-in-law, according to allegations, was under arrest at a police station when the senior officer arrived and took him away.

Hawaiian Isle Hit By Wall of Water

HONOLULU (AP) — Massive walls of water, rising up to 50 feet in some places, slammed into the Hawaiian island of Oahu Tuesday and police reported one person missing.

The waves, spawned 1,500 miles away by a mid-Pacific storm, forced more than 500 to evacuate their homes in low-lying areas. Hospitals reported treating 15 persons for injuries, none of them major.

Jennifer Short and Winning Teachers With Cakes

Students, Teachers Win Baking Contest

The war between the sexes has ended in a draw — at Moira Secondary School at least.

The battle, waged in the form of a cake baking contest, climaxed Tuesday morning with two men teachers and two girl students declared winners.

The girls held a slight edge in the final judging — Michelle Derushie, grade 9, won the award for the best tasting cake and Jennifer Short, grade 10, submitted the best decorated cake. Runner up in the best tasting division was Roy Ingram, a French teacher. Ronald Mason, the school's music teacher, submitted the second best cake in the decoration division.

The competition began when a few boys, watching the girls in home economics class measuring ingredients for a cake, declared that they could do better.

Mrs. Brenda Ingram, the home economics and occupations teacher, accepted the challenge and proclaimed the competition for Tuesday.

Eleven entries were submitted, and after judging, auctioned off during the school lunch period.

Auctioneer Bob Quinn gathered in about $10. The money will be used by the occupations girls to paint the cupboards of their room.

Entrants in the contest were required to submit the recipes with their cakes. Miss Derushie's moist chocolate cake recipe follows:

PRIZE - WINNING CHOCOLATE CAKE

1 cup white sugar
2 tsps. baking soda
¼ cup warm water
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups cake flour
4 tbsps. cocoa
1 cup prepared salad dressing

METHOD: Mix sugar, flour, soda and cocoa together. Then add water, salad dressing and vanilla. Beat well. Bake for 35 to 40 minutes at 350 degrees.

CHOCOLATE ICING

Melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate and 2 tbsps. butter over hot water. Combine 3 cups icing sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, 5 tbsps. milk and 1 tsp. vanilla. Blend, add melted chocolate and butter and mix well. Let stand, stirring occasionally until proper consistency for spreading.

DECORATING ICING

3 egg whites beaten stiff. Cream 4 tbsps. shortening with ½ cup icing sugar until creamy, then beat in egg white. Add enough icing sugar until stiff enough to use in cake decorator.

Music Teachers Hold Scholarship Recital

Belleville Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association held its annual scholarship recital on Nov. 29 at Sir John A. Macdonald School, Belleville.

The following pupils performed: Students of Sister Mary Avila were Patrick Harrington and Anthony Wall; Mrs. D. Wall were Karen Ryckman, Heather McRiren, Susan Thompson and Debbie Duffy; Mrs. H. Elliott were Isobel Hoard, Larry Forrestal and Margaret Hoard; Mrs. G. Martin were Janice Moore, Paula Stratton, Jeff Lobb and Mark Coates.

Sister Mary Polycarp's students were Josephine and Christine Nemec (duet) Frank Fontyn, Frank Reynolds and Veronica Wickens; Mrs. F. Messacar's students were Susan Walsh (vocal) Billy McListon (vocal) and Sister Aileen Donelly's student was Kim Ostrander; Mrs. E. MacKay's student was Donna Wetherall and Mrs. B. Storey's were Ursula Berger, Ann Marie Aquino and Susan Evans.

Mrs. K. Rennie had James Crooks and Diane and Janice Nelles (duet).

Others were pupils of Mrs. W. Vance and included Jacob Hoekstra, Lillian Dickson, Cathy O'Neil, Robin Orsby and Carolyn Popma. Mrs. M. McLeod had Cindy Cairns and students of Mrs. H. Van Ochten were Kim Hay, Mary Jane Craig, Ann Ketcheson and Linda Johnston. Sister Lois Williams had Lynne Peterson, Marilyn and Debbie Bailey (duet) and Debbie Bailey (solo).

Awards were presented to students in grades five through eight who received the highest area mark in the examinations last year and who also had completed the theoretical requirements for their grade.

Physicians' Wives Plan To Enter 'Y' Swimathon

"Doctors' wives will be in the swim this year!" was the feeling at the annual meeting of the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives Association last Thursday at the home of Mrs. R. S. Gibson, when approval and support were given for the participation of members in the "Y" Swimathon. A team of doctors' wives will oppose a team of teachers' wives in friendly competition on December 6. Proceeds have been designated for Y.M.C.A. World Services.

A new constitution widening the scope of interests and activities of the association was read and adopted.

With the closure of the fiscal year for the association it was election time again and the retiring president Mrs. P. Loder, thanked her executive and members for the help and support she had received during a busy and satisfying term of office. Mrs. R. Vaughan of the nominating committee introduced the new executive for 1970: past president, Mrs. P. Loder; president, Mrs. J. Hartt; vice-president, Mrs. R. Vaughan; recording secretary, Mrs. N. Reid; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. Morgan; press secretary, Mrs. P. Mulligan and treasurer, Mrs. F. Ross. The incoming president Mrs. Hartt expressed appreciation to Mrs. Loder on behalf of all members for her able and conscientious administration.

Following the meeting Mrs. Gibson served refreshments.

TAS Worker Tells Of Customer Abuse

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You've helped a lot of people but you've never said a word about the most abused, pushed-around folks of all — those of us who work for the telephone answering services.

ANN LANDERS

How in the name of heaven can we get the public to understand that we are trying to help them? One operator is expected to handle between 85 and 85 lines. Can you imagine how difficult it is to be pleasant when someone yells, "Who the hell are you? I'm calling long distance. Get off the line!"

"It's hard to be civil when we inform a caller that Mrs. So-And-So is not in and she replies, "You are lying. I know she's there. Put her on."

The most exasperating of all callers is the one who asks, "Is this a recording?" I always reply, "I beg your pardon, will you please repeat that question . . . " Then the dumbbell turns around and repeats the question! Has anyone ever heard of a telephone recording responding to a question with another question?

I could go on and on but I'm sure you get the idea. Be an angel and print this. Those of us who labor in the telephonic vineyards will be eternally grateful. — UNSEEN FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: As one who labors in the typographical vineyards, I sympathize. Here's your letter and I hope it helps.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was delighted to read the letter from the woman who hates cats. I salute her because she had the guts to knock an American institution.

If you think I'm a cat hater, you're wrong. I actually like cats. It's children I hate. It kills me the way parents allow their kids to pester people for hours on end. Our child-dominated society is a hideous thing to observe. Children seem to be everywhere — in stores, movies, restaurants, beauty shops, at dinner tables and in cars, distracting the drivers. According to your column, people bring them to weddings, too. I know my position is unpopular, but there are actually more of us around than you imagine. — LOS ANGELES BUB.

DEAR READER: Jeepers! W. C. Fields is alive and well and living in Los Angeles. Thanks for doing your position. I'll keep my grandchildren away from you, Bub!

A Fruit Bread Loaf for Christmas

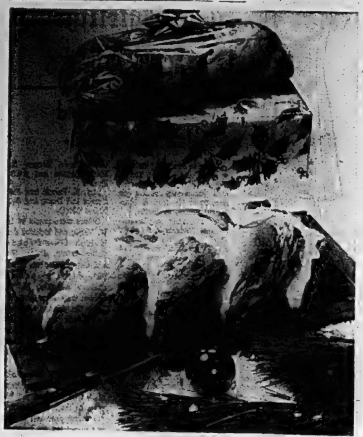
By MARY MOORE

Christmas Braid is a fruit bread that is practically indestructible. We froze it, reheated it, iced and all, and it retained its lovely flavor and freshness.

This recipe makes a huge loaf the like of which you would pay nearly a dollar for in the bakery. So you get big dividends for little effort and outlay.

CHRISTMAS BRAID
(1½ x 6½ x 2")
1 pkge. granular yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
1 cup cereal (10 percent cream for milk)
½ cup sugar (second amount)
½ cup margarine (room temperature)
1 tsp. salt
About 3½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1 egg
1 tbsp. brandy extract
¾ cup mixed fruit - cake - fruits
¼ cup raisins
¾ cup chopped blanched almonds
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. grated orange or lemon rind
Glaze (see below)



In mixing bowl soak yeast and 1 tsp. sugar in lukewarm water 10 min. Scald cream and add ½ cup sugar, margarine and salt to cool the cream to lukewarm. Add cream mixture and 1 cup flour, egg and extract to risen yeast liquid and beat to blend. Beat in two more cups flour with strong spoon (and arm!). This beating is really a kneading operation but dough is too soft to knead on board. Beat for 2 min. Cover and let rise until at least doubled. Punch down dough and turn out on board floured with remaining ½ cup flour. Press down dough, cover with fruits, nuts, cinnamon and rind and knead all of these into the dough until evenly distributed. This is a second kneading operation.

Shape dough into roll; cut into three even pieces. Shape each into even rolls 14" long. Line up side by side on 15" long buttered cookie sheet. Press three ends together and then braid evenly, pressing other ends together neatly.

Let rise until light and puffy to touch. It may require 2-3 hrs. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35-45 min. or until golden and has hollow sound when tapped with fingers.

Cool on wire rack. Glaze with mixture of 1 cup icing sugar, ½ tsp. vanilla and 2 tbsps milk. When glaze is set, if desired, freezerwrap and freeze. When ready to serve thaw and reheat in oven at 250 deg. Fahr. 15 min. Glaze does not melt or run.

Excellent for Christmas gifts that can be made now.

Tasty Christmas Braid

You will be surprised at the size of this loaf of Christmas Braid Bread. It will fill your 15-inch cookie sheet from end to end and is six and one-half inches wide. If desired you could divide the dough to make two smaller ones. Mary Moore suggests that you make some for homey inexpensive Christmas gifts.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "I saw a b-b-big d-d-dog chase a k-k-kitty and . . . ."

Mother: "Now stop a minute and don't talk so fast. You're stuttering again."

Halting speech is essentially a 2 or 4-year old whose thoughts may outrun her ability to express them. Your adverse actions may create a problem that doesn't exist.

Let a small child tell her story without interruption, correction or any hint of hurrying her. Calling attention to her stammering will only intensify the tension that causes it.

Also normal behavior for a 2 or 4-year old whose thoughts may outrun her ability to express them. Your adverse actions may create a problem that doesn't exist.

Home and School Association News

AVONDALE HOME AND SCHOOL

The general meeting of Avondale-Sir John A. Macdonald Home and School Association was held recently in Sir John A. School with a large number in attendance. President Betty Parks opened the meeting, welcomed everyone and presided over a short business period.

Mr. James Clarke introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Eric Runacres, Director of Education for the County of Hastings. With the aid of an overhead projector and slides he discussed modern trends in education and presented what he felt were the aims and objectives of education in Hastings County schools. He also suggested that the degree of success should be measured by the overlapping between theory and practice.

Following the presentation those present were given an opportunity to question the chairman, Mr. Clarke and Mr. Runacres. Mrs. Harvie, on behalf of everyone present, thanked the speaker.

A bake sale was held in the hall at which time the social convener and helpers served coffee.

SHELL DECORATIONS

In early America, Aztec and Maya Indians decorated their bodies and temples with shells to symbolize water.

Baked Back Bacon; Mustard Pickles; Glazed Sweet Potatoes; Cabbage Wedges with Parsley Cream Sauce; Sliced Cucumber and Green Pepper; Peach Shortcake; Coffee.

Club Activities

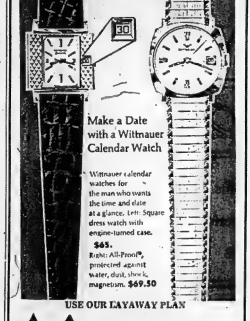
ALPHA LAMBDA CHAPTER

The regular meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, was held November 26 at the home of Mrs. L. Gordon, Village Drive. The meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. G. Hill who introduced a guest for the evening, Mrs. D. Johnny, a transferee from Halifax who will be joining the chapter.



Much of the evening was spent discussing a service project of the chapter and plans were made in this regard. The Chapter will hold a Christmas party on Saturday, December 13. Plans are being finalized and will be announced definitely at the next meeting.

Additions to various committees were announced and the new members of the chapter drew the names of secret sisters. Following the business meeting an auction of articles from a mystery box was held.

The highlight of the evening was an address by Mr. Ronald Vanderveide who spoke to the girls on his favorite subject, sculpture. Mr. Vanderveide brought several of his pieces with him and photos of others and these were discussed and explained. All in all it was a delightful program and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Mrs. G. Stephanson introduced the speaker and Mrs. B. Carter thanked him.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Gordon.

The Custom of Dropping in on Friends Becomes Controversial Issue

By DORIS CLARK

An open line discussion was going on over the radio, about whether or not the custom of dropping in on friends, without warning, was really a good one.

The mother of a family phoned in to say while she loved to have friends visit her, they were far more welcome when they gave her some advance notice.

Then a father phoned in to say he liked it better when people came without warning. If they did phone an hour or so ahead, there was great panic in his house. Everything had to be straightened, papers had to be picked up, children had to be tidied, he had to put his shoes on.

When the commentator asked him how his wife felt about it, he dodged the question. Said, "I'm giving you my ideas — not anybody else's." We suspected he and his wife differed over this one!

But then there was the Scottish lady who had returned to her homeland after many years of absence. While over there she had made a trip to the other side of town, and found herself in the neighborhood of an old chum. She rang the old friend's door bell.

She was greeted with hugs and kisses. She said she could not go home without at least ringing her friend's bell, and her friend said, "I would have been very angry if you had." She turned off her iron, put on the kettle, and they had an old-times" chinwag.

Should we visit without warning or shouldn't we?

* * *

Dear Doris: We all get much pleasure and a broader outlook on life by reading your wonderful column. You have helped so many others with lost recitations: I wonder if you know the poem about "Little Albert Ramsbottom at the London Zoo"?

Recited in a Cockney accent, it tells of a Mr. and Mrs. Ramsbottom who took their son Albert to the zoo and he got too close to the lions' cage and "got et," and "'im with 'is Sunday boots on, too!"

My youngest brother used to recite it as a child, and the whole family of us would dearly love to hear him do it again, but he can't quite remember it. He is now 43. — Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: It was a favorite in our family too. I have a niece who used to put us into hysterics when she recited "Albert and the Lion", which is the official title.

I have had copies made and am sending one to you. Anybody else want one? Ten cents and a stamped envelope and it's yours.

* * *

Dear Doris: I came into this community as a working girl and married one of its members. It was not long before I discovered some of the unusual relations between members of one family; also the running of a "call girl" place in nearly every small town near here.

Promptly I went for advice but that was a mistake as it is a small, close-knit community and I am the outsider. Now everyone is angry with me. Why? — Outsider

Dear Outsider: So the new broom thought she could sweep clean? You found out all 10's late just how well one neighborhood stands together.

First of all, what one family does within its own walls is only hearsay or gossip when it gets outside. And while it might be noble to conduct a crusade against call girls, you would need the support of law and public opinion before you could get anywhere.

Better tread softly. Seek out the good in that new community of yours.

Move Made To Protect Adoptions

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government moved quickly Tuesday to prevent a recurrence of an Ontario Supreme Court ruling which returned to its natural mother a child who was on trial adoption.

John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, introduced an amendment to the Child Welfare Act which will retain a Crown wardship over children placed in homes for trial adoption.

The court case involved a child who as a ward of the Children's Aid Society was left with prospective adoptive parents for a trial period when the natural mother sought the child's return.

The amendment makes it clear that "once a child has been made a Crown ward and placed in a home with parents who wish to adopt him, nothing should upset that placement if it is in the interests of the child to remain there."

Charred Ruins of Home for Aged

Number of Victims Unknown

Charred Bodies of 32 Persons Recovered from Home's Ruins

NOTRE-DAME-DU-LAC, Que. (CP) — The charred bodies of 32 victims of a fire which ravaged a home for the aged here were found by searchers Tuesday.

Reports of the number of possible victims have ranged as high as 56 but accurate figures were unavailable because records were also destroyed in the blaze.

With the aid of spotlights, townspeople, volunteers from nearby communities, police and firemen picked through the ashes with their hands and with shovels in an attempt to find the bodies of remaining victims.

The three-storey wooden building, in the centre of the village across from the Roman Catholic church, went up like a tinder-box just before 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Sgt. Cyrille Charron, officer in charge of the provincial police detachment in this village about 130 miles northeast of Quebec City, said Tuesday night the toll could be as low as 40 persons.

Varying reports indicated between 71 and 78 persons in the house at the time of the blaze but Sgt. Charron said documents from social welfare department offices in nearby Cabano indicate between 68 and 72 aged patients were in the building.

He said 21 survivors have been accounted for in the local hospital and police have reports indicating another eight persons who escaped the fire were staying with villagers.

In the Quebec legislature Tuesday, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand called for an inquiry into the blaze at the Repos du Vieillard home.

Jean-Paul Cloutier, family, health and welfare minister, told the national assembly in Quebec City the building met government safety standards.

An official in Quebec City said the ruined Repos du Vieillard had not been inspected for fire precautions because no request for such a visit had been made.

The understaffed fire commissioner's office inspects buildings only on request, he said.

Andre Canuel, watchmaker and owner of the neighboring jewelry shop, described the fire as "unbelievable."

"You don't walk into a ball of flame," he said.

A survivor said he saw a woman fellow resident lying in the snow.

"When I went to pull her out, her flesh came off in my hands."

Rev. Fortunat Blanchet, the village priest, said at least 11 patients were confined to beds and "had no chance."

Two residents who survived, A. A. Dupont, 72, and Rudolph Beslieu, 68, who lived in a unit adjacent to the main building, said they were awakened by the ringing of a bell. They thought it was summoning girls who worked in the home's kitchen.

But when they looked out their windows they saw smoke and flames and a handful of residents, barefoot and in night-clothes, struggling down fire escapes. One crippled old lady was dragging her wheelchair after her.

Survivor Augustin Blanchard, 76, from Paquetville, N.B., said he tried to save an elderly woman who insisted on running back to the third storey to get her life savings.

"She wanted to get her money, but I don't think she made it out. The place was filled with smoke. I escaped by the fire escape."

A woman said several residents tried to get dressed before leaving and apparently perished when the wooden walls collapsed around them.

18 in Delegation

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts will lead an 18-man delegation to the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa this weekend.

The delegation will include leaders of the two opposition parties in the Ontario legislature, Liberal Robert Nixon and Donald MacDonald of the NDP. Included for the first time are three representatives of Ontario.

Probe of War's Effects Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate foreign relations committee has quietly shelved Senator J. W. Fulbright's bid for an inquiry into the impact of the Vietnam war on the mood and morality of the U.S.

Fulbright said he did not propose an inquiry into the alleged slayings at My Lai itself. Instead, he said he wanted a hearing soon on the significance of the incident: "What is happening to us as a result of the war?"

A committee majority indicated opposition to such hearings now. Fulbright said they may be dropped again after Congress reconvenes in January.

Senator Daniel K. Inouye, Hawaii Democrat, called the My Lai incident a national disgrace, and said if there's a way out "it is to be found only through the prompt, complete and public investigation of what has occurred, the proper punishment of those responsible, and through every effort to determine why My Lai happened."

In a Senate speech Tuesday, Inouye, who lost his right arm in the Second World War, asked whether the country can condemn the men accused of the My Lai killings while justifying "a policy of indiscriminate bombing and artillery attacks on inhabited villages and hamlets."

He also criticized U.S. military training, which he said permits references to the Vietnamese as "gooks, dinks or slopes."

"I think you can have war without shooting down women and children," said Senator Ralph Yarborough (Dem. Tex.). "These are war crimes and are against civilized law."

Juke Box Blares, Mass Celebrated, as Bodies Are Uncovered

Que. (CP) — In the community centre, a juke box was blaring and teenagers were bowling, playing pool or just hanging around.

A handful of townspeople turned up for the evening mass in the big brick Roman Catholic church in this parish of 2,500 people 120 miles northeast of Quebec City.

It was a normal Tuesday night, except for all that feverish activity across the street where they were shovelling burned bodies out of the ashes of the old folks' home.

The men were working fast because authorities were concerned that the rubble might freeze and make removal of the victims more difficult.

Every once in a while, another body would be found and the spotlight-equipped searchers would cry "Un autre."

By midnight, the count was up to 32. Each victim was wrapped in a plastic sheet and carried off to a makeshift morgue, an old shed which the dead shared with a pile of scrap lumber.

Police estimated that the death toll in Tuesday morning's fire would be "around 40."

But if the villagers were griefstricken, they weren't expressing their sentiment in the street with tears. There was a stoniness about them. Nobody cried.

A lot of curious people came to have a look, including a horde of school children who crept up as close as possible to the scene until they were chased away. ...

But there was nothing much to see.

A mound of black ashes with the twisted metal of beds and fire escapes was all that remained of Le Repos du Vieillard, a three-storey wooden structure in the centre of the town on a splendid site overlooking Lac Temiscouata.

Among the spectators was a waxi-cheated girl who lost an uncle in the blaze. Her first comment when she sniffed the bitter-sweet air was: "It smells."

She said the fire was a tragedy, adding: "But what do you want us to do?"

Many people appeared as resigned to the disaster as they are to poverty in this area of mixed farming and lumbering on the fringes of the Gaspe Peninsula.

Notre-Dame-du-Lac is a town along the Trans-Canadian Highway, bordered in this region by a fair share of weather-beaten buildings abandoned by farmers who have given up tilling the rocky soil.

The town is celebrating its centennial year and the pride of the townspeople in their community is in full flower.

One of Notre-Dame-du-Lac's leading citizens is Charles-Eugene Tardif who made a living by operating the home for ages since 1954.

Townspeople describe Mr. Tardif as an honest man who always abided with government regulations and made any changes requested by the authorities.

Mr. Tardif was not available Tuesday. His son Robert, 18, worked with searchers, saying his father was ill and "heartbroken."

Andre Canuel, a 36-year-old jeweler, was fuming over what Rene Levesque, former welfare minister, said about the home.

Mr. Canuel said Mr. Levesque, now leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, did not know what he was talking about when he said on television that the home was a firetrap. Mr. Canuel said:

"The building was solid, well constructed, renovated often and well kept. But it was made of wood. What can you expect of wood?"

Town officials said the oldest part of the building was 20 to 25 years old. It was enlarged in 1954, 1959 and 1960.

Valmore Benoit, 35-year-old grocer whose store is three doors away from the razed building, said Mr. Tardif spent $33,000 this year covering the outside of the building with aluminum siding.

But some people said they considered the building dangerous, including the parish priest and nuns at a nearby convent.

A man in Mr. Canuel's jewelry shop said: "Obviously it's dangerous when you have so many people in a wooden building. But it's the best we had.

"If the government gave us what we had been asking for two years, we wouldn't have had this catastrophe."

At a news conference, Mayor Rene Berube disclosed that the town has been asking the government to construct a public home for the aged here since December, 1967.

Mr. Berube said the town was informed verbally by welfare department officials that the private home met the town's requirements.

Casualties Are Mostly Due to U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy said Tuesday studies by the subcommittee on refugees he heads indicates "the great majority" of civilian casualties in South Vietnam resulted from United States and South Vietnamese government military actions.

Asked to comment on the reported massacre at My Lai, the Massachusetts Democrat replied:

"As are all Americans, I am deeply disturbed by this incident.

"The work of our subcommittee indicates that from 1965 until the present, there have been 1,000,000 civilian casualties as a result of this war. Our estimate is that 300,000 have been killed.

"Some of this, of course, was caused by the Viet Cong guerrillas. But the great majority resulted from the activities of the ARVN (South Vietnamese government forces) and the Americans."

U.S. Rail Strike Unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP) — The threat of a country-wide railway shutdown was eased today after union and industry negotiators were reported near a wage settlement and had agreed to continue bargaining.

"We are very close to a settlement, I believe," said assistant Labor Secretary W. J. Usery after 38 hours of nearly continuous bargaining in the dispute involving 48,000 shopcraft workers on all major U.S. railways.

The talks were recessed at 2:30 a.m. until mid-afternoon to give the negotiators a rest.

The four AFL-CIO unions in the dispute, who were free to strike at 12.01 a.m. today, said they would not call a walkout as long as progress is being made.

Train Profit Donated

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer Tuesday turned over to Revenue Minister John White of Ontario the $300.41 profit from a special one-day train run between here and Barrie.

John Medcof, who hired a CNR train for a round-trip run Oct. 18 to prove it would be profitable, presented the profit at Queen's Park.

Mr. White said the money will be put into the consolidated revenue fund, the government's general fund.

Committee Would Retain CYC 'With Revisions'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons broadcasting committee voted Tuesday to continue the Company of Young Canadians "with revisions."

The vote on the 20-man committee was 11 to 7, with six Conservatives and one Liberal taking the position that the company should be scrapped.

* * *

The Conservatives said the idea of the CYC is a good one and a new organization should be built from the ashes of the present one.

* * *

Liberals and New Democrats voted however to continue the CYC with changes to make it more publicly accountable.

The committee, which completed a month-long inquiry last Friday, began meeting in camera Monday and took 8½ hours to come to its first decision. A committee source said MPs were extraordinarily cautious about making decisions.

The committee has until tonight to make up its mind if it is to report to Parliament on deadline Friday.

Shock Troops in War on Poverty Were Told to Raise Fuss

OTTAWA (CP) — Three years ago field volunteers of the Company of Young Canadians marched on the cities and towns as shock troops in the war on poverty.

The Liberal government of Lester B. Pearson declared the war and the 27th Parliament voted in 1966 to send the company to carry it out.

"If the CYC is to be a success, it must create a disturbance," said John Reid, then 29 and the youngest MP. "I wish these volunteers well as they go out on this noble experiment."

Last month, with the noble experiment a distinct disturbance to Montreal, Mr. Reid was leading the Commons broadcasting committee in an inquiry into the CYC.

As the month-long inquiry ended last Friday, he was among those who felt the company must be brought under government control to rein its radical elements.

That the committee has doubts about how to treat the "noble experiment" is evident. MPs know very well that altering the power structure within the CYC may kill it as effectively as any disbandment.

"This is the toughest thing I've tackled," said Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) Tuesday night, reflecting committee doubts.

Mr. Reid, the committee chairman, said MPs are reluctant to come to a decision.

Few give much credence to the testimony of Lucien Saulnier, Montreal executive committee chairman, whose allegations of subversion last month spurred the inquiry.

Mr. Saulnier last week demanded that the CYC be disbanded and a royal commission be established to inquire into subversion. Connecting the CYC with "a plan" to overthrow the established order, he asked why the federal government is paying a group to destroy the system.

However, a strong committee viewpoint is that Montreal wants to make the CYC the scapegoat for the harsh problems that have beset the city.

Philip Givens (L—York West), former Toronto mayor, drew an outraged response from the Montreal delegation when he asked whether it was being frank. Pierre de Bane (L—Matane) said Mr. Saulnier appeared to be showing his age in his remarks about the CYC.

Other MPs have been even more scathing in private.

When Mr. Saulnier was asked whether Montreal would accept a CYC not involved in these matters, the reply was negative. Montreal didn't want a federal agency meddling in its affairs, period.

MPs have also found it difficult to swallow the CYC's disregard for constitutional jurisdictions. But they have been swayed by CYC claims that fences can't be respected in warfare.

The MPs asked why the company didn't seek municipal or provincial permission be fo re going into an area.

The reply was that anyone with a really serious problem might not welcome a group that would expose it.

"Obviously a municipality that is running a bad show does not want anyone in there who might stir up the natives a bit," said CYC council chairman Jack Johnson.

"If consultation were mandatory it would limit the value of the company."

Two Basic Needs Spark Jail Riots

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Experts on prison life agree that perhaps as high as 90 per cent of all jail riots, attacks and disturbances are caused by two basic human appetites: for food and for sex.

If the food is bad, or worse than usual, the inmates revolt, as they should. But there is little they can do to satisfy their normal sexual needs except engage in homosexual relations, which are rife in most prisons.

The homosexual problem in jail is discreetly played down by the authorities, for fear of shocking or alienating the good citizens who prefer to be wrapped in smug ignorance about prison life and conditions. But most of what is called "unrest" in jail — including the not infrequent wounding or slaying of one inmate by another — is triggered by these unmet sexual needs. And "rape" is not at all uncommon there.

Only one American state — Mississippi — currently permits conjugal relations between prison inmates and their wives, although Mexico, several South American countries, Scandinavia, and some nations in the Middle and Far East have adopted an enlightened policy toward the sexual rights of prisoners — and of their wives.

Here is a factor few penal systems take into account. Even assuming that in losing most of his civil rights, the prisoner also loses his human right to sexual congress, what about the rights of his wife in being involuntarily deprived through no fault of her own?

Such deprivation not merely may drive the inmate into a homosexual relationship in prison — which often ruins him for conjugal normality when he comes out — but also imposes either continence or infidelity upon the wife who is waiting years for his return. If a man forfeits his rights to legally sanctioned sex, does the wife forfeit her rights also?

Of course, a woman can divorce her husband while he is in jail; she can take a lover, or many; or she can stifle her sexual needs for years, or decades. But if she is a normal woman, with a family and a social life, it is not inhumanly cruel to force her into desertion, adultery or involuntary abstinence?

Quite apart from this moral question, the confinement and segregation of large groups of men without normal sexual outlets is psychologically and socially as unhealthy as any act the inmate may have committed. It is punitive without point, and corrupts rather than chastens. How long will we close our eyes to this monstrous piece of vengeance masquerading as "reform?"

Vancouver Gets Franchise in NHL for 1970-71

NEW YORK (CP) — Vancouver and Buffalo teams join the National Hockey League next season, but the league expansion committee which announced the 1970-71 entries Tuesday is already looking forward to the possibility of a Moscow franchise for 1973-74.

"It could be the Moscow Dynamos versus the Montreal Canadiens for the Stanley Cup in either 1973-74 or 1974-75," league president Clarence Campbell said after Vancouver and Buffalo were conditionally accepted.

Each franchise cost $8,000,000, three times the amount paid by the six West Division teams that joined the league in 1967-68 to double its size to 12 clubs.

With 14 teams in the 70-71 lineup, the NHL reshuffled the divisional setup, moving Chicago Black Hawks from the East to join St. Louis, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Oakland, Los Angeles and Minnesota in the West.

The two new entries join Toronto, Montreal, Detroit, New York and Boston in the East Division.

The Vancouver franchise goes to the Medicor Corp. of Minnesota on the condition that it complete a syndicate headed by Northwest Sports Enterprises which own Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League and that it complete arrangements for a lease with Pacific Coliseum in Vancouver.

The Buffalo entry was awarded to Niagara Frontier Hockey Corp., a group headed by brothers Seymour H., and Northrup Knox, of Buffalo.

The banker brothers will have to win formal approval by Buffalo city authorities to increase by the 1970-71 season the seating capacity of War Memorial Auditorium to a minimum of 15,000 seats. The NHL expansion committee also said that the hockey club will have to gain a lease satisfactory to the league and the city before Dec. 20, 1969.

Campbell said he was "extremely enthusiastic with the prospect of major league hockey in the two cities."

"I'm confident they will bring new and important strength to the league."

Campbell said four more teams will be added in 1972-74, two for each division, and there is a possibility of adding a European division at the same time.

The Europeans would not complete during the regular season, but would meet for the world championship at the end of the regular NHL schedule.

Campbell said Moscow, Leningrad, Stockholm and Prague were leading candidates for the European cities.

Tom Scallen, head of the Minneapolis-based medical investment firm which also owns the Ice Follies, said he had no worries that the Vancouver club would meet the NHL conditions by the Dec. 20 deadline and be ready to move into the 78-game schedule next season.

Another stumbling block in Scallen's way, besides the $8,-000,000 fee, is a $1,200,000 indemnity to be paid to the WHL.

Gene Klasawick, president of the WHL, said in Seattle Tuesday that the NHL guaranteed Vancouver would pay the settlement for pulling out of the WHL. He said a meeting is planned next week to discuss the matter with Medicor and Vancouver.

Scallen, who will be president of the Vancouver franchise and its representative on the NHL board of governors, said he plans to retain his own offices in Minneapolis.

He said no decision had yet been made on whether the name Canucks would be retained for the team.

Joe Crozier, general manager of the Canucks and of Rochester Americans in the American Hockey League, said in Rochester that the Vancouver entry was "the greatest thing that's ever happened."

"The people of Vancouver have been waiting for this for a long time," Crozier said in an interview, "and now it has come through."

The club was ready to pay the $1,000,000 expansion fee in 1967-68 but were turned down in the bid. One reason the NHL sited for its rejection of Vancouver was lack of an adequate arena.

The Pacific National Exhibition Co. has since erected the 15,038-seat Pacific Coliseum. Scallen said the PNE has already voted to accept lease terms "and we've arranged to buy the club."

"I've always been associated with a winner and still want to be associated with a winner," he said in reference to a question on how the first-year team would fare.

The club has the advantage of starting out with 52 players in the Vancouver and Rochester system. The Buffalo interests are expected to absorb Buffalo Bisons of the AHL, which own only three players. The remaining Buffalo players belong to New York Rangers of the NHL.

The two new clubs will be able to pick up full rosters in a draft next June from the existing NHL clubs.

Cyrus McLean, Canuck president, said in Vancouver he was "very pleased" with the expansion announcement.

"This realization is a credit to my Vancouver associates, both past and present, for their dedication and perseverance to the cause of bringing major league hockey to another Canadian city. I cannot speak too highly of the co-operation of Medicor through president Tom Scallen and vice-president Lyman Waller in bringing this about.

"I am pleased to report that serving on the board of directors of the new organization, along with me, will be Max Bell, Frank McMahon, Coleman Hall, Scallen and Walters."

Seymour Knox said it "was the fulfillment of a lifelong ambition, bringing an NHL team into Buffalo."

He said the Buffalo team would start working on its operational problems immediately and would meet the league conditions by Dec. 20.

Stafford Smythe, president of the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, also applauded the inclusion of both Vancouver and Buffalo in the league. It was reported that Smythe objected to both cities entering in the 1967-68 expansion.

"I wasn't against Buffalo the first time," Smythe said Tuesday night. "I simply thought the six cities we took in then were better since increasing the potential television audience was a prime consideration."

He said television was no longer a factor and Buffalo is a better hockey town than some cities that entered in the last expansion.

Junior Canadiens Move Closer to Petes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens, the defending national junior champions, continued their challenge for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior series Tuesday with a 10-3 decision over the Knights at London.

The Montreal victory was their sixth in succession and 10th in the last 11 games, advancing them to within a point of league-leading Peterborough Petes.

In one other game, at Oshawa, the Generals checked Toronto Marlboros to a 2-2 tie, holding Marlboros to a share of second spot with Montreal.

Pierre Brind'Amour led the Junior Canadiens with four goals, including the winner early in the second period. Montreal pulled away from a 2-1 first period lead with four straight scores in the second period.

Richard Lemieux, collected three goals and three assists. Captain Gilbert Perreault, Paulin Bordeleau and Haviland Monaham all scored once for the winners.

Danny Maloney, with two goals, and Darryl Sittler replied for the seventh-place Knights.

At Oshawa, Dale Tallon shot Marlboros in front just 14 seconds after the opening faceoff and Graham Wise struck at 2:37.

The Generals cut the Toronto lead to one goal at 8:27 of the opening period as Steve Carswell scored on a power play. Marlboros' defenceman Fred Barrett was serving a minor penalty at the time.

With just under seven minutes remaining in the final period, Pete Sullivan tied the score, moving the eighth-place Generals one point back of London.

Tallon scored what appeared to be Toronto's winner late in the game, but referee Walt Gardner disallowed the goal, ruling that Toronto forward Bill Harris was inside Ted McComb's goal crease.

Canada Gains Victory in Tournament

MOSCOW (CP) — Canada and Sweden each gained initial victories in the Moscow invitational hockey tournament Tuesday.

Canada evened its win-loss record in the eight-day competition at 1-1 by edging the East German team 5-4 on defenceman Ken Stephanson's winning goal in the third period.

And Sweden made good its opening match by downing Finland 7-5 in the only other game Tuesday, the second day of the six-team tournament.

Left-winger Billy Heindl scored two goals and Corby Adams one to lead the Canadiens to a commanding 3-0 lead over East Germany in the first period. But the East Germans amassed all four of their goals in the second period to a lone Canadian tally by Frank Huck.

Stephanson broke the deadlock in the third period on a weak shot.

Today, Finland meets the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia goes against Sweden.

19 Day Road Trip Earns Kings One Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Kings returned home today after travelling more than 7,000 miles in 19 days to pick up one victory and a tie in meetings with nine other National Hockey League teams.

The Kings' frustrating voyage ended on a slightly happier note Tuesday night when rookie Mike Corrigan scored on a breakaway in the third period to give Los Angeles a 4-3 victory over Oakland Seals.

The victory snapped a 10-game winless streak that started after Dec. 10 meaning with Toronto Maple Leafs in Los Angeles. The Kings beat the Leafs 6-3 but Oakland has lost their next two games at home before starting the road trip which ended with the Seals' two points on a tie with the Leafs and the victory over the Seals.

The Kings start a seven-game home stand against Philadelphia Flyers tonight and their next foray comes Christmas Eve with a match against the Leafs in Toronto.

In other games tonight, the Maple Leafs visit Minnesota North Stars, Chicago Black Hawks are at New York against the Rangers, Detroit Red Wings meet the Penguins in Pittsburgh and the Seals play the Blues in St. Louis.

Tuesday night's encounter saw the start of defenceman Harry Howel's 18th season.

The veteran rearguard, who collected 345 scoring points in 17 seasons with New York Rangers, scored his 346th point when he assisted on a goal by Oakland's Gary arrett.

Howell underwent a spinal fusion operation last April to correct a back condition that bothered him for the last half of the 1968-69 season. The Rangers sold him to Oakland just before the June draft last summer and he started skating himself back into condition last month.

The 37-year-old former Ranger captain who made the first all-star team and won the James Norris Trophy as top defenceman in 1965-67, is being counted on by the Seals to provide some team leadership.

"We think his experience and his generalship when he is able to play will help make us a serious contender in the Western Division," Seals general manager Frank Selke said after Howell signed a contract last summer.

Howell's generalship Tuesday night helped the team maintain a 38-33 shots-on-goal advantage but the Kings got the break for the victory.

Corrigan also started the Los Angeles drive when he set up Butch Goring for a goal in the first period.

Eddie Joyal made it 2-0 for the Kings early in the second period before Bill Hicke, Carol Vadnais and Jarrett stood to give the Seals the edge. Dick Irvine tied it up for Los Angeles before the period ended to set the stage for Corrigan's game winner against Oakland goalie Gary Smith.

Gerry Desjardins made the necessary 34 saves in the Los Angeles nets to earn the victory before a crowd of 3,845.

Voyageurs Stretch Lead to Four

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob Berry and Judes Drouin each scored twice Tuesday night to help push Montreal Voyageurs into a four-point lead in the American Hockey League Eastern Division.

Berry and Drouin shared half the Montreal scoring in an 8-5 victory over Quebec Aces before 2,050 fans at the Forum while Buffalo Bisons tied Quebec Aces 3-3 in the only other game.

Montreal now leads Springfield Kings by four points with Quebec another five points back in third spot. The tie for Buffalo pushed the Bisons' Western Division lead over Hershey to 17 points.

Marc Tardif, Larry Mickey, Phil Roberto and Lucien Grenier scored single goals for Montreal. Roger DeJordy had a two-goal performance for the Bears with Ralph Keller, Jeannot Gilbert and Jean-Guy Gratton scoring one each.

Gerry Ouellet scored for Buffalo with just two seconds remaining at Quebec to gain the tie. Guy Trottier and Bob Blackburn scored the other Bisons goals.

Rosaire Paiement, Serge Bernier and Darryl Edestrand scored for the Aces before 1,870 home fans.

Badminton One of City's Oldest Sport

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club is one of the oldest athletic clubs in Belleville.

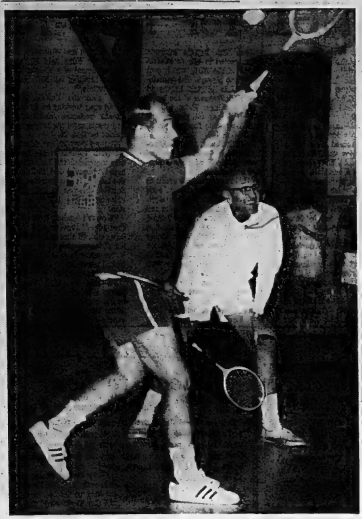
"I'm not just sure exactly when the club was started," said club president Billie Waldron. "It was some years ago though."

The club is split up into two groups, Juniors and Seniors.

A member becomes a senior when he or she reaches his or her 19th birthday.

This year the club has approximately 60 senior and 30 junior members. "We have it's club mainly to give our members a couple of nights of fun and laughter and entertainment a week," added Miss Waldron. "The junior interest is really picking up, and the younger generation seem to be promoting things to-day."

Tim Cook is the Men's team Captain who has played badminton for the past 10 years.



Kaye Sneddon is the Catering Convener, with Carol Wilson the Ladies' team captain.

There are a number of Tournaments held each year that the Garrison club members have an opportunity to enter.

The Doug Grant, A open, A closed, B closed, C closed and the Limestone Tournament in Kingston are just a few. "We also have inter - club tournaments when Trenton comes here or we go there," added Miss Waldron.

A small fee is charged to each member per year with a fine collection of trophies and prizes handed out for each tournament. A fee is also allotted to entries of these tournaments. Copper Trays, Brass Trays and Casseroles are just a few of the prizes.

The Garrison Badminton Club hold meetings every Tuesday and Saturday evenings at the Belleville Armories. New members are welcome. Juniors meet at 7 p.m. while the seniors get underway at eight.

Garrison Badminton Club men's teams captain Tim Cook returns a serve from opponents at a recent meeting of the club. Team-mate "Buck" Bellamy patiently watches.

Moira Has Perfect Day

The Moira Boys Basketball teams of the Quinte High School Basketball league went three for three against Centre Hastings Secondary school teams yesterday.

The Moira Bantams defeated Centre Hastings bantams 57 - 8. Larry Kirby with 12 points, John Perry with 9 and Paul Neil scoring 8 points were the top point getters for Moira. Price and Cole scored all centre Hastings points scoring two baskets each.

In the junior game Moira downed Centre Hastings 70 - 13. Phil Kirby scored 31 points while Gerry Hyde and Don Hazelton had eight points each for Moira. Bennett was high scorer for Centre Hastings with six points.

Quinte, Trenton Bay of Quinte Champs

Quinte's junior girls basketball team gave their junior boys something to fight for when they won the junior girls AA Bay of Quinte basketball championships yesterday against BCI.

Quinte who won the two game total point series went into the second game leading by 24 points after a 27-13 victory in the first game.

A determined BCI team fought back in the second game winning 31-32 but the 19-point deficit in the second encounter wasn't enough as Quinte defeated BCI 69-64 in the two game total points.

"Our girls showed tremendous effort," said BCI coach Mary Etue. At one point in the second game, we were leading by one point as far as total points were concerned." Gladys Stephenson played extremely well for Quinte.

Gladys Stephenson was top point getter in the second game for Quinte with 15. Regina Armonas had nine points and Kathy McDonald 3 points.

Top point scorer for BCI in yesterday's game was Deborah Kerr with 19. Janice Sled had 16 points and Diane Keer 11 points. Janice Sled's 18 points yesterday gave her a total of 199 for the season.

With COSSA being held in this district both BCI and Quinte will play for the championship honors Saturday at Centennial Secondary School. Game time is 9 a.m.

In senior girls AA Bay of Quinte Championships yesterday Trenton defeated Nicholson Catholic College 30-24 to take the two game total point series 53-43 after a 23-19 victory in the first encounter.

Christine Walsh was top point getter for Nicholson scoring nine points. Judy Barrett had 7 and Ann Skerl had 4 points.

Trenton's top scorer was R. Jones with 10 points while J. Doyle had nine and C. Foster 5 points.

"This is the first year our girls have been in the AA class," said Nicholson coach Kathy Gist. "Last year we were in the A and competition is a lot stiffer in the AA. Our girls played two games."

Nicholson will also see action in COSSA on Saturday.

Eaton to Join Formula Racing

TORONTO (CP) — British Racing Motors announced Tuesday that George Eaton of Toronto will join its Formula 1 racing team in 1970 along with Jackie Oliver of Britain and Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico.

"George was out pick in the field of six candidates because of his sensible driving and considerable skill," said Louis Stanley, managing director of racing for BRM.

Stanley also announced that BRM will build a Group 7 sports-racing car for the Canadian-American challenge series in 1970 and that Eaton, who drove a factory McLaren on the circuit last season, will be one of the top team drivers in that competition.

Group 7 sports-racing cars built and driven by Bruce McLaren swept the Can-Am series in 1969.

Eaton, 23-year-old department-store heir, becomes the first Canadian to join a factory team on the Grand Prix circuit.

"It's the thing I've been working for," he said.

The Toronto racer, who wears his pale blonde hair shoulder length, said he knew that he could not win in a factory car.

"Not when you're racing against the same factory's top production model," he said.

Stanley explained the BRM's choice of Eaton as one of its team drivers was based on several factors.

"First, I think that the next 10 years will be the most formative in the history of racing," Stanley said. "The men who race must be special men.

"That leads to the second factor, which is an emphasis on youth determination and a mixture of experience.

"Normally, it would take George another two years to reach the level of competition he is entering."

Eaton moved to Formula A cars in 1969 and drove in his first Formula 1 race early this autumn.

"But we've seen his driving and assessed him as a potentially great driver," Stanley said.

Eaton will join the BRM team early next year to take part in Formula 1 testing before the first race of the Grand Prix circuit in South Africa.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — A goal by inside right Nelson Pratlaa gave the touring Ontario Football Association soccer team a 1-1 draw with the Barbados national team Monday. It was the first of three games the young Canadians, all under 21, play in Barbados.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (Reuters) — Argentina and the United States shared the gold medals in the men's field events of the second Pan American Wheelchair Games Tuesday with Canada also in the bidding for silver and bronze medals.

TORONTO (CP) — Long shot winners were abundant Tuesday, the second night of the winter harness racing meet at Greenwood Raceway. Streak's Champ, driven by Brent Davies, started the trend with a return of $41.50 to win the opening race, combining with second-race winner Frug for a $353 daily double. The biggest single payoff of the night was Heavy Burden, a $80.40 winner in the third race.

Expos Most Active in Meetings Acquire Services of Williams

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Montreal Expos were the most active of all major league clubs Tuesday as baseball's annual winter meetings concluded sessions at nearby Fort Lauderdale.

The National League club, Canada's first in major league baseball, completed the only trade of the day, hired a new coach and signed a working agreement with a new Triple-A farm team.

The Expos traded a starting pitcher, Larry Jaster, to Atlanta Braves for pitcher Jim Britton and Don Johnson, a catcher from Atlanta's farm system.

The Montreal entry also acquired the services of Dick Williams, deposed manager of the American League's Boston Red Sox, as a third base coach to replace Dave Bristol and signed a one-year working agreement with Buffalo Bisons of the International League. Williams formerly managed Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Jaster, an early selection in the expansion draft off the St. Louis Cardinals roster, had a disappointing record of one win and six defeats with an earned run average of 5.49 for the Expos in 1969.

Britton, a 26-year-old right-hander, appeared in 34 games, 13 as a starter with Atlanta. He completed a 7-5 won-lost record and compiled a 3.78 earned run average in 88 innings.

Johnson, 24, achieved a .280 batting average at Greenwood of the Class A Western Carolina League.

The Expos also were reported close to a deal with Detroit Tigers of the American League. Mentioned in the trade talk were pitchers Jerry Robertson of the Expos and Detroit's Joe Sparma.

While the traders sought to close deals left hanging Tuesday at Fort Lauderdale, club owners began tackling the problems of 1970 schedules, player relations and a reorganization proposal that could result in future concentration of power in the office of baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and, ultimately, in realignment and inter-league play.

The owners were to start talks today with an informal joint session. Saturday, they will consider recommendations of a restructuring committee they set up after taking the commissioner's job from Gen. William D. Eckert in the surprise finish of last year's meetings.

Kuhn, named interim commissioner two months later, subsequently was given a seven-year contract to remain in the top job. He favors bringing the American and National Leagues under one roof, in an effort to modernize the administration.

But the owners have disagreed on the extent of centralizing power.

Being approachable proves its worth.

Being approachable is something we are — not just something we say. It can be measured in many ways, on any day, in any of our branches. And once a year it can be measured in the concrete terms of our annual balance sheet.

This year, our balance sheet shows a unique accomplishment. As a fitting conclusion to our one hundredth year, our assets have grown to exceed Ten Billion Dollars. As bankers, we are proud of this growth through responsible service. As Canadians, we are doubly proud that "The Royal" has once more confirmed its international stature as one of the largest banks in the entire free world.

To our more than 22,700 employees, and to all the people whom we serve in Canada and around the world — our most sincere "thank you" for your Ten Billion Dollar vote of confidence in our approachability.

Youngest Turcotte Gets Name in Record Books

NEW YORK (CP) — A 19-year-old baby-faced jockey from New Brunswick wrote his name into New York track record books Tuesday by riding six mounts into the winners' circle at Aqueduct.

Rudolphe Leonide Turcotte, the youngest of the racing Turcottes of Grand Falls, N.B., became only the fourth jockey to post a six-winner day since pari-mutuels came to New York in 1940 by sweeping the last four races on the card.

After winning the last race of the day'over a fast track, Rudy was greeted by a mixture of cheers and good-natured shouts of "foul."

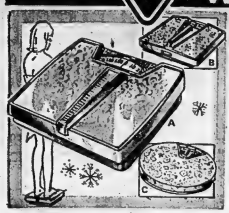
The six wins, biggest spree in his young career, lifted his meeting-leading Aqueduct winning total to 42. Ron Turcotte, Rudy's 28-year-old brother, rode one winner during the day to boost his total to 33 and second place in the win column.

Noel Turcotte, 26, also is a jockey, racing at Toronto's Greenwood race track this year.

Rudy, who says he's dreamed of following his brothers into racing since he was 14, became the first jockey to win six races in a day since Mike Venezia did it at Aqueduct in 1954. Willie Shoemaker had six in 1959 at Belmont and Alfred Robertson did it in 1941 at the old Aqueduct track.

Young Turcotte prefers route races, especially on the grass, but is also quick at the gate with a speed horse.

One of his biggest boosters is his brother Ron.



"Of course, he has a lot to learn but he keeps his cool and rides his time over a distance of ground. You don't find many green boys who will do that."

"Ron does his own commentary for my benefit," says Rudy. "I learn a lot from that."

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: I am driving south for the winter. This is my first extended trip by car. Have you any suggestions on how much I should take in the way of clothing? Miss B. Belleville, Ontario.

ANSWER: Automobile travellers have a distinct advantage when it comes to packing. Clothes which are hard to fold into a suitcase and those that wrinkle easily may be left on hangers. They may then be covered with plastic bags and hung in the back seat or laid atop the suitcases in the trunk.

Though it's more convenient to take more clothes, resist the impulse. Seasoned traveler s agree that the more trips they take, the less they pa k.

Fashion magazines offer travel wardrobe hints and practical suggestions may be obtained from friends recently returned from the area you intend to visit. The final decisions, of course depend on your own closet.

Be prepared for the weather and be prepared for its variations even in the warmest season a lightweight coat should be included and rainwear often comes in handy.

In general women will find that the dress appropriate for an occasion at home will be just as appropriate for a like occasion somewhere else. A tailored suit of a fabric in tune with the climate is practical for daytime wear in any city. Changes of blouses and accessories make the backbone of any travel wardrobe. ....

It's smart to stick to one or two basic colors — then the same accessories will do for several outfits. Separates are very good too, and make a few pieces seem like twice as much.

Holiday clothes will depend upon the resorts or cities to be visited and the activities of the wearer. Large hotels in any of the more fashionable resorts call for your most dramatic sports clothes, cocktail and evening gowns. Dressy dark dresses accented with a smart hat always are suitable for cocktail hour and dinner.

Dress may be as informal as the traveler desires at most small lake and ocean resorts. Good travelling companion s anywhere would include a long dark robe, bedroom slippers and sufficient lingerie of fabrics that require little or no ironing. Take advantage of fabrics which pack well if you are going to buy vacation clothes. Look for knits and synthetics and the many mixtures that are designed to resist wrinkles and launder and clean easily.

A roomy handbag, the larger the better, will keep possessions together and reduce the clutter which accumulates on car seats. Pack for picture - taking, too. Keep your camera ready for action. Extra film, bulbs and filters can be packed either in a special photographer's bag or a suitcase.

New Rector

TYENDINAGA — After a lapse of seven months, the parish of Tyendinaga once more has a rector, and the Mohawks, a chaplain. The Rev. Cyril Betts, Mrs. Betts and their three children moved into the rectory November 18. Mr. Betts officiated at a vestint in All Saints Church Saturday, and conducted his first services in that church and in Christ church the following day November 23.

The new rector was pleased with the size of the congregations, especially so in Christ Church. The members of LOL No. 99 paraded to the church, and he appreciated this welcoming gesture, especially in view of the fact that their lodge rooms had been destroyed by fire the previous week.

He is a graduate of the former Kemptville Agricultural School now the College of Agricultural Technology, but instead of farming he decided to enter the ministry. He graduated from Huron College in London Ont., part of the University of Western Ontario. He was the rector for three years of St. John the Baptist Church in Madoc, and the rector is North Augusta for seven years of a three - point charge.

Deer Me, Christmas Is Coming

Four-year-old Jane Shaw does her good deed feeding a reindeer — one of Santa's helpers — from the roof of her father's auto. The youngster came with her parents for a Sunday drive through the National Trust property of Lyme Park in Cheshire, England. The wintry weather and weekend snowfall enabled the animal to conquer its timidity and readily come forward to be fed by the little lady. (AP Photo)

Money Bill Debated

CNR Draws Fire of Many MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways drew fire from all sides of the Commons Tuesday in second reading debate on a routine government bill to provide money for the Crown-owned system.

Eymard Corbin (L—Madawaska-Victoria) said members of Parliament should not be asked to support the bill until they are given adequate assurance that needed rail services would be continued in their areas.

He said he was angered by CNR plans to reduce service through his northern New Brunswick riding.

The bill provides $201,700,000 capital financing for the CNR and Air Canada over the 18 months ending June 1, 1970.

Richard Southam (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) and Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre) said the government should commit itself to writing off the debt of the publicly-owned railway.

Mr. Benjamin, a former Canadian Pacific Railway agent, said the write-off of a $1,909,000,000 debt would end the annual requirement for a parliamentary bill to pay CNR deficits.

Charles-Eugene Dionne (Credit—Kamouraska) said there are cases of administrative inefficiency in the CNR.

Mr. Corbin complained specifically about CNR plans to remove a scheduled passenger train from the Halifax-Montreal run through his hometown of Edmundston, N.B., and replace it Jan. 7 with a daytiner.

The CNR was "exterminating service to the Canadian people."

Mr. Benjamin said the CNR should also be forced to improve the lot of company pensioners.

A government write-off of the CNR debt would include a grant to enable the company to pay back the $671,423,250 the railway has borrowed from its employees' pension fund.

Ralph W. Stewart (L—Cochrane) said the railway system provides poor service and by abandoning runs on unproven grounds it was losing money.

The CNR and CP Rail have applied to the Canadian transport commission to abandon services on a total of 31 passenger routes they say are losing money.

The applications are the first step to qualify the routes for subsidies of up to 60 per cent on losses while operating the lines in the public interest.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said the CNR—and CP Rail—are under a contractual obligation to provide transcontinental rail service, both passenger and freight.

Any deviation from that duty would be a betrayal of Canada.

Debate on the financing bill was to continue today.

In the Senate, a medical doctor said some persons entering Canada should be exempt from immunization requirements when it appears likely they may have adverse reactions to vaccination.

Senator A. Sullivan (PC—Ontario) said such persons should be designated by a quarantine officer "who should be a medical man."

Run-through Would Destroy Town

OTTAWA (CP) — Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay) told the Commons Tuesday there is no need for Canadian National Railways to eliminate the Northern Ontario community of Nakina as a terminal point for train crews.

He said during debate on a CNR financing bill that the people of Nakina feel the publicly-owned railway could switch its proposed run-through point from Nakina to Armstrong, Ont.

The effect of the run-through on Armstrong would be far less than the effect on Nakina, which would be destroyed.

Only 11 railway workers would be affected by the change if Armstrong was selected. Only four of these have homes.

On the other hand, 46 homes in Nakina would have to be vacated by employees if Nakina is to be bypassed as a changeover point for train crews.

Mr. Penner said Nakina is a child of the CNR in the sense that it was created to serve the railroad. Now the CNR wishes to "abandon the child" and assume only minimum responsibilities for it.

NDP Backs PCs

But School Policies Assailed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature Tuesday approved the $831,000,000 spending estimates of the department of education after the New Democratic Party joined the Conservative government in defeating a Liberal motion in a 62-to-22 vote.

The motion, moved by Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East) said "the house regrets that the minister has not given serious attention to providing an effective childhood learning experience to the children of the poor to enable most of them to lift themselves out of poverty in the next 15 years."

Education Minister William Davis revealed, for the first time, that the "public investment" in education in 1969—first year with county and district school boards—is estimated to be slightly more than 16 per cent higher than in 1968.

The rate of spending on education had been increasing annually for the last several years at a rate of between 15 and 19 per cent.

Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said the education department operates in branches which have no co-ordinated goals and no order of priorities.

Taxpayers are questioning the "explosion" of expenditures on education and are not being shown why they are worthwhile, he said.

There is a taxpayer "revolution coming," he said, and it may destroy the worthwhile things that have been done in education.

Canada Welcomes 'Moonmen' Armstrong, Aldrin, Collins

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada welcomed and praised the American astronauts who manned the first moon-walk Apollo flight, then mobbed them in an autograph hunters free-for-all during dessert and coffee at a government dinner.

So animated was the hunt for the signatures of astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins that their official host, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, had to plead three times with the top drawer audience to resume their seats.

The cross-the-table autograph session featured good natured elbowing and shoving by members of Parliament, scientists and other guests, including Prime Minister Trudeau's parliamentary secretary James Walker, Conservative MP Michael Forrestal and New Democrat MP David Orlikow.

Mr. Drury wound up apparently arguing with individual autograph seekers across the dinner table.

After about 15 minutes the crowd that numbered at times nearly 100 men and an occasional woman returned to their tables. Mr. Drury delivered another welcoming speech in which he said the government dinner was "in the nature of a family party."

He presented the Apollo 11 astronauts with specially-bound copies of the Hansard record of the speeches of tribute by political leaders in the House of Commons earlier in the day, plus a recording of the Commons proceedings, probably the first such recording ever made for use outside the chamber.

He also publicly conveyed regrets for the absence of Prime Minister Trudeau, who sent word Monday without reason that he would be unable to attend.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office said Mr. Trudeau had never made any definite commitment to attend, leaving it open for a last-minute decision.

Mr. Trudeau had delivered addresses of welcome at an open air ceremony on Parliament Hill earlier in the day and in the Commons.

He was reported working on papers for next week's constitutional conference at home. He was the astronauts' host for lunch.

All three astronauts were given standing ovations when introduced separately at the dinner. Each spoke briefly. They had held a news conference in the afternoon.

Mr. Armstrong said the visit to Canada, which concludes today with a trip to Montreal, was like "paying a call on a neighbor and dear friend after a long trip."

He paid tribute to Canadian space efforts.

The astronauts' world tour covered 27 countries in 37 days.

Major Aldrin, who wowed the bilingual crowd earlier in the day with some fractured French, produced a smoother accent in French for the dinner.

"Nous sommes tres heureux d'etre ici ce soir," he said meaning that the astronauts and their wives were very happy to be here. He got milded cheers and boos by congratulating the Ottawa Rough Riders on their Grey Cup football victory Saturday over Saskatchewan Rough riders.

He said the Apollo flights might accurately be called "destination man" rather than destination moon because of the way they helped man understand himself and his role in the universe.

The world tour was to show that "our space mission was not just for us but for all mankind."

Astronaut Collins, nominated by President Nixon last week as assistant secretary of state for public affairs, was asked at the news conference for comment on reports of mass murders by U.S. troops in Vietnam, a question that brought cries of protest from National Research Council of Canada scientists.

The astronaut said the murders were "tragic, if true," but he would not say more while they were under investigation.

CASTLETON — Gordon Beavis is the epitome of generations gone by. You know, those people who believed in marrying only once and holding one job for as long as possible.

Well, Gordon has only held the same job for the past 46 years, but he has been married to the same woman for 61 years. By the way, he's no longer a youngster — he'll never see his 85th birthday again.

When asked for differences between his generation and the present generation Gordon replied: "People are getting better looking all the time."

Gordon finds "figuring" the most pleasing aspect of his job and that figures because as clerk of Cramahe Township, he does a lot of it.

"I'm too old to work so I don't do anything else now," he added. "I do my work in my office at home rather than in the Township Hall because council only meets once a month and if needs be, people can come to me."

Gordon's home is a pleasant white frame house situated on 91 acres of land just south of Highway 401 on the Castleton Road. He has lived there with his 82-year-old wife Edith for the past half-century and commutes the eight miles to the Cramahe Township Hall by car.

You see he has been driving since 1923 and each year now he gets a doctor's examination ("my eyesight and hearing are as good as they ever were," he says) and passes his driver's test.

Gordon cited the County School Board and County Assessing systems as the most revolutionary changes during his time as clerk and commented: "I didn't like the new systems on the start but now I'm beginning to get used to it and it's all right."

"You know you can't teach an old dog new tricks very quickly," he stressed.

This may be true, but Gordon broke that rule back in 1962 at the age of 78 when he learned to type.

"I got an old typewriter and tried it then told the township council that I wanted a new typewriter and I've got it yet," Gordon explained.

"I'd much sooner type than write with a pen and my council minute book has all been typed since I learned how in 1962," he added.

Calculation of the township taxes each year is one of Gordon's main responsibilities and the area in which he finds the biggest change.

Perhaps most confusing and intriguing to the modern generation would be the old principle of statute labor.

Under this system every man did one day's work on the township roads whether or not he was assessed for land or property. But if a man wished he could pay his taxes by working on the township roads.

For every day's work a man handling a shovel was credited with one day's work, while a man with a team was given credit for two days' work and a man with a team and wagon was allowed three days' work.

This was the system by which the township roads were maintained in the days — an era in which cars and trucks were very scarce in rural Ontario and horses used as the primary means of transportation.

When Gordon started as Cramahe Township clerk on January 1, 1924, he was in charge of this statute labor system and in addition the township had 18 school sections, each of which had a different mill rate.

"There's less paperwork now but more government forms to be filled out," Gordon emphasized.

He then noted that the St. Lawrence Cement Plant in the southern part of Cramahe Township now pays more taxes each year than the entire township did in the 1920s — a vivid sign of the changes which have occurred in the past 40 years.

Attendance and punctuality are stressed in our schools today and Gordon has a record which any teacher or student would take pride in.

In 46 years Gordon has never been late for a council meeting and over that span he has only missed two meetings. "I was sick in bed once and the other time we took a trip to British Columbia," Gordon said in defence of his imperfect record.

In his 46 year span as clerk Gordon estimates that he has seen at least 15 reeves come and go and noted: "We have always had good councils here in Cramahe and I've been able to get along with them — if I hadn't I would have been fired long ago."

Of special pride to Gordon is Cramahe's residential mill rate of 71.7 because it is currently the lowest of any of the municipalities in Durham-Northumberland County.

Gordon was born just north of Warkworth in Percey Township and came down to Cramahe Township in 1919, the year he and Edith were married. Incidentally, the Beavis' have three children (two sons and a daughter), four grandchildren, and three great, grandchildren.

Gordon became clerk in 1924 because he wanted a second job. "I had no special qualifications, for I never went to high school. I stayed home to farm because I was needed and I've worked ever since," he said.

It's only been in the past 20 years or so that Gordon has limited his work to the job of clerk. Previous to that he worked out, serving as a government tomato inspector and a Campbell Soup fieldman for periods of over 11 years each.

"Cramahe Township is the best township in the country," Gordon concluded. He was educated home which is located north of Colborne and sandwiched between Brighton Township on the east and Haldimand Township on the west.

Piasecki Plans Spring Copter Start

PICTON (Staff) — Resident representative for Piasecki Aircraft of Canada Ltd., Walter Symmons, has returned from Ottawa after witnessing the signature of a purchase agreement with the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation by Piasecki Aircraft last Wednesday.

Said Mr. Symmons, "We have now taken responsibility for the buildings and land we purchased at the former Camp Picton and will be making some small local purchases and using local services."

Piasecki Aircraft bought about 650 acres of the 1,200 acre camp. Buildings purchased include three hangars and seven housing units belonging to the married quarters of the former military base.

"Undoubtedly," remarked Mr. Symmonds, "we will employ a full - time secretary in the near future and generally we will be doing preliminary work. Work on the Pathfinder helicopter will begin as soon as spring breaks."

"Workmen," he added, "probably will be hired before this time."

Denies Recount Asked In Liquor Referendum

BANCROFT (Staff) — As yet, village clerk Jack Gordon has received no request for a recount in the liquor referendum held here Monday.

In Monday's referendum, 619 voters were in favor of allowing licensed lounges and 609 were against.

The figure of 619 is just more than the 60 per cent majority needed to permit Bancroft to go wet.

If the request for a recount is made, the sealed ballot boxes will be sent to Belleville for a final decision.

"As it stands now, Bancroft is wet," Mr. Gordon said Tuesday, in making the official announcement of the voting.

Citizens of the village have 14 days from Tuesday to go before a judge and ask for a recount.

The referendum drew 74.8 of the registered voters to the polls. This was the third liquor vote in 14 years.

Her 'Ivory Tinkling' Tickles Many A Fancy

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — There'll be no new tunes on the old piano when Mrs. Charles North pulls up a stool to tickle the keyboard.

Pop tunes and folk songs definitely are not "her bag." This vivacious resident of Prince Edward County Home stills plays the old sweet songs for visitors and friends.

Her most requested? The birthday song leads a long list of favorites.

Mrs. North, who will celebrate her 80th birthday this month, plays Happy Birthday each time a resident of the home is given a party on his or her natal day. This tune may have become her signature song, but Mrs. North is a versatile pianist with a wide repertoire of tunes.

Last Thursday when representatives of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church visited the county home with Rev. Robert Jones, Mrs. North was at the piano to accompany a hymn sing. The diminutive, silver - haired lady consulted with the minister for a moment, then started to play Onward Christian Soldiers hitting zany a false note.

Mrs. North public performances are "old hat." Only last week she enjoyed a guest spot as soloist at the senior citizens' banquet sponsored by the Pictan Kinsmen. She played to a packed house, stealing the show from the instrumental group brought in entertain the guests.

Mrs. North plays the piano every week for church services conducted at Prince Edward County Home. At the confirmation of last Thursday's service she remained at the piano playing several more hymns while Charley — just one of many patients at the home who enjoys her music.

The lady is somewhat a coquette. Earlier this month when Mayor H. J. McFarland was honored at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute for his contributions to Picton and Prince Edward County, Mrs. North was chosen to present him with a photograph on behalf of the county home residents. The mayor kissed her lightly on one cheek and as he prepared to kiss her on the other, she piped up, "One is enough."

Mayor McFarland did get that second kiss, however, at the senior citizens' banquet last week. Mrs. North seems to be everyone's best girl. Bernie, a county home resident, blind since birth, leaves his room to attend the weekly services of worship because he likes to listen to the hymns.

Visiting clergymen welcome Mrs. North's accompaniment to the singing during their services. Her rendition of the birthday song makes her a hit at every party. The Jo Ann Castle of the senior citizen set doesn't limit her playing to special occasions.

According to a spokesman for the county home, Mrs. North plays the piano daily, entertaining fellow patients with a wide selection of hymns and popular tunes from the past. Her zest for life translates itself to the piano keyboard and the resulting notes composes a song to warm your heart.

Lost! Ding Fools Should Know Better

TWEED—Dave Trumble of Northbrook is what you might call a longtime hunter.

That is, he's been hunting longer than anyone in the Quinte district.

But even at 102, an oldster he definitely is not and woe to those who treat him as such!

Like the "ding fools" who set up the alarm when he recently failed to return to his hunting camp.

"Lost? What do they mean I was lost," Mr. Trumble indignantly snorted when dept. of lands and forests officers found him.

"The ding fools should have known I couldn't get lost. I've been in these woods all my life — and that's a long time."

The centenarian has spent a lifetime in the Quinte district's northern bushland.

"Why I know every tree around here by name — and some of those tallest timbers were nothing but sprouts when I was a young un."

"I surveyed and blazed trails over every inch of bush from Northbrook to Gilmour for every timber operation in this part of the country over the last 85 years."

"And I'm not through yet," he adds.

Mr. Trumble's conversation was reported in the department's monthly news letter.

Tate Murder Suspects Planned 11 More Killings: Police

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — A pseudo-religious hippie gang linked with the murder of actress Sharon Tate and at least seven other persons planned 11 more killings, but never got around to them, police sources said today.

The names of the 11 intended victims were found in a list in the cult's secluded desert commune in Death Valley, but they were not murdered because a police raid in October ended the gang's activities, the sources said.

Three members of the gang have been arrested on murder warrants—Charles Watson, 24, held in his home town of McKinney, Tex.; Linda Kasabian, 19, who gave herself up in Concord, N.H., and Patricia Krenwinkel, 21, arrested in Mobile, Ala.

Authorities moved to have them extradited to California.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office will go before the county grand jury Friday to get indictments against four or five other members of the gang for the murder of Miss Tate, 26, and four friends at her Bel Air home Aug. 9.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled today in Independence, near Death Valley, for Charles Miles Manson, 34, described as head of the occult group and known as "God" and "Satan." He is charged with possession of stolen property.

Testimony probably would be confined to a raid on the hippie commune, said District Attorney Frank Fowles. Deputies arrested 23, then released all but 10. The latter were held on a variety of charges including auto theft. They included Manson.

Police said several members of a nomadic group of hippies, last camped near Death Valley and including Watson and Miss Krenwinkel and Kasabian, committed all seven killings. They declined comment on statements by a lawyer linking this group of hippies with Manson's cult.

Meanwhile, a Santa Monica court today was expected to free a 31-year-old woman, Shelley Nadell, who said she learned the grisly details of the chain of murders and told police after talking to her hippie cellmate, Susan Atkins, 21, a member of the gang.

Miss Atkins's lawyer, Richard Caballero, told reporters police believe his client was at three murder scenes—the Tate killings, the murder of millionaire supermarket owner Leno LaBianca and his wife Rose Aug. 10 and the July 25 torture murder of a 34-year-old Los Angeles musician, Gary Hinman.

Police want her as a principal witness in the murder trial, Caballero said, although he did not say whether she had been offered immunity against self-incrimination. He claimed his client did not participate physically in any of the murders.

Caballero said Miss Atkins was among several persons whom he said Manson "hypnotized" and "intrigued" into believing they "belonged to him." He said most were women.

Press reports of the story Miss Atkins told Miss Nadell, and which Miss Nadell passed on to the police, said three young women and two men went to Miss Tate's rented hippie dressed in black and carrying sheathed knives.

One of the men had a gun and another gang member cut the telephone wires.

Steven Parent, 18, a friend of the house caretaker, was the first killed as he was driving toward the front gate of the hilltop house.

The killers then entered the house where they stabbed Miss Tate, who was 8½ months pregnant, after refusing to listen to her pleas to save her baby.

Miss Tate's two house guests, Voityck Frokowski, 37, and coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, tried to escape but were stopped on the lawn, stabbed and shot. Frokowski offered the gang money if they would spare his life.

A woman member of the gang took a towel, dipped it in the blood of one of the victims and scrawled "pig" on the front door. The towel was then draped over the head of the fifth victim, Miss Tate's former fiance, Hollywood hairdresser Jay Sebring, 35, to make it look like a hood.

Miss Nadell is reported to have learned that next night the same five were ordered back to Los Angeles to kill LaBianca and his wife because gang leaders thought that after the Tate killings they might "lose their nerve."

One of the girls killed Mrs. LaBianca while the rest of the gang killed her husband and mutilated his body with a fork. They then sat down to a meal from the LaBiance refrigerator and had a shower before returning to their desert commune in the California-Nevada border.

Hamilton Teachers Get Vote on Offer

HAMILTON (CP) — The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation said Tuesday a meeting will be held here next week at which city teachers will vote on the latest contract offer from the board of education.

The OSSTF executive rejected the offer at a meeting with the board last Friday, but some teachers have since asked for a vote on the proposed contract.

Meanwhile, the board said some of the 843 teachers — of a total of 1,153 — who handed in their resignations last week have asked they be withdrawn. The resignations are effective Dec. 31.

Ward McAdam, president of the OSSTF, advised teachers not to withdraw resignations until a mass meeting is held early next week to vote on the offer. No specific date was set for the meeting.

The resignations were handed in before the offer was made. By law, teachers wishing to resign can do so only at the Christmas or Easter vacations.

Failure to reach agreement on the pay dispute before Dec. 31 — effective date of the resignations — would close 20 Hamilton secondary schools with a total enrolment of 19,286.

'Open House' Held At Rehabilitation Centre

NAPANEE — This is a big week in the former Happy Day School, now the workshop for the Adult Rehabilitation Centre Industries supported by the Lennox and Addington County Association for the Mentally Retarded. Thursday evening there will be an "Open House" with coffee and doughnuts for all the visitors.

But that is not the important thing for the eight trainees, nor for the administrator Harry Pollard. To them the important thing is the display of articles they have been preparing for this day. Since September the five girls, and sometimes the three young men, have been making items for their Christmas bazaar.

The raw materials have cost little, as they have been donated. But patience and imagination have resulted in useful and beautiful articles. Better still, the fact that they were doing something useful has raised the morale of these "special" people, who, if it were not for A.R.C. Industries, would be sitting unhappily at home.

Last week they received two donations of TV sets and a radio. Both are used, but are in good condition. But they still lack a stove, and many other things, a vacuum cleaner for one, if all the girls are working on card tables, looking forward to the day when they will have something steadier, such as stacking tables. Some day, they hope, they will have a large paper cutter. They still need many things, but they are managing so far. The administrator is amazed at the response that has come from the public already.

Support for the A.R.C. Industries, or workshop, is the responsibility of the Association. The school for retarded children, which used to be in this building, is now at Morven and is government supported.

Legion Seeks Half Holiday Armistice Day

PICTON (Staff) — Members of Branch 78, Royal Canadian Legion, Picton, forwarded a letter to Mayor H. J. McFarland, requesting him to declare Nov. 11 a half holiday next year.

Mentioning the letter to council, Mayor McFarland suggested that the stores could perhaps close from 10.30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Council discussed the suggestion and carried a motion asking merchants to close from 10 A.M. until noon on Armistice Day next year.

Soprano Louisa Budd Charms Listeners at Community Concert

By EUGENE LANG

In spite of the opposing factors of winter's frosty fingers clutching the city and the excitement of election fever grasping local interest, a good sized crowd was in attendance at BCI auditorium Monday night to witness the initial appearance of Louisa Budd, collcreature soprano in the second of this season's Community Concert programs.

Hailing originally from Montreal, this charming young singer has spent all but her first 12 years in the U.S. Since the age of 13 she has sung professionally, beginning with the Miami Symphony under Raymond Paige. After two seasons with the Metropolitan Opera Studios, Miss Budd created a sensation as the American National Opera Company in their 1967 fall tour in the title role of Alban Berg's Lulu. She has a goodly number of leading operatic roles to her credit in the standard as well as the seldom-heard fare. She has many awards and scholarships to add to her laurels as well as a bachelor of music degree from the Manhattan School of Music. With this fine list of musical credentials she is now making her first concert country recital tour. A performance with Leonard Bernstein in Fidelio of Beethoven looms on the horizon the beginning of next year.

The program was one of varied balance in representing five schools of vocal output from the last two centuries. Clear intonation, careful control and superb range were immediately apparent in the two opening Rossini excerpts with a lissome lilt in the Cavatina,a cuppie treatment of the Mediterranean rhythms of the Bolero.

Especially notable for local listeners was the ecstatic scena and aria Mia Speranza Adorata Sai Qual Pena of Mozart, a concert aria of tremendous difficulty written for the special voice of his sister-in-law Aloysia in 1782 (program notes were wrong in their background to this aria). To fully do justice to this high wire number one must have trapeze-like vocal virtuosity, otherwise one is lost. Miss Budd gave a remarkable rendition of the delicate climbs required but the vocal summit was reached careening. The stodgy Teutonic in the aria section for a two-week engagement. The huge song-and-dance hit about Broadway's immortal George Michael Cohan has stage - screen - radio - television star Darryl Hickman in the title role of the show that ran more than a year at New York's Palace Theatre many standing ovations ago, and it brings to Toronto a huge company and the heaviest scenic production currently on the road.

Other principals in a talent-studded cast include Ted Pritchard,Linda Larson, Pamela Reeden, Jennifer Williams, Judy Knaiz, Jane Coleman, Frank DeSal, Denny Shearer and Tom Breslin.

The big musical is loaded with the great, tuneful songs of Cohan melodies like "I'm A Yankee Doodle Dandy," "Harrigan," "Mary," "Nellie Kelly," "Give My Regards to Broadway," "Over There," "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" and "You're a Grand Old Flag."

GEORGE M! is a family - appeal show with the songs and dances that etched George Cohan's name indelibly in the annals of show business for more than two decades of his musical and dramatic hats.

This "Barnum show" of the recent New York musicals is directed and choreographed by the renowned Joe Layton and has a book by Michael Stewart, author of "Hello, Dolly," and John and Fran Pascal. The entire score is drawn from the treasure - trove of Cohan songs (he wrote 400 over a period of 40 years) with lyric and musical direction by Gary Cohan Rankin, his daughter.

Musical Hit George M! Coming to O'Keefe Centre

The flagship attraction on Toronto's roster of coming Broadway musical hits is the block - buster exiled simply GEORGE M! It is due at the O'Keefe Centre on December 8, for a two - week engagement.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE SELLE — Geraldine Page and Academy Award Winner Ruth Gordon co-star in the suspense thriller "What Ever Happened to Aunt Alice?". Performances every: Monday to Friday and 2:00, Special children's matinee Saturday and Sunday at 2:00 p.m. featuring Charlie Chaplin Film Festival" and "The 3 Stooges in Orbit".

AT THE PARK — Only Two More Days to see this terrifying shocking feature, "Valerie" starring Daniele Ouimet, also on the same program is "School For Sex". Evenings 6.30 - 9.30 Last Complete show at 9.18. Recommended for persons of 18 years of age and over.

Speaker Emphasizes Canada's Need For Technical Graduates

Canada's ever - increasing need for technical graduates was highlighted in a strong speech given by Paul King, Dean of Technology at Loyalist College, Belleville, and addressed to a large gathering of local teachers. Mr. King was guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Quinte Technical Teachers' Association, held last Friday evening at the Belleville Armories.

A smooth transition from high school to community college is essential; all too often the high school graduate coming from a fairly restricted school environment, finds it impossible to cope with now-found freedoms in community college or university. A solution has to be found. Even closer co - operation between high school and college teachers must be achieved to make this transition more relevant.

Curriculums have to be revieved constantly in the light of the changing face of knowledge. The stage has now been reached where knowledge and training received more than ten years ago have almost become obsolete. It has been suggested that Degrees and Diplomas should be written on paper which would self - destruct after five years. So far - fetched, certainly, but "dated" degrees are being seriously considered, where the recipient would have to apply for renewal every few years to stay alive in his field.

From its beginnings in 1965, the community college has offered up-dating courses in many areas, and this aspect of education is expanding constantly. In view of this function of up-dating other educators, it follows that the community college instructor will himself be involved in a program of continuous up - dating.

Traffic Lights Soon Operating

Following several weeks delay in the installation process, new traffic lights at the corner of College Street and Cannifton Road and at Victoria Avenue and Church Street will be placed into operation this week.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said he had been informed by the installers that the lights at Cannifton Road and College Street would be placed in operation on Thursday, and those at Victoria and Church on Friday.

Nature's Wonders Shown to Rotarians

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

A glimpse of the world of the naturalist — a realm the majority of people never enter because they have neither the perception of the keen observer nor the patience for what may-take hours to discover and record on film — was afforded Belleville Rotarians Monday.

"There is a lot to see in this world — but we go through it blindfolded as it were," Jack Austin of Wooler said.

Blaming the pursuit of the "almighty dollar" for much of North Americans' lack of interest and concern about their matchless outdoors, Mr. Austin urged more emphasis on the preservation of our natural resources.

The veteran globe naturalist said the field of nature photography is so vast, a man would have to live to the age of about 150 to cover all aspects of it.

Hours spent behind camouflaged blinds are among the requirements for the nature photographer when he is shooting birds, for example; also an electronic flash whatever the lighting conditions, in case the sun should disappear at the vital moment; and for flower photography, tinfoil (but no flash) behind the subject, to provide reflected light.

Mr. Austin illustrated his talk with examples from his files of superb photography which won him two honorable mentions and two appearances in a Chicago exhibition of 4,000 slides from 24 different countries. His subjects ranged from a wide variety of bird species, grasshoppers and insects to wild flowers and outdoor scenes.

Ideally, nature photography should show nothing of the hand of man. The birds, said Mr. Austin, must be photographed in their natural habitat. One slide of an owl and its offspring was from a gold mine! in Dallas, Texas. The birds are usually aware something

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Bed-wetting Often Difficult Problem

Few conditions in parent-child interrelationships are so disconcerting as bed-wetting. The child blames himself. The parent blames himself — but more often, the child. Each may be innocent. At last, most parents are beginning to realize that the youngster is not "trying to get back at them." No child likes to sleep on wet sheets — or wake up feeling guilty when the mother shows her disappointment: or resorts to physical and emotional punishment.

If your child is a bedwetter, the first thing you must learn is that the child hates it as much as you do. Never hit him, make him wash his sheets, or openly castigate him in front of his friends. Sometimes a lifetime cannot wipe out these early emotional affronts.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My 8-year-old son still wets his bed. We have tried being kind and understanding; but we have also punished him for "being bad." Nothing seems to help. Do you think it's time to see his doctor? We've been too ashamed to go. Silly, but somehow we believe it is all our fault — and the doctor is a personal friend of the family. — Mrs. O.

Comment: The doctor-visit is long overdue. I assure you the doctor will not think less of you because of this common stubborn problem. He may even have it in his own home. Your doctor will investigate and try to help. Meanwhile, here are some practical suggestions.

Your boy will require complete study of his urinary tract — bladder, kidneys, urinary outlet (urethra); and of his general health to make certain that the enuresis (bed-wetting) isn't caused by some organic trouble.

If your son's bladder capacity is too small (a common fault in bedwetters) he will be told to drink more fluids daily, and taught how to withhold urination as long as possible to increase bladder capacity. This may take months, so you will have to be patient.

Also ask him about electrical "alarm" or "buzzer" systems which wake the child at night, and often are very effective. I repeat: be patient and understanding.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is diabetes mellitus as serious as real diabetes? — Mr. A.

Comment: They are one and the same.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have rheumatoid arthritis. My doctor has had me on aspirin and nothing else. There has been no change for the better. In addition I am becoming disfigured. He does nothing for this. Shall I forget it or go to another doctor? — Mrs. S.

Comment: One reason why we tell people with rheumatoid arthritis to see their physician early is to prevent unnecessary disfigurement. If aspirin doesn't work, we consider using cortisone derivatives, gold therapy, etc. I hope I have answered your question: Ask your doctor for consultation. If he refuses, you have the right to see a specialist in rehumatic diseases.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Could you please advise me on how I should go about piercing my ears? (I have my mother's permission.) — Miss D.

Comment: It is a simple procedure. Nevertheless, as I've mentioned before, I believe it is a job for your family doctor.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is it unusual or unnatural to reach age 50 with no menopausal symptoms? (Starting age was 12 years.) I consider myself lucky. Also, I have no gray hair, although I have been a nervier all my life. — Mrs. D.

Comment: In fact, most women reach the menopause without disconcerting symptoms like hot flashes, nervousness, etc. It should be a natural gradual process. Most women have been unduly scared of the change of life since their teens.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 4

Your birthday today: The year ahead is unsettled. It is very promising for long-range probabilities but short on immediate improvements in income. You will have to revise your plans and directions several times to take advantage of opportunities to expand your position or gain experience. Today's natives are noted for being willing to take a risk.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The earlier you check with important people on today's plans, the better. A great deal can be done through teamwork.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Make sure all concerned know what you are striving for. Much of what is done today will bear lasting results.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The first order of business today is to decide on what is to do and who is going to do it. Find some time for personal matters.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Get your facts and figures straight, and file any pending reports.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Make sure that you work toward personal goals or on something that is compatible with them. Contacts with influential people come more easily, so get busy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Enjoy the calm of a well-started day. Find out what is to be accomplished. Ask for whatever you need. Keep notes or records of everything.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You have a chance to get several issues straight or, at least to avert confusion. Finish whatever has been started rather than set up new or experimental activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Neglected or delayed work can easily be resumed and made current.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Early meetings offer certain advantages, particularly further introductions. Include some essential steps toward your own personal hopes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The most helpful people want no particular notice or special reward. Seek technical and professional counsel, but consider it before using it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): New contacts made early in the day turn out to be very stimulating and rewarding. If you are not happy with your work figure out what to do about it.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Make sure your partners are ready, then do something to improve joint fortunes. Move as a group toward a fresh goal. If you are working alone make preparations for a larger move tomorrow.

Manhattan Voyage Praised

CALGARY (CP) — A private marine consultant says the super tanker Manhattan deliberately lodged itself in arctic ice several times during its navigation of the Northwest Passage last summer in order to gather data.

Captain Tom Pullen of Ottawa, who travelled aboard the tanker as an official Canadian observer, said this has given some people a false impression that the Manhattan's voyage was not a success.

Captain Pullen told a symposium on arctic exploration methods Monday that the tanker's primary mission was to gather data.

"As a result of her voyage the shipping season in the Arctic will be extended by months, not weeks."

Pollution of the Arctic environment by damage to large oil tankers in northern waters has been exaggerated by critics of tanker transport, he said.

Vessels carrying oil in the north would be double-hulled or would have water ballast tanks below the waterline and the likelihood of spillage due to damage was remote.

Gone to His Head

Enthusiasm for a Santa Claus parade has gone to the head of this volunteer — fortunately for Belleville. Finishing touches now are being put to lineup of floats being readied for Saturday's event — until this week feared a victim of public apathy. All that's changed and for details see stories on Page 2.

NATO Wary of Plea For European Parley

Canada Favors Advance Talks

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada received support at the North Atlantic Council today for a suggested method of procedure in dealing with the Warsaw pact's call for a European security conference.

The proposal advanced by Canada, Marcel Cadieux, undersecretary of state for external affairs, at a November meeting here was that NATO should pay as much attention to the manner of approaching the East as to the substance of any talks.

British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart welcomed the idea, and an informant said later one of the alliance's next major steps likely will be study of methods of carrying out discussions with the Communist group.

Meanwhile, ministers who spoke at today's opening session of the two-day council—with the proposed European conference taking high priority—were agreed that such negotiations would be useful only if it had prospects of concrete results and did not result in freezing the present relationship of Russia to the Eastern bloc countries.

There was a general air of caution about the Warsaw pact group's urgings for a conference to prepare for such talks, and there appeared little likelihood one would come off before 1972.

The Canadian group at today's semi-annual session headed by External Affairs Minister Sharp was reported favoring a conference in principle but insisting that there should be enough advance groundwork to assure it of some success in lessening East-West tensions.

The allies, too, appeared agreed on two points:

1. The Russian-dominated Warsaw pact countries would have to show some recognition of the NATO principle of a "balanced reduction of forces" as a pre-condition.

2. They also would have to extend full participation to the United States and Canada in such a conference. Up to now, their attitude on attending the transatlantic NATO partners has been equivocal.

Wednesday's opening session of the ministerial meetings—as the defence planning committee —saw Canada and Britain at odds over one facet of the Canadian reduction of forces in Europe.

Defence Minister Cadieux took exception to the way his British counterpart, Denis Healey, spoke of the Canadian halving of land forces in West Germany and talked back at him in what was described as "strong and eloquent" language.

Urban Renewal Letter Is Issue

Aldermen Annoyed

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

An October 31 letter to City Manager J. R. Reynolds from Ontario Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, in which he sugested discussions regarding the feasibility of continuing the city's urban renewal scheme study, was one of the main items of debate at yesterday's council meeting.

Although written more than a month ago, the letter did not come to the official attention of council until yesterday and two aldermen wondered why.

"The letter should have been before us earlier," complained Alderman Paul Russell, suggesting that it could have made a difference in council's action on the urban renewal question.

Alderman Douglas Boyle said he considered it "amazing" that the letter had not been brought to the attention of council at its two previous meetings.

"Did the city manager feel the letter was not relevant?" asked Alderman Douglas Boyle.

In defence of his action in not including the letter on earlier council agendas, City Manager Reynolds said he took the position that the letter from Mr. McKeough had been written to him personally as chairman of the urban renewal co-ordinating committee.

He said there was no mention in the letter that it be brought before council.

"The letter was to me asking that I bring it before the co-ordinating committee," he said. "If I was wrong, then I was wrong."

Mr. Reynolds said that last night was the first occasion that a full report on urban renewal issue could have been brought before council.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said he had no knowledge of the letter until Tuesday night.

Yesterday was the second time in the past two weeks that council members have complained of correspondence and reports being missing from council agendas.

Caracas Jet Crash Kills 62

CARACAS (AP) — Rescuers pulled bodies, clothing and parts of an Air France airliner from the shark-infested waters of the Caribbean today, and said there was no hope that any of the 62 persons reported aboard the big jet had survived its plunge into the sea Wednesday night.

By early morning, the bodies of 11 women, and nine men had been taken from the waters off La Guaira port, seven miles north of Caracas.

Canada Suggests UN End Duplicate Talks

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada elegantly suggested Wednesday that United Nations delegations might like to consider talking a little less on a given subject, even one as explosive as apartheid.

Canadian delegate Benjamin Rogers did this by mentioning that under the situation prevailing here the same subject sometimes comes before more than one of the General Assembly's seven main committees.

For instance, he said in the budgetary committee, the subject of apartheid-separation of the races in South Africa — is being discussed in three committees this session.

Human environment was before two committees, there were two separate items on the problems of youth on the General Assembly's agenda and some it discussed separately could well be merged under one heading for general debate.

Rogers suggested creation at the next session of the assembly a committee of "three wise men" to thoroughly study the workings of the assembly and its committees.

Some observers here suggested that it took certain courage even to make passing implication that apartheid — the most important subject before the UN in the minds of many Afro-Asians — might be restricted to discussion in only one committee.

Rogers also called for a reduction of the number of meetings of the various UN committees, subcommittees and conferences throughout the year. He said that this year it is estimated that the number of these meetings will reach 6,604.

He said that the problem of proliferation of such conferences is becoming more and more acute. Total meetings in 1960 were 2,769, in 1967 the figure was 5,388 and in 1968 it was 5,952.

Financing Is Major Problem For Kingston Bridge to U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Charles MacNaughton says financing will be a major problem to be solved if a bridge is to be built over the St. Lawrence River near Kingston.

A bill was introduced in the United States Congress Wednesday that would authorize that country's participation.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson said the Canadian government "is prepared to pass legislation if the provincial government indicates it wants the bridge.

Mr. MacNaughton in an interview said: Certain matters are still under consideration—particularly in the field of financing. The U.S. Senate bill is enabling legislation and similar legislation can no doubt be passed by Canada and Ontario if, upon completion of continuing studies, a decision is concurred in and satisfactory conclusions on financing are reached."

He said the bridge, if built, would be a toll project of Thousand Island Bridge Authority.

Cost of the proposed bridge is estimated at $40,000,000. It would be a toll system of two spans with a connecting link on Wolfe Island, Ont.

The bridge authority says it would allow the shortest road route between Toronto and New York city.

MPP's Christmas Gift

Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings, and wife Beverly, symbolically decorate Christmas tree with nomination papers which were something of a yuletide gift from constituency Conservatives last night. Meeting at Tamiflton they gave Mr. Rollins acclamation as candidate whenever the next Ontario election is called. (For details see Page 3.)

Agnew Gives Commandments Of Protest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew outlined what he called the 10 commandments of protest in a speech to United States governors at a White House conference on drug abuse.

Agnew said Wednesday the commandments, which he said were advocated by an "outspoken minority," tell the majority "Thou shalt not:

"Allow thy opponent to speak.

"Set forth a program of thine own.

"Trust anyone over 30.

"Honor thy father or thy mother,

"Heed the lessons of history.

"Write anything longer than a slogan.

"Present a negotiable demand.

"Accept any establishment ideas.

"Revere any but totalitarian heroes.

"Ask forgiveness for thy transgressions, rather thou shall demand amnesty for them."

U.S. Army Board Unhappy About Original Massacre Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Army investigators looking into a possible coverup of the alleged My Lai massacre of South Vietnamese civilians called for questioning today Capt. Ernest Medina, commander of the unit reported to be involved in the incident.

Medina was the immediate superior of Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., the army platoon leader charged with premeditated murder in the deaths of at least 109 civilians at My Lai March 16, 1968.

The inquiry is an attempt to determine if a brigade-level investigation last year into reports civilians were killed unnecessarily was whitewashed.

Interviewed Wednesday were five officers who were in Vietnam at the time of the incident.

A spokesman for the board, headed by Lt.-Gen. William R. Peers, said it was not satisfied with the scope and nature of the investigation by the 11th Infantry Brigade of the army's Americal Division, which concluded 20 civilians had been killed.

Accounts by soldiers and former soldiers who said they witnessed the killings have put the figure as high as 300.

Brig.-Gen. Winant Sidle, army chief of information, said of the original investigation after Wednesday's closed session:

"The fact that it took over a year to get to the department of the army obviously indicates that something should be looked into."

Among officers interviewed Wednesday was Chief WO Hugh Thompson, an army helicopter pilot credited with calling attention to the possibility of "unnecessary killing" of civilians the day Medina's C Company, 1st Battalion, 20th Infantry, 11th Brigade moved into My Lai.

Another was Col. Oren K. Henderson, commander of the 11th Brigade.

Sidle declined to say what charges, if any, might come out of the investigation, which is separate from the investigation which resulted in charges against Calley.

Senior Citizens to Get 80 More Housing Units At Palmer Gardens Site

The Ontario Housing Corporation has approved construction for 80 senior citizens' apartment units in Palmer Gardens subdivision opposite the Belleville fair grounds grandstand.

This is 30 more units than had been originally intended and will bring to more than 160 the number of senior citizens' units approved for Belleville.

Two years ago a 37 - unit apartment setup was constructed on Turnbull Street and another 45 have been approved for construction on an adjoining site.

At yesterday's city council meeting, W. S. Knox, OHC representative, said his organization had approved a contract with Cownbrae Ltd. for construction of 80 units at the West Bridge Street site.

Cost of the apartments, to be built on a four - acres site, would be $788,500. Included in the scheme would be a two - bedroom apartment for a permanent resident caretaker.

Mr. Knox said the Gowanbrae project, similar to the senior citizens' apartments was the only tender received and was "most acceptable."

Community Services directors in a letter to Mayor J. Russell Scott and members of council under the signature of their president, Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan.

The letter said there was "ample evidence" to say that the observance of Belleville Week adversely affected the appeal "not only in the money that was drained off through the sale of booster buttons, etc., but especially in the fact that our extremely good advance publicity was almost totally lost in the fanfare of the Belleville Week that followed."

The letter asked that if such weeks or projects were held in the future, they do not conflict with the United Community Fund which is always conducted during the last part of September and the early part of October.

"Our experience of failure in past years should make it evident to all that complete co-operation on the part of all is essential if the social agencies serving our city and district are to be adequately financed.

"The source of voluntary dollars is running dry and the only package the people will buy is an attractive one, enthusiastically presented, with no obstacles placed in the way," said the letter.

At yesterday's council meeting members approved a recommendation not to allow such functions as Belleville Week to interfere with future United Appeal campaigns.

Council Okays Santa Parade

Belleville city council yesterday approved the Santa Claus parade planned for this Saturday, but for the time being will hang onto the $300 grant normally given to help pay parade expenses.

The reason for the grant holdup is that council doesn't know who should be paid.

The permit for the parade will be issued to Belleville's Don Foster, who volunteered to stage the annual pre-Christmas show after the official Santa Claus Parade Committee bowed out of the picture.

There was also a request in council for the annual $300 city grant toward the Santa Claus parade, but it didn't come from Mr. Foster.

Instead, the grant request came from W. G. "Bert" Reddick, chairman of the city's reorganized parade committee. He indicated the money was required to pay storage and insurance costs for parade equipment.

Council was not certain whether there was any connection between the two groups and decided to withhold the grant until after the parade.

"We can decide at the next council meeting," commented one alderman.

Parade Honors Don Foster

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Santa Claus parade has been definitely revived — and will go on Saturday as scheduled.

Proof positive that enthusiasm for the event is alive and well in the city came last night when close to 80 citizens turned out to support Belleville's Don Foster's single - handed bid to continue the 15-year-old tradition.

The revival meeting, held at the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization office, found Mr. Foster report on progress of parade organization this week.

Mr. Foster, widely known for his clown mechanical inventions that enliven galas around Eastern Ontario, undertook to organize the parade after public enthusiasm apparently had waned.

The parade, he said last night, now will go on as scheduled at 10 a.m. Saturday and will include up to 30 floats, six bands and six majorette troupes. They will muster at the West Moira St. Arena.

It will march down Front Street to Market Square, up Pinnacle Street to the city recreation building.

In tribute to Mr. Foster and the enthusiasm he suddenly inspired in the project, last night's meeting formally lifted the event the Don Foster Santa Claus Parade.

Pornography Worries Councillor

By MARGARET BAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — Pornographic photographs in Picton?

Deputy - reeve Donald Thompson this week told town council that this type of material is definitely available here.

"There are pornographic pictures at town and anyone can get them. We can shut our eyes or we can get concerned," he emphasized.

His comments followed council's discussion of a resolution opposing pornography and related literature forwarded to Picton town council by Markham town council.

The resolution referred to an increasing tendency in recent years for "certain productions of the motion picture, live theatre and television industries and for certain publications and novels to have a content placing an abnormal emphasis on the sexual aspect of life, a good part of which content is in fact, of abnormal sexual behavior."

In the resolution, Markham council stressed that desirable heroes and values should, in general, be emphasized to the developing young people of this nation rather than the converse. Picton council's support of this resolution by passage of a similar one was requested by Markham council.

In a brief discussion, Councillor William Lane pointed out that letters sent by individuals to their MPPs as a protest of objectionable literature, movies or television productions are often effective.

"This is a national program not just a local program," observed Councillor Reid. "Why should we interfere on a national level?"

Deputy - reeve Thompson moved to endorse the resolution observing, "We on the local level should be concerned with the national problem."

LAZIER — In ever loving memory of a dear mother, Lena, who passed away December 4th, 1966. There is a sad but sweet remembrance
There is a memory fond and true,
There is a token of affection
Mother,
And a heartache still for you.
—Forever remembered by daughter Mary and family.

LAZIER — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Lena Lazier who passed away Dec. 4, 1966.
The midnight stars are shining,
Upon your silent grave,
Beneath it sleeps the one we love,
And the one we could not save,
—Always remembered by husband Jim, Sylvia Jean, Larry and Lorna and Kevin and Neil.

EMPEY — In loving memory of a very dear sister, Ivy Agnes, who passed away so suddenly Dec. 4, 1964.
It's somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loneliness never comes,
My sister is in the land of glory,
Meet the blue and the face of the Lord,
I who knew and loved her,
Those lasting brought and tears,
I will cherish her memory forever,
Throughout the passing of years.
—Dearly loved and sadly missed by Pearl.

HARRISON — In memory of a dear friend Gisele who died on Dec. 4, 1954.
Only a memory of bygone days,
And a sigh for a face unseen,
Only a longing that God alone,
Knows just what should have been.
—Ever remembered by Pearl.

SAVAGE, Ralph — In loving memory of a wonderful husband and father who passed away Dec. 4, 1964.
As long as life shall last,
You will remain in our hearts.
—Lovingly remembered by Helen, Diana, Ann and Tony.

DAVIS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Mercy Davis, Foxboro, who passed away Dec. 4th, 1964.
Just as you were, you will always be remembered.
Treasured forever in our memory.
—Always remembered by Kay, Lorne and Bill.

ABBOTT — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandpa, Roy Abbott who passed away Dec. 4, 1964.
Dear God, forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish a husband and father and grandpa was here.
Others were taken, yes we know,
But he was ours and we loved him so.
He made no one a last farewell,
He even said goodbye,
He was gone before we knew it,
And only God knows why.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Nevina, daughter Marjorie and son-in-law Lawrence, also by his grandchildren Roy and Karen.

Hastings PCs Reaffirm Faith in Rollins

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Clarke Rollins received his Christmas present from the Progressive Conservatives of Hastings last night — their unanimous approval to once again represent them come Ontario election time.

More than 400 of his supporters trekked from the four corners of the sprawling riding to wrap the gift in an acclamation labelled with a record 48 nominations.

They presented it to him with a standing ovation at Club Cedars in Cannifton — an event which for some meant a 100-mile hike from winter-bound farms and hamlets in the deep reaches of Pointe back country.

For Mr. Rollins it was a mass reaffirmation of local party loyalty for 16 years at Queen's Park — the occasion's spirit emphasized by the fact no election is in the foreseeable future.

Riding party president Ken Smith stressed the convention did not signal election preparations at Queen's Park. The party's provincial executive had been eager that all constituency organizations hold nominations as early as last spring he said.

Highways Minister George Gomme, guest speaker for the rally, was equally emphatic when asked if the Robarts government already was contemplating going to the country no soon after the 1967 Ontario election.

"No, I don't think so — I hope not," he laughed.

With the stress of a campaign far removed, the conversation relaxed into a testimonial of Mr. Rollins and his political stewardship.

The burly Bancroft MPP came up through the ranks of local North Hastings politics and is a former warden of the county. He first entered the provincial arena in 1959 by winning representation of East Hastings, then roughly half of Hastings County, including a slice of Belleville.

With redistribution in the mid-1960s his constituency was redrawn to exclude Belleville, the urbanized Bay of Quinte shoreline west to Trenton and include nearly all of Hastings County.

In every election during the past decade he has held the riding handily for the Conservatives, a key political figure in the big county constituency.

County Warden Donald Rodgers summed up the atmosphere of last night's event when he told Mr. Rollins:

"I would like to publicly thank you . . . I can assure you there are many, many things that most people are not aware of that Clarke has done to assist not only local government (councils) — but the county government.

Mr. Gomme discarded much of a prepared speech to recount Mr. Rollins' Queen's Park services — and to boost fervor of local party workers on the MPP's behalf.

"You've done a great service to yourselves in making him your candidate," he told delegates.

"Each and every one of you is going to work whenever the clarion calls, to see that he's elected," declared the highways minister.

There was even an accolade from Belleville's Chamber of Commerce.

Jack Ireland, going chamber president and president of the federal Hastings Progressive Conservative Association, presented Mr. Rollins with a scroll for a contribution to the city's industrial growth.

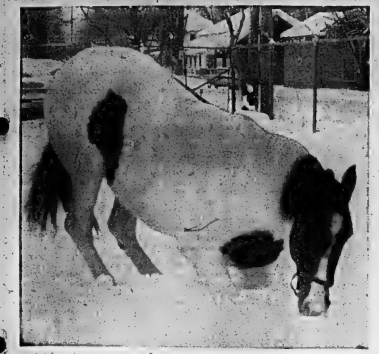
Mr. Ireland noted Belleville's recent pace of industrialization — more than 60 had come, he said, Mr. Rollins personally assisted in obtaining 53 acres of land from the highways department. South of the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway the blue became Belleville's first industrial park, said Mr. Ireland and was "actually the start" of the city's current success story.

But the biggest tribute of the night came from the delegates.

Representing 27 riding associations, many had travelled more than 100 miles to vote at the meeting — more than 90 had driven to Bancroft where they picked up buses to drive them to Cannifton, local constituency president Smith.

Nomination cards were passed among the delegates and returned to committee organizers with little delay.

The nominations totalled 48 — all for Mr. Rollins.



The MPP covered a broad range of county topics in his acceptance speech — particularly emphasizing the role local governments played in community life.

Pollution control, he said, had been among controversial issues in the riding — particularly at Moira Lake.

However, the lakeside community of Madoc now was working on a control program with the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

"I'm hopeful when this program has been completed it will be satisfactory to all concerned and that all the controversial problems will be cleared away," said Mr. Rollins.

He also urged the party organization to strive for a program next summer aimed at young people.

Rev. Press reporting of church activities was the topic and the delegates toured The Intelligencer during the afternoon.

Province Paving the Way, Gomme Tells Delegates

Belleville might never have had it so good without Ontario government industrial loans, a provincial cabinet minister indicated here last night.

In fact, without the Queen's Park incentive program for manufacturers, recently - acquired industry might have settled elsewhere, said Highways Minister George Gomme.

His reminder of senior government's role — through the Ontario Development Corporation — in the unprecedented pace of recent local industrialization came at a convention of Hastings Progressive Conservative Association at Cannifton.

Mr. Gomme was keynote speaker at the Club Cedars rally which reaffirmed incumbent Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins as the party's candidate whenever the constituency faces an election.

"In this region alone . . . almost $13,000,000 have been invested by industry and your government in the past two years to establish and expand manufacturing," said the minister. "When this is fully operational, it will provide over 1,000 jobs for people of this area.

"Without the loans granted and administered by the Ontario Development Corporation, these industries and jobs have been lost to another area," he added.

Some 18 loans were granted in the area — 13 forgiveable and three repayable, said the minister.

He named as prominent among new industries in the area Allied Chemical and Wilson Sports Equipment (in Belleville) and Crane Canada and Moore Business Forms (in Trenton).

Mr. Gomme also reminded the predominantly rural and small - community delegations their home areas would benefit from the increased industrialization in the area's urban belt.

Modern workers are willing to commute and the jobs created will open opportunities for marginal farm dwellers.

Commercial operators will benefit from increased cash circulation while service industries will be an offspring of the industrialization.

"It's no accident that we in Ontario enjoy one of the highest levels of income and prosperity in Canada," he said.

"True, we have been favored by nature and geography to some extent, but it is long-range planning . . . that has put us where we are today."

Meantime, the highways department makes a substantial contribution to local economies — spending more on subsidies than on highways.

"This year . . . we spend more on direct financial aid to municipalities — 195,800,000 — than we do on construction of King's highways — $192,500,000."

Development roads — local arteries with higher traffic volumes than municipalities can match with standards — are of increasing importance in department estimates.

At present, the Ontario government is contributing 70.4 per cent of road costs in Hastings County, said Mr. Gomme.

"There's no county that knows the benefits of development roads better than Hastings," he added.

Urban Renewal Letter Issue

At the November 16 meeting Alderman Jeffrey charged other letters had been withheld from council. In reply to a question, Mr. Reynolds said he took full responsibility for what appeared on the council agenda.

Yesterday's agenda included a report on the urban renewal study from Mr. Reynolds, as chairman of the urban renewal co-ordinating committee, in which costs to date were laid out and also a copy of correspondence received from consultants Procter and Redfern.

Mr. Reynolds said in his report that the cost of carrying the urban renewal study to the conceptual stage would be $59,400, of which $19,385 had now been paid. The senior governments would pay 75 per cent of this cost, leaving the city's share at $14,846.

In September council voted to discontinue the urban renewal study following receipt of a letter from Cambridge Leaseholds, principals of the proposed north - end shopping plaza, who said they would not contest a re-hearing of the plaza issue unless the urban renewal study was terminated.

The October 31 letter from Mr. McKeough was in reply to a letter from Mr. Reynolds advising that the urban renewal study had been discontinued by the city.

Downtown merchants are anxious that the urban renewal study be completed and two weeks ago came to council with the offer to put up $5,000 as the city's share of completing the study.Council took no action on the merchants' offer, deferring this until after the official presentation by Procter and Redfern of the first interim study report.

Yesterday, following the council meeting, Mr. Reynolds said the city's original agreement with Procter and Redfern was for $81,900 as the cost of the complete urban renewal study.

The cost of bringing the report to the conceptual stage was given as $59,400, leaving a difference of $22,500 as the cost of the complete study. The city's share of this amount would be $5,625.

Council tabled Mr. Reynold's co-ordinating committee report until its next meeting.

In the meantime city council, the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the Urban Renewal Citizens' Committee will meet at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium on December 10 to hear Mr. Allen Brass, of Procter and Redfern make the official presentation of the firm's first interim report on the urban renewal study.

Subversion Threat

If the people of this country have been under any illusions as to the threat of Communist subversion, recent events in Quebec and now the revelations that members of the Company of Young Canadians are involved, should dispel them.

What is happening in Quebec — and indeed Canada as a whole — through the medium of some elements of the CYC has its parallel in disturbances elsewhere in the world fomented by the agents of Communism.

Northern Ireland is an example. The Cameron Commission which investigated the riots there noted the presence of people whose deliberate intention was to provoke violence.

Moreover, the visit of Irish MP Bernadette Devlin to the United States at the height of the trouble in Ulster was sponsored by the National Association for Irish Justice. A left wing group, it shares office space in New York with the Peace and Freedom Party, an affiliate of the Black Panther Movement.

Miss Devlin, herself associated with the so-called People's Democracy (shades of Eastern Europe) movement in Ireland told a press conference in London last May that "the kind of Ireland I would like to see is a united republic on Cuban lines." As her statement suggests, this group seeks establishment of an alien regime developing at Ireland — including the republican government in Dublin.

But to return to Canada and the situation in Quebec. Evidence has been presented that Cuba is very much involved in the training and indoctrination of terrorists in that province. It would appear there is constant traffic between Quebec and the Communist outpost in the Caribbean.

Two years ago, it will be recalled, Radio Havana broadcasts were heard inciting Quebecers, Indians and Metis to revolt.

Michel Cote, chief attorney for the Montreal Executive committee, testifying before the parliamentary committee investigating the activities of the CYC, read a letter written to Cuban authorities by a CYC worker. In it he said he and his wife wanted to go there by boat and "meet with revolutionaries."

Somewhat naively the writer listed among his credentials the fact he was twice arrested in 1964 as a member of the FLQ. A document seized at the man's home urged "systematic work among the masses" as avant-garde character for the struggle that will certainly shake capitalism to its roots."

This is the kind of Communist gibberish that should cause rejoicing among the fraternity in Moscow, Peking and Havana. Even that phlegmatic Argentine, Ernesto (Che) Guevara, were he still alive, would doubtless be pleased at this progress of his revolutionary ideals overseas.

For the federal government, however, Canadians at large and former Prime Minister Pearson in particular (the CYC was his idea), it is less of a laughing matter.

Oh No!

A while ago we suggested those gargantuan maxi coats the girls are wearing would look great on the soldiers — just the thing for winter wear.

Now it seems the girls out in Halifax and neighboring Dartmouth have found themselves some real bargains. Applying reverse psychology they are buying up military greatcoats, particularly navy coats, at war surplus stores and altering them for use as maxis.

Instead of paying $30 or more for the real thing, they are buying these ("like crazy," according to one store proprietor) for $5 to $7 each.

And to think that a few years ago the store had to take the coats to the dump because nobody would buy them . . . !

Meanwhile ladies, heed this warning from Marjorie May, director of home safety for the Greater New York Safety Council — maxis can easily trip the wearer on stairs and curbs, and get caught in escalators as well as in buses, elevators and revolving doors. And another thing, dry-cleaning charges for the maxis run about double the price of a regular-length coat.

Ottawa Conference

According to Prime Minister Trudeau a federal government paper on income security and social services will be one of several documents to be released in advance of the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa commencing Dec. 8. These are both areas of prime significance to Canadians and the paper will be awaited with interest.

Wallace Nesbitt Wants Investigation of News Media

CBC's Anti-U.S. Bias Singled Out for Special Criticism

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — A front-bench member of the Conservative Opposition in the Commons has called for a Royal Commission to study what calls the press, radio and television of Canada.

Wallace Nesbitt, MP for Oxford constituency in Ontario, does not want a probe of the press by politicians or college professors — "we have had enough of them." But he does propose a hard look at the communications media by well-qualified people from the news business.

Mr. Nesbitt is convinced there are many things wrong with newspapers, radio and television in their handling of news and public affairs. He believes the best way to determine what the trouble is and how to cure it would be a thorough study by a Royal Commission appointed by the federal government.

The suggestion by Mr. Nesbitt takes on added significance in the light of the criticism of the U.S. media by vice-president Spiro Agnew. Mr. Agnew says the media can no longer stay up in ivory towers and criticize — they must come down and justify their work and views like the politicians.

Mr. Nesbitt does not make sweeping condemnation of the press, radio and television of Canada. But he is concerned about special areas, particularly the news and public affairs programs of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

He feels that CBC newscasts and public affairs programs are not of high quality and that sometimes they are slanted.

Mr. Nesbitt says the CBC is guilty of blatant anti-Americanism that shows in its news content as well as public affairs and the commentators chosen to appear on these programs.

While he has complained to make about CBC television on these grounds, he said CBC radio is worse. Mr. Nesbitt singles out the morning radio news cast "The World At Eight" as a prime example of newscasts with an anti-American bias.

He refers to the prominence given on this newscast to views opposing the American presence in Vietnam. He speaks of the very extensive coverage given by the CBC to Moratorium Day parades in the U.S. He recalls CBC coverage of American presidential political conventions which clearly showed prejudices of CBC staffers.

Mr. Nesbitt observes that in the Broadcasting Act the CBC is charged with making a positive contribution to Canadian unity. But he says the corporation appears more concerned with being anti-American than pro-Canadian.

"The trouble here too is that the CBC is so breathlessly eager to use broadcasts that are anti-American that we can hardly get the corporation to carry Canadian news.

"Day after day we get broadcasts about crises in the U.S., about parades and demonstrations against the so-called establishment in the U.S. —meantime we can't find out what is going on in the rest of Canada."

Mr. Nesbitt wonders about the recruiting practices of the CBC for commentators and reporters. "Are we in many from Britain?" he asks. He says it is because they have the desired political background for the CBC?"

Mr. Nesbitt wonders about the CBC broadcasts from Washington. He finds that the CBC staffers in the U.S. capital are not giving balanced reporting. "Some people thought it would improve after James Minifie left but that has not been the case," the Conservative member related.

What really riles Mr. Nesbitt and not a few of his colleagues in the Commons is that the newscasts and public affairs programs they object to so strenuously are being paid for by the taxpayers.

"Surely from this public corporation we are entitled to good, straight reporting and a balanced viewpoint — but we do not get it."

The whole media situation in Canada — especially the CBC — could well be examined by a Royal Commission, Mr. Nesbitt observed. It now appears will say — not another commission — but this would be different. It would be a commission of well qualified people, looking hard at their own field.

Not minding his words, Mr. Nesbitt put it this way. "The commission should not be any kind of an interference by government. It should be a case of the best qualified people in the business, seeking means to clean up their own mess."

Prime Minister Trudeau, who himself often says uncomplimentary things about the press, may learn of Mr. Nesbitt's proposal with interest.

"Upon considering the opinion of Canada's foremost financial expert instead of that raise, I've decided to lower your salary to $30 a week!"

'Barber of Seville' Was A Co-operative Effort

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Two weeks ago the people of Belleville were given the opportunity to see and hear the Canadian Opera Company in a highly enjoyable presentation of the opera "The Barber of Seville". A full auditorium attested to the popularity of that particular cultural event.

As is the case with Belleville's industrial affairs, so it is with her cultural and recreational affairs: many things happen but the general public is frequently not aware of the effort involved in making these things happen.

Through the mediation of the Quinte Arts Council, and because of the co-operation of the Province of Ontario Council for the Arts and the Canadian Opera Company, this particular event was offered to us at a price the community could afford.

Yet, had it not been for the willingness of the Belleville Rotary Club to undertake all the many tasks necessary at the local level, the production might still have passed us by. With no possibility of making any profit whatsoever, the Rotary Club, as a service to this Community, handled advertising, had tickets and programs printed, sold tickets, managed the house, and handled the finances for this production.

Organizations and clubs such as Rotary, whose interest is the total well-being of the Community in which they exist, certainly play an important role in developing and maintaining the growth and vitality of the Community.

C. M. IRWIN,
President Quinte Arts Council.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oscar II, Henry Ford's peace ship, sailed for Europe 54 years ago today—in 1915—at the climax of anti-war (sometimes anti-British) agitations in the United States. Aboard were Ford, about 50 ministers, politicians and businessmen and more than 50 reporters. The aim of the voyage was to hold a neutral peace conference and halt the First World War, in which the enormous death toll were already shocking the neutral public. Lacking any specific plan, the mission had no effect and Ford returned to the United States as soon as Oscar II docked.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—Chinese infantry completed the capture of air strip outside Bhamo, 170 miles northeast of Mandalay; Allies took Akaoe junction town of Selelaki; American heavy bombers attacked Kassel, Mainz, Giessen, Oest and Beberal in Germany; Japanese troops penetrated inside China's Kweichow province.

Letter to Editor

Pioneer Immigrants—Information Sought by Quebec Researcher

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I would like to contact readers of your newspaper who came to Canada from the British Isles prior to 1940 as child immigrants.

These were children, and youths brought out by various British Emigration Societies, such as the Barnardo Homes; Church of England; Salvation Army; Quarrier Homes at Scotland, Liverpool Sheltered Home etc. Only those interested in telling of their experiences for research which may be published, should reply.

I would especially like to hear from any who were among the 150 children in the first Barnardo party to come out after World War I, arriving on the S.S.Sicilian at the port of Saint John, New Brunswick, March 28, 1920.

I would also like to hear from descendants of children brought out during 1869 - 1900 by the pioneers of the child emigrant movement, in particular: Maria S. Rye to OUR WESTERN HOME at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario. Annie Macpherson, Louise Birt and Mrs. W. Merry who had Homes at Knowlton, Quebec: Stratford, Galt and Belleville, Ontario. Wm. Quarrier of Scotland with a Home at Brockville, Ontario. Dr. T. Barnardo with Homes, at Toronto, Peterborough, Ontario and Russell, Man. Dr. Stevenson with a Home in Toronto and Mr. Fegan who had one in Hamilton. W. T. Middlemore who had a Home in Nova Scotia. The Misses Smylie of Dublin who had a Home at Hespeler, Ontario.

Anyone interested in this project, please write to me: Miss Phyllis Harrison, 7 Vanier Avenue, Lucerne, Quebec.

Your help in publicizing this need will be very much appreciated.

PHYLLIS HARRISON.

U.K. Popular Old World Lures Americans

Kingston Whig-Standard

According to the British Travel Association, American tourists are swarming into Britain in ever greater numbers. What the Association has discovered with regard to this new tourist invasion should be a most beneficial reminder to Canadian tourism promoters and city planners.

Just under a million Americans vacationed in Britain during the first nine months of 1969. This represents a 31 per cent increase over the same period last year. The September total alone was 163,000 — an increase of 34,000 over September of 1968.

We in Kingston, have perhaps as much of this quality in our city as exists anywhere on this continent today. We must value it at its worth and strive to exploit its aesthetic and material potentialities.

Enoch Powell Against ECM Membership

UK's Chances Improve But It's Still Political Football

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

President Pompidou's cautious approach at The Hague to British membership in the European Common Market could boost the cause of those in Britain opposed to an entry bid.

Although expressing support during the market's summit conference for the entry of new members, the French chief of state also urged that the organization's interests be carefully considered in preparations for talks on the subject.

Pompidou's remarks were termed relatively conciliatory in some French quarters.

But in Britain, anti-market spokesmen quickly picture d them as further foot dragging in the tradition of ex-president de Gaulle.

Enoch Powell, whose opposition to market entry is currently embarrassing his Conservative party's official leadership, resumed the attack Tuesday with an assertion that British trade would lose more than it gained from adhesion to the market.

The outspoken MPs campaign may benefit from a growing economic self-confidence among Britons, enhanced by Tuesday's announcement of additional gains for the country's gold-and-dollar reserves in November.

Indications are that there is a sufficient anti-market tide at the grass-roots level to cause Conservative Opposition Leader Heath worry over Powell's stand, especially since the MP has shown a keen sense of mass feeling in the past.

Another British politician with a similar awareness of popular opinion—especially in the last months before a general election—is Prime Minister Wilson.

Unlike Heath, the Labor party chief is not absolutely identified in the public mind with unswerving dedication to the Common Market cause.

Despite his strong commitment in recent years to market negotiations, Wilson has lately turned cautious on the subject, insisting that Britain would join the community only if the conditions offered are right.

Adding to anti-market sentiment in both the Labor and Conservative parties and elsewhere is the warning that joining the Common Market would mean increased food costs for Britain.

A widespread argument, too, is that Europe now needs Britain as much as, or more than, that country needs economic involvement with the Continent.

Such convictions could cause the British to conclude that they can afford to let Europe come to them, with London in a stronger bargaining position than in previous years.

In line with this, a prediction has been aired by one commentator in London that Wilson may switch to opposing Common Market entry and thus turn a tense Conservative chances for winning the next election.

Film Receipts, Burke Address Booster Shots for Biafra Week

PICTON (Staff) — Operation Manna, a fund drive for Biafran relief will sponsor a film, at Picton's Regent Theatre Monday night.

Angel in My Pocket, starring Andy Griffith, will be shown on the opening night of Biafra Week, approved Monday night by town council.

Proceeds from the movie will go to the fund drive headed by Rev. Robert Jones of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Picton, and Rev. Peter Breedveli of Bethany Christian Reform Church, Bloomfield.

Rev. Jones observed this morning that no events have yet been programmed for next Tuesday. Speaking at Picton United Church on Wednesday evening, Dec. 10, former CBC national newscaster Stanley Burke, will tell the Biafran story to Prince Edward County residents.

The church seats 1,100 persons and Rev. Jones hopes to see it filled on this occasion.

If time permits, there is a possibility Mr. Burke also will address students of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute in the school auditorium next Thursday morning.

Door-to-door canvassing in Picton and probably in Bloomfield, will round out Biafra Week.

For rural residents of Prince Edward County, donations to Operation Manna will be received by area contacts.

Rev. Jones reported this morning that about 50 volunteers will be canvassing during the relief campaign. Yesterday Rev. Jones, Rev. Breedveli and Rev. Robert Sherwin of Picton United Church attended a principal's meeting at Pinecrest school in Bloomfield.

The clergymen addressed school principals requesting that the classrooms initiate a Biafra program in their studies next week. Rev. Jones suggested the Biafran situation could become part of history or geography lessons.

The ministers expect a decision from the principals today.

Last night organizers of Operation Manna addressed the Picton Kinnette Club, requesting them to participate in Biafra Week.

Headed by committee chairman Jennie Connors, 12 Kinettes have volunteered to act as ushereties in the United Church next Wednesday where Stanley Burke will speak.

Rev. Jones has addressed a young people's group of the Bethany Christian Reform Church urging them to "spread the word" to fellow students concerning Biafra Week.

He felt that these teens exhibited enthusiasm for the project and showed eagerness to arouse interest among their contemporaries.

Rev. Jones again stressed the importance of letters from individuals addressed to Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharpe, and to local members of parliament.

A statement concerning government support of Canairelief is expected within the next two weeks. Rev. Jones believes that if enough letters flood the desks of government officials their decision concerning Canairelief might be of a "thumbs up" nature.

Picton Council Urged to Ensure Teen Dance Accommodation

PICTON (Staff) — Councillor Margaret Ackerman submitted a letter to town council suggesting that it is its responsibility to ensure suitable accommodation for a teen dance on New Year's Eve as planned by the Kinsmen Club of Picton.

After discussion council agreed to forward the letter to the Prince Edward County Board of Education for its consideration. At the board of education's November meetings, two delegates from the Kinsmen Club addressed members seeking permission to hold a teen dance in one of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute's auditoriums on New Year's Eve. The request was not granted and no specific reasons for the refusal were given to the Kinsmen. They were told, however, that the school's facilities would be available to them on any other night of the Christmas vacation if they wished to hold a dance.

In her letter to council Mrs. Ackerman stated, "The Kinsmen Club of Picton has spent a great deal of time in 1969 preparing for and staging dance parties in co-operation with teenagers in Prince Edward County. So far, all of these dances have been successful. There has not been even the slightest unpleasant incident at any of these functions. Much of our youth is left to employ their leisure time without direction, assistance or example. Lacking in experience, the end result is so often trouble, in many well known forms.

"Yet when the Kinsmen Club asked for the use of an auditorium at Prince Edward Collegiate for a New Year's party for our youth, the board of education, representing the parents and taxpayers of the county, denied them the use the building on that date!"

The leter continued to outline a series of points for consideration, among them the fact that "Prince Edward Collegiate Institute is the property of all the people of this county. It is the legacy and inheritance (along with the large tax levy it entails) of our youths. The narrow 9 o'clock to 4 o'clock concept of education can no longer be applied to our schools in these ever changing times."

Reeve Bernard Hepburn reminded council that the Prince Edward board of education is an elected body, free to make its own decisions. He added, however, that he agreed with Mrs. Ackerman's letter and observed that Hastings County has opened all its schools for any functions. He suggested that the Prince Edward County Board of Education follow this example.

Mrs. Ackerman reinforced her opinions, commenting, "I don't think the board of education gave adequate reasons for its refusal."

Deputy reeve Donald Thompson noted, "Our authority over the board of education is very limited." He then moved that the letter go before the board for its consideration. Council carried the motion with no further discussion of where Picton teens might dance on New Year's Eve.

4-H Club Achievement Day

The West Hastings, 4-H Homemaking Club Achievement Day was held Saturday, November 29 in the Centenary United Church hall. Fifty-nine girls from eight clubs completed the project that day.

The clubs, leaders and assistant leaders were: Bay of Quinte, Mrs. Ross Sickle and Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson; Carmel, Mrs. Wilmot Embury and Mrs. Arthur Treverton; Sidney South I, Mrs. Gerald Grills and Mrs. Hilbert DeBoer; Sidney South II, Mrs. R. V. Tomalty and Mrs. Jack P. Caddick; Sidney South III, Mrs. John Best; Stirling, Mrs. Elville Wannamaker and Miss Debra Gliddon; Wallbridge I, Mrs. Leonard DeBruin and Mrs. Harry Fisher; Wallbridge III, Mrs. Horace Knight and Mrs. Stanley Hawryluk.

After registering at 9:30 a.m., the girls brought recipe files and vegetable relishes to display. Their record books were already set up. The program opened at 10 a.m. and Miss Mary MacEachern, Hastings County Home Economist presented the leaders with badges for the work put into the project "Dressing Up Vegetables". The morning activities were explained and each girl took part in a quiz, identifying 15 kinds of vegetables judging a set of menus and giving oral reasons.

Lunch was provided by the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute and milk was provided by the Hastings County Milk committee.

The afternoon program was opened by welcoming the guests. The exhibits, demonstrations and skits were presented as follows: exhibit, "Quality Counts" by Carmel Vegetarians, commentator, Janet Ross; skit, "Let's Try These Vegetables" by Sidney South Pesites Legumes, all members taking part; exhibit, "Vegetables All Year Round" by Sidney South Vegetablettes, commentator, Frances Tomalty demonstration, "A Vegetable Relish Plate" by Sidney South Vego-lets, with demonstrators Pat Harrington, Darlene Sills and Shirley Best; exhibit, "Five Ways With Carrots" by Stirling Galloping Gourmets, commentator, Judy Merrill; exhibit, "Vegetables For All The Family" by Wallbridge String Beans, commentator, Evelyn Knight; skit, "Color Counts" by Wallbridge Vegetable Gourmets, all members taking part; exhibit, "Vegetable Centrepiece" by Bay of Quinte Red Hot Peppers, commentator, Brenda Harder.

Mrs. Mary Lou Norton, the visiting Home Economist from Picton gave comments on the exhibits, skits and demonstrations.

Miss MacEachern presented Certificates of Achievement to all girls completing a second project.

Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey, West Hastings District Women's Institute president presented the county and provincial honor awards to: county honors — Barbara Ketcheson, Bay of Quinte; Kathy Embury, Carmel; Helen Treverton, Carmel; Linda Perry, Sidney South I; provincial honors, Evelyn Knight, Wallbridge III.

A five-year leaders' certificate was presented to Mrs. Horace Knight, of the Wallbridge III Club. Sterling silver spoons were presented to each member and leader completing the project.

The program was closed with an invitation to take part in the next project, "Focus on Fitness".

Following the Mass a social hour was spent at the Healey home and all went to the Stoco Hotel where a meal was served.

Father Healey was the guest speaker at the dinner. Several of the guests also offered their congratulations and wishes to the happy couple. On behalf of the family, Earl presented his parents with a gift of money.

Later a reception was held in the Parish hall at Stoco, where a large crowd gathered to offer best wishes. During the course of the evening an address was read by Gerald Johnson and Leon Courneyea presented Mr. and Mrs. Healey with a pole lamp and mirror on behalf of their neighbors.

Tabernacle UCW Hold Christmas Bazaar

The focal point of interest as one entered the Tabernacle Church Hall on Wednesday afternoon for the annual tea and bazaar was the beautiful display of Christmas decorations and ornaments. Colorful candles, wreaths and centre-pieces were the main objects of attraction.

The Christmas theme was carried out in the auditorium decorated by Mrs. C. W. Booth and UCW unit 8. Suspended from the ceiling was a large assortment of Christmas decorations.

General convener for the event was Mrs. Earl Pickell and co-convener was Mrs. Norman Wessels. Greeting the guests were: Mrs. R. Crooks; Mrs. E. Pickell; Mrs. N. Wessels; Mrs. B. Stetson; Mrs. E. A. Cornish and Mrs. C. Matier.

The fancy work booth was convened by Mrs. R. L. Lockyer and unit 1; homebaking Mrs. G. Ashley and unit 2; aprons Mrs. W. Way, Mrs. G. Brickman and unit 4; delicatessen, Mrs. H. Robinson and unit 5; candy Mrs. H. Barlow and unit 6; children's wear Miss E. Hortus and unit 7; toyland Mrs. D. McLean and Mrs. W. Babbitt; men's club Mr. A. C. Walker, Hi-C Mr. D. Grant and Explorers Mrs. A. C. Walker. In charge of Christmas decorations Mrs. G. Irving assisted by unit 9.

The main table in the tea room had a pink candle centrepiece amongst an artificial flower arrangement and in the background was a living room scene complete with fireplace and a brightly lit Christmas tree surrounded with gifts. The individual, tables had white linen table cloths and a candle centrepiece.

In charge of the tea room were Mrs. F. Butler, Mrs. R. Johnston and unit 3. Hostesses were Mrs. D. Atkins, Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. J. Hunter, Mrs. A. Armstrong and Mrs. G. Brickman.

While the guests enjoyed a cup of tea the children were taken care of in the nursery by Mrs. Lavergne, Mrs. R. Knox and Mrs. G. Grant.

Canadian Way of Life Talk Given

The Canadian Club of Belleville held its last meeting before the Christmas season recently at the Sir Winston Churchill School.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis, president, opened the meeting and introduced the speaker, Norman Robin, who has recently moved from Saskatchevoan to Ottawa where he is at present on the staff of the Secretary of State.

Although only in his early 30s, Mr. Robin has travelled extensively in Europe, Asia, Central and South America, and in his talk, compared Canada and the Canadian way of life to what is found in other countries. He praised the institution of marriage and emphasized the fact that a strong family unit which can communicate with each other and bridge the "generation gap" is one of the greatest factors in strengthening the democratic way of life.

Mr. Robin spoke too of the great contribution made by the United States in the development of Canada in industry, research, opening of the Far North, etc. He pointed out that Canadians would not now be enjoying the high standard of living that we have, if Americans had not been willing to risk and invest their time, money and endeavors in Canada.

Mr. Robin contrasted Canadian life with life in Communist and Communist - dominated countries. His opinion was that the best way to protect the democratic way of life and to encourage uncommitted countries to adopt it rather than Communism, was to support the U.S.A. in its efforts to contain Communism and stop its expansion, and to assist the uncommitted and underdeveloped countries with money, technical assistance and personnel.

Following his brief speech, Mr. Robin replied to the many questions and expression of opinion by the members of the Canadian Club.

Mrs. Ellis announced that the next meeting would be held on Monday, Jan. 19, when Mr. Christian de Laet would speak on "The Nightmare of Politics in Canada".

Mini-bazaar Held At Napanee Hospital

NAPANEE — The Auxiliary of the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital held another of its mini-bazaars in the hospital lobby last Wednesday afternoon and again had a successful day.

Although there were no extra Christmas decorations, the Christmas theme was evident with many colorful sales items. To emphasize the theme, each guest for the "holly" tea was presented with a sprig of holly and each table had its Christmas cloth.

Committee members were loud in praises of the hospital administrator E. H. Mills and of the hospital staff for splendid co-operation. The diet kitchen staff assisted with refreshments and made the tea and coffee and brought it to the board room, where it was poured.

Because of the limited space, there was no receiving line but Miss Gladys Gehan was hostess. She is the auxiliary secretary, and was named treasurer for the day in addition to collecting fees for coffee and tea.

Mrs. Geoffrey Wayne and Mrs. Dennis Rodrigues, co-chairman of gift shop convened the event, and had a host of helpers.

Deseronto women took full responsibility for the morning coffee, with Mrs. G. P. Diclinson as convener, having the assistance of Mrs. Max Lush, Mrs. Charles Gray and Mrs. C. A. Sergeant.

The bake table was re-filled several times, but every item was sold before closing time. Mrs. Bert Asselstine and Mrs. William Maracle were conveners.

A touch-and-take table was the responsibility of Mrs. Mervin Connery.

Because of lack of space the gift table contained an assortment of items in different sections. Mrs. Rex Ashby proudly displayed a fine assortment of knitted articles. The baby sets in particular were popular sales items. People from many parts of the country responded to a recent appeal for volunteers, and now this section of the gift shop had many busy fingers keeping it plentifully supplied.

The section displaying Christmas decorations was a beautiful, as was each item. Prices varied according to the size of centrepiece or arrangement, according to the material used. Mrs. A. E. Thomson was chiefly responsible for creating these with several helpers. An assortment of articles from the gift shop such as toys and handiwork of volunteers occupied another section. Assisting at this table were Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. Wynne, Mrs. Rodrigues and Mrs. Lillian Lockie.

Mrs. E. W. Dow convened the tea, with two shifts of women serving.

Sing-out Group Performs

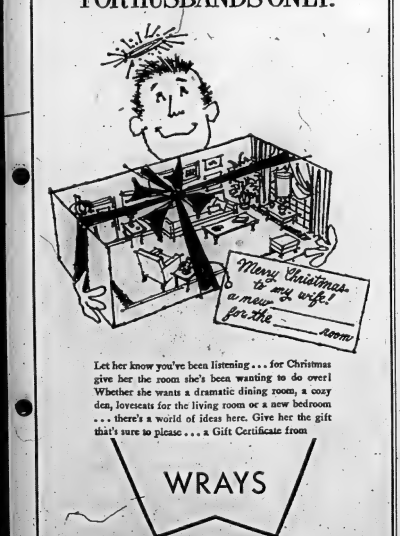
TWEED — Both Tweed-Hungerford District High School and Centre Hastings Secondary School were privileged recently to be entertained by the Roslin Sing-Out Choir. Staff and students enjoyed an hour of rousing music and song.

The Sing-Out cast, consisting of forty-five members ranging from 14 to 19 years in age, has been together eight months. The members come from Roslin area. They have their own form of government and are not part of any one organization.



Producer Al Taylor, director Ann Ketcheson, choreographer Bonnie Row, and pianist Mrs. R. Taylor should be proud of these "Teenagers" and their show.

The cast presented twenty-one selections with solos and duets by Betsy Howell, Chris Howell, Judy Howell, Carol Martin, Carol Sills, Penny Pleisler, Susan Ray, Judy Martin, Kathryn Meeks, Bonnie Rowe and Bob Meeks.

The Ontario Department of Labour offers a future to men who feel they don't have one.

Dave Owen felt like that.

Dave left school when he was seventeen and became a packer in a shipping firm. That was five years ago. Things looked good, and he was self-supporting for the first time in his life.

But after two years, Dave got itchy feet. He moved..

A year later he moved again. And again eight months after that. This time he was out of work for five weeks. He got hungry. And worried.

Almost four years after he got out of school Dave Owen had no place to go.

He had no hope, no prospects.

The people at the manpower centre where Dave had found his last two jobs made a suggestion.

They offered Dave a chance to start at a large manufacturing firm where one of the Ontario Department of Labour's in-industry training programs was about to begin.

This program offered benefits for both Dave and his new employer. The employer could meet his skilled labour needs with people familiar with his techniques and trained on his equipment. Part of the cost of their wages and instruction would be paid by the Federal and Provincial Governments. And, because he'd trained them, he would gain their loyalty.

If Dave proved an employee under this training program he could learn a skill, get paid while doing it, and obtain a permanent job at the firm.

For Dave, it was a chance to be something.

The door began to open.

Dave stepped in.

That was a year ago. Today Dave Owen is a semi-skilled worker, a useful man. He's got a job he's good at and more money than he ever made before, and that's just a beginning.

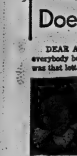
Now Dave Owen has a future.

In-industry training and apprenticeship training are only two of the responsibilities of the Manpower Division of the Ontario Department of Labour.

This same division upholds employment standards, regulates the private employment agencies within the Province, and directs the Women's Bureau and the Office of the Athletics Commissioner.

Another division deals with industrial safety, construction safety, the inspection of all the elevators and boilers within the Province and the certification of operating engineers.

The department also administers the Labour Relations Board, the Conciliation Services Branch, and the Human Rights Commission.



With such varied areas of responsibility the Department of Labour is much more than just the Department of Labour. It's really the Department of Labour and a whole lot of other things.

Ontario Department of Labour, Industrial Training, and a whole lot of other things.

Ann Landers

Gnawing Suspicion Doesn't Diminish Love

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sooner or later your column hits everybody between the eyes. We got ours a few days ago. It was that letter from the woman whose son looked just like "the other man."

ANN LANDERS

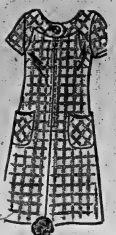
We too have a son who bears a startling (and embarrassing) resemblance to "the other man." But emotionally he's mine and this is what counts.

There's more to being a father than being a party to the conception. I couldn't be proud-er of this lad if I were certain he was flesh of my flesh. He is everything a father could want in a son. The gnawing suspicion that he is another man's child doesn't diminish my love for him one iota.

The "other man" lives in this city and we see him and his wife from time to time. They have several daughters — no sons. I'm sure every time he looks at this boy he dies a little. Fate can be cruel. I figure I was the lucky one. Print this if you think it will help that poor son-of-a-gun who signed himself "Tortured by Doubts." — ALSO DOUBTING BUT NO LONGER TORTURED.

DEAR ALSO: Here it is with my special thanks for sharing something painfully close to you.

* * *



DEAR ANN LANDERS: A dear friend of mine is being played for a fool. Her husband, who is crowding 60, is fooling around with a woman 25 years his junior. He belongs to a club that meets twice a month. After he says hello to everyone and is recorded as "present," he sneaks out. The babe meets him at the door and they go off together. My husband is in the club and so is my son-in-law. They are both on to the game — and so is everyone else.

This bum has a wonderful business and a fine family. I hate to see him get away with such cheap hi-jinks. If my husband was cheating, I'd certainly appreciate it if someone wised me up. Should I be a true friend and tell her? — LONDON, ONT.

DEAR LONDON: Be a true friend and keep your mouth shut. More often than not the wife is aware but she prefers to behave as if she knows nothing. This excuses her from making a move which might not be in her best interest — or in the best interest of her family. Informing a woman that her husband is cheating is no act of friendship. Real friends spare you grief. They don't come with stories that hurt your heart.

* * *

Confidential to ONCE TOO OFTEN: Don't bother a lawyer with such nonsense. You'll make a fool of yourself. Children who play together are bound to catch illnesses from one another. Maybe next week a neighbor's child will catch something from your youngster!

Cookie Nests Inexpensive Treat

By MARY MOORE

Cookie Nests are the last of my cookie offerings (I think!) before Christmas 1969.

They are delicate little morsels that surprisingly enough are quite inexpensive. To my surprise the two little boxes of maple buds that I bought cost me 18 cents each and each contained 29 buds. Because I had enough cookie dough for 70 "nests" I had to top the last 12 with whole pecans which looked pretty and of course tasted good. I predict that your guests will reach for these little confections first.

COOKIE NESTS
1 cup butter (or margarine)
½ cup icing sugar
2 med.-sized egg yolks
2 cups sifted but not sifted cake flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. almond flavoring
Two (or three) 18 - cent pkgs. maple buds (1 box contains 29)

In beater bowl cream together butter and icing sugar until light; then beat in egg yolks. Add flour, salt and flavoring and beat well. This is wonderful cookie dough.

Butter three cookie sheets and with a silver teaspoon, spoon little mounds of dough onto them, about 1" wide by 1" high and about 2" apart. Press a maple bud on top to press dough out flush with tip of maple bud. (Note: If desired a blanched almond or a whole pecan or walnut or ½ dried maraschino cherry may be used as the topping instead of maple buds.)

Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 20 min., switching and turning pans in oven at halftime. Do not brown these. They should be barely tinged with gold. Makes 70. Please clip this for your party cookie file.

Points for Parents

By MARY BETSON

Mother: "It's a good thing Christmas comes every year. It gives me a good chance to get rid of a lot of the children's old toys. I'll just dump all these things in a box for the Salvation Army."

Mother: "The Salvation Army will be glad to have some of these toys you no longer need if they are not beyond repair. Let's sort through these things and see if we can paint or mend some of the toys."

Charity is not getting rid of junk — but of giving something you think will be useful to others.

Home and School News

QUEEN MARY

Queen Mary Home and School Association meeting last week dealt with the problems of discipline.

Keynote speaker, M. A. Godin, MA, dealt with discipline both at home and at school. Mr. Godin is consulting psychologist to the Hastings County Board of Education.

Discipline, punishment and obedience are the three aspects of handling children that were dealt with in detail. Each family is different. Each member of a family is different. Therefore, different types of discipline, and punishment, must be brought into play to achieve the desired end — a happy and contented unit.

"Disobedience is a part of growing up," according to Mr. Godin. "But, the child needs the surety of being loved and cherished. He wants to please his parents (authority) and is often testing to see just what limits are set for him.

"Children need to have limits set for them.' Mr. Godin suggested that parents, and teachers, "teach the child — don't always say no — allow him to learn not to do things."

"Never withhold meals or send the child to bed as punishment. These are necessary parts of daily living and should not be used as punishment. Self - discipline, responsibility and self-respect must be fostered."

Mr. Godin outlined what he called "the Ten Commandments of discipline." he also suggested that, when disobedience seems to have a consistent pattern, that the cause should be looked for. This "cause" varies from reasons of health to "a feeling of being left out of things." There is always a reason which is valid to the child, even though it may not seem valid to the parent.

Following Mr. Godin's talk, four discussion groups were formed. The group leaders were Mrs. Demille, Mr. Davidson, Mrs. Sherritt, and Mr. Caswell. Mr. M. James, Mrs. M. James, Mrs. Gough and Mrs. Hodge presented the findings of each group to the meeting as a whole when they reconvened.

Mr. Godin answered questions following the discussions.

Mr. Caswell, principal at Queen Mary as well as a parent, summed up the essential finding of the evening.

"Nowadays, when we are considering the child as an individual, the keynote of all discipline and punishment must be understanding and flexibility."

Mr. Godin was introduced by Mr. M. James and thanked by Mrs. A. Clare. Mrs. L. May and Mrs. J. Lloyd provided a tasty lunch.

CONSUMERS BEWARE

MONTREAL (CP) — The Better Business Bureau warns consumers to beware of cognovit notes. Merchants generally use them when an item is purchased on time payments and the notes include a sentence to the effect that if one instalment is not paid when due, the entire amount as yet unpaid becomes due immediately, or at the option of the merchant.

Reader Likes Doris' Column Because of Difference from Others

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: Yesterday there was a letter of criticism. Sorry, we can't all agree, but I like your column partly because it is a bit different from most others.

If these "confidential" answers help the persons concerned, they are worth while. Some would not dare to write if their letters were to appear in print or an answer come by mail.

Speaking of lead-in paragraphs: the one ending "Wishes are horses — beggars do ride", gives me a lift every time I think of it.

The letters concerning Depressed interested me as I know of another depressed one who was able to pick up the pieces and go on after serious thyroid condition. —A Fan

Dear Fan:- Good for you! Did it ever occur to you that in order to get inspiration out of such a thought as the wishes and horses, a person has to be inspirable?

Thank you for your comments. I hope Depressed is reading these messages about her. Your concern is heartening.

* * *

Dear Doris: I noticed the letter from Depression Baby. In our present affluent society it seems to me that a collection of recipes from those days would be most useful for young homemakers right now.

Incidentally, I am sending along an old favorite of mine — a casserole dish featuring sausages and some intriguing additions like tomatoes and cheese. Filling and not too expensive. — Now a Granny

Dear Granny: We do seem to be affluent in spots. But to judge by my mail, there are plenty of us who still have to stretch a dollar bill as far as it will go. Which isn't very far.

I'll be glad to pass your sausage casserole idea on to anyone writing in and enclosing 10 cents and a six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

Dear Doris: I wrote you about four years ago telling you that I had a young son in the U.S. Marines and that I spent a good deal of time writing to my lonely boy. You suggested that since I showed signs of writing ability, I should try writing for more than one boy.

Perhaps you would be interested in the sequel of my story. I continued writing just everything I wanted my son to know. Just a year ago, he was killed in Viet Nam. He had passed from being a mixed-up kid to a very worthy man. I sent my heart on writing his biography. First, I had to teach myself to write.

"I Raised A U.S. Marine" is just a simple presentation of a good son and a superior Marine, dedicated to all Marines and their mothers. It has been accepted by a publisher and should be on the market this month.

My story is so simple that any mother could have done it. My only hope is that it may help some lonely people who are living with vacancies without their own Marines. — Mixed Feelings

* * *

Dear Feelings: What a triumph! I wouldn't say that a writer was any sort of wonder person: just somebody who is full of what he wants to say and is concerned about being helpful. After that, what he needs is the discipline to be able to put words on paper.

A certain professor used to tell us, when we were trying to write a thesis: "Don't think you have to write a masterpiece. The main thing is to apply the seat of the pants to the seat of the chair and get something down on paper."

There's not a doubt in the world that your messages to your son will help many mothers and their sons. They might even encourage an embryo writer to grab a pen.

* * *

We now have some understanding of why people act as they do. Write to Doris about your particular burfan problem, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Most of Men in Jails Do Not Belong There

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The most obvious fact about jails, to anyone who has studied them, is that most men who are there do not belong there. About four-fifths of the "criminals" behind bars could be safely kept in some other social setting; only about 20 per cent require maximum security.

The modern prison is an obsolete vestige of a bygone era in penology. It needs not merely reform, but a radical transformation to bring it into the 20th Century. What keeps it so expensive, useless, and crippling is the combined ignorance, fear and apathy of the public.

One of the ways we can begin to break out of this futile and self-defeating system is by a "work-release" program, such as New York State instituted at Rikers Island prison this spring, following the lead of Wisconsin and North Carolina, where similar programs have been in effect for many years with good results.

More than 100 Rikers Island inmates are taking part in New York's first experimental work - release program which, as Corrections Commissioner George McGrath explained, "strikes at the very roots of some of the greatest evils inherent in the jail system." These evils include despair, cynicism, inertia, and lack of incentive to adjust to civilian society after release.

These hundred-odd prisoners leave in the morning and return at night. They work as office clerks, warehousemen, truckers' helpers, or at whatever skills they may have possessed before conviction. They receive the same pay as other employees and give back to the jail only a $3 - a - day charge for subsistence. The balance is deposited in the inmate's account for use when he is discharged.

This is only a tiny start, of course. Prisoners in for more than four months are not allowed to take part; only two per cent of the 5,000 men on Rikers Island are involved in the program. But the most encouraging aspect is the increasing number of employers who are willing to accept the inmates on their payrolls.

The great majority of the men in prison are not very different from the rest of us, although we like to think they are. Except for habitual criminals, and those with severe emotional disturbances, they are society's "losers" — men who could not cope with their environments, who succumbed to weaknesses, or who went from boyhood escapades to more serious criminality without comprehending the consequences until it was too late.

These are the men who can be saved — but who, in the present prison atmosphere are left to rot away and degenerate with society's derelicts. Our indifference is a greater crime than their transgressions.

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK THE VOTERS OF AMELIASBURG TOWNSHIP FOR THEIR SUPPORT AT THE POLLS.

YOUR COUNCILLOR
ROGER REDNER

HOW TO AVOID A WHITE CHRISTMAS

. . . A Colourful New Story From Arrow®!

As Christmas presents, white shirts are much too popular. Not that we care. We sell all kinds of them anyway. But we think it's high time you moved up into the late 20th Century — and we're not alone! Your wives, sisters, mothers, and so on, are probably itching to get you into the colour scene, with the big wide ties to boot (isn't that right, gals?). So let them know you're really with it this year. Casually mention that the vibrant new shades of Blue, Green and Gold would do wonders for your eyes, and the boldly wide (3¼ to 4") new ties are a must for any well-dressed man. Then sit back and wait for THE day. Maybe when you take off the Yuletide wrappings, all the colour won't be gone!

Christmas Decor

Deseronto UCW Hold Bazaar

DESERONTO — The Christmas bazaar and tea held by the Deseronto United Church Women recently in Glover Hall was a complete success, with guests arriving even before the opening hour, and filling the hall till the afternoon. Very little remained unsold on any of the tables, with the exception of some aprons and summer dresses for little girls which will sell in the spring.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. William Hendry and Mrs. Bruce Cuthill; and Mrs. Rockwell Hawley and Mrs. George Stuart. Mrs. Thomas Jackson received admission fees.

Mrs. Hawley, the president, convener of the tea, was assisted by Mrs. Cuthill and Mrs. Stuart, tea leaders; and Mrs. George Cole and Mrs. William Higgins. Tea hostess was Mrs. Ralph Aylsworth and Mrs. David Saunders saw to it that there were always cups and saucers ready for those who poured.

Table decorations were the work of Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe who had fashioned green nylon net Christmas trees for the nine small tables, and a larger one for the tea table. Each was decorated with tiny Christmas balls and artificial snow, and was topped by a star. Miniature wrapped gifts nestled below each tree. On the tea table were red candles in holly containers. All tables were covered with white damask.

Pouring tea were Mrs. Douglas Lawlor and Mrs. Malcolm Lazier from the Melrose Church; Mrs. Bert Coles, president of the Anglican Church Women; and Mrs. Mervin Sherman, president of the Catholic Women's League.

Looking after the wants of the tea guests were: Mrs. William Kells, Mrs. Thomas Shea, Mrs. Earl Keech, Mrs. Desmond Barclay, Mrs. Vernon Boomhour, Miss Anne Jackson, Miss Debbie Jordan, Miss Susan Barclay and Miss Ruth Lloyd.

Mrs. Douglas Cole made the many cups of tea, and Mrs. Robert Hart and Mrs. James Hamilton arranged the plates.

The bazaar featured three tables devoted to food, always popular. Mrs. Herbert Aylsworth, Mrs. Norman Davis, and Mrs. George Robinson were kept busy selling the pies and cakes, tarts and cookies and other delectable baked goods. Mrs. Harold Pierce and Mrs. Roland Alderson were equally busy at the candy table.

The Country Kitchen was something new, but was well patronized, with its vegetables, jams, jellies and pickles, and 46 pounds of English mince meat, the work of Mrs. George Lyons, Fulingly, the saleslades were from the country. Mrs. Percy VanVlack. Mrs. Harold McCaul and Mrs. Clinton Reindell.

The boutique was an innovation, containing all those items which did not seem to belong elsewhere. Christmas decorations and stockings, winter bouquets of straw flowers and of sprayed weeds and novelties made from soap were purchased mostly as Christmas gifts. Beautiful bread boards and salt boxes contributed by the Hawley brothers went quickly. Mrs. Hendry, convener of the boutique, was assisted by Mrs. Frances Walker, and Mrs. Ralph Kilmartt.

Overall convener of the project, Mrs. Hendry had Mrs. Sidney Browne, and Mrs. Harold Transue as her right hand helpers. Mrs. George Lyons was in charge of advertising.

The women are grateful to all who aided in any way in making the afternoon such a success.

Mrs. Joyce VanVlack and Mrs. Percy VanVlack were the co-conveners.

The table loaded with sewing and knitting was convened by Mrs. Sidney Browne, who had the assistance of Mrs. R. H. Boyce, Mrs. Merton Cummings and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds. All members of the congregation had contributed to this table.

The "Touch-and-Take" table was in charge of Mrs. Harold Transue, who was the sole saleswoman and Mrs. R. L. Sexsmith and Mrs. Gladys Gould looked after the White Elephant table. A book stall was very popular.

A plant wagon was a boon to African violet lovers, and to lovers of several varieties of other house plants. Mrs. K. Petlis, and Mrs. William Sills were the salesmen.

Mrs. Hendry had done the planning.

Women's Study Guild

Community Services Topic at Meet

Mrs. J. Sisson spoke to the Women's Study Guild at the November meeting on the 11 agencies supported by the United Appeal, stressing in particular the United Community Services with its many services to the people of Belleville. Mrs. Sisson has worked as leader of CGIT in a local church and with the World Service committee of the Family YMCA. This year she has worked with the commercial division of the United Appeal, so that she had many interesting and up-to-date facts to tell.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. L. Reid. Mrs. K. Daley, president, asked for reports from the conveners, and then called on Mrs R. Ellis for the devotional period.

Mrs. Sisson told of the organization of the United Appeal with its financial appeals committee, the budget committee and the appeal cabinet, and the duties and functions of each committee. She mentioned several of the 14 agencies in the United Appeal, telling of the type of work they do, commending particulary those who work with the youth of the community. "The lifeblood of the UCS is volunteers," she said that there is only one paid secretary, and that at present there is no director.

Volunteers perform the duties of typists, filers, canvassers, co-ordinators, people who work on projects, and resource people. Various projects were mentioned that receive support and encouragement under the UCS such as Christmas exchange, furniture exchange, the printing of the Leisure Time bulletin, friendly visiting to the elder'y, Quinte International Club, classes to teach English to new Canadians (mostly young mothers), meals on wheels, pre-school stimulation classes, pre-school classes for handicapped children, and many others.

In conclusion, Mrs. Sisson pointed out that needs change in a community; that welfare is only a stop-gap, so "that these programs were needed to give people a feeling of worth, of dignity and companionship. Mrs. R. Roulet thanked the speaker for her interesting presentation. Mrs. G. Maybee and Mrs. N. Meldrum were hostesses for the social hour which concluded the evening.

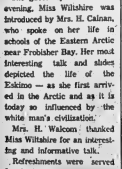
APHA DELTA KAPPA



Lambda Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa sorority, held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. L. Fisher.

During the business meeting, there was discussion concerning service projects and plans for the Christmas season. Plans were also discussed for the Chapter's Christmas party.

The guest speaker for the evening, Miss Wiltshire was introduced by Mrs. H. Calnan, who spoke on her life in schools of the Eastern Arctic near Frobisher Bay. Her most interesting talk and slides depicted the life of the Eskimo — as she first arrived in the Arctic and as it is today as influenced by the white man's civilization.

Mrs. H. Walcom thanked Miss Wiltshire for an interesting and informative talk.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Kennedy Monument Defaced

A workman begins Monday to remove swastika and the word "Pinkville" from the stone slab monument to the late U.S. President John F. Kennedy in Runnymede, England. The, seven-ton slab, on a three-acre site in a meadow outside London, was defaced during the weekend. Police said the word "Pinkville," recalling allegations of mass civilian murders by U.S. troops in Vietnam, and the swastika had been sprayed onto the slab with red dye. (AP Photo)

Railways Criticized

Public-be-damned Stance Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — The government and Canadian National Railways came in for further sustained criticism Wednesday as the Commons continued second-reading debate on a bill providing money for the Crown-owned railway.

One MP attacked the CNR's allegedly lop-heavy bureaucracy, another urged nationalization of the Canadian Pacific Railway and many flogged the government for policy failure.

Relatively little was said about the expenditures involved in the bill, which would authorize $261,700,000 capital financing for CNR and Air Canada for the 18 months ending June 1, 1970. Most of the money has already been committed.

The bill was introduced for debate last month.

Speakers have accused both the CNR and CP Rail of attempting to get out of the unrewarding field of passenger services. Recently, CP Rail asked the Canadian transport commission for permission to drop 18 passenger routes—practically its entire service. CN has listed 13 routes which it would like to drop.

The applications are the first steps by the railways to recover up to 80 per cent of their losses on the routes through government subsidy but hearings by the commission to determine which services should be maintained in the public interest have yet to be held.

To Steve Paproski (PC—Edmonton Centre) the applications are an indication of the railways' "public-be-damned" attitude. He told the House Wednesday the systems are "taking more and more out of the country and putting less and less back."

Other speakers found in the development proof that government transportation policy is destroying the balance between Canadian cities and the outlying regions.

Louis Comeau (P C—South Western Nova) claimed that threatened abandonments mean MPs will have to plead for the survival of small communities. Canadian cities are already overcrowded and unable to solve their problems, he said, but government policies on transportation are doing nothing to discourage the influx from the small towns.

"They are forcing people to centralize."

Mr. Comeau and P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) said a cutback in rail services means a deterioration in the quality of life in other ways. It would mean a greater dependence by Canadians on the automobile at a time when highways have become increasingly dangerous and when the automobile has been singled out as a main villain of the air pollution problem.

Roland Godin (Creditiste—Portneuf) claimed the management of the CNR was sick, top heavy with overpaid technocrats who didn't know their job.

He accused the government of covering up for CNR by refusing his request for information on the numbers of employees in various salary categories.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) was more favorable to the CNR but he wanted CP Rail nationalized. Among its other faults, he said, CP Rail was generally behind the CNR in arranging for the movement of grain from western elevators.

Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) had questions about the costing formula used by CP Rail to determine its losses on passenger services. He suggested the company's claim it lost close to $30,000,000 last year on its passenger operations should be "taken with a grain of salt."

Liberal Ross Whicher (Bruce) was inclined to shift blame for shortcomings to the railways. The government has given much to maintain adequate rail service he said but he was "not at all sure the presidents of the CNR and the CPR have kept up their end of the bargain."

Meanwhile, while presenting an amendment that would have the effect of killing the government bill, Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) suggested Parliament could best serve the national system by writing off its long-term debt of close to $2,000,000,000.

Neither the bill, nor the amendment which would postpone second reading for six months, came to a vote before the House adjourned at 6 p.m.

British Teachers on Strike

LONDON (Reuters) — More than 300,000 British schoolteachers have mounted a strike for higher wages in a dispute that could last for months.

Trouble had brewed for a long time on Britain's educational front, and on Dec. 1 hundreds of schools closed when members of the National Union of Teachers and the National Association of Schoolmasters did not turn up for work.

Many fully-trained teachers start work at less than $2,400 a year, and a man with 15 years of service earns a basic $3,900 annually.

The teachers seek an annual salary increase totalling only $352. The government countered with a bid of $130.

The shift from gentility to militancy comes at an awkward moment for the governing Labor government, whose efforts to formulate a convincing incomes policy have been largely torpedoed by its union allies.

Barbara Castle, employment and productivity minister, already embarrassed by union refusal to accept a compulsory wages policy, is expected to publish shortly new guidelines limiting salary increases to a range not exceeding 4.5 per cent.

The teachers want more than twice that and point to groups with bigger bargaining power, such as airline pilots, who have won increases of up to 15 per cent.

Bernard Mawby, secretary of the teachers union's action committee, says:

"Going on strike is repugnant to teachers. They have done so only because they feel that reasonable negotiation has failed."

Death Valley Gang Slayings Claimed at 18

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Eighteen persons died in a grisly string of ritual slayings conducted by a mystic hippie-type band linked with the knifing murder of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and six other persons, says a lawyer for the woman who helped police on the case.

"The more they stabbed, the better they felt," said lawyer Wesley Russell, who also disclosed Wednesday that his client, Shelley Nadell, 21, told him the gang had planned another 11 murders.

"Some of the murder victims are buried in the desert, and their bodies probably will never be found," said the lawyer, who added that he feared for Miss Nadell's life both inside and outside jail.

The woman was remanded in custody Wednesday for two weeks on a drug prescription forgery charge. Police say the link between the hippies and the brutal slayings at Miss Tate's Hollywood Hills estate Aug. 9 came from widespread jail cell conversations between Miss Nadell and cellmate Susan Atkins, 21, a member of the cult.

A grand jury Friday is expected to rule at a secret session if cult leader Charles Manson—known as both "God" and "Satan" to his followers—will be charged in connection with the killings.

The hypnotic-eyed Manson, 35, and 26 devoted followers were arrested Oct. 10 in a police raid on their secluded Death Valley commune.

Police alleged that Manson, aid his band made their living by stealing cars. The raid led to other arrests which in turn set police on a trail to the killers of Miss Tate and her four friends, together with the stabbing deaths of a millionaire supermarket owner Leno LaBianca and his wife she fellowing night.

Police have claimed that some of Manson's followers set out on a path of violence and murder—a pseudo-religious program of "liberation through death." Some victims were killed to free them from their wealth in abordance with the group's occult beliefs, police said.

Three members of the group, known as Satan's Slaves, already have been booked for murders and more indictments are expected after the grand jury hearing. In custody are Charles Watson, 24, held in his home town of McKinney, Tex.; Linda Kasabian, 19, who gave herself up in Concord, N.H.; and Patricia Krenwinkel, 21, who said she will fight extradition proceedings in Mobile, Ala.

Manson was arraigned Wednesday in a desert courtroom in Independence, Calif., and made his appearance wearing standard blue prison overalls, a long beard and long hair. With handcuffs linked to a heavy chain around his waist, he glanced around the court with the striking eyes which Miss Atkin's lawyer claimed hypnotized his followers.

Miss Atkins has admitted being present at three separate killings—the Tate massacre, the LaBianca stabbings and the torture slaying July 25 of a 34-year-old Los Angeles musician, Gary Hinman.

She is charged with Hinman's murder, but her lawyer denied she took part in any of them.

Police said a hippie-type band burst into Miss Tate's palatial hilltop estate Aug. 9 and knifed the pregnant actress to death, despite her pleas that her unborn child be spared. She was eight months' pregnant.

The movie star—wife of film director Roman Polanski—was found suspended by a rope slung around a beam with Hollywood hairdresser Jay Sebring, 35, strung up beside her.

Also found dead in the house were coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, Polish-born playboy Voytek Frokowski, 37, and Steve Parent, 18, friend of the estate caretaker.

Sharon Tate's father, former army intelligence officer Paul Tate, 46, said he mingled with hippies and drug addicts for four months to track down his daughter's slayers. He refused to say what he discovered—"Anything I know about the case will be told at the proper time."

In the Independence court a picture began to unfold of commune life in Death Valley.

Witnesses who said three cars that disappeared in the Los Angeles area in the summer were seen in Manson's possession described how they encountered him at the wheel of a new Ford in an almost inaccessible mountain area bordering Death Valley.

Three Die in Rescue Bid

HALIFAX (CP) — Three seamen died Wednesday in an unsuccessful attempt to rescue a fellow crew member from an empty aviation fuel tank aboard the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

The four men, who were overcome by aviation gasoline fumes, were identified as: LS Gary Swim, 23, LS Gordon Hayes Morrell, 25 LS Donald Raymond Patterson, 23, all of Halifax, and OS John Elven Boulter, 23, of Summerside, P.E.I.

A navy spokesman said one of the victims entered an empty aviation gasoline tank to set up an air-driven pump for venting operations.

When he collapsed, four men rushed to help. Three were also overcome by the fumes, and the fourth escaped to call for help.

Divers equipped with tanks and men wearing breathing apparatus entered the tank and pulled the men out, but they did not respond to oxygen resuscitation.

A navy spokesman said venting, a standard procedure, involves removing aviation gasoline fumes after gasoline has been emptied from the tanks. Bonaventure removed aviation fuel from her tanks at Dartmouth Monday before sailing on her final voyage as an operational ship of Maritime Command. She will be decommissioned next April.

Vice-Admiral J. C. O'Brien has ordered an immediate inquiry into the deaths. The vessel's skipper, Captain J. M. Cutts of Halifax, began his investigation immediately after the accident.

The bodies of the four men were returned to Halifax by helicopter Wednesday and the carrier continued her journey to Boston, where she will visit before returning here Dec. 11.

The four deaths brought to 13 the number of Canadian naval personnel to be killed on operational ships during the last six weeks. Nine crew members of the destroyer Kootenay died Oct. 23 in an engine room explosion while the ship was taking part in exercises off the coast of England.

MY SINCERE THANKS

To all those who loyally supported and worked for me during my campaign I offer my deepest thanks and appreciation.

To be re-elected as mayor for a second term is not only a great honor but a grave responsibility. It is therefore my humble pledge to continue working to the best of my ability towards the further growth and expansion of Belleville.

PC Says Youth Alienated

TORONTO (CP) — Youth, labor and people who do not speak English "feel alienated from the Conservative party," says Mines Minister Allan Lawrence of Ontario.

In a paper to be presented Friday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association here, Mr. Lawrence, 44, kicks off his party for what he says is its failure to appeal to these groups.

The paper urges the party to re-examine its purpose and mechanisms. The topic of the discussion, of which Mr. Lawrence is to be the chairman is Thrust of Dissent.

He argues that the Conservatives must convince dissenters from society that they can use a political party to realize the needs of the masses.

He says the party must ensure that proposals of dissenters become part of the policy-making process in Ontario.

The party's success in the future will depend on its ability to bring into it such dissenting groups as youth, the poor, workers and immigrants, the minister says.

OPP Now Best Paid Policemen

TORONTO (CP) — An agreement has been signed which will give provincial police constables a maximum salary of $10,044 by Jan. 3, 1971, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart announced Wednesday.

The memorandum of settlement was signed Tuesday by representatives of the OPP and the government, setting out terms of a new two-year agreement.

Salaries will be revised in two stages, effective Jan. 4, 1970, and Jan. 3, 1971. The present maximum annual salary of a constable after 42 months' service is $8,257.

It will be increased to $9,483 in 1970 and to $10,044 in 1971.

Increases for other ranks are proportionate, Mr. Wishart told the legislature.

The agreement applies to cadets, constables, corporals, sergeants and staff sergeants.

Fringe benefits will be revised for group insurance, vacations, attendance credits, separation gratuities and long term income protection.

Annual Income Too Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will have no policy proposals to present to next week's federal-provincial conference dealing with a guaranteed annual income and does not expect any one else will have properly-researched proposals to make, the legislature was told Wednesday.

"No one has done a proper study on all the ramifications of what is called a guaranteed annual income," John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon.

"We are making a scientific analysis of what can be done, and of the money involved in a complete implementation of such a scheme.

"It may be, however, that steps can be taken in that direction without going the full distance at the one time."

Business Leaders Predict 'Year of Growth'

TORONTO (CP) — About 300 business leaders sat down Wednesday to hear 30 top management officials predict the state of the Canadian economy in 1970.

There was some mention of troubles ahead, almost all said predictions were difficult because of the campaign to check inflation, but in general there was agreement that 1970 will be a year of growth or at least no worse than 1969.

Most of the speakers at the seventh annual business outlook seminar sponsored by the school of business at the University of Toronto said that any estimates of the future had to be cautious because of the government's anti-inflation measures.

Chairman J. R. Kimber, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, opened by noting that the stock market had reacted to the tough fiscal policies.

He hoped the speakers could be more optimistic. Most were.

R. M. MacIntosh, deputy chief manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, saw little chance of a decisive reduction in the rate of price increases next year.

He said inflated prices will continue into 1970 "because of the built-in cost factors from this year which will be spreading through the economy" and because of the "moderate kind of economic pause which individuals are expecting and which governments are prepared to tolerate."

He saw the full weight of tight money being felt in 1970 with the mortgage market caught in the squeeze.

Derek F. Mitchell, president of BP Oil Ltd., said many questions face the petroleum industry but "the prospects are that all sectors of the Canadian industry will continue to grow, some sectors rapidly."

He said the "demand for oil in Canada seems likely to show satisfactory growth.

He noted increasing costs and said it "seems essential" that prices of the industry's products will have to rise.

R. A. Irwin, president of Colsolidated-Bathurst Ltd. said the pulp and paper industry enters the 1970s with little unused productive capacity for newsprint, chemical pulp and containerboard—about 90 per cent of the industry's total output.

"For all of these products, it seems likely that the increase in world demand next year will not be surpassed by the increase in supply that becomes available."

Lawrece G. Rice, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said the automotive industry "will have some difficulty" meeting and beating 1969 but he saw 1970 sales about the same as this year.

He predicted the Canadian industry will lean toward smaller, lower-priced cars in an effort to meet foreign competition.

F. Foster Todd, executive vice-president of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., said proposed federal tax revisions would make mining "the most heavily-taxed industry in the nation" and put Canada at a disadvantage with producers in other countries.

R. A. Phillips, vice-president and general manager of RCA Ltd., said the Canadian electronics industry will continue to grow faster than the economy as a whole. But he said the rate of growth will be affected by such outside factors as consumer credit and investment in electronic systems.

J. Dean Muncaster, president of the Retail Council of Canada and of Canadian Tire Corp., predicted 1970 retail sales will increase about six per cent in 1970.

But he said that his guess was based on the assumption that the federal government will not introduce consumer credit controls.

D. S. Holbrook, president of Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd., said the demand for finished steel in 1970 should reach a record 8,700,000 tons, but domestic steel production may be lower the next few years.

Robert G. Saunders of Vancouver, vice-president of the Canadian Construction Association, said volume of new construction next year will be slightly higher than in 1969. Tight money was a problem.

Higher Housing Costs Predicted

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield predicted Wednesday that the government's latest tax proposals will increase housing costs and mortgage rates.

Mr. Stanfied told the Toronto Home Builders Association that "the removal of the capital cost allowances on rental buildings will destroy one of the last incentives in the tax syste mto investment in apartment construction."

"There wil be less private capital available for housing. Interest rates and the cost of housing wil go up."

Perry Ryan Explains Resignation

Anti-Americanism Charged

Toronto MP Quits Liberals Over NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — Disagreeing sharply with government policy, MP Perry Ryan left the Liberal party Wednesday.

The 51-year-old member for Toronto Spadina riding will sit as an independent on the opposition side of the Commons.

Mr. Ryan, the only MP to leave the Liberal party since Prime Minister Trudeau assumed office last year, took nearly everyone by surprise when he rose in the Commons and said:

"I have come to the conclusion that I cannot continue my support of the government and, having resigned from this group, would ask that I be seated across the floor with the opposition as an independent member."

A few minutes later the 51-year-old MP was telling reporters outside the chamber that, among other things, he disagrees sharply with Canada's fast reduction of its NATO forces.

He also disagreed with current regulations to extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China and didn't think the government was giving enough priority to urban renewal, including projects in Toronto.

The blunt-spoken member said he supports immigration from Europe but "the government is turning off the tap."

So far as NATO is concerned "I feel that Canada did not play ball with its partners in the alliance." By deciding to cut its 10,000-man NATO force in half, Canada produced a "grievous problem" for the United States in a "ham-fisted" way.

When this was added to the fact that Canada is providing sanctuary for U.S. draft-dodgers and military deserters, Mr. Ryan said "the pattern to me is anti-Americanism."

"It looks to me like we are trying to get the U.S. at a time when they are policing the world."

Prime Minister Trudeau knew about Mr. Ryan's announcement in advance. In a press release, the prime minister said he had had "friendly and frank conversation" with the Toronto MP before receiving a confidential letter from him. He said he regretted the decision.

Mr. Trudeau said that two of the issues mentioned by Mr. Ryan formed part of the Liberal platform in the 1968 general election.

"The third has been the subject of exhaustive discussion in caucus and in caucus committees on which occasions Liberal members played a full and effective role."

Mr. Ryan told reporters he gave notice of his intention to resign a month ago.

He is vice-chairman of the Commons committee on external affairs and defence, and he said that the government should have accepted the recommendations of this committee which advocated retention of the armored brigade and the air division in Europe well into the 1970s. The government plans to complete its reduction in Europe by 1972.

Mr. Ryan said that recognition of China will cause difficulties in South Korea, Nationalist China, Japan, Hong Kong and Indo-China.

He said he would resign from the committee in a few days. He also said he will confer with the executive of his riding, but "at the moment" he had no plans to join another party.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield referred to Mr. Ryan as a "high-calibre MP" and he said he would be "happy" to discuss the possibility of him joining the ranks of the Conservatives.

Mr. Ryan entered the Commons in 1962. He is the first MP to leave a party since Gordon Churchill, Conservative MP for Winnipeg South Centre, quit his party to sit as an independent in early 1968.

Mr. Trudeau said in his press release that Mr. Ryan's "active role as a busy and competent representative of his constituents is without question."

Ryan Says Immigration Curbed

OTTAWA (CP) — Perry Ryan, the Toronto Spadina MP who quit the Liberal party Wednesday, finds fault more with the Trudeau administration than the party.

His stance became clear in a long clarifying talk with reporters in his parliamentary office following his Commons announced decision to leave government benches to sit as an independent.

Mr. Ryan also talked of an "inner circle" in government that has curbed immigration from Europe. He could only speculate on the persons, but he linked it with the time that Mr. Trudeau, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and Jean Marchand, regional expansion minister, became influential in the party.

Mr. Ryan's constituents are largely working-class people either from central Europe or of that parentage — Italians, Portuguese, Poles to name a few.

The ethnic "third force," he said, does not get its proper consideration by government and suggests that if an ethnic riding cannot get the same attention as French or English regions, then it ought to switch parties occasionally to assert itself.

He could not understand, he said, why Stanley Haidasz, Liberal MP for Toronto Parkdale, had been bypassed for a cabinet post as an ethnic voice.

Mr. Ryan also wondered how the Trudeau administration can find money for urban renewal projects abroad, but finds it difficult to produce money for those at home.

He seemed to doubt that others would follow him out of the party but did say that "four or five" fellow Liberal MPs congratulated him on his decision.

The immigration angle was the one that triggered his decision to depart. Lack of priority for urban renewal was another principal reason. The others related to foreign policy which Mr. Ryan saw as an anti-American pattern.

Expos Pick Up Sparma in Second Major Winter Deal

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Montreal Expos Wednesday completed their second major league deal in as many days at baseball's annual winter meetings, trading pitcher Jerry Robertson to Detroit Tigers of the American League.

In exchange for Robertson; Canada's first major league baseball team acquired pitcher Joe Sparma from Detroit.

Tuesday, in the day's only deal, the Expos swapped starting pitcher Larry Jaster to Atlanta Braves for pitcher Jim Britton and catcher Don Johnson.

Both pitchers in the Montreal-Detroit deal are right-handers.

Sparma, 26, played six seasons with the Tigers. In 23 appearances last season, 16 of them starts, he compiled a 6-8 won-lost record and an earned-run average of 4.74.

Robertson came to the Expos in the expansion draft from St. Louis Cardinals. He started 27 of the 36 games he played and managed a five wins against 16 defeats with an earned-run average of 3.93.

In other trades Wednesday, the Braves dealt 19-year National League veteran outfielder Felipe Alou to Oakland Athletics of the American League for right-handed pitcher Jim Nash and defending World Series champion New York Mets obtained third baseman Joe Foy from Kansas City Royals, an AL expansion team.

The Mets gave up infielder-outfielder Amos Otis and pitcher Bob Johnson.

Foy, an expansion draft pick last season from the AL's Boston Red Sox, carried an average of .262 in 145 games with Kansas City and hit 11 home runs.

Foy once played for the now-defunct Toronto Maple Leafs of the Triple-A International League.

Alou, 34, has a lifetime batting average of .30. An all-star choice three times, Alou's highest batting average was .327 in 1966. He missed 30 games through injuries in 1969 and managed a .285 average at Atlanta. Two of his brothers, Matty and Jesus, also play in the major leagues.

Minnesota Twins appointed Early Wynn as their major league scout.

Wynn had served as pitching coach for the Twins last season under manager Billy Martin, who has been replaced by Bill Rigney.

Becker, who had coached the Cubs' hurlers for the last three years, had announced his retire ment at the end of the 1969 season but was hired back by manager Leo Durocher and club vice-president John Holand.

Flyers' Johnson Sick of Minors

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After knocking around the minor circuits for most of eight seasons, centre Jim Johnson is starting to make a name for himself in the National Hockey League.

The 27-year-old Winnipeg native scored three goals Wednesday night as the Philadelphia Flyers in a 7-1 victory over Los Angeles Kings. The scoring flurry pushed his total in the Flyers' last three games to eight points on six goals and two assists.

In other Wednesday games, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Detroit Red Wings 3-2, St. Louis Blues downed Oakland Seals 3-1, Minnesota North Stars tied Toronto Maple Leafs 5-5 and Chicago Black Hawks deadlocked with New York Rangers 3-3.

Johnson, who played in only eight NHL games with New York Rangers after turning professional with Sudbury of the old Eastern Professional League in 1962, was drafted by the Flyers when they entered the NHL in the 1967-68 season.

He spent most of that season with Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League and started his first complete season in the big league last season, finishing with 17 goals and 27 assists.

He was off, to a slow start again this season until last Thursday's match against the Kings when he picked up two goals and an assist. He followed up with another goal and assist in Sunday's match with Pittsburgh before his outburst Wednesday.

Eddie Joyal started the scoring before 6,384 Los Angeles fans in the second minute of the first period for the Kings' only goal.

Two minutes later Johnson started the Philadelphia drive when he took a pass from defenceman Joe Watson to beat Kings' goalie Gerry Desjardins.

Simon Nolet collected his first goal of the season for the Flyers before Johnson scored again to wrap up the first period.

Both teams went scoreless through the second session but Johnson opened the final period with his third goal of the night. Nolet scored again and Bob Clarke and Earl Heiskala completed the rout with single goals.

A total of 21 penalties were called with Nolet and Skip Krake of the Kings' squaring off with his third goal of the night. Nolet scored again and Bob Clarke and Earl Heiskala completed the rout with single goals.

A total of 21 penalties were called with Nolet and Skip Krake of the Kings' squaring off

BOBBY HULL
Scores 54th

In a fist fight in the first period and Johnson repeating the act with Ross Lonsberry of the Kings in the final session.

The loss was the 10th in the last 12 games for the Kings who returned home Wednesday from a nine-game road trip.

Ray Lewis also staged a three-goal performance Wednesday and his third of the game gave Minnesota the tie with Toronto before 13,686 Minneapolis fans.

Danny Grant and Claude Larose also beat Leafs goalie Marv Edwards to give North Stars the tie.

Dave Keon scored his 10th and 11th goals to lead the Leafs with Jim Dorey, Ron Ellis and Norm Ullman adding single scores.

The Leafs remain in the East Division cellar, four points behind Chicago and Detroit.

Vic Hadfield scored his 12th goal and 12th assist of the season to lead New York against the Black Hawks, but Chico Maki's first goal of the season midway through the final period gave Chicago the tie.

Brothers Bobby and Dennis Hull provided the remaining scoring power while goalie Tony Esposito kept the Hawks in the game by stopping 37 Rangers drives.

Ed Giacomin had a comparatively easy night in the New York nets, handling 22 of Chicago's 25 shots.

Bill Fairbairn and Jean Ratelle also scored for the Rangers before 17,550 home fans to put New York four points ahead of second-place Montreal Canadiens in the East Division.

First-period goals by veteran Dean Prentice and rookie Michel Briere kept the 4,116 Pittsburgh fans happy as the Penguins picked up their seventh season victory.

The only Detroit goal came from Frank Mahovlich on a pass from Alex Delvecchio.

Al Smith stopped 22 Detroit shots while Roy Edwards was kept busy in the Red Wings net, making save on 33 Penguins drives. The loss left Detroit in a tie with Chicago, four points back of third-place Boston in the East Division.

Delay Asked By Colleges

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union decided Wednesday in request the National Hockey League to refrain from drafting college players until their graduation year.

The request was drafted at a union's semi-annual meeting here.

It was the last CIAU meeting that delegates attended as representatives of the five conferences into which Canadian college sport is divided: The Atlantic, the Ottawa-St. Lawrence, the Ontario-Quebec, the Central Canada and the Western. In future, each university or college will send delegates to CIAU meetings.

The conferences remain in existences as the organizing bodies for competition in all sports.

In another development, the CIAU accepted the franchise for Canadian participation in the International Student Games-winter and summer-held every two years.

The 1970 winter games are scheduled for Helsinki, Finland, April 4-12. The winner of the CIAU hockey tournament at Charlottetown in March will represent Canada.

The summer games will be held at Turin, Italy, Aug. 29-Sept. 6.

The Central Canada Conference proposed that any high school student who, in his graduation year, attends a football camp with direct professional contracts be ineligible for college play for one year.

The motion will be put to a vote at the CIAU's annual meeting at Banff, Alta., June 1-3, 1970, just before the nine Canadian Football League teams open their rookie camps.

Sports On All Fronts

PRETORIA (Reuters) — South African sport minister Frank Waring has ruled out any prospects of a visit by former United States open tennis champion Arthur Ashe. Commenting on an appeal by South African tennis players to let Ashe, a Negro, play in the South African national championships next year, Waring said: "Mr. Ashe obviously does not intend to come to South Africa to play tennis but to engage in political activity."

LONDON (Reuters) — West Bromwich Albion qualified for the English Football League Cup soccer final for the third time in four years when they beat Second Division Carlisle 4-1 in their second-leg semi-final match Wednesday night. Carlisle, 1-0 winners of the first leg, held their First Division opponents in a scoreless first half but were shattered when Albion scored four goals in a 20-minute spree by Hope, Suggett, Brown and Martin.

HAMILTON (CP) — This Friday will be Russ Jackson Day in Hamilton. Mayor Vic Copps said Wednesday the day will be set aside in honor of the Hamilton-born quarterback who led Ottawa Rough Riders to victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders in last Sunday's Grey Cup game in Montreal. Mr. Copps said Westdale Secondary School, where Jackson once played football, plans to have a special ceremony for the quarterback with an assembly of skits and presentations.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The two men who handled 1968 Kentucky Derby winner Dancer's Image have paid $300 each in connection with charges arising from an investigation of the race. Trainers Lou Cavalaris of Toronto and Robert Barnard, accused of conduct detrimental to the best interest of racing, pleaded that they neither affirmed nor denied the charge. It was filed by the Kentucky state racing commission which launched its investigation after an illegal medication turned up in the winner's system after the race. The commission declared Dancer's Image the winner but awarded first prize of $122,600 to the second place horse, Calumet Farm's Forward Pass.

TORONTO (CP) — Super Wave, a three-year-old colt owned by Dr. George Boyce of London, Ont., Wednesday was voted 1969 horse of the year for the Jockey Club's three Ontario standardbred racing tracks. The horse, also selected the best three-year-old pacer on the circuit, had nine wins and four seconds and earned $115,720. Bill Wellwood of Clarkson, Ont. was voted horseman of the year. He drove 100 winners and won $260,000 in purse money to Nov. 29, the end of the Mohawk Raceway's autumn meeting at Campbellville, Ont. Dr. John Findlay's filly Crimson Duchess was the unanimous choice as rookie trotter of the year and Armbro Killarney, owned by Toronto's Bruce Woodward, was chosen the best rookie pacer of 1969.

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — Nino Benvenuti, the world middleweight champion from Italy, and Bernabe Villalampa, the new flyweight champ from the Philippines, were named the Fighters-of-the-Month Wednesday by the World Boxing Association. Benvenuti drew recognition for his knockout victory over Luis Rodriguez in a title defence and Villacampo won his title, beating Hiroyki Ebihara of Japan.

Fringe Players Worth More When NHL Draft Rolls Around

MONTREAL (CP) — The hunt for talent, currently conducted on a bustling scale by the 12 existing National Hockey League clubs, promises to become more agitated in the coming months.

With Tuesday's conditional acceptance of Vancouver and Buffalo to the NHL for the 1970-71 season, many players currently on the big-league fringe or performing in the minor leagues will find their market value increased by next June.

That's when the expansion draft takes place to stock the two new entries with 20 players each, including two goaltenders.

Vancouver and Buffalo were accepted conditionally Tuesday by the NHL's board of governors, pending delivery of certain documents by Dec. 20 and receipt of down payments of $1,750,000 each on the $6,000,000 entry fee assessed each bidder. Deadline for the first payment is Feb. 16.

When the league expanded to a two-division, 12-team circuit in 1967, each of the six new clubs paid $2,000,000 to enter.

In 1967 the existing six teams were allowed to protect only one goaltender and 11 other players each, losing their 12th and filling with their 13th. The 1970 expansion will allow each of the 12 teams to guard two goaltenders and 15 other players.

This expansion draft will follow a regular NHL intra-league draft by the 12 teams in which no team can lose more than one player and goaltenders are exempt.

Vancouver and Buffalo will decide by lot which has the first choice in the expansion draft, Brian O'Neill, NHL director of administration, said Wednesday.

In effect, the two newcomers each could wind up with two third-ranked goaltenders and six players whose names are posted 16th on the rosters of the 12 established teams.

The dozen then fill and protect the 17th player after losing the 16th and the 18th man on each roster is up for grabs, as is the 20th. Each new club will also get two others listed 22nd on the lists of the current clubs.

None of the 12 teams may lose more than three players and one goaltender under the rules.

In addition, first-year professionals and unsigned amateur draft choices under 22 years of age will be exempt from the expansion draft.

Following the expansion draft the new teams will participate fully in the universal amateur draft, receiving the first two choices.

This will be the first amateur draft in NHL history in which all of the world's 25-year-old players will be available for selection.

The first-round choices of the two new teams must be retained by them for at least three playing seasons, disposing of the former practice of trading on the basis of future draft choices.

In addition, the existing teams will consent to the two new teams all draft choices in the 1970 inter-league draft, in which the NHL can draft on the American Hockey League and Western Hockey League.

Vancouver, now a member of the WHL, will have its inter-league draft choices exercised by Buffalo, to compensate for Vancouver's existing ownership of players in that city and with Rochester of the AHL.

While Vancouver already has a good nucleus of players with the WHL Canucks and Rochester Americans, the Buffalo group has only three or four players.

The other players currently at Buffalo owned by New York Rangers of the NHL.

Goyette Sticks With Orr's Pace

Phil Goyette picked up his 13th goal of the season in a 3-1 St. Louis Blues victory over Oakland Seals Wednesday night to move within two points of National Hockey League scoring leader Bobby Orr.

PHIL GOYETTE

Defenceman Orr of Boston Bruins, who were idle Wednesday, has seven goals and 28 assists for 35 points.

Vic Hadfield of New York Rangers moved back among the top scorers with his 12th goal and 12th assist in a 3-3 tie between New York and Chicago Black Hawks.

Dalton Refuses to Abandon Als' Helm Despite New Owners

MONTREAL (CP) — Head coach Kay Dalton of Montreal Alouettes isn't planning to give up his post in spite of new management of the Eastern Football Conference club.

"I was asked two weeks ago to sign a temporary letter of resignation," Dalton said Wednesday.

But he denied he was under any legal obligation to abandon his coaching post as a result of the change of ownership.

Sam Berger of Ottawa took possession of the Alouettes Monday after approval of the sale last week by the Canadian Football League executive.

Berger says he is not responsible for Dalton's contract under the terms whereby he bought the Als, Joe Atwell, outgoing owner, says Dalton was told two weeks ago his services were no longer needed.

"I was not officialy advised," Dalton says. "I have a contract that calls for two more years with the Montreal Alouette Football Club — immaterial of who the owner is."

Dalton's post calls for an estimated $46,000 in salary for the next two seasons.

But of the request two weeks ago to sign a "temporary letter of resignation," Dalton says:

"Mr. Atwell had told me he wanted to retain the coaches—he knew the rebuilding job was well on the way."

"Will I quit? No. I've never quit anything in my life and I've never been fired, I guarantee you one thing, they'll have to pay me off if that's what they want to do. This isn't what I want, but if a push comes to a shove. . . ."

Dalton's three-year contract with the Als was signed last January and Dalton said he was happy with the "friendly" contract.

"Friendly," he said, meant Atwell had the option of terminating the contract if he felt he was getting inadequate service from Dalton.

Dalton said he exercised that right in November, after the Alouettes had completed a season with two wins and two ties in 14 games, but Dalton refused to step down.

YMCA men's program secretary Dave Hahn is shown doing the side-stroke with 6-year-old Brad Allen at the Pacey Y pool. Hahn is preparing for the Swimathon scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 6th and 7th to raise funds for the Y's World Service program.

Would Pontoons Qualify in Swimathon?

Program Secretaries Dave Hahn and Maureen Kelly are taking no chances in this weekend's YMCA "Swimathon."

Dave Hahn is threatening to wear a life preserver and it is rumored that countergart Maureen Kelly will do the dog paddle.

"Maureen thinks I need the life perserver to complete the 50 lengths," said Dave Hahn. "She could be right."

Anyone may sponsor the swimmer of their choice for so much per lap at the 20-yard pool, with each swimmer restricted to a 50-lap maximum per day.

The 1969 Canadian YMCA World Service goal is $200,000. The Belleville association raised $1,484 last year and hope to increase the pledges this year to $1,600.

Both Dave Hahn and Maureen Kelly are newcomers to the city. "We are looking forward to our first really big event since coming to Belleville," added Hahn. "I hope it is a great success. It is for a worthy cause."

The basic principle of World Service is to build self-directing, self-financing and self-expanding YMCA movements abroad. The World Service makes financial grants for programs, primarily for leadership training and for demonstration projects such as adult education, camping, rural reconstruction, physical education and student work.

The program also helps overseas students in North America and carries on an International Camper Exchange.

To date, World Service has had a helping hand in establishing YMCA's in over 50 of the 86 countries and territories which now have these places of leisure and recreation.

In this year's swimathon as in past years style is of no essence. Carolyn Harris last year's youngest swimmer completed the maximum 50 lengths (1,000 yards) swimming on her back all the way.

Last year, swimmers participated. "We have a lot more people interested in the program this year," commented Maureen Kelly.

Anyone wishing to sponsor swimmers is urged to contact the YMCA at 962-9245.

Pony Packs 'em in for Ellis Juniors

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The Memorial Arena could house the biggest hockey crowd of the season Friday night, but many of the spectators may not even care about the score.

Junior hockey's "Pony Night" traditionally packs Belleville small fry into the Market St. rink, when several thousand city youngsters have a chance to get an early Christmas present — a pony.

City businessmen purchase literally thousands of tickets for the event, and distribute them free to youngsters. A ticket entitles a child admission to a hockey game plus a chance to win pony, bicycles, hockey sticks, and other pre-Christmas goodies.

For those that are interested in hockey in tomorrow night's crowd, the setting for this year's Pony Night festivities is a crucial game between Belleville Ellis Juniors and Trenton's Golden Hawks.

Their 4-3 win over Peterborough Don Ryes Sunday put the local juniors in fifth spot, a point ahead of Trenton in the Eastern Ontario Junior B standings, setting the stage for a hard - fought battle between the traditional community rivals tomorrow night.

A Belleville win would move the Ellis's within a point of fourth - place Cobourg Cougars in the six - team group.

Some individual drama is also available.

Leading Ellis scorers John McConnell and Terry Meagher have each collected 21 points to date, leaving them tied a lone point behind league-leading Colin Loudon of first - place Kingston Frontenacs.

If Ellis coach Floyd Crawford sticks with Sunday's winning lineup, Ron Jury will make his second appearance in goal for the Belleville B's.

JOHN McCONNELL

TERRY MEAGHER

Sunday, donning the pads for the first time in two winters, Jury kicked out 35 Peterborough shots to lead the locals to their second win in 10 starts.

The Belleville and Trenton clubs played to a 3 - 3 tie in their only regular - season meeting to date, after trading exhibition wins.

Admission for children not in possession of advance tickets will be 50 cents at the Memorial Arena for tomorrow night's 8.30 game.

The much - awaited pony draw will take place between the game's second and third periods.

Kingston Rink Ousted from Spiel

EDMONTON (CP) — Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask., advanced to the 16-rink, double-knockout final of the Canadian open car bonspiel Wednesday night as he trimmed two-time champion Merv Mann of Saskatoon 11-7.

Pickering was joined in the finals by three other rinks from the B event playoffs. Matt Baldwin and Doug Johnston of Edmonton and Dave Gerlach of Calgary all won their playoffs for a championship berth.

The four losers in the B event move down to C class and will get another chance to qualify today.

Earlier Wednesday, eight rinks from the A event qualified for the final. They were: Bruce Stewart of Calgary, Doug Wankel of Elbow, Sask., Glen Pierce of Burnaby, B.C., Hersch Lerner of Winnipeg, and Hec Gervais, Wayne McElroy, Vic Winkler and Bill McCallum, all of Edmonton.

Four players from the C event will qualify today for final berths.

Ted Brown of Kingston, Ont., skip of Ontario's first-ever rink in the $22,000 event, was eliminated from the competition Wednesday night when he lost 7-6 in an extra end to Ken Matheson of Grande Prairie, Alta.

Flights Can't Go on Without Government Aid

TORONTO (CP) — Canairelief's mercy flights into Biafra cannot go on indefinitely without financial aid from the Canadian government, the organization's executive vice-president said Wednesday.

"We foresee . . . the need of substantial help both from the government in Ottawa and in a great increase in donations from the Canadian people," Dr. Edward Johnson said in an interview.

Dr. Johnson, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, has asked the federal government to supply Canairelief with $400,000 a month for the next three months.

"We feel a Canadian relief organization which is entirely non-political in character should receive support from Ottawa," he said. "We know this is being seriously considered by Mr. Trudeau and his government."

Formed last January to fly food and medical supplies into Nigeria's, war-torn, breakaway state of Biafra, Canairelief has raised about $1,000,000 from individuals, churches and relief groups in Canada. It has received additional funds in tonnage payments from Washington by carrying United States government relief goods.

A Peace Biafra Day across Canada last week raised about $60,000 for Canairelief.

A spokesman at Canairelief's headquarters here said 324 flights had been made into Biafra by the end of last month. A total of 8,339 tons of food and medical supplies have been carried.

All flights are being made at night because of the failure of the Biafrans and Nigerians to come to an agreement on terms for daylight flights.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said the Canadian government is resolved to find a way to get supplies into Biafra, and that daylight flights are the only practical method of expanding relief operations.

The International Red Cross discontinued night flights last June, and about 30 per cent of relief goods going into Biafra since then have been flown there by Canairelief.

Decision in Spring

Ontario May Institute Form of Rental Review

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the legislature Wednesday the government might introduce some form of rental review in the spring if his proposed landlord-tenant bill proved insufficient to protect tenants from high rent increases.

The bill was approved in principle by a vote of 67 to 17 despite an NDP ammendment that called for a redrafting to include rental review boards.

During an exchange with Opposition members, Mr. Wishart was asked if the new requirement that landlords keep accommodation up to health and safety standards might result in increased rents.

"If the landlord is providing better accommodation, perhaps he should increase the rent," Wishart replied.

But while suggesting the bill might be toughened in spring amendments, Mr. Wishart warned rent controls might inhibit apartment construction by scaring off investors.

Another legislature business:

—Revenue Minister John White told the house an extra $5,000,000 in taxes will be raised annually by a revision of the taxing formula on insurance companies.

—Finance Minister Leslie Howatree disagreed with opposition statements that reserve funds of profit-making insurance carriers, built before the Oct. 1 introduction of medical care insurance, should be returned to policy holders.

Later, Wells announced that foreign students planning a year's university studies in Ontario will not have to wait three months to obtain Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan coverage.

Patent Cough Medicine Said Hippies' Newest Drug

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) Wednesday tabled in the Ontario legislature a copy of a letter to health officials in which he demands that a new patent cough medicine be put on the restricted prescription list because "the hippie population" is using it to get "high."

Dr. Shulman said the effect of three ingredients in the medicine called Nyquil "is greater than the sum of its parts."

He said he investigated the product after a mother phoned to complain that the children at her son's high school were drinking the medicine, made available in one-ounce bottles as a promotion.

"If you took it before driving you would be far more out of it than if you had consumed alcohol—and it doesn't register on the breathalyzer," said Dr. Shulman.

The NDP member has written to federal Health Minister John Munro and provincial Health Minister Tom Wells asking that non-prescription sales of the product be stopped.

The ingredients, he said, are 25 per-cent alcohol, eight milligrams of ephedrine and 15 milligrams of dexiromerth-orphan hydrobromide, which he described as a derivative of morphine, an addictive drug.

This ingredient was removed from other patent medicines years ago because of its potentially addictive properties, Dr. Shulman told a news conference.

"An overdose—double the recommended dose of two tablespoonful—acts like speed. It can have the same eventual effect, of knocking the heart out."

Health Minister Toni Wells told the legislature he had ordered an investigation 10 minutes after he received the letter from Dr. Shulman, and would have a report available later in the day.

The province has in the Pharmaceutical Act powers of control that complement those of the federal government, which is primarily responsible for placing drugs on restricted lists.

He criticized Donald MacDonald, leader of the provincial NDP, for making the matter public before an investigation could be made.

"They claim their concern is public health, not some political game," he said. "But the public interest is not served by bringing public attention to this drug at this time."

Motorcyclists Jailed For Attack on Rival

SUDBURY (CP) — Sylvester Mroszkowski and Alvin Armstrong, both 24 and of Sudbury, were sentenced to six months definite and 12 months indefinite Wednesday for possession of dangerous weapons during a shooting between members of two rival motorcycle gangs Nov. 3.

Provincial Judge William Dumont said the two men, along with Mroszkowski's brother Theodore, 20, fled other members of their motorcycle gang to an attack on a local gas station owned by Thomas Reade, then a member of a rival gang.

Theodore Mroszkowski, who lost a leg as a result of an ensuing shootout, was given a two-year suspended sentence.

Prison Guards May Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Prison guards in 34 federal institutions have voted to strike if compulsory arbitration doesn't produce an offer better than the two-per-cent pay increase made by the government.

The 2,100 prison employees are designated under federal law as a group that cannot strike because of the nature of their work. They guard about 6,000 prisoners.

"This would be an illegal strike," agreed Paul Gascon, chief union negotiator, in an interview Wednesday. "There may be serious consequences for us but we have no alternative."

Firm's Appeal Upheld In Sunday Sales Case

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday quashed a conviction against Sunnybrook Food Markets (Keele) Ltd. for operating contrary to the Lord's Day Act.

The supermarket was fined $250 Oct. 14 in provincial court for remaining open for business Sunday, April 13, in this town 30 miles northeast of Toronto.

The Oct. 14 conviction by Provincial Judge Harry Jermyn followed six months of controversy over Sunday sales of groceries. Sunnybrook general manager Mottle Goodbaum said at the time his company would appeal the decision.

Judge Jermyn ruled that "the selling of food by Sunnybrook was not an act of necessity or mercy, but an act of profit." Sunnybrook lawyer Austin Cooper had argued that selling food was a "work of necessity" and thus permissible under the Lord's Day Act.

Wednesday, Mr. Justice Alexander Hall said he was "not acquitting the case on the merits of its evidence but on the wording of the law."

He ruled that it is not an offence to authorize a person on the Lord's Day to do business. However, it was an offence on any day to authorize a person to do business on the Lord's Day.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stapley, Leonora and Helen and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid, Eric, Lois, Tommy and Paul attended the 55th wedding anniversary celebration held recently in honor of their parents Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Stapley at their home in Stirling.

The original charge under Section 727 of the Lord's Day Act said Sunnybrook gave authorization to an employee to carry on Sunnybrook business "contrary to the Lord's Day Act."

Mr. Justice Hall said the charge assumed that the authorization was on a Sunday, when there was no evidence to that effect.

The original complaints in the case came nearly a year ago from the Oshawa and District Labor Council.

Grace Affleck, Crown attorney for Ontario County, said Wednesday he will lay new charges against Sunnybrook.

What Sunday Means To Public Under Study

TORONTO (CP) — What Sunday means to the public will be investigated in a study that begins here Dec. 8.

It will cover economic, social, medical and religious aspects of Sunday and will be presented to Attorney-General Arthur Wishart who requested it by the end of 1970.

Briefs are expected from about 100 groups and hearings may be held in 12 Ontario centres.

Pulse of Africa Tonight's Movie

On Thursday evening, the Belleville Kiwanis Club will present its second program of the "Travel and Adventure Series" at 8.15 p.m. at the BCI auditorium.

This week's film, The Pulse of Africa, was filmed by noted wildlife photographer Ron Shanin. He will narrate the movie.

Fifteen years ago, Ron Shanin began producing African wildlife films and capturing animals for the zoos. For seven years he has made safaris in the dark continent, and the animals he has captured have been distributed in zoos throughout the United States. His pictures have been used by TV shows, Lowell Thomas and Colombia Pictures Co.

His photographs have been used by Life, Look, Newsweek and Sports Illustrated.

In Africa, he land still unmastered by man, the real stars are the wild creatures of the vast forest and veld.

Here the lion, the undisputed king, reigns in splendor.

The Pulse of Africa, an authentic record of wildlife in its inspiring and ruthless state, is made more authoritative by Ron Shanin standing by the images of himself on the screen. His slick, informative narrative is well-delivered and very interesting, while his photography gives an intimate view of Africa's creatures.

Church Opening

Congregational members of the Sidney Township Westminster United Church will hold their first service in their new edifice on Sunday, Dec. 7 to be followed by an official date stone ceremony.

The morning church service will be at 11 o'clock with the date stone ceremony at 12 noon.

Construction of the new Westminster Church with a seating capacity of approximately 300 was commenced last May. The structure includes a study for the church minister, Rev. John F. Bunner, church kitchen and Sunday school classrooms on the first floor.

TRY OUT A CHEVY AT VOLKSWAGEN

Try out any of the cars people trade in for new VWs. We get all kinds.

But we don't sell them again just like that. We check them out first. Give them a safety and performance inspection. Fix whatever needed fixing. Then guarantee the repair of every major working part* 100% for 90 days or 3000 miles. Which ever comes first.

Even the guarantee comes with all our used cars.

Even the Volkswagens.

Inquest Into Quebec Blaze Adjourns to Await Evidence

NOTRE-DAME-DU-LAC, Que. (CP) — A coroner's inquest into the 28 elderly persons who died in a fire here Tuesday has adjourned to await findings of an investigation into the tragedy.

The inquest into the early-morning fire that ravaged a wooden three-storey home for the aged in the village centre opened briefly Wednesday with the identification of Alfred Lebel, 69, a local man who had lived in the area for four years.

Notre-Dame-du-Lac is about 128 miles northeast of Quebec City.

But Quebec City Coroner Paul Magnon, one of a three-man team conducting the hearing, said after the adjournment it may take several months for the investigation by police and fire authorities.

Twenty-nine of the 67 pensioners living in the Repos du Vieillard survived the fire but fi look more than 24 hours to establish the exact death toll because records were burnt and identification of victims was difficult.

Irene Trudeau, head of the Quebec welfare department's regional office in nearby Cabano, finally established from her records that 67 pensioners were in the building when the fire started.

The last body and the last survivor were both located Wednesday morning but a provincial police officer said it may be impossible to identify positively all the bodies recovered from the ashes.

Seven staff members who lived in the home escaped the blaze.

Rene Berube, mayor of this village of 2,200 people, said Tuesday he had repeatedly asked the provincial government to build a home for the aged in the village.

Jean-Paul Cloutier, family, health and welfare minister, said in the national assembly Tuesday the building met government safety requirements.

But a government official acknowledged that it had not been inspected recently because no such request had been made and because the fire inspector's bureau was short-staffed.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am curious about how doctors live. What are their personal habits? As I am too shy to ask my own doctor I am taking advantage of anonymity to ask you about your own habits.

Comment: You've signed your request "Mrs. X," which is just as anonymous as calling yourself "Mrs. X." However, I don't consider your request unreasonable.

Most people are at least a tiny mite curious about how others conduct their lives — especially, doctors who are continually for bidding patients "not to do this or that."

It's only fair that you be allowed to peek into a doctor's personal habits. There fore, I'll make these "confessions" at your request.

Although I am weight - conscious, I'll occasionally join a sweet-toothed friend in having a banana split piled high with luscious flavors of ice cream. But when my weight goes up I have the will to cut out all desserts and other carbohydrates until the pointer on the scale doesn't dumbfo nse at me any more.

I respect the studies which indicate that people with high cholesterol in the blood should cut down on saturated fats. But a mine is normal. I do not hesitate to eat butter, cheese, fried foods — or relish an ice cream cone.

I am not frightened by medical reports (with insufficient evidence) that warn against charcoal-broiled foods that might cause cancer. Likewise, I can still take one bottle of cyclamate-sweetened drinks a day without fear until more specific contradictions come along. I may change my mind tomorrow, and quit entirely.

I can't take coffee. I'm so susceptible to it, that even one cup takes me early as noon, will keep my mind racing at night.

* * *

Some fortunate people can get along on six hours of sleep. I need at least seven or eight. A nightly deficiency of one hour over an entire week reduces me in efficiency and in good nature I become irritable and suffer other symptoms of chronic fatigue.

A moderate smoker for most of my life, I quit smoking a half-dozen years ago because I was convinced that tobacco aggravates the respirat o r y tract (nose, mouth, bronchial tubes, lungs) to the point that it interferes with comfort and shortens life. And also endangers the circulation.

Although I realize that alcoholism is one of our greatest problems, I am in favor of an ounce or two of liquor daily for people over 40 (alcoholism rarely begins after this age). When I think of it, I take a drink before dinner; but most often I forget.

I believe in hard work, interspersed with relaxation. The nap is one of nature's greatest inventions. I wish I took advantage of it more often than I do.

I believe in many short vacations rather than in two lengthy period that may become boring and tiring and defeats its own purpose.

Mrs. Y., I can't leave you with this "peek" into my way of life without mentioning what readers have seen me express here many times: my aversion for the need of exercise. Many people needlessly throw away their heartbeats and physical energy.

Defend Crown, Dief Pleads

TORONTO (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker Wednesday night called on "the silent majority" to defend the monarchy.

"Both the people who are silent and in the majority should stand up for the monarchy and stop the surreptitious chiselling away under the table against the things that through the generations have been upheld by Scots everywhere," Mr. Diefenbaker told the St. Andrew's Society of Toronto.

Replying to a toast by the group, Mr. Diefenbaker urged members to lead the defence of the monarchy.

"It would bring to an end that force that leads to the destruction of the things handed down by our forefathers."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 5

Your birthday today: More responsibility is the keynote for the coming year. You may have to forget personal projects and act with the group for bigger goals and benefits. Today's creatives are versatile, quick-minded, and generally like long journeys. Many have done well in the theatre.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): End the weekly routine on the earliest feasible moment since confusion, mainly over money and its accounting, is natural for the afternoon and evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your efforts at work today tend to generate a new and better opportunity elsewhere in the near future. Expend a reasonable line, but quit at a normal or slightly early hour.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The sooner you start and finish your day, the better. Do your best work first since older people must be dealt with later.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The main pressure is on improving your home and working conditions. Repairs, maintenance, redecoration are all favored. Your tact with friends who are confused and anxious will be much appreciated.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Brothers and sisters are very helpful today. Press hard for decisions and completion of negotiations in the morning. Take a break at midday and then finish your work.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Bring your planning to a climax early in the day. Focus your attention and energy on activity which does not challenge or line you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Train your powers of observation. Keep an eye on any portable property.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Expect delays and resistance. Many people will be helpful if they can remain anonymous. Consistent organizing improves your position in the morning. Take the afternoon and evening off if you can.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You will hear good news and experience congenial co-operation from friends. Later, taper off without haste or waste of time and materials.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Career planning proceeds rather well. Make up your mind what your main goals are and pursue them vigorously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Distant situations provide stimulus and much interest. Do what you can to get a profit in the morning, then switch to study and routine work.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Investigations turn up surprises all day. Hidden assets may be discovered.

Cable TV Feed from U.S. Vetoed as Broadcasting Safeguard

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission Wednesday handed down an unqualified decision against the use of microwave to carry United States TV signals for wide distribution in Canada.

Pierre Juneau, CRTC chairman, made the announcement at a news conference where he outlined several other policies the commission may follow in the future regulation of broadcasting.

The issue of whether to allow the use of microwave to carry U.S. programs over great distances for distribution by cable has been before the CRTC since July.

In a written statement, Mr. Juneau said the commission feared that a rapid acceleration in the influx of U.S. programs "could disrupt the Canadian broadcasting system within a few years."

The CRTC heard both sides of the argument over microwave at public hearings in Vancouver in mid-October and in Ottawa last week.

Cable operators and viewers argued that since U.S. programs were available to those close to the border, either through regular antennae or cable systems, the same service should not be denied those in more northerly areas.

Microwave was the only practical means of carrying TV signals over great distances, they said.

Many broadcasters, however, said that small local stations would not be able to withstand the competition from U.S. networks. The use of microwave, they said, would make it impossible to develop a distinct Canadian broadcasting service.

Mr. Juneau said the commission had taken account of both arguments.

"The Canadian broadcasting system is worth safeguarding only if it provides the Canadian population with essential services which could not be provided otherwise.

"It would not make sense to protect a Canadian system based essentially on the retailing of programs using predominantly non-Canadian creatives and other resources."

To develop Canadian broadcasting, Mr. Juneau said there will be a renewed emphasis in future on the responsibility of broadcasters to provide a distinctive, expanded service.

Cable operators would be expected to originate programming, perhaps through the development of cable networks.

As this programming developed, Mr. Juneau said, the commission might decide to limit the amount of U.S.-fare now being carried on cable systems in areas near the border.

He said he was confident cable systems would be installed in remote areas to carry the Canadian networks. The use of microwave to carry Canadian programs in Canada was permissible but would have to be examined with each cable TV licence application.

The CRTC also announced Wednesday it will not encourage communications common carriers to become operators of cable TV systems.

The commission added, however, that in some circumstances common carriers may be the only means of providing cable service.

The announcement also expressed concern about relationships between cable operators and the carriers.

In a separate study released Wednesday, the CRTC said that out of 4,000,000 urban households in Canada, 926,000 were cable TV subscribers as of Sept. 1.

The cable TV industry had grown at an annual rate of 45 per cent since September, 1968.

In 1969, the study said, 9.5 per cent of the television audience in Montreal watched American stations, compared with 5.7 and 94.3 per cent in 1968.

In Kingston, Ont., 71.8 per cent watched U.S. stations in 1969 and 28.4 per cent watched Canadian stations, compared with 60.4 20.6 per cent last year.

In Toronto, 69.4 per cent watched U.S. programs in 1969 while 30.6 watched Canadian stations compared with 44.1 and 55.9 per cent in 1968.

In Vancouver, 38.3 per cent of the television audience watched American stations and 61.1 per

Federal Proposals Unveiled

Right Asked to Set Up Income Insurance Plan

Quebec Demand Again Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government seeks specific constitutional powers to enact, in effect, programs for guaranteed annual income and salary insurance during sickness.

Prime Minister Trudeau made public Thursday a federal document which says Parliament and the provinces should have equal power to make income support payments to Canadians, including payments for a guaranteed annual income.

The document, to be presented to the federal-provincial constitutional conference Monday, also says Ottawa and the provinces should have concurrent powers to take "public income insurance measures."

Such an insurance measure would involve payments from a contributory fund to cover salary losses during sickness, federal officials said.

The federal government also again rejected Quebec's demand for exclusive jurisdiction over family allowances.

The working paper said transfer of family and youth allowances and old age pensions to the provinces would cost the federal treasury more than $2,400,000,000 annually.

The paper also maintained that on acts of Parliament in the field of retirement pensions — for example, the Canada Pension Plan—should over-ride provincial statutes such as the Quebec Pension Plan.

"In respect of retirement insurance and associated benefits Parliament's powers ought to be paramount," the federal paper said.

"If the provisions of a provincial pension law were to conflict with those of a federal law . . . then the law of Parliament would prevail."

The 33,000-word paper bears the title, Income Security and Social Services, and carries Prime Minister Trudeau's name on the cover under the title.

The paper said the provinces

NATO Cut Accepted

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada's reduction of her NATO forces in Europe received a qualified endorsement today from her allies of the North Atlantic Council.

Informants said a communique will say the foreign ministers noted the "positive outcome" of consultations with Canada after she announced the forces cuts a year ago, resulting mainly in a six-month delay in bringing home about half the Canadians in West Germany, c>.

Prince Philip's Mother Dies

LONDON (CP) — Princess Andrew, mother of Prince Philip, died in her sleep at Buckingham Palace early today. She was 84.

The princess-her full title was Princess Victoria Alice Elizabeth Julia Marie of Battenburg—has been in poor health for some time and had taken little part in royal functions for many years.

She had been staying at Buckingham Palace since October, 1967.

The news was broken this morning to members of the Royal Family, including her only surviving brother, Earl Mountbatten of Burma.

Princess Andrew was a Briton by birth, a great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, the wife of a prince of Denmark and Greece and a sister of the late Queen Louise of Sweden.

After her marriage in 1903 to a younger son of King George I of Greece, she was known by her husband's name, according to the Greek custom.

When the Greeks dethroned George II in 1924, Prince Andrew and his family fled to Paris. In 1929, when Philip was 8, his parents sent him to be raised by Lord Mountbatten in Britain.

When the Nazis occupied France Prince Andrew and his wife fled to Monte Carlo. Prince Andrew died there in 1944. They had been married 41 years.

After her son married Princess Elizabeth, Princess Andrew took the veil as a Greek Orthodox nun in 1948. She founded the order of Martha and Maria and spent 11 years in a convent on the Aegean island of Tinos.

Princess Andrew moved to England in 1967.

Trustees Urged For CYC

OTTAWA (CP) — The Company of Young Canadians should be placed under the direction of three trustees, a Commons committee recommended today.

Four Named To Handle Grain Work

OTTAWA (CP) — A new four-man interdepartmental "grains group" has been set up to co-ordinate all federal government efforts to overcome problems involving wheat and other grains, Otto Lang, ministry responsible for grains policy, announced today.

Mr. Lang said he will be chairman of the group of senior officials drawn from the departments of agriculture, trade, and transport. Other officials will be drawn into the group as needed, including representatives of the Canadian wheat board.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Although some snowflurries will likely persist over Lake Huron and Georgian Bay regions today, much of the province will have sunny skies. Southerly winds will bring somewhat milder air to all of the province on Saturday. Skies Saturday will be mostly cloudy.

Nickel, Copper Exports Put Under Control

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin imposed export controls today on nickel and copper so "legitimate needs of Canadian users" will be met in full.

bracing continental energy poli-

Greene said he found Hickel's "egotistic" in the direction of a continental policy covering not only oil but natural gas, hydro-electric power, coal and all other forms of energy "extremely interesting."

He emphasized, however, that the scheme is Hickel's personal idea although he may have outlined it before his U.S. cabinet colleagues for their reaction.

Greene said any plan that might have potential for improving the economy of the U.S. and Canada was obviously well worth discussion and he was impressed by the Hickel "philosophy" in this area.

"Speaking personally," Greene told a press conference, "the more I thought of the wider idea the more I thought it could be a great thing for Canada and for the United States."

Unless the Christmas Exchange is able to raise $4,400 more than 450 families will have a cheerless Christmas. In a month, the Exchange has received donations of $600.

The figures were revealed at a meeting of various Exchange officials yesterday.

Representatives of the Salvation Army, the Firefighters' Association and downtown and plaza merchants arrived at the amount after considering the number of families yet to be registered and the increased costs facing the Exchange.

Organizers are more than anxious about the present situation in which only 30 families have been matched with donors, plus the fact that there is only $600 in the Christmas Exchange Fund.

Now in its third year of operation, the Exchange has become familiar to Bellevillians as a confidential clearing house where boardie referral sources (i.e. human care agencies, school principals, clergymen) register needy families for Christmas assistance.

The requirements of needy families are matched by individual or group donors who provide food hampers or a cash donation which the Exchange in turn converts to hamper, cheques or vouchers.

The stress has been placed on cash donations this year, because organizers feel it is important to give the families the independence to buy their own Christmas where possible.

The cash that is donated to the Exchange is also utilized to buy additional toys for the more than 1,100 less fortunate children in the city — coloring books, hockey sticks, mitts — usually about $1 a child.

Assisting in gathering toys, as it has every year, is the Firefighters' Association.

Today the firemen will be collecting the boxes placed in each public and separate school, in which the children have deposited toys they want children less fortunate to have.

Airman Missing For 24 Days Alive and Well

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Fetiu, missing since Nov. 11, when his m o n o p l a n e disappeared in northeastern Quebec, has been found alive and well and is ready to go back to work.

Fetiu was found about noon Thursday in the forest 55 miles north of Bagotville, Que., where a civilian and military airport is located.

He came upon three trappers who used portable radio equipment to advise the Bagotville airport that he was alive and well.

The 29-year-old man from St. Hubert, Que., said in a telephone interview today he feels "just great" and never had any fears he would not be found.

"Good news, Sir. Brown has found a chemical that can kill Lucas!"

Quebec Driver, Lost on 401, Ends Up 200 Miles from Home

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Roger Charbonneau could aptly be named Wrong - Way Roger today.

The farm laborer from Rigaud, Que., created a problem last night which took three local police forces to solve.

Charbonneau hailed Brighton OPP Constable Don McNamee at 2:30 a.m. at a service centre west of here on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

Apparently, say police, the man thought he was in Quebec, but communication was impossible. The officer spoke only English. Charbonneau only French.

The officer found him a place for the night and brought him into Trenton at 8 a.m. A bilingual constable from the military police at CFB Trenton met the pair at Trenton police station. The truth then came to light.

The police interpreter said Charbonneau left Montreal after dark last night and headed home to Rigaud, 25 miles northwest.

Enroute he planned to register a snowmobile at a Quebec Provincial Police station.

When he met Const. McNamee at the freeway service centre here, he tried to register his snowmobile and go home, explained the interpreter.

Only trouble was that by that time he was 240 miles from Montreal.

Enroute, he ran out of gas and left his car on the freeway — hitchhiking west until he met Const. McNamee.

A check this morning located Charbonneau's car near Kingston.

Dumbfounded police explained Charbonneau's situation to him — including his location.

Officers said he still didn't know where he was until told by the interpreter.

Police raised gas money locally and helped him relocate his car near Kingston — piloting him towards home.

Will Ask Province to Share New Sewer Costs

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A special committee of Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott, Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey, and Mayor Dr. R. T. Potter and Clarke T. Rollins will go to Toronto before the end of the year seeking financial aid for a new sewer service in Belleville.

This was the decision reached at a joint meeting of Belleville and Thurlow officials yesterday at city hall to discuss provisions of sewer service for Thurlow Township.

Also attending the meeting were Murray Wilson, Ontario Water Resources Commission engineer, and John Argo, representing engineering consultants Gore and Storrie.

Yesterday's meeting was the third such parley between Belleville and Thurlow councils since the Ontario government announced its new policy of financial assistance for smaller municipalities' sewer service construction.

The policy provides a 15 per cent subsidy toward oversizing of certain trunk line sewers and assumes that sewer costs for residents in approved municipalities will not exceed $120 per year.

The city of Belleville is planning construction of a 36-inch trunk sanitary sewer costing $657,000 up the Moira River to serve the city's northeast industrial area and Hillcrest by the end of 1970.

But the Ontario Water Resources Commission want the sewer to be oversized and extended to Highway 401 to also serve parts of Thurlow Township.

The cost of the city-planned sewer is estimated at $657,000 as compared with $908,000 for the oversized sewer to Highway 401, proposed by the OWRC.

However, if the sewer to 401 was constructed by the OWRC it would be eligible for a 15 per cent provincial subsidy, leaving a difference of about only $100,000.

The OWRC proposes to build the oversized sewer and recover costs by way of a service charge of 20 cents per 1,000 gallons, payable by Belleville and Thurlow.

Meters would be installed to determine the amount of sewage from each municipality.

The cost difference between the city constructing the river trunk sewer for its own needs and for oversizing and extending it to 401 to service Thurlow is given as approximately $100,000.

But several Belleville aldermen have questioned why the city should help to pay for the Adam Street — Highway 401 section of the extended sewer for which it would have no use in the forseeable future.

City council feeling is that costs for this section of the sewer should be re-negotiated. Mayor Scott claims the 15 per cent subsidy should also apply on the city's Adam Street sewer and on the planned expansion and addition of secondary treatment at the sewage disposal plant on the city's bayfront.

Thurlow council has already given tentative approval to the OWRC proposal, while several city council members are of the opinion that the city must also accept the proposal.

The alternative would be for the city to go ahead and construct its own sewer, then run the risk of having it ordered dug up in a few years to provide for a larger sized facility to serve Thurlow.

While construction of an oversized sewer would cost the city an additional $100,000, the OWRC proposal would have a certain plus factor for Belleville.

If the OWRC proposal was accepted, Belleville would not have to issue debentures for payment of construction and its capital works quota for building of the river sewer could be applied to some other project.

Santa Claus Sky-Diving Into Tweed

TWEED — Santa Claus is dropping in to visit the children of Tweed and surrounding communities on Saturday afternoon, December 13 and dropping in is the right word for his visit this year.

Weather permitting, Santa and his helper will drop by parachute from an aircraft and land on the grounds of the Tweed - Hungerford High School, where he will present treats to the children. If the weather is unsuitable for sky-diving, Santa will arrive by regular transportation.

They'll Learn Gold(en) Rule Of Prospecting

MARMORA (Staff) — Fledgling and veteran prospectors go to school here starting next week.

A six-night course will be launched here Monday by the department of mines and is open to all comers.

This includes new and active, experienced prospectors or those wishing to learn rock-hounding — a hobby that now counts hundreds of enthusiasts in the Quinte district.

Instruction will emphasize rock and mineral identification, elementary geology and prospecting techniques. Registration and lectures are free.

The course will consist of two three-night sessions in the town hall here — Dec. 8-10 from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m., Dec. 11-13 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Shepherds in the Snow

The Nativity Scene displayed at Picton's Talbot Street office of the H. J. McFarland Construction Co., is one of the most outstanding Christmas sights in the county. Life-size figures of Mary, Joseph, the baby Jesus and the three wisemen and shepherds compose the scene. A life-size flock of sheep also stand in the snow.

Picton Aglow For Yule

PICTON (Staff)—It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas in Picton this week with emphasis on outdoor decorations.

There's a stately spruce tree looped with strings of lights standing in Bowen Park, compliments of the Kiwanis Club.

At the war memorial, Mayor H. J. McFarland has erected a huge tree ablaze with lights — his Christmas greeting to the town.

A third tree on the lawn of the Armory Mall adds a holiday touch to Main Street.

The town of Picton has strung colored lights on Main Street and on poles near the sidewalks are shimmering stars and snowflakes. Every shop in town seems to be decorated attractively for the holiday season.

Decorating has not stopped with Main Street this year: many Picton residents have strung outdoor trees with lights. With Santa Claus slated to arrive in a parade Pictonians have a head start on lighting the way for him with original and traditional decorations.

The most spectacular Christmas display in town was erected today at the offices of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company. In front of the building, the Nativity Scene is re-created with life-size figures. Wisemen and shepherds stand on the lawn surrounded by a flock of sheep. Atop the tall building the wise men's camels journey toward a star.

At night the magnificent display is outlined with dozens of strings of colored lights while blue floodlights cast shadows of reality on the Nativity Scene.

Christmas Exchange Needs Help

Members of the Association told the meeting the children's response has been "excellent", referring to overflowing boxes of toys as ample evidence.

The only difference this year is the fact that the Association members are not repairing toys because it has become next to impossible to repair the majority of them, which are now made of plastic.

Reg Christopher, a member of the Firefighters Association, who is working closely with the Exchange, informed the meeting that toy donations are being accepted at either Fire Hall. Response, he said, was good so far.

Various other groups are working in conjunction with the Exchange. The Salvation Army last year assisted more than 100 families. The Kiwanis Club has placed toy fund cans in most retail outlets and other businesses throughout the city.

A cash donation to the Exchange will meet the cost of issuing cheques and vouchers at the rate of $7.50 and $3 for each additional family member. Food hampers are $5 per family member.

"Up to date the public has been very slow in responding to the needs of these families", said Mrs. Selma Bochnek, consultant to the Exchange.

"An appeal has always to be made at this time of year. Bellevillians have always come through in the past, I am confident they won't disappoint these hundreds of families this year," she added.

Donations may be mailed to Christmas Exchange, P.O. Box 185, Belleville, or can be dropped in the Exchange headquarters at 224 John St. at the United Community Services Office.

Quinte Ex Approaches 150th Birthday

Dates for the 1970 Quinte Exhibition were approved at a meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society in the County Building last night.

The big five-day showcase of area agricultural products, industrial and commercial enterprise representative of the region commences Tuesday, August 18, and continues through to midnight Saturday, Aug. 22 next year.

Planners of the Belleville program were told investigation into the purpose of Exhibitions and Fairs had established the importance of adopting a role as educator to exchange information between the food producers and the food consumer.

Exhibition manager Ev Gowsell, reporting on a recent out-of-the-city visit to hear the results of official research and cross-country surveys, pointed out that the experts call for a policy for agricultural exhibitions and fairs to serve as a bridge between the producers who numbered 11 per cent as compared to the consumers now a strong 89 per cent of the country's population.

The planners were also reminded that the new decade is bringing Quinte Exhibition its 150 anniversary along with one of the greatest opportunities for urban and rural families to join together in colorful celebrations with more enthusiasm than any time in the area's long history.

Planning of the preparations for the special event is well in advance, the meeting was told.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the society is being held in city hall on Jan. 14.

Don Foster and Helper Gary Marriott

He's Santa's Best Helper

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

This is the Christmas a Belleville clown rescued Santa Claus.

As a result, new life has been injected into the city's Christmas parade — until recently stricken by fatal community inertia.

But then, Don Foster is no ordinary clown.

The greasepaint he wears at parades and in public around Eastern Ontario masks an ingenious, driving imagination.

It's that driving, and talent for inventiveness, that is now producing Belleville's 1969 Santa Claus parade tomorrow.

It's been less than a week since Mr. Foster, widely known for his mechanical inventions and the bands of clowns he assembles for community events, began organizing the parade.

His zeal was fired by Intelligencer reports that failing community enthusiasm had cancelled the 13-year-old parade — perhaps for good.

Lack of willing workers had forced parade organizers to call off the event for the first time since 1954.

The Foster reaction was infectious. During the past week support for his single-handed effort has been mounting.

It reached a climax Wednesday night at an open meeting of all willing workers at the Quinte Emergency Measures offices.

More than 60 citizens turned up to offer help with organizational chores.

"I've never seen anything like it around Belleville," enthused Angus Duffy, emergency measures director and one of the parade originals.

The parade committee reacted to the response by unanimously handing the 1969 event the Don Foster Santa Claus Parade.

Meantime, work goes on in the Ben Bleecker Auditorium where volunteers are surrendering time to hammer, paint and staple floats into reality. Their reasons for so much muscular support are similar.

Typical of the sentiment is the response of one man — not even a Belleville. An Amelisburg Township farmer — he has grandchildren in the city — heard the Foster appeal for help. He says he felt it a shame that local youngsters must go without, the annual parade, to be packed a tool kit and trekked to the Bleecker Auditorium.

Other individuals and organizations are responding in suitable fashion. A doughnut company has contributed doughnuts; a taxi company has made transport available for workers; candy, potato chips and balloons are being donations.

The parade, when it moves off down Front Street tomorrow at 10 a.m., should count up to 30 floats, bands, majorette troupes — and, of course, the well-known retinue of Foster clowns.

Some of the floats have been loaned. Others already were constructed by Foster crews for events elsewhere. But, with the Foster ingenuity at work, new mobile exhibits are being virtually mass-produced to meet the deadline.

Mr. Foster admits the event is costing him money — but hopefully he will recover expenses from subscriptions to the event.

He hasn't estimated just how much. For the moment he has a parade to produce.

The parade hits the downtown area at 10 a.m., travelling down Front Street to the Market Square, up Pinnacle to the recreation commission building.

Immediately after Santa will greet youngsters at the Santa Centre on East Dundas near Church, where the Christmas post office will be in operation. The centre, still being completed, will open specially for the occasion.

City Fire Inspectors ' Role Changes with Times

By HARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

As folksinger Bob Dylan once summarized another: "The times they are a-changin' " and even Belleville's fire inspectors are echoing that truth.

The role in inspection and prevention is changing, often said is a reason for continuing courses and refresher classes at the Ontario Fire College in Gravenhurst.

City fire inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reg Christopher talked with The Intelligencer about the changes in format of their occupation.

Mr. Stephenson has just returned from a two - week stint at the college where he took a fire prevention course.

The college offers other courses in fire fighting and administration.

A two-and-a-half year veteran of fire inspecting, Mr. Stephenson explained that the role of an inspector was changing and becoming more complex.

The growth of high - rise apartments is making some difference in his job as an inspector.

"Your building designs and codes are changing," he said. "With high - rise apartments you have evacuation problems. You have to have fire alarm systems.

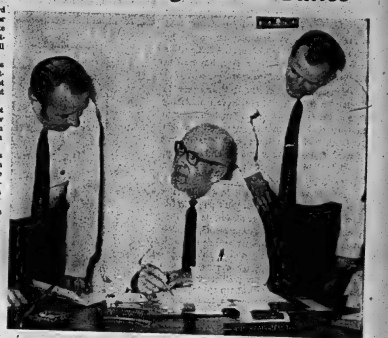
"It isn't the fire hazard as much as the smoke hazard now," he said. "Elevator shafts and stairs cause smoke problems. There are no outside escapes now. They all have to be enclosed."

But despite the new types of buildings being constructed, it's the old buildings that cause inspectors the most problems.

"It takes longer to inspect an old building than a new buildings we are in on it from buildings were in on it from the plans up."

In the case of institutions such as schools, construction plans are submitted to the Fire Marshal's office for approval from a fire prevention aspect.

And now fire inspectors spend many hours on an education program for the public.



"There's going to be a lot of work involved in the future in educating the public," Mr. Stephenson said.

Fire education includes addresses to schools, clubs, organizations and industrial buildings in the area.

And their function as public relations officers is growing in proportion as well.

"We're out in the public more often," he said.

Mr. Stephenson foresees a lot of refresher courses offered at the college to keep fire inspectors and prevention officers ahead of the game.

Says City Council Post Frustrating, Rewarding

Membership on city council can be both frustrating and rewarding.

That is the feeling of Alderman Donald Williams, veteran of six years in city hall, who this year is boring out of city municipal affairs.

"The position I enjoyed most was on the parks board and recreation arena committee," he told council Wednesday.

Past chairman of the parks and recreation committee had been most gratifying.

As a strong advocate of the proposed community centre, the alderman said he had been disappointed to see the citizens turn it down in a referendum. However, he said he was pleased that smaller rinks were now going to be built.

"It is my hope that our city will continue to prosper and grow as it has in the past four years," he said. "This can be done with the co - operation of all our citizens taking their share in helping to achieve the good things the city deserves."

Prior to his farewell talk, Alderman Williams presented a financial statement of the Quinte District Community Program which in September sponsored a luncheon meeting in the promotion of a Mott Program in Belleville.

Receipts of the committee were given as $1,058 with expenses, including $734 for the banquet, amounting to $319 and leaving a cash balance of $220.

Right Is Sought to Set Up Income Insurance

ought to have exclusive jurisdiction over social services.

Parliament and the provincial legislatures should have equal powers to make general income support payments to persons. Examples of such payments are family allowances and old age pensions.

Ottawa and the provinces should continue to have "concurrent powers" in public income insurance measures such as old age pensions and supplementary, benefits. Unemployment insurance also continue exclusively federal, workmen's compensation exclusively provincial.

The paper emphasized that the federal proposals are tentative, conditional on agreement on final distribution of powers and are not intended to prejudge existing programs.

It noted that Quebec has asked that all social security measures be placed under exclusive provincial jurisdiction.

It immediately rejected the proposal that Ottawa make payments to the governments of the provinces rather than to the people.

"Bluntly, a sense of community is less likely to exist where taxes are imposed to help governments rather than to help people. . . .

"The provinces would be under no obligation to use these grants for the purpose of supporting the incomes of the poor.

"They could use them instead for any purpose—including industrial promotion schemes or even tax reductions. . . .

"The government of Canada would not be able to support any suggestion that Parliament ought to finance the take-over by the provinces of exclusive jurisdiction over income support."

A fundamental economic reason for denying the provinces exclusive jurisdiction is that "the ability of the government of Canada to stabilize the economy would be seriously undermined," the paper said.

If jurisdiction were transferred to the provinces, Ottawa would also have to transfer to them an additional 22 per cent of the basic personal income tax plus an extra $500,000,000 in equalization grants.

Ottawa would be left with less than 25 per cent of the basic income tax.

"It has become evident that income redistribution between the rich and the poor across the country . . . could only be accomplished by the government which is responsible for the well-being of all Canadians," the paper said.

The paper is the eighth submitted to the continuing constitutional conference by Ottawa since February, 1968.

It offered a point-by-point rebuttal to Quebec's claim that the provinces should assume responsibility for federal family allowances and old age security.

It said the Quebec argument overlooks the freedom and flexibility the provinces now have to use their social assistance programs and minimum wage measures to achieve the social security results they wish.

In the field of public income insurance, the paper said new types might develop in future though it did not suggest what these might be.

It said the federal proposals for jurisdiction in unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation and retirement insurance mean that when new income insurance schemes develop Parliament would have paramount power only with respect to retirement insurance.

Harmony That Accords

Ruth Hills, (left), Arden Lewis and Susan Wessels harmonize as part of warm-up rehearsals of their accordion orchestra — one of the few in Canada. The orchestra, which was the brainchild of music teacher Mr. Lewis, has been enjoying success for the past year. The group is preparing for a concert this Saturday at Centennial High School.

Would You Believe -- Jazz -- Played by Accordion Orchestra?

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Musical talent pooling their talents is not unusual, nor is it unusual when the pooling results in an orchestra.

But when it is an accordion orchestra, things begin to take on a little different color.

Probably the only accordion orchestra in the Quinte area, the group is headed by Arden Lewis, a local music teacher.

The orchestra has been playing together for a year, and according to Mr. Lewis, the 14 accordions make beautiful music together.

The greatest difficulty that has faced the group during the past year has been obtaining enough music for them to play.

"Music made for accordion orchestras just isn't that easy to come by, and I spent the better part of last summer trying to get my hands on enough," said Mr. Lewis.

"I think that probably has been our biggest and only problem so far. Other than that, things have been running along fairly smoothly," he added.

The orchestra has played publicly more than a dozen times in the past year, and has won its share of awards in competition.

At last year's Rotary Music Festival, the group brought home a series of firsts, testifying to the talent.

The orchestra competed in the Canadian Accordion Championship in Toronto, fairing well, and at the same time sending two individual accordionists to the world - wide championships in New York.

The accordion, although not one of the oldest instruments in the world, is termed one of the most difficult to play.

"What you need to play the accordion is not only a sound musical background, but a plus amount of co - ordination. It is a complicated instrument to master," remarked Mr. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis sees the orchestra as a way of maintaining the musical talent in Belleville at a peak level of performance and polish.

"What usually happens is a student of the accordion will take lessons for a number of years, and then quit, which means all those years spent in learning how to play the accordion will lie dormant, giving satisfaction to no one."

He sees the orchestra as a way to diversify musical enthusiasm and ability.

Most of the members in the group have finished a number of years of lessons, and are in the orchestra simply because they want to be.

What makes things more interesting is Mr. Lewis' approach to the type of music accordions should be playing.

"I want to see accordion music in the world of the young — and taken out of the polka - only realm. This is one sure way to catch and keep their interest so that it will be continued in their adult lives."

One soon realizes he puts his ideas to work when you hear the group playing contemporary and 'rock' numbers, even jazz mixed with classical pieces.

Mr. Lewis emphasized the group is not a money - making organization.

"What we do have is valuable musical talent in Belleville. The talent is here and we must get the people interested to help develop it to a greater extent," he commented.

The current group project is a concert the orchestra will be giving at Centennial Secondary School this Saturday evening. All proceeds go back into the orchestra to pay equipment expenses.

Wise Tips from Fire Department Can Prevent Christmas Tragedies

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

"Oh Christmas tree, Oh Christmas tree . . . how lovely are thy branches".

The Christmas tree — artificial or real — is an important part of Christmas. But a sobering thought is that fires caused every year by trees in Canadian homes cause high fire and life losses.

And Belleville Fire Chief Leo Culhane and his department know it all too well.

Unless special care is taken in the choice of a Christmas tree, Chief Culhane warned, a happy holiday can turn into terrible tragedy.

A number of rules and tips should be observed when shopping for and using a natural tree.

- The tree should be green and fresh. The freshness can be tested by ensuring the twigs and needles are not dried. It should be kept outdoors or in an unheated garage until it is time to set it up indoors.
- Then, the tree should have one or two diagonal cuts made in its butt and immersed in a water-filled stand. The water level should be maintained to keep the tree fresh.
- The tree should be set up away from any source of heat such as a fireplace, radiator, stove or television set. It should never block doors or windows. Never smoke near the tree, nor allow matches or candles nearby.
- Strings of lights should be checked for frayed cords or damaged insulation which might cause short circuits. Only lighting sets bearing the Canadian Standards Association label should be bought and only non-flammable decorations used.
- Flameproofing of natural trees with chemical mixtures is not a safe substitute for immersion of the butt in water.
- Candles should never be used as tree decorations or placed anywhere in holders made from styrene foam.
- Even artificial trees present their own hazards. Metallic trees, due to the danger of short circuits, should never be illuminated by strings of electric lights. Floodlights should be used and kept away from the tree.
- Gift wrappings should never be left to accumulate near the tree on Christmas morning. Even a moist tree will burn if exposed to a ring of burning paper around the base.

City Police Step Up Yule Patrols

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

With Christmas less than three weeks away, city police are expecting to have their work cut out for them.

As a matter of fact, past experience with the Yuletide season has prompted Police Chief Douglas Crosbie to increase nightly patrols throughout the city in an attempt to guard against Christmas crime.

Statistics for the month of December, 1968, show crime was high during the period as Bellevillians did their Christmas shopping.

There were 12 break and enters during December, 1968, along with 11 cases of theft to a value over $50 and 39 cases under $50.

Yuletide celebrators in excess were prevalent as well. Out of a yearly 1968 total of 74, 31 drinking drivers were charged in December.

Chief Crosbie warned shoppers of some of the hazards of crime.

"Again we ask people with parcels to be sure to lock their cars," he said, "and to please advise police of any people acting suspiciously.

"We'd rather have 1,000 false alarms than miss one good call."

Belleville citizens should also be wary of suspicious persons where Christmas lights are concerned. Already there have been thefts of lights and malicious damage.

Drunk drivers are a main cause of concern for the police department with all the "people having parties."

"They should make some arrangements for transportation when they know they're going to be drinking," Chief Crosbie explained.

Despite the expected increase of drinking during the holiday season, the department's breathalyzer has not been used since legislation Dec. 1 made the test mandatory.

"It doesn't necessarily mean that .06 per cent makes you safe," Chief Crosbie cautioned. "There are other factors. The machine doesn't say if you're impaired. It just tells the per cent of alcohol in the blood.

"We've had a very low refusal rate previously," he said.

The holiday season can also be bait for thieves who break into houses.

Bellevillians are asked to make sure their homes are securely locked when they leave.

Snowmobiles also inspired words of caution from Mr. Crosbie.

"They mustn't be operated on the sidewalk. It is an offence to tow toboggans and no one under 16 can use them (snowmobiles) on the street," he said.

Elections Saturday

WARKWORTH (Staff)—Two incumbents will be among five candidates seeking council seats in every Township's municipal election Saturday.

Councillors Arthur Menelly and Arthur Wardman will face opposition from John McCracken, Wayne Pollock and James Stephens when the township's eligible 1,700 voters go to the polls.

Daniel Lawson already has been acclaimed to a second term as reeve. Incumbent Councillor Everett Mayne has been acclaimed deputy - reeve. Council is elected to one-year terms.

Simultaneously Saturday, an estimated 450 voters in the village of Warkworth will select three council trustees from among four candidates.

Newcomer William Johnston will oppose incumbent John Bowen, Claire Campbell and Douglas Laver for a one - year term.

Polls in both elections open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Farmers Given Scholarships

TWEED — Scholarships for two young Canadian farmers to undertake a five to six months study program of farming and agriculture organization in Great Britain have been awarded by the Nuffield Foundation in London to Grant A. Ketcheson of Malloe and Mr. William Weigbill of Carrot River, Saskatchewan.

Nuffield travelling farmer scholarships have been offered for a number of years to young farmers, between the ages of 30 and 35 years, in a number of Commonwealth countries including Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Kenya and Rhodesia.

Two Canadians have been successful each year in obtaining them.

The scholarship includes travel and expenses to Britain and return plus a generous travel and living allowance during the term of the study program.

Messrs. Ketcheson and Weigbill will leave Canada early in March to undertake studies which will allow them to study the farming and agriculture practices of particular interest to them and will include official visits with the British Ministry of Agriculture and the National Farmers Union.

The Nuffield Scholarships program in Canada is administered by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

ON THE JOB

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — The Prince Edward Island public works department believes in getting the job done and fast. Summerside Mayor Ross MacKenzie says the department was called recently to repair slabs of concrete sunk below the sidewalk level in Summerside and the department repair crew was repairing the sidewalk within one hour of being notified.

Crash Injures 2

TWEED (Special) — Two area drivers, Charles R. Porritt, 72, of Tweed, and George H. Deline, 71, of RR1, Sioco, have been charged with failing to share the road, following a head-on collision yesterday on the Lodgeroom Road in Hungerford township.

Cars driven by the two men collided in the centre of the road, resulting in more than $500 damage. Neither [illegible] suffered injuries.

No Time To Count Canines!

Belleville's civic employees have more important things to do than to take a census of the dogs in the municipality.

This was the comment Wednesday of Mayor J. Russell Scott as city council "filed" a resolution from Galt, asking that the minister of municipal affairs be requested to include in Bill 205 provision for taking a dog census.

Council's feeling was that if a count of dog noses was required, all that had to be done was to enforce the dog licensing bylaw.

Several other resolutions from Ontario centres had a more favorable reception from city council.

One was from the town of Stoney Creek, asking that Ontario's attorney general "vigorously enforce" the laws respecting illegal gatherings and civil disobedience.

The Stoney Creek resolution was the result of some high-jinks by Hallowe'en pranksters.

In moving concurrence in the resolution, Ald. Arnold Orr hoped that people wouldn't get the impression from council action that Belleville had any similar circumstances to those cited by Stoney Creek.

Council also concurred in a Markham resolution objecting to the increasing tendency for certain personalities in the moving picture, live theatre and television industries and for certain publications placing abnormal emphasis on the sexual aspects of life.

The resolution also objected to an abnormal emphasis on violence and the increasing tendency to use profanity and vulgar language in certain of the productions.

I AM SINCERELY GRATEFUL TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE WHO WORKED FOR ME AND SUPPORTED ME DURING THE ELECTION.

Did Not See or Order Any Massacre, Medina Testifies

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States Army board lined up testimony today from Lieut. William L. Calley, charged with mass murder of South Vietnamese civilians.

Calley's company commander, Capt. Ernest Medina, told the board Thursday he did not order any massacre and "I did not see any massacre in My Lai."

Calley, who has not spoken publicly about the incident, was called to testify before a special army board which is attempting to find out why a field investigation shortly after the alleged massacre, in March, 1968, came up with a finding that no further action was necessary.

The lieutenant is charged with the premeditated murder of at least 108 civilians at the village.

Medina, whose Company C included Calley's platoon, was excused by the board Thursday night after hours of questioning under oath. He has not been charged in the case.

During a break in his testimony, Medina appeared at a news conference and denied allegations by some of his former soldiers that he himself had killed a child at the My Lai 4 hamlet and ordered inhabitants of the settlement killed.

With Boston criminal lawyer F. Lee Bailey at his side, the 33-year-old captain answered questions for the first time since the case burst into a world-wide sensation.

Bailey said Medina is not subject to an order issued by the trial judge in Calley's impending court martial and that his client was speaking out because of accusations against him carried in the news media.

The captain said:

—"I did not shoot any child in My Lai and . . . I did not order any massacre in My Lai . . . I did not see any massacre in My Lai."

—He shot a woman, acting in self-defence when he thought she was about to attack him with a weapon.

Canadian Lawyers Want International My Lai Probe

TORONTO (CP) — A group of Canadian "international law professors have called on the United Nations to establish an international body to investigate the alleged Song My massacre in Vietnam.

R. St. J. Macdonald, dean of law at the University of Toronto, told a news conference that the world "has a resounding interest in the maintenance of high standards of ethical conduct by the armed forces of the United States and all other countries engaged in hostilities."

Dean Macdonald said he had contacted international law professors in all universities in Canada. "All agree with our statement," he said.

"We do not presume to assess the validity of the considerable evidence concerning the Song My incident that has come to light in recent days.

"But we cannot neglect our responsibility to avoid prejudicing the rights of any persons who may face trial as a consequence of present investigations."

No Personal Knowledge Of Atrocities, Says Robb

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (Reuters) — Maj. Charles Robb, son-in-law of former president Johnson, said here Thursday night he has no personal knowledge of any atrocities committed by members of his company against civilians in South Vietnam.

But he said he would not be so naive as to make a categoric denial of alleged atrocities.

Acting on the advice of senior U.S. Marine Corps officers attending a meeting here, Robb called a news conference Thursday to answer questions arising from a story in Washington columnist Jack Anderson, a former partner of the late Drew Pearson.

Anderson in his story quoted an Illinois reporter as saying he was told by four marines that members of the company commanded by Robb committed atrocities against civilians.

Anderson, author of the syndicated Washington Merry-Go-Round column, said he obtained an affidavit from Anthony Martin-Trigona, in which the charges were attributed to marines the reporter interviewed during a visit to South Vietnam in August, 1968.

Answering questions in a suite at the Stardust Hotel, one of the many glittering hotels along this gambling town's famed strip, Robb said he thought news media could understand that he would be "especially sensitive to anything like this happening in his unit."

He, perhaps, would take greater measures than other company commanders to avoid anything untoward happening, he said.

Robb stressed that with some 200 soldiers in his company he was not always able to know precisely what each one was doing.

In his column, Anderson cited Martin-Trigona's affidavit as having quoted a marine as telling the Illinois reporter that he had an affidavit from Anthony Martin-Trigona, in which the charges were attributed to marines the reporter interviewed during a visit to South Vietnam in August, 1968.

Robb, asked about the comment, told the news conference it might have been "just troop talk." He then cited the well-known U.S. Army enlisted men's maxim: "If it moves, salute it. If it stands still, paint it."

He recalled that he had met Martin-Trigona in Vietnam but he said if the journalist had been "privy to any information (about the alleged atrocities) he didn't say anything about it."

Earlier Senator Charles Percy (Rep. Ill.) asked the defence department to investigate allegations that members of the Robb's company committed atrocities against South Vietnamese civilians.

The Marine Corps has promised an investigation to establish the facts but said it had not received any letter from Percy.

But the defence department, saying it was studying the allegations about Robb's company, said the communication from Percy was received Thursday.

Robb, who spent 13 months in Vietnam, is married to the former Lynda Bird Johnson.

Suicide, Violence Said Chief Cause Of Indian Deaths

OTTAWA (CP) — Suicide and violence rather than disease appear responsible for a rising death rate among Indians aged 25 to 29, Health Minister John Munro said Thursday.

Reports of the increased death rate prompted heated exchanges during the Commons question period. Prime Minister Trudeau, replying to Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, said he would consider making a statement on the subject today.

Letters signed Oct. 29 and Nov. 25 by G. Graham Cummings of Ottawa for the director-general of medical services in the federal health department outlined the situation.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the data in the Oct. 29 letter are stunning. They showed that an Indian woman of 27 had one-fifth the chance of reaching the life span of a white woman that age.

The Oct. 29 letter said infant mortality among Indians in British Columbia, the Yukon, Saskatchewan and Manitoba is a matter of concern.

Mr. Howard tried unsuccessfully to get a motion on the floor to have the situation referred to the Commons committee on Indian affairs.

There were cries of "shame" as Liberals, including Mr. Trudeau, refused the unanimous consent needed to present the motion.

Mr. Trudeau said later he had no objection to sending the matter to the committee but he didn't want normal Commons routine interrupted with a debate on the matter.

The Oct. 20 letter was tabled a few minutes later by Mr. Munro, along with a Nov. 25 letter, which he said corrected a "grave error" in the first.

He said the mortality rate for infants and young Indians has decreased but the increase in deaths among Indians aged 25 to 29 had offset this.

Wants RCMP Off Reserve For Six Nations Election

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart Thursday refused a request from Mac Makarchuk (NDP—Brantford) that he ask the RCMP to stay off the Six Nations reserve near Brantford during Saturday's council elections.

Speaking in the legislature, Mr. Makarchuk referred to the "tense situation" on the reserve and said only provincial police officers should be present on the reserve during the elections since the Indians have good relations with the OPP but not with the RCMP.

Mr. Wishart replied that he did not feel he could ask the federal government to keep the RCMP off the reserve.

For some time now we have been taste-testing six of Brights fine Canadian wines against the six most popular imported wines in the world—wines from France, Germany, Italy, Spain and Portugal.

In every case the imported product cost much more, sometimes twice as much as the Canadian wine.

The wines are decanted into identical anonymous bottles beforehand, marked only by X and Y. We ask the participants to mark which wine they prefer.

Of the 2,978 "preference votes" cast 1,507 —54½— were for the wines by Brights.

Brights fine Canadian wines are as good as or better than the great majority of wines imported from anywhere in the world.

Wines like these:

President Burgundy • A great dry red table wine.
President Sauterne • A delicate light white wine. Ideal before lunch or dinner.
President Sherry • A dry white wine of quality.
President Extra Dry • A distinguished dessert wine.

Million Furry Animals a Year Needed by Ontario Scientists

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario research and teaching facilities need 1,000,000 furry animals a year for experiments, including dogs, cats, rabbits and mice, Prof. L. R. Christensen, director of the University of Toronto's division of laboratory animal science, said Thursday.

Prof. Christensen spoke before the legislature's standing committee on health at a public hearing of views on the government's proposed animal research bill.

The bill will compel municipal pounds to hand dogs and cats over for research after a redemption period.

He argued that clauses in the bill providing for inspection of pounds and animal supply facilities will reduce the pain and suffering caused research animals by contagious disease.

Dr. Christensen said 40,000,000 furry animals were used for research in the United States during 1968.

He said only one per cent of the 1,000,000 animals needed in Ontario would be cats and a smaller per cent would be cats. Nearly all of the animals would be used in medical and other university research with a small number going to high schools.

Writer Cleveland Amory, a director of the World Federation for the Protection of Wildlife, described seizure of animals from pounds as a "moral wrong — a wound to the humane spirit."

He said many U.S. states had tried pound seizure and all but 10 have since rescinded these laws because the result was simply that the public refused to bring animals to public pounds or shelters.

Jack Ballam, a zoologist at the Ontario Science Centre and the first scientist to oppose the bill, told the committee a government-run, non-profit establishment for breeding needed research animals could be built for less than $1,000,000.

Mr. Ballam said animals specially bred are highly superior for most research use to stray animals.

His contention was supported by Dr. Duncan Sinclair, chairman of Queen's University animal care committee, who said even the 69 per cent of research dogs who must be acquired would be better for research if they were specially bred.

Dr. Sinclair blamed the "emotional harangues" of the bill's hearings for difficulties recently experienced by Queen's in getting needed animals for research.

He claimed that pound operators now are reluctant to have the university's trucks pass on their premises, and the number of dogs available per week has dropped to 10.1 from the 17.3 average of 1968.

MPPs Rush to Finish Work

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature Thursday resumed up debate on departmental spending as members rushed to complete their business before the expected conclusion of the session Dec. 17.

The house voted approval of $462,317,900 in highways department estimates to bring the total grades voted for 26 departments and offices to $2,059,608.

Earlier, the house heard reports concerning two controversial bills—the landlord and tenant bill and proposed legislation governing animal research.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said the landlord and tenant bill will be given a public hearing before the legislature's standing committee on legal and municipal bills.

The bill, if approved, will limit the amount of security deposits a landlord may ask from his tenant and would also prohibit landlords from seizing a tenant's property in case of default of rent payments.

The bill was approved in principle by the legislature this week and will get final reading next week after the committee hearings.

In other legislature business:

—Speaker Fred Cass promised the standing committee on government operations a study to determine whether certain clauses of a recent hearing into the skyscraper increase of Ontario Hydro wholesale rates could be reported to the committee.

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart refused a request from Mac Makarchuk (NDP—Brantford) that he ask the RCMP to stay off the Six Nation reserve near Brantford during Saturday's council elections. Referring to the "tense situation" on the reserve, Mr. Makarchuk said only provincial police should be present during the election because the Indians have good relations with them.

Mud from the wreck is pumped to the surface where it is carefully screened for artifacts. A cannon is among the items recovered so far. The project is being carried out by the federal Indian affairs department.

Ontario Urged to Spend $31 Million To Buy Land in Niagara Escarpment

TORONTO (CP) — A 21-man commission has recommended that the Ontario government spend $31,000,000 in eight years to preserve 510 square miles of the Niagara Escarpment as natural parkland.

The commission warns in a report that some sections of the escarpment, a rocky promontory running from the Niagara River to Georgian Bay, already have been lost to private development and others are endangered by the spread of housing, cottages and industrial sites.

When Leonard Gertler, geography professor at University of Waterloo, was named to head the commission in 1967, Premier John Robarts said the escarpment had to be preserved because it is a recreational wonderland within 150 miles of the built-of Ontario's population.

On tabling the 98-page report in the legislature Thursday, however, the premier said its release "does not imply government acceptance of the recommendations."

The report recommends provincial control over 510 square miles in nine counties, exercised on a priority basis within four, six and eight years.

Some lands would be purchased by the province, others protected through agreements with private owners, and the remainder preserved through mandatory zoning and land-use bylaws.

Parks, landscape features and scientific preserves would be acquired on the "string of beads" concept, the province owning the most desirable features and exercising control over areas in between.

The commission says the entire length of the escarpment should become a single park network providing diversified recreation with nine major multi-purpose parks.

Development of new stone and gravel pits would be restricted and existing ones rigidly controlled, and all pits and quarries would be restored to fit the landscape as they are exhausted.

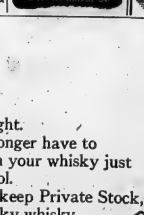
The Bruce Trail, a hikers' path developed by outdoor enthusiasts, would be preserved by acquiring access rights to a 16-foot strip through all properties between Queenston and Tobermory.

String of Parks Is Proposed From Niagara to Georgian Bay

TORONTO (CP) — A unified series of parks, stretching like string of beads miles from the Niagara River to Georgian Bay, has been proposed by a commission appointed to study preservation of the Niagara Escarpment.

"The characters of the escarpment as a natural parkland dictates that it should be planned as a unit, distinct from surrounding lands," says the Gertler commission report, tabled Thursday in the Ontario legislature.

The commission, headed by Prof. Leonard Gertler of the University of Waterloo, recommended that the network include nine major multi-purpose provincial parks, protected scenic features, predominant rock formations and naturalist reserves.



The major provincial parks, anchored at either end by the Niagara Falls parklands and a large unit at Tobermory on the tip of the Bruce Peninsula, would be at Effingham Short Hills, Dundas Valley, Rattlesnake Point; Credit Forks, Blue Mountain, Beaver Valley and the Cape Croker Indian reserve.

The smaller beads in the necklace would be waterfalls, viewpoints, historic sites, rock formations and nature reserves, and the scarp, or basic rock formation with its forest cover, would "remain as a permanent feature of the Ontario landscape."

Access would be provided through an integrated trails system, which would include the Bruce Trail, a hikers' path presently being extended across all properties in its 450-mile course.

Proposed highways, such as the Tri-County and Escarpment scenic drives, could be developed if they did not change the escarpment character.

The commission recommends controlled private investment in skiing facilities, as in the Hockley Valley and at Blue Mountain; protection of wild rivers for canoeing, as in the Beaver Valley; access for fishing and hiking; ownership of wilderness for nature study, hunting and camping; ownership of unique areas for scientific study; access to the waterfront for intensive beach development; provision of roadside pull-offs at scenic outlooks; multi-purpose parks; and preservation of scenery for sight-seeing.

Three Methods Are Suggested For Gaining Control of Land

TORONTO (CP) — Three methods of gaining control over the most desirable lands are recommended in the Gertler commission report on preservation of the Niagara Escarpment.

The report, tabled in the Ontario legislature today, recommends that complete control should be obtained by provincial purchase of some areas; selective control through agreements with private owners giving the province defined rights, and control by regulations governing what can be done to the environment.

The report says control should be acquired on a priority basis, within periods of four, six and eight years.

The province would acquire complete control over 55,000 acres at a cost of $18,500,000, and selective control over 35,000 acres at a cost of $13,000,000.

Municipalities would be reimbursed by the province for taxes lost through the acquisition of land for parks purposes.

Environmental control—exercised through municipal land-use and zoning by-laws or provincial order—would be applied to 300,000 acres.

Of the land to be completely controlled, 7,820 acres would be in the Niagara Peninsula; 6,060 acres in Dundas Valley; 8,370 acres in the Mount Nemo-Caledon Mountain area; 5,530 acres in Hockley Valley-Devil's Glen; 25,430 acres on Georgian Bay, and 36,450 acres on the Bruce Peninsula.

Of these lands, 46 per cent would be acquired within four years; 42 per cent, within six years and 12 per cent within eight years.

All of the Niagara and Dundas Valley land should be acquired at once, the report says.

The report recommends that funds for purchase of land be included in the provincial budget, with the government to spend $8,200,000 in each of the first four years, $3,045,000 in each of the next two and $1,975,000 in the seventh and eighth years.

The commission warns that the areas it has placed in the first priority are in greatest danger of loss to residential and quarry development.

All municipalities would be required, through zoning by-laws, to adopt suitable standards of environmental controls; and if they failed to do so the province would assume responsibility for land-use regulation.

The report recommends creation of an escarpment secretariat, responsible for, preparing standards of environment control and land-use regulations and for carrying out whatever of its recommendations are adopted by the province.

It says the province should take over immediately any escarpment land held by governments or public bodies and designated areas threatened by subdivision development.

It warns of the urgency of action to stop the private purchase of land for cottage purposes, much of it by Americans, which cuts off sections of the escarpment from the general public.

Winter Closing Urged For Some Cheese-makers

TORONTO (CP) — The report of a committee appointed earlier this year to investigate problems of the dairy processing industry suggests that price supports and subsidies have helped maintain plants which should have gone out of business long ago.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart, in tabling the report Thursday in the Ontario legislature, did not indicate whether he would adopt its major recommendation — a call for cheddar cheese incentives and encouragement of plant consolidations.

The report said the provincial agriculture department should provide an incentive to assist cheddar cheese factories to close November through March if milk receipts of the plant are below the amount required for an eight-hour shift.

The Experts Say

Youngsters Can Make Own Yule Decor

TORONTO (CP) — There are two ways of looking at it. You can be serious and help fight creeping commercialism or you can relax and help your youngster have some fun making Christmas decorations, or toys or table favors.

Either way, there are a lot of little doodads a child can make with some help from the variety stores. Dell Canning, who has spent a number of years showing CTV girls how to make them, says they can even adapt to other seasons if you just use a different-colored ribbon or whatever.

Miss Canning says you can make a simple mobile, without worrying about ratios of length of thread to width of arm. The trick is to use just one horizontal, suspended by a thread tied exactly in the middle.

"That top bar must be of something light. I have a friend who makes a lot of mobiles, and she uses the plastic frames that are around so many packaged children's toys.

"Then everything you want in your mobile must be on the same thickness of cardboard. You can use Christmas ornaments, stars, snowmen, Santas, cut out any pictures you like and paste them on. The secret is that they must be on the same weight of paper.

"Then be sure to make the two outside hangings the same length, and you can balance the elements you use. Chewing gum is a wonderful thing to help balance mobiles."

She had one made of pictures of the people and animals of a manger scene that had one large picture and two smaller ones hung on one side, balanced by two large pictures on the other. A picture of the Holy Family was suspended in the middle.

Gifts that double as tree ornaments may need some help from mother and the sewing machine. You can cut two pieces of felt in the shape of a horse's head, using a bit of drapery fringe for a mane. Put them together and stitch around the edges except for the bottom of the neck. Then you can slip the head over the top of a candy cane and have a hobby-horse effect. Miss Canning had seen a pair of sequin eyes and some rick-rack harness on some she made.

You can also cover a pencil tightly with a tube of bright felt and put a shape at the top to make a sort of wand. She says the shape can be anything you like—butterfly, star, elephant.

For either type of ornament, cut the felt with pinking shears and leave the seam edge outside.

Two gifts that Miss Canning says are sure-fire grandmother-pleasers involve soap and a washcloth.

In one case you wrap an oblong cake of soap in foil or festive paper. Then decorate a cardboard tube (an empty toilet-paper roll does fine) with paper or ribbon so it looks like a candle. Put a red washcloth inside with a cummerbund cut to look like a flame. Then pin the tube upright on the cake of soap. If you can't find a red washcloth, use any color and make the flame of paper.

Another version begins by folding the washcloth in half and wrapping it tightly around the bar of soap to form the body of a snowman. To make the head, put a wad of paper in the top of the face cloth. Sew the top closed and put a draw thread between the wad and the soap and pull it to make the neck. Miss Canning had a red-ribbon scarf around the neck of her sample snowman, and felt and beads for eyes, nose and buttons. A black stovepipe hat was made out of a circle of felt with a tube of felt pinned to it.

A small, candy-carrying wheelbarrow was made with a plastic straw, an individual plastic container such as restaurants use, and a lifesaver. Poke four round holes in the cup, two near the bottom at the front, two, wider apart, near the top on the other side.

Put the straw through the lifesaver and bend the straw in the middle. Poke its ends diagonally, bottom to top, through the four holes in the cup. The lifesaver becomes the barrow's wheel, and the long straw ends at the top become its handles.

Victorian Christmas Week

NAPANEE — Plans for the Victorian Christmas week in the Allan MacPherson house are gradually taking shape. Schools of the area are taking turns sending children to demonstrate making Christmas decorations of the period.

Also, about three school classes each afternoon will visit The House during the week. Hostesses for each day will be in period costume and everyone will be served apple juice and the plain cookies common in Victorian days.

A loom belonging to Mrs. Rob Roy MacGregor of Kingston and Strathcona is being assembled in the basement kitchen and, hopefully, it will be in operation during the week.

The opening day, December 7, is given over to dramatizing of incidents from literature of that day, with presentations both afternoon and evening in the ballroom.

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD CHARD

Chard – Howes

St. Thomas Anglican Church Belleville, was the scene of the recent marriage of Elizabeth Ann Howes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howes, RR1, Corbyville and Leonard William Chard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard R. Chard of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Peter Tutt. Organist was Donald Davenport who accompanied the six choir boys.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length sheath styled gown of white peau de soie with a scooped neckline, a cape like effect of guipure lace. The lace also trimmed the skirt and edged the train which fell from the shoulders. She wore a four-tier shoulder length veil held with a flowered head dress and seed pearls. Her bouquet was yellow roses and white spider mums.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Douglas Osborne, sister of the bride, wearing a floor length gown of rose pink peau de soie, matching headpiece and she carried pink and white mums.

Best man was Larry James Chard, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Garry Chard, cousin of the bridegroom, and Douglas Osborne, brother-in-law of the bride.

For the reception held at Gilead Community Centre, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a gold dress with lace over-jacket, accessories of corresponding shades and a green orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dark brown two piece suit with gold and beige accessories and a corsage of cream carnations.

For the wedding trip to points north and west, the bride wore a two-piece lilac suit with black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The couple will reside at 102 N. Front St., Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD LESSELS

Lessels – Bentley

Salvation Army Citadel, Belleville, was the scene of the recent wedding of Virginia E. Bentley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bentley, Belleville and Edward Alan Lessels son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lessels also of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Captain Gurney, organist was Mrs. Gurney and soloist was Mrs. Mary Howes.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of lagoda with train attached. It featured a lace bodice and long lily point sleeves and train. She wore a plain four layered veil with headdress and a matching bow on the gown and carried a white muff crested with a green orchid.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Bonnie Smith, wearing a full length green velvet A - line gown with short sleeves. Her headpiece was a small green veil and she carried a nosegay containing pink roses and white mums.

Best man was Robert Lessels and ushers were Ken and Ron Lessels.

For the reception held at the Sun Luck Gardens the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a brown, short sleeved silk worsted dress with matching mink trimmed jacket. She wore a gold hat and brown accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a short sleeved turquoise crimplene dress with matching three-quarter length coat, a green feathered hat with black accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to points east the bride wore a navy blue wool pant suit and a lime green blouse with ruffles in front and at the sleeves.

The couple will reside at 3 Keitha Drive, Amherstview.

Lighter Than-A-Cloud Look Spring Trend

NEW YORK (AP) — One trend shaping up for spring evenings is the lighter-than-a-cloud look.

Elinor Simmons for Malcolm Starr brought that look into focus Wednesday at the American Designer Showings in New York.

Models glided on to the runway in full bias-cut chiffons, some with raised waists, deep v-necks and short sleeves. Others were trimmed with glitter: at the waist, on bolero tops, around collars and sleeves.

Several dresses were shown with the folded, triangular shawl, a popular wrap for the coming season. The pastel tones of one multi-colored shawl were carried on to its fringed trimming.

Kasper for Joan Leslie showed many Oriental prints for spring: birds, flowers, rushing waves, set on silk surrah and crepe de chine. Lacquer colors are intensified by black or white.

He juggled pattern on pattern in day clothes: twin prints with quilting and prints with plaid or stripes.

The plum color will be big for spring, he said, bringing out a white dress with light plum sash under a print coat in pale pinks, blues and purples.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

A Christmas meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Hugh Murray. The president, Mrs. Peter Anderson presided.

The business meeting included final planning of the Christmas family project led by social committee chairman, Mrs. Robert Vaughan. Mrs. Ray Stickle announced that arrangements had been made for the Christmas party December 8, at the Red Lion in Trenton.

The program for the evening 'Poetry Into Music' was presented by Mrs. Tom Logan. A tape recording of Leonard Cohen's "Suzan" was played for the group's enjoyment and a discussion of the poet's message followed. Concluding her program Mrs. Logan played a tape of some poems of Mr. A. Purdy.

Following the program a sale of Christmas cookies and paper flowers, made by Mrs. J. Dolan, was held.

During the social hour gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served by cohostesses Mrs. Ron Fox and Mrs. Don Deacon.

PHI PSI CHAPTER

The regular meeting of Phi Psi Chapter was highlighted by a speech given by Mrs. Rosemarie Gibbons on the topic "Beneath Your Feet". It was a discourse on carpeting.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Irene McGinnis on December 1.

It was decided that tickets will be sold for a $30 gift certificate at a local shoe store. The proceeds will go to a needy family for a Christmas food voucher. Plans for the Christmas party were finalized.

Refreshments were served by the hostess after the meeting.

MOSTLY ICE

Roughly two-thirds of the Arctic Ocean is covered by drifting pack ice, summer and winter.

Belleville Centennial TOPS Club

The Belleville Centennial TOPS club has had an average attendance of 30 members each week during the fall season. During this time several social events were held including a "games" night, showing of slides by a member of a recent trip to England and a "white elephant" auction sale.

On Tuesday, Dec. 2 the Christmas dinner and party were enjoyed with 30 members present. Carol singing and games were part of the entertainment and a "Santa" arrived to distribute gifts to each member.

Regular meetings will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 9 and 16 with Dec. 23 and Dec. 30 meetings cancelled due to the holiday season.

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

Communication Calls for A Will to Understand

By DORIS CLARK

A dramatic story appeared recently in a Toronto newspaper editorial entitled "And Thousands Died." It told how the misinterpretation of two French words, "dois reconnaître," in a letter written by Ho Chi Minh, led to the loss of thousands of lives in the Viet Nam war. This words were translated as "must accept," and not as intended: "ought to consider".

The story is oversimplified, however, unless one examines the communication and its translation. Had there been a will to understand, a humble desire to place the welfare of people above the diplomatic stances of pride, rigidity and arrogance, the tragic outcome might have been averted. This is the real moral of the story. — Journal of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies, Sept. 1969

Even if we stay right in our own familiar English tongue, it seems we can make just as poor interpretations.

Let's bend over backwards to be sure we are understood.

Dear Doris: At a party I danced with this boy and fooled around with him, and when he left he kissed me goodnight. I really liked him.

Then one day he phoned and asked me to bring a friend with me to meet him at the ice cream parlor. When he came he stayed about two minutes and then said he had to play pool with the boys.

After two or three weeks, he phoned me to meet him again. I went there and waited about 20 minutes, and then one of his pals came in and told me he was playing football. I have never been so hurt in my whole life.

Right now I feel that if I saw him I would burst out crying. If by some odd chance he asked me if I was still going to the school dance with him (because he mentioned it on the phone), what should I say? I am 18. — Crying Inside

Dear Crying: Unless you intend on being a doormat, you won't give him the time of day. If he should ask you about a date, the answer is no; that you have more to do with your time than be stood up.

The good old-fashioned virtues of reliability and truth-telling are still in fashion.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 14, part of a family of 12, and I would like to sponsor a foreign child. I worked outside of home this past summer and saved most of my money. I also receive an allowance on a monthly basis.

I am in grade nine and I would like to help those children with no parents, no homes, no food and no toys. — Wanting to Help

Dear Wanting: Bless you! I can give you an assortment of names, depending on the way you are able to help best. There are two agencies which make it possible for you to support a specific child: The Christian Children's Fund of Canada, and the Foster Parents' Plan. Fairly expensive, I might say.

Other worthwhile agencies helping children abroad include: Canadian Save the Children Fund, Thomas A. Dooley Foundation, Inc., Unitarian Services Committee, and Oxfam of Canada. I'm sending you addresses to write to.

* * *

Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours.

Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE WI

Seventeen members and visitors took advantage of the demonstration, "The Main Course Makes the Meal" sponsored by Rylstone Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Jack Watson on Nov. 25. Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson, Institute president, and Mrs. Hector Arnold demonstrated the preparation of several main course dishes which were sampled along with a pot luck dinner at noon. Other dishes were made and sampled during the afternoon.

There will be no regular institute meeting at Rylstone in December as the members have been invited to join with Zion United Church Women for their Christmas meeting in the Sunday school hall at Zion United Church, Petherick's Corners on Dec. 10. There will be a gift exchange of between 75c - $1.00.

Rylstone Women's Institute held its second games night of the season in the WI Hall recently with six tables in play. The following people were prize winners: women's high, Mrs. Sanford Wilson; men's high, Henry Radcliffe; women's low, Mrs. Ernest Rowe and men's low, Carl Reid.

Margaret Wilson won the travelling prize. The next games night will be Saturday, Dec. 13 at the Institute Hall.

Ann Landers

Gnawing Suspicion Doesn't Diminish Love

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me if I am normal or a candidate for the nut. I'm beginning to wonder.

Yesterday I went to my doctor for a checkup. I'm not the type who runs to the doctor with every little ache and pain. But I had been feeling poorly for several days and decided to have myself looked at.

ANN LANDERS

My doctor is a general practitioner — and has been wonderfully kind and considerate to our entire family through the years. He delivered my three children and saw my husband through some serious illnesses. We all worship him.

When the doctor examined me, he pressed a tender spot and I experienced an unexpected stabbing pain. Without thinking I gave his arm a bit. It was more of an automatic response than a display of anger. Although I didn't hit him very hard, he became furious with me. In a voice that could be heard all over the office, he shouted, "Don't ever do that again or you will have to get another doctor." Then he proceeded to bawl me out for ten minutes. The nurse who was in the room was as surprised as I.

When the doctor finished chewing me out, I began to cry and couldn't stop. I don't know what came over me. I just sat there like a fool and sobbed my head off.

Today I feel depressed and remorseful. I'm ashamed of myself.

Am I becoming mentally ill? Why did I lose my grip? What do you think about this episode? — LONG-TIME FAN.

* * *

DEAR L.T.F.: I checked with four physicians and their verdict was unanimous. Your doctor overreacted. He may well have been overworked and tired. (Doctors are human, you know.) Your hitting his arm (which, of course, you should not have done) probably triggered the unfortunate response.

Crying as you did was not abnormal. You were undoubtedly not only hurt but deeply disappointed to discover that your idol had feet of clay.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have two lovely children. We figured our family was complete and were well satisfied. When I learned I was pregnant again, I wasn't happy but I decided to make the best of it.

When I told my husband, he flew into a rage. I don't think I've ever seen him so mad. He called me an idiot and a dumbbell and ended up saying we would have to give the baby away. I was sure he'd cool off and change his mind, but four months have passed and he is still repeating his demands. He says he wouldn't "sell" the baby, but he would expect the people who adopt it to pay the hospital and doctor bills.

Last night I told him to quit screaming — that my mind was made up. I just couldn't carry a child for nine months and give it away as if it were a puppy. He said, "You will or I'm leaving." Please help me, Ann. I'm ashamed to sign my name. I'm sure you've never had a letter as strange as this one. — MOTHER OF TWO AND A HALF.

DEAR MOTHER: Your situation isn't nearly as strange as you think. Every few months I hear about a not like your husband. Invariably these looks change their minds, and I'm betting your will, too.

The students are studying genetics in their biology classes. They also toured Queen's University biology department Friday afternoon.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Cooking of Artichokes

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . . recipes you may have on the preparing or cooking of artichokes. I am a widower and do all my own cooking. Your daily recipes have been such a wonderful help. — W. G. U.

ANSWER: I have mailed to you two releases suggesting preparation and cooking of artichokes and an artichoke salad. Below is another method —

FRENCH ARTICHOKES VINAIGRETTE
(first course appetizer)

To serve four for two large fresh French artichokes. Cut off excess portion of bottom stem, flush with base. Pull off three or four bottom leaves if they are brown. With scissors snip off ¼" tips of all of the larger outside leaves. Wash in running water. Cook in boiling water to cover, adding 1 tbsp. salt, and ½ tsp. garlic salt (if desired). They will be tender in 45 min. Outside leaf pulls out easily the artichoke is done. Drain and chill. When cold carefully cut in half lengthwise. At the centre attached to the bottom is the "choke" — which is tasty and inedible. You should remove this. A sharp pointed spoon is a good dissection instrument. Place each prepared artichoke half on a bread and butter plate Fill hollow with cold Sour Cream Mayonnaise; 3 tbsps. dairy sour cream, 3 tbsps. genuine mayonnaise, ½ tsp. freeze dried chives or chopped fresh green onion, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. lemon juice or vinegar. Serve as first course (placing artichoke on bread and butter plate on dinner plate at each place setting.

Let me know any time I may help you again.

QUESTION: Would you give a new canape for Christmas cocktail party? — E. C.

ANSWER:

OLIVE BUTTER, OYSTER OR SHRIMP CANAPES (40)

40 Ritz crackers or 38 melba toast (change cal in halves)
1 cup finely chopped drained salad olives (packed)
½ cup mayonnaise
40 canned drained shrimp or canned smoked oysters
1 tbsp. chili sauce
1 tsp. horseradish
40 tiny cubes fresh lemon with skin on
Mix chopped olives and mayonnaise. Line up canape bases in four rows and spoon some of the spread on to each. Top with shrimp or oyster. Top these with ½ tsp. chili sauce mixed with horseradish. Top that with tiny (1/4") cubes of fresh lemon with a bit of skin on for zest and garnish.

NOTE! Tiny cauliflowerets, dipped in mayonnaise, are popular and pretty on your canape tray.

Women Workers Are Said to Be Too Home-centred

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women will be regarded as cheap labor until they begin considering themselves wage earners rather than "home-centred," says Dr. Margaret Benston, a chemistry professor at Simon Fraser University.

Dr. Benston, who recently conducted a seminar at SFU on the topic of "women as an oppressed group," says women's work in the home is not regarded as real labor because it is unpaid.

Society does not think of child-raising as work—although women with children work an 80- or 90-hour week, she says, adding:

"Women see themselves as home-centred and not as wage earners, and if they work outside the home they are cheap labor.

"Because they see themselves as home-centred, they most often work at part-time jobs with no fringe benefits and no pensions."

And because work in the home is not regarded as real work, it has not been made more efficient as has work in factories or manufacturing plants, said Dr. Benston.

"Despite the vacuum cleaner, it is still the same as in pre-industrial times."

Numerous Items Required for County Museum Display

NAPANEE — The display in the Lennox and Addington County Historical Museum for 1970 is gradually taking shape, but the work progresses slowly as each item must be of the 1890's. Work is practically at a standstill now until after Christmas.

The theme is a wedding, the bride has no veil and those making up the display are searching for one which the owner might be proud to have as part of the display. A number of articles being used are borrowed for the period. They will be given the best of care, and are safe there.

New items are being contributed all the time. Recently it was a dress suit from Santa Barbara, donated by Mrs. Dorita Stephenson Wilson, whose husband was a grandson of John Stevenson, the first member of the federal house from this county following confederation and before that, the first warden of this county. He was the builder of the house where Dr. E. R. and Mrs. Ellicott now reside.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

18TH PARKDALE LADIES' AUXILIARY

The November meeting of the Parkdale Ladies' Auxiliary was held on November 26 in the Community Centre with president, Mrs. Mattie Miller presiding.

Mrs. Jean MacDonald introduced Cub Akela George Moore who spoke on, "What is Cubbing". Mrs. Miller then thanked Mr. Moore for giving more of an insight into Cubbing.

The December meeting will be held in the form of a pot-luck supper at the hall, with gift exchange, and demonstration of flower arrangements as part of the planned program.

On Saturday, November 29 the Cubs and Scouts hiked to the fire hall with toys brought by each boy for the Christmas exchange program in the city. They also deliver pamphlets to the Parkdale residents, followed by the ladies' auxiliary serving the boys hot chocolate and donuts at the Community Centre.

The meeting was adjourned and lunch was enjoyed by all.

KINETTE CLUB

The November meeting of the Kinette Club of Belleville was held recently. In attendance were 19 Kinettes, two honorary members and one guest, Mrs. Dorothy Watson. President, Barbara Christie presented pins to new Kinettes Dagmar Meeks and Peggy McMelvin.

Kinette Anne Crabb introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Vivian Jewell from the Jewell-Brenmore Salon. Mrs. Jewell showed synthetic and human hair wigs.

She was thanked by Kinette Marilyn Exner on behalf of the club.

Eleven Kinettes are planning to attend an Inter-club meeting in Picton this month.

Christmas basket committee members have been busy buying and storing items for the Christmas baskets.

A wine and cheese party was planned.

Railway Policy Is Denounced as Spur to Regional Separatism

OTTAWA (CP) — Critics labelled railway policy a spur to regional separatism Thursday as the Commons continued debate on a government bill to pay off the annual CNR deficit.

A Saskatchewan MP, Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) criticized increases in rail carrying charges for western potash at a time when world prices are slipping.

Such decisions, along with the poor record for wheat-handling, are convincing westerners they would better themselves by controlling their own affairs.

More and more westerners, he said, feel their economic future lies in an escape from the control of Ontario and Quebec.

"And they'll go," he said. "They're not fooling like Quebec."

Ambrose Peddle (PC—Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador) acknowledged the "rumble of separatism out west" and said it may arise in the east if it continues to suffer discrimination.

The replacement of the CNR rail passenger service by buses in his home province of Newfoundland was his example of unfair treatment from Ottawa. He asked Parliament to reverse the CNR decision.

Members were so interested in getting their transportation views on the record, time ran out before a vote on the bill or an NDP amendment that would postpone second reading for six months. That would effectively kill the bill.

The bill authorizes $283,000,000 borrowing for capital expenditures by the CNR in the 18-month period ending next June.

The debate continues today.

In other developments, State Secretary Pelletier stepped into the controversy over the decision by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to prohibit the use of microwave towers for importing United States programs by cable companies. Mr. Pelletier, responsible for broadcasting, said he may make a statement on the decision although the commission has a measure of autonomy on these matters.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio in charge of the Canadian wheat board, divulged that W. C. McNamara, the board's chief commissioner, and his assistant are in Moscow. Mr. Lang went no further, but it was learned they are discussing sale of 125,000,000 bushels of wheat outstanding from a three-year Russia-Canada agreement signed in 1966.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's not fair! I was only using up the twenty minutes I had left on that meter from yesterday!"

Sales and Income Taxes Will Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Increased sales taxes and higher taxes on middle incomes are predicted by Ontario Revenue Minister John White in a paper prepared for a provincial Conservative convention.

Mr. White said there is unlikely to be a guaranteed annual income by the early 1970s.

Some of the regressive taxes — on property and hospital insurance — will be made more equitable, or dispersed with entirety, and their influence reduced through a system of income-tax credits.

Benson and Leo Cadieux Seen As Busiest Members of Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP) — Besides Prime Minister Trudeau, the busiest men in the cabinet are considered to be Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Defence Minister Leo Cadieux.

The prime minister has relieved them of all responsibility for acting for other departments when the regular ministers are absent.

Mr. Benson and Mr. Cadieux can thus devote their full attention to their own portfolios without the sudden distraction of having to look after somebody else's work.

Mr. Trudeau has good bench strength. Most ministers are assigned to act for at least two departments besides their own. Each department of government thus has a regular minister, an acting minister and a second acting minister.

Two ministers look after four departments each.

Works Minister Arthur Laing is also second acting minister for agriculture, defence and treasury board. Revenue Minister Jean-Pierre Cote is acting works minister and second acting minister for fisheries and supply.

Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate, is acting minister for external affairs and health though he has no seat in the Commons and consequently cannot reply to opposition questions there.

One might think that in the 30-man cabinet, biggest in Canadian history, a minister without portfolio had it soft.

Nothing could be farther off the mark, say government insiders.

Otto Lang is officially minister without portfolio for Saskatchewan.

But he is the minister responsible for the wheat board, acting minister for the departments of trade and energy and second acting minister for the solicitor-general's department.

The 37-year-old Mr. Lang was born and brought up in rural Saskatchewan and became dean of law at the University of Saskatchewan.

When he first joined the cabinet in the summer of 1968, he was made minister of trade and deal because Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin was travelling much of the time.

He later acted as energy minister during the long illness of Energy Minister J. J. Greene.

Mr. Trudeau then thrust him into the wheat business.

Between Nov. 5 and Dec. 8, Mr. Lang had addressed or was scheduled to address six major farm organizations on the Prairies.

So far, he hasn't been booed as Mr. Trudeau was by farmers in Regina last summer, although little has happened to lighten the economic gloom cast by the drastic slowdown in wheat exports.

Randall Assails Foes Of Foreign Investment

TORONTO (CP) — Opponents of foreign investment in Canada are described by Stanley Randall, Ontario's minister of trade and development, as people who would make Ontario an orchard "with our head buried and our rear exposed."

In a paper prepared for the Ontario Conservative party convention today and Saturday, Mr. Randall says there is only one question to be answered by the province:

"What price are we willing to pay for the second-highest standard of living in the world?"

I think the problem of United States' influence in Canadian companies is overstated.

Large foreign investments in manufacturing and mining, where capital is vital, has cost "some freedom of action in an economic sense, but we have not lost our political independence."

Political independence comes "from the will of the Canadian people to maintain their own values, their own institutions and their own way of life."

Old Union Station Conference Hall

OTTAWA (CP) — If any one at the federal-provincial constitutional conference next week complains of being railroaded, the language will fit the surroundings at least.

Ottawa's old Union Station, after a second transformation, is making its debut Monday as a meeting place for federal-provincial conferences and international gatherings.

The federal and the 10 provincial governments are initiating this latest career for the neo-classic structure, where the sounds of debate, multi-lingual interpretation and news-media operations will replace the clatter and bustle of train arrivals and departures.

Prime Minister Trudeau and the premiers will sit Monday around a conference table in what was the station's main waiting room just a few hundred feet from Parliament Hill.

During the last few months the interior has been rebuilt at a cost of more than $600,000.

Benson Will Meet Provincial Treasurers

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson will meet provincial finance ministers and treasurers here for two days next week to discuss tax reform and the economy's outlook for 1970.

The conference, one of an annual series, will be closed. It follows the federal-provincial conference of provincial premiers with Prime Minister Trudeau.

Officials representing provincial treasurers met with their Ottawa counterparts last week to prepare for the ministerial meeting.

Topics discussed included a general survey of economic prospects for 1970, anticipated federal and provincial tax revenues and expenditure needs for the year 1971, and first impressions of Mr. Benson's proposed tax changes.

Discussion at next week's meeting on taxes is expected to be limited. It is thought likely the finance ministers and provincial treasurers will set up a committee of experts to delve more fully into the subject.

THE PICK OF Punch

"I won't hide the truth from you, Mr. Clark. This is going to be an incredibly difficult operation."

Camera-bugs May Kill Animals by Chases

TORONTO (CP) — The department of lands and forests has warned operators of snowmobiles against harassing wildlife with their machines.

City residents have been chasing wildlife with snowmobiles in an apparent desire to get close-up photographs, the department says in a news release.

They "may not realize that the desire to get near enough for photographs may mean the difference between life and death of an animal."

"Many big-game animals have little energy reserve and are only a meal or two away from starvation toward the middle and end of winter.

"This reserve can be depleted and the animals left physically exhausted if forced to hock through deep snow in a futile effort to elude curiosity-seekers."

UN Help for Palestine Refugees Will Be Cut

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A warning has been issued here that United Nations assistance to 1,400,000 Palestinian refugees almost certainly will have to be reduced shortly and that this will increase already high tensions in the Middle East and hamper efforts to achieve peace.

The warning was given in the General Assembly's special political committee by Laureen Michelmore, commissioner general of the UN Relief and Works Agency which helps care for the refugees.

He said that information received so far indicates that his agency—called UNRWA—will be $5,000,000 short of needed money next year and since the agency is in the red, services will have to be curtailed.

"Because this will inevitably add to the hardships of the refugees and will most likely further increase the tensions in the area and handicap the efforts for a just and lasting peace, we have delayed such reductions well beyond the time when they would have started under normal standards of financial prudence," he said.

"But we simply cannot delay beyond the next few weeks, or the entire UNRWA program will be in danger of collapse."

The agency is supported by voluntary contributions of member countries. The United States is the main contributor and the Soviet bloc never gives anything. Canada is the third-largest contributor.

The agency provides food, clothing, shelter, schooling and some other services to the thousands of refugees in camps in Arab countries and in Israel.

Urgent calls for increased support of UNRWA, made by the United States, Canada and Britain among others, comes at a time when there are charges that the camps are being used as training ground for guerrillas raiding Israeli-held territory.

Michelmore made his statement as the special political committee finished one of the bitterest debates in years on the Palestinian problem, debate that included violent exchanges between Israel and Arab countries.

Today the committee will vote on a series of resolutions, the most controversial of which condemns Israel for her treatment of Palestinians in occupied lands and reaffirms "the inalienable rights of the people of Palestine."

Federal Ministers Plan Visits

Canada and France to Avoid Incidents

BRUSSELS (AP) — A French government spokesman confirmed today that the Canadian and French foreign ministers had reached agreement here on the desirability of exchanges of visits by federal ministers and the avoidance of further Franco-Canadian incidents.

His statement came after External Affairs Minister Sharp and French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann had spent 40 minutes Friday night in patching up tattered relations between the two federal governments.

These have been frayed since former president de Gaulle's visit to Quebec in 1967 during which he avoided Ottawa and proclaimed to a Montreal crowd, "Vive le Quebec libre," widely interpreted as support for the separatist movement.

Sharp told reporters Thursday night he and Schumann had agreed in principle to the exchange visits of ministers having interests in France and Canada, but at that time the French were unavailable for press comment.

Sharp also added that he and Schumann had agreed to let the Jean de Lipkowski incident "just be history."

Lipkowski is the junior French foreign minister who visited Quebec two months ago but refused an invitation from the federal government to visit Ottawa.

His refusal drew a sharp note from the Canadian government.

Indians Told 'You Are Canadians'

BRANTFORD (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien has asked Indians of the Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy to abanon their declaration of independence from Canada.

"You . . . were born here, you live here—you are Canadians," the minister told the Indians in a letter made public by the confederacy Wednesday.

"Is it not logical that in 1969 you should join your Indian brothers across Canada who are looking toward a future of equal status, dignity and freedom and progress?"

"It is impossible to have a nation within a nation," the minister said. "Our nation is Canada, and the Indian people of Canada are Canadians."

In response to Mr. Chretien's letter, confederacy secretary Garnet Thomas wrote Prime Minister Trudeau that Mr. Chretien's remarks were "another example of Canadian tyranny and aggression against the Iroquois nations."

He said the Indians consider Mr. Chretien "presumptuous and arrogant."

Pittsburgh Battle Leaves One Dead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Police say a man who fired shots from a third-floor window killed one man and wounded another before exchanging fire with policemen for nearly three hours. He finally was flushed from a rooming house.

At one point, police opened up on the building for 30 seconds with machine-guns, rifles, pistols and tear gas. The man withstood the fusillade, however, and continued firing.

In a following barrage of tear gas, the man's room caught fire. He fled and police made their capture. Police said a hot teargas cannister cause the fire.

Police identified the man as Ghannes J. Dersarkisian, about 48.

The dead man, tentatively identified as Nathaniel Brown, was lying at the third-storey landing when police entered the building.

No Strike Will Slow Mails

OTTAWA (CP) — Neither rain, nor sleet, nor snow, nor gloom of night—nor a strike—will slow the Christmas mailing rush, union officials say Thursday.

Postal union spokesmen gave the prediction in interviews.

The 26,000 members who sort and deliver the mail have been without a contract with the government since Oct. 1.

With the militant nature of postal employees in mind—they staged a three-week strike in mid-1968—some officials close to the situation speculated a few weeks ago that a Christmas work stoppage was a distinct possibility.

But union officers, despite more than four months of negotiations, say there has been progress and no Christmas stoppage is in sight.

The postal unions, through their united Council of Postal Unions, gave the government their initial contract demands in August. Bargaining began in earnest in September and monetary matters still have not been discussed.

Neither union nor government negotiators will say what either side views as a fair salary increase. Senior postal clerks now are paid $6,540 a year.

Mussolini Called Bigamist

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Mussolini was a bigamist with a secret Austrian wife who bore him a son, a British writer says. An Italian historian disagreed today, saying the dictator had eight children by three women, but he married only one of the mothers.

Dullio Susmel, who edited all of Mussolini's works and speeches, said British writer Charles Foley misinterpreted documents Italian authorities issued during the First World War.

Foley wrote in the London Daily Telegraph today that Mussolini, the Fascist dictator who ruled Italy from 1922 until 1943, married Ida Dalser, an Austrian beauty, in a hasty civil ceremony in November, 1915, one month before he wed Rachele Guidi. Miss Dalser ran Milan's first beauty salon and helped finance Mussolini's newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, Foley said.

Foley cited a certificate of maintenance awarded Miss Dalser signed by the mayor of Milan on Oct. 21, 1916, which said: "The family of Mussolini Benito consists of his wife Ida Dalser and one child."

Foley also said a certificate for war aid dated Oct. 22 referred to Ida as Mussolini's wife. He added: "Public funds would not have been paid over unless Ida had produced her marriage certificate and her son's birth certificate."

Foley said Richard Paicher, a retired bank manager who married Ida Dalser's sister, provided him with many of Ida's records and papers.

Susmel, an Italian historian who is preparing a book called Mussolini and the Women, said that besides Rachele Guidi, who gave birth to five children, Mussolini had two children out of wedlock by Miss Dalser and one by a French woman whom the writer declined to identify.

Introduction to Zoology

Classroom Zoo

Wee Beasties Abound

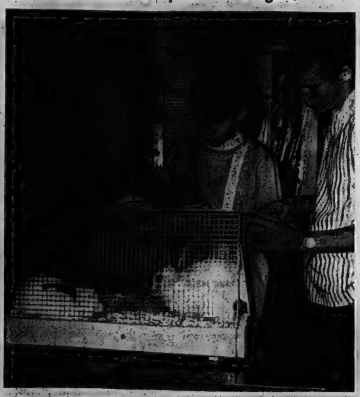
Story and Photos by Lenny Williamson, Staff Reporter

Every school has a few animals on the premises for instructional purposes. But at King George School they have a mini-zoo of 80 resident animals — and the numbers are increasing all the time.

The menagerie, supervised by science teacher Terry Marson, has grown since September from a pair of guinea pigs to a collection of nine species, including rats, rabbits, hamsters, finches and doves.



The mini-zoo is the students' responsibility. Three menagerie "monitors," Joey Carroll, Mark Street and Terry Ray, designed and built special easy-to-clean cages and selected pupils return every night to the school with their teacher to care for the animals.

Money for food and materials comes from the pockets of Mr. Marson, his pupils and their parents. No school funds are earmarked for the project.

George Wray, a talented artist in Grade 8, has decorated the science room with his wall paintings of animals and birds and has a waiting list of teachers seeking his services in their rooms.

Purpose of school zoos, in the language of the department of education, is to provide "area of scientific investigation — to explore kinds, structures and habits of animals and create an understanding of them, by comparing them, one against the other."

"The more important value," in Mr. Marson's words, are, "such things as the smile on the face of a Grade 1 child as she picks up a rabbit for the first time, the anxiety and anticipation of waiting for an expectant animal to give birth, being present to witness a rat or guinea pig give birth, sharing in the sorrow of the loss of an animal that becomes ill . . . ## Yanks Deal Pepitone For Astros' Blefary

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Joe Pepitone might feel somewhat lost for awhile deep in the heart of Texas, but Curt Blefary should feel right at home in New York's Yankee Stadium.

New York Yankees traded the controversial Pepitone to Houston Astros Thursday for Blefary, a colorful, Brooklyn-born former Yankee home baby, in a straight swap of first-baseman-outfielders.

The trade was one of four consummated on the fifth day of baseball's winter meetings—a day capped by the selection of a new National League president, Charles (Chub) Feeney, a longtime executive with San Francisco Giants.

Feeney, elected unanimously by the NL club owners, succeeds Warren Giles, retiring after 18 years as the league boss.

John McHale, president of Montreal Expos, was elected vice-president of the National League, succeeding Horace Stoneham of San Francisco, who resigned. Tom Yawkey, president of Boston Red Sox, was re-elected vice-president of the American League.

Feeney, 48, accepted the job only after assurances from the owners that his powers will not be diminished. He received a four-year contract, at an estimated $75,000 a year, and will move the league office from Cincinnati to San Francisco.

Feeney's first official act was the announcement that Cincinnati will be host to the 1970 all-star game on July 14 in its new stadium, due for completion June 30.

San Diego traded pitcher Joe Niekro to Detroit for pitcher Pat Dobson and infielder Dave Campbell in the day's other inter-league transaction.

Seattle sent pitcher George Brunet to Washington for pitcher Dave Baldwin and Chicago Cubs swapped pitcher Rich Nye for St. Louis outfielder Charles (Boots) Day.

But the biggest deal, as far as personalities were concerned, saw the Yanks part with Pepitone, the temperamental, long-haired slugger who hit 166 homers in eight turbulent American League seasons. In acquiring Blefary, the Yankees receive a player they've coveted since losing him on waivers to Baltimore six years ago.

Pepitone hit .242, with a club high 27 homers, last season. But he fell into disfavor after walking out on the club three times in August.

The disappearing acts, which he blamed on personal problems, cost him a fine and brief suspension.

"This should be good for the Yankees, and good for the Astros, too," he said. "I'm not disappointed."

"I'm ecstatic," said Blefary, who won the American League Rookie of the Year award in 1965 in Baltimore and was a Yankee killer of the first order until the Orioles traded him to Houston for pitcher Mike Cuellar a year ago Thursday.

Blefary, at 26 three years younger than epitone, batted younger than Pepitone, batted .253 for Houston last year. He hit 21 homers, but became disenchanted with the cavernous Astrodome.

The Tigers added Niekro, 25, mostly in relief. Campbell hit .163 in 22 games for Detroit.

Brunet, a lefthander who was 8-12 with California and Seattle last year, moved on to his seventh major league club while Baldwin, a relief specialist, who was 3-4 with Washington, joined the Pilots.

Day, 22, hit .262 for the Cardinals' Tulsa farm club in the American Association. Nye, a 13-game winner in his 1967 rookie year, was 3-5 as a reliever for the Cubs last summer.

The four deals boosted the number of transactions at the major league level since the start of the meetings in eight.

The election of Feeney, the Giants' general manager, as National League president, virtually assured the two leagues of retaining their separate identities in the immediate future.

"The league presidency will be the same as it has been for the last 100 years," he said.

"I'm firmly against interleague play. The big thing in our game is the World Series and the natural rivalries of the teams in it. I think that would be impaired seriously by interleague play."

Habs Gloat In Chicago

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens finally gained a measure of revenge on Tony Esposito, the former team-mate who kept them from scoring a single goal in seven periods of National Hockey League action with Chicago Black Hawks.

Jacques Lemaire fired a shot that trickled through the Chicago goalie's pads and into the net for a 1-0 Montreal victory before 16,665 fans at Chicago Thursday night.

Lemaire's goal came in the second period of the game to turn the tables on the 26-year old goalie who had shut out the Canadiens in two previous games this season.

In another game Thursday, Detroit Red Wings battled to a 4-4 tie with Boston Bruins.

Esposito, picked up from Montreal by Chicago in last summer's draft, remains the league's leading goalie with four shutouts. Rogatien Vachon made 32 saves in the Montreal nets for his second shutout.

The victory moved Montreal to within two points of New York Rangers, who lead the East Division with 34 points. The loss for the Black Hawks dropped them into fifth spot, one point back of Detroit.

The Black Hawks made Vachon work for his shutout as they took a 16-7 sshots-on-goal advantage in the first period. But they dropped their guard in the second session and a clearing pass from Dennis Hull to Jim Pappin was intercepted by Lemaire who took the puck to the blue line and fired a wrist shot.

Esposito appeared to have the shot blocked as he closed his pads to stop it, but the puck trickled through for Lemaire's 11th season goal.

Frank Mahovlich scored his 11th and 12th goals and Wayne Carleby got the final Detroit marker as the Red Wings fought back for their fifth tie of the season.

The Bruins appeared on their way to their first victory in Detroit since Feb. 22, 1968, when they raced to a 3-0 lead on two goals by Johnny McKenzie and one by Fred Stanfield.

Mahovlich and Pete Stemkowski scored to narrow the margin to 3-2 before Ken Hodge scored in the last minute of the second period for a two goal Boston advantage.

But Gordie Howe set Mahovlich up for his second marker midway through the final period and Connelly scored with just a minute and 57 seconds remaining to gain the tie.

Defenceman Bobby Orr assisted on two goals to increase his league scoring lead to 37 points, four ahead of Phi Goyette of St. Louis Blues.

Nats Delighted with Draw

MOSCOW (CP) — "This was the best game of our European tour," Canadian coach Jack McLeod said Thursday after the Canadian national team tied 2-2 with the Soviet Union in the Moscow invitational hockey tournament.

McLeod said the outcome of the game was a good indication of the play and said he was satisfied with the refereeing, Tass news agency reported.

However, Tass quoted McLeod as saying he thinks there should be three officials on the ice as in North America instead of the two referees used in European play.

Canada plays Finland and Sweden meets East Germany in today's competition.

Canada now has a record of one victory, a loss and a tie in the six-team round-robin tournament. Canada has beaten East Germany 5-4 and lost 4-0 to Czechoslovakia.

In the other game Thursday, Czechoslovakia defeated East Germany 10-2.

After four days of play, Sweden has two victories and no losses, the Soviet Union has two victories and a tie, Czechoslovakia has a 2-1 won-lost record, Finland is 0-2 and East Germany is 0-3.

Centres Billy Harris and Chuck Lefley scored the Canadian goals Thursday while the Soviet Union got goals from Maryanyuk and Shadrin. A crowd of 14,000 watched the game.

Jackson Just Misses Unanimity As Pivot of CFL's Dream Team

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Russ Jackson of Ottawa Rough Riders was only one vote short of being a unanimous choice to the 1969 Canadian Football League all-star team.

Jackson, who retired after the Rough Riders won the Grey Cup by defeating Saskatchewan Roughriders 28-11 last Sunday, gained 54 of the maximum 55 votes. Quarterback Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan got the other.

The all-star team was selected by the Football Reporters of Canada and released today by president John Esaw.

The only other player to get more than 50 votes was George Reed of Saskatchewan with 53. He joined Vic Washington of Ottawa and Dave Raimey of Toronto Argonauts as an all-star running back.

Ken Nielsen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is flanker while Ted Urness of Saskatchewan was named for centre.

Joining the 1969 offensive dream team are guards Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan and Charlie Turner of Toronto, with tackles Clyde Brock of Saskatchewan and Ellison Kelly of Hamilton. Tiger-Cats, tight end Herman Harrison of Calgary Stampeders and split end Margene Adkins of Ottawa.

On defence are guards Billy Joe Booth of Ottawa and Ed Harrington of Toronto, with John LeGrone of Edmonton Eskimos and Ed McQuarters of Saskatchewan winning the tackle positions on the front four.

Ken Lehmann of Ottawa is inside linebacker and Jerry Campbell of Ottawa and Phil Minnick of Winnipeg the outside linebackers. John Wydarney of Edmonton, Marv Luster of Toronto, Bruce Bennett of Saskatchewan, Don Sutherin of Ottawa, Garney Henley of Hamilton and Larry Fairholm of Montreal are defensive backs.

It gives Ottawa a total of seven players in the all-star squad, with Saskatchewan placing six, Toronto four, Winnipeg, Hamilton and Edmonton two each and Calgary and Montreal one each.

No member of the British Columbia Lions was selected.

Coffey got the most votes as an end, but didn't win an all-star position. He was beaten 27-24 by Adkins for first and 24-14 by Harrison for tight end.

Coffey also received four votes as a flanker to account for 43 ballots.

Resigns Riders

O'Quinn Closer to Alouette Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Red O'Quinn, 44, who resigned Thursday as general manager of Ottawa Rough Riders, says he now faces the greatest challenge of his career.

Although he won't elaborate on his future plans, it is known that O'Quinn has completed an agreement to become general manager of the ill-starred Montreal Alouettes, last-place finishers this year in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Riders, Grey Cup winners this year and last, announced Thursday that O'Quinn's resignation becomes effective Dec. 6.

It has been an open secret for some time that O'Quinn would take over the general manager's position with Alouettes after the firing of Tony Golab at the end of the season and the sale of the team to Ottawa businessman Sam Berger.

RED O'QUINN

In an interview Thursday, O'Quinn said he preferred to leave a formal announcement of his position with Alouettes to Berger.

An outstanding offensive end with Montreal from 1952 to 1959, O'Quinn said he hopes former Alouette quarterback Sam Etcheverry will take over the coaching job from Kay Dalton next season.

He said he understands Berger bought the team "free of any contract encumbrances from any coaches."

"It's up to me, really to start with my own people and build my own team, not only on the football field but on a coaching level as well."

Berger is expected to hire O'Quinn as soon as his resignation from Ottawa becomes effective and his next move will be to go after Etcheverry for the top coaching job.

O'Quinn declined comment on published reports that Frank Clair, Riders' coach for 14 years, will take over as Ottawa's general manager.

The reports say assistant coach Jack Gotta will likely succeed Clair but another assistant, Bob Ward, may go to Montreal.

O'Quinn had an impressive record as a receiver with Alouettes, grabbing 377 passes for 5,679 yards and 24 touchdowns.

Hal Paterson, O'Quinn's teammate, holds the Canadian Football League record for yards gained on passes with 9,472 over 14 seasons with Montreal and Hamilton.

Juniors Have Double Reason to Win

There may be more than one reason why the Belleville Ellis Juniors went to display a good game of hockey when they skate against the Trenton Golden Hawks at the Memorial Arena tonight at 8.30 p.m.

Along with wanting to delight hundreds of children, hoping to win the featured prize at the club's annual "Pony Night", the juniors also want to give a good christening to new uniforms.

"The new sweaters should be here in time for tonight's game," said Ellis manager Jim "Slopey" Matthews.

Belleville, with a record of two wins, six losses and two ties are currently in fifth place in the Eastern Ontario 'B' group, just one point ahead of the Golden Hawks and three behind fourth place Cobourg Cougars.

"Our next three games are on home ice," added Matthews. "By the end of next weekend we could be in fourth place, crowding third."

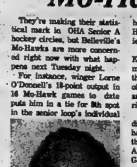
Golden Hawk attending area children will have a chance to see newcomer Ron Jury make his second appearance in the nets for Belleville tonight. Last year's regular Fred Hopkins will back Jury up. Up to last Sunday's 4-2 win over Peterborough Jury hasn't been on duties for two years. If he is as sharp tonight as he was in stopping 35 shots Sunday, the Golden Hawks might have a difficult time putting the puck past him.

Brian Coughlin and Teddy Waite will be back in the Ellis line-up tonight. Coughlin has just finished sitting out a two-game suspension which he received after Belleville's embarrassing 13 - 1 loss to Oshawa, and Waite is returning from an ankle injury received three weeks ago in the last encounter between Belleville and Trenton.

"We have hopes of starting a new goaltender tonight too, said Trenton coach Red Greville. "We have a lot of problems at present, but goaltending is our biggest headache."

Newcomer Brian Wilson will make his appearance tonight with regular Gerry Jowett as the sub-goalie.

Before the regular season started Trenton and Belleville split exhibition games. So far this season the teams have encountered each other only once and the teams emerged with a 3 - 3 tie.



Children who have no tickets for tonight's game yet are urged to do so by obtaining them from one of the numerous Belleville merchants helping sponsor the annual pony night. Any child not in the possession of a ticket at the gate will be charged 50 cents admission into the game.

The pony draw will be held between the second and third periods, with bicycles, hockey sticks and other prizes donated throughout the course of the game.

Mo-Hawks Brace for Aces

They're making their statistical mark in OHA Senior A hockey circles, but Belleville's Mo-Hawks are more concerned right now with what happens next Tuesday night.

For instance, winger Lorne O'Donnell's 18-point output in 16 Mo-Hawk games to date puts him in a tie for 8th spot in the senior loop's individual scoring derby; Al Ferguson's 14 goals make him only the second player to attain that figure (Oakville's Jim "Otis" O'Brien's 19 goals and 35 points are both league highs); and Steve Reze's 2.47 goals-against average makes him about the median among the circuit's goaltenders.

BILLY ARMOUR
Still Sidelined

(Last year, a 2.35 average took top honors in the high-scoring senior series.)

But the Mo-Hawks are not about to rest on any laurels compiled thus far in their 7-7-3 season, the first time in the club's four-year history they have played .500 hockey this far into the season.

All systems are being geared towards Tuesday night's 8.30 Memorial Arena visit by the traditionally hostile Kingston Aces.

Whatever the outcome, Saturday night's road jaunt to Galt is merely a warmup for Tuesday night's clash with the Aces, probably revenge-bent after dropping their first home ice loss to the Mo-Hawks in three winters earlier this season.

The Mo-Hawks' 3-1 win in Kingston Sunday, Nov. 9 marked the first time since three seasons ago that either of the perennial rivals had snatched a win in the other's rink.

As if exhausting bus trips didn't make the road wins hard enough to come by for the Mo-Hawks' eastern Senior A outpost, they travel into Galt tomorrow night minus the services of at least two regulars.

Centre Billy Armour is still sidelined with a badly mangled thumb injured in an industrial accident at his Peterborough factory job, and the rink is off-limits to John "Shaker" Baker pending the results of medical tests.

Defenceman "Wiener" Brown, who missed last Sunday's tight 3-1 loss in Orillia, is a possible starter, depending on his virus condition and/or shiftwork.

Trying for Two?

Belleville Ellis Junior forward Allan "Bugs" Jarbeau joins 10-year-old Robert Rollins, last year's big prize winner at the annual Belleville Junior B's "Pony Night." The two pay a visit on a Shetland pony similar to the one which will be won at tonight's Trenton Golden Hawks - Belleville hockey game at the Memorial Arena.

Minor Soccer Members Hold Annual Meet Sunday

Supporters of the 21 - team Belleville Minor Soccer Organization will have the opportunity to elect new officers to their executive at the annual general meeting Sunday, at the city Recreation Centre, starting three 2 p.m.

Also on the agenda will be the president and secretary's reports. Any of the 360 boys and 42 coaches attending are urged to bring their league constitutions with them, as amendments will be considered.

Also to be discussed are plans for Belleville novice, peewee and bantam all-star teams for next season. "We are working on some kind of operation now whereas we can play provincially not just locally," said secretary Fred Jones.

Open discussion will take place on any new business pertaining to the operation of the league.

"A good turnout is expected," added Jones, "I hope the boys bring a few friends with them."

Bata's Dan Dixon Gets Three More

The Bata Braves of the Eastern Ontario Intermediate "C" Hockey League dropped a 9-4 decision to Sunderland last night.

Dan Dixon had three goals for Bata with Vince Steiner assisting on all three. Dave Howard assisted on Dixon's third goal. Bill Dickson scored Bata's other goal with Dixon and Steiner getting the assists.

Danny McFadden had the hat trick for Sunderland with Joe Josephson assisting on all three. Other Sunderland scorers were Dave Coley and Tom Lee with two goals apiece, while Brian Brady and Ray Pickell scored one goal each.

Dixon's three-goal splurge gives him a total of 15 in five games.

There were 31 minutes in penalties handed out in the game with Bata being allotted six minutes.

Swimathon Practice Over

Not all the swimmers participating in this weekend's swimathon at the YMCA's pool are home resting, so that they will have lots of energy for the event.

Rosemary Thompson —, a 13 - year old grade eight student, Carol Rose — a 10 - year - old grade 5 student and 11 - year - old grade nine Rebeccah Holway were just three participants out getting in a few practice lengths this week during family swim periods at the Victoria Ave. pool.

"Rosemary is one of our more productive young swimmers," says Women's program secretary Maureen Kelly. "We have quite a few kids who should complete the 50 lengths (1,000 yards) without too much trouble."

"The swimmers can use any style or styles they wish," added Dave Hahn, Men's pro gram secretary. "There are no set rules on any certain way to swim in this event."

The swimmers are hoping to raise $1,500 this year as compared to $1,484 last year contributed to the Y's World Service Program. The 1969 National YMCA World Service goal is set at $200,000, the program's basic aim is the assistance of people in underdeveloped countries.

Anyone wishing to sponsor a swimmer for a set amount per lap of the 20 - yard pool with a 50 - lap maximum either Saturday or Sunday is invited to contact the YMCA at 962-9425.

Weight Training

Swimmer Brad Allen, 6, goes for a ride on YMCA men's program secretary Dave Hahn's back at the Y pool as Dave practises for the weekend 'Swimathon' to raise funds for the Y's World Service program.

MacLeish Turns Trick

Petes Rebound in Hamilton Penalty Debate

HAMILTON (CP) — Peterborough Petes bounced back in the final 30 minutes of Thursday's only Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series game to overcome Hamilton Red Wings 6-3.

The Red Wings, last in the 10-team loop led the Petes 3-1 as the contest neared the midway mark of the second period.

League-leading scorer Rick MacLeish, with his first of three goals, scored at 9:22, starting a Peterborough rally of five consecutive goals for the win.

The game required two hours and 45 minutes to complete as 1,830 Hamilton fans witnessed a lengthy debate over penalty times following a third-period scrap.

Tom Williams gave the Red Wings a 2-0 first period lead before Petes' defenceman Ron Plumb scored at 19:30. Another defenceman, Joe Talaga, collected the third Hamilton goal.

Rookie Danny Gloor scored twice to complete Peterborough's scoring.

MacLeish's three goals raised his leading point total to 51, on 21 goals and 30 assists, and Gloor increased his goal production to 19.

The third period dispute broke out after five players, three of them from Peterborough, were handed five-minute major penalties for fighting at the 25-second mark. One of the two Hamilton players in the bout, Gord Brooks received a double major and a 10-minute misconduct.

McLeish's third goal was scored at 5:36 and, one second earlier, the three penalized Peterborough players returned to the ice.

Hamilton coach Eddie Bush left the bench and walked around the rink to the penalty box. He argued that one of the Peterborough majors should have been delayed until Brooks' double major penalty was completed. He was ejected from the game by referee Tom Rivers.

Peterborough forward Ken Richardson suffered a fractured ankle when he fell into the boards in the second period.

The win increased the Petes lead to three points over Montreal Junior Canadiens and Toronto Marlboros.

College Hockey Worry

Committee Fears Canadian Invasion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A special committee has recommended to the National Collegiate Athletic Association council that steps be taken to restrict the number of foreign student athletes in intercollegiate hockey.

The council had expressed concern that foreign students, notably Canadians, are flooding United States colleges and limiting the number of U.S. athletes in inter-collegiate hockey.

The committee recommended four steps, and these will come before the 1971 NCAA convention.

The major recommendation is that the number of foreign student athletes be restricted. Under this proposal, NCAA institutions with hockey teams could have only 14 foreign students in the 1971 season, 10 in 1972 and eight in 1973.

Also recommended were steps to charge a year of eligibility to any player who competes in hockey outside the U.S. after he reaches age 19; requires more specific information regarding previous playing experience, and limits freshmen ineligible for varsity hockey competition.

The committee said the number of Canadians on U.S. college teams has risen sharply in recent years, citing the examples of Cornell and Denver, who played for the 1969 NCAA hockey championship. Each team had only two Americans on its roster.

The committee said more than 500 Canadians will be playing hockey for U.S. schools in 1970.

Argonauts Will Likely Never See Their All-American 'Property'

NEW YORK (CP) — Jim Corrigall, 23, a native of Barrie and the property of Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, Thursday was named to the third all-America college team by The Associated Press.

The choice makes Corrigall one of the top defensive linebackers in United States college football for 1969.

Corrigall is a senior and captain of the team at Kent University in Ohio. A defensive linebacker, he is six-foot-three and 240 pounds and played high school ball while attending Scollard Hall at North Bay.

His record at Kent was so impressive that the college retired his sweater—No. 79—for the first time in the 55-year history of the institution.

Corrigall became the property of Toronto in a round-about fashion.

He attended then rookie training camp of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1965 and Ralph Sazio, then coach, was instrumental in seeding him to Kent.

The CFL later ruled he was the property of Toronto Argonauts for geographical reasons.

Toronto coach Leo Cahill says the question of his Canadian draft rights will probably never come up since Corrigall has already been scouted by three U.S. professional clubs.

He is expected to be one of the three top choices in the U.S. professional draft.

Feagan's Work Cut Out for Him

TORONTO (CP) — Standardbred racing driver Ron Feagan has a chance to set a North American record for wins in consecutive seasons, but only 14 more nights of racing left at the Greenwood track, the task appears next to impossible.

Feagan, a 37-year-old Goderich, Ont., native now living at Clarkson, Ont., collected two wins Thursday, raising his 1969 total to 172.

He needs 28 more wins to pass the 200 mark for the season and become the first to pass that total in five consecutive years.

He shares a North American record of more than 200 wins in four consecutive seasons with Bob Farrington, who drives in the United States. Farrington reached the goal between 1964 and 1967 before slipping to 141 wins in 1968.

Feagan twice rallied from behind at Greenwood Thursday. He won with Don Wick in the sixth and Anita's Boy in the featured seventh race.

Ross Wick, owned by grandfather George Feagan, was fourth at the head of the stretch and Ron urged the horse past Mary Ann C to win by 1¼ lengths and set up an $88.80 exactor payoff.

In the seventh, Anita's Boy was ninth at the three-quarter pole and sixth heading into the stretch. Feagan pushed the Peterborough-owned horse past Silk Ben and Hicland Jimmy in a three-way photo finish, trotting the mile in 2:11 3-5.

Sue's Yum paid $27 to win the opener and paired with second race winner Fleetwood Champ for a $113.30 daily double.

Economy Rally Planned

MONTREAL (CP) — BP Oil Ltd. announced Thursday it will sponsor a new type of motor sport event for Canada next year.

The event will be a 1,300-mile economy gas mileage competition to be held Oct. 2 to 4 by Toronto's British Empire Motor Club. The economy run will be open to most makes and types of cars.

The exact route remains secret but it is expected to be on Quebec and Ontario roads with the start and finish in Toronto. An overnight stopover in Ottawa is planned.

The event will be organized along lines of similar national economy runs held in the United States, Australia and Britain.

Sports On All Fronts

TORONTO (CP) — Grace Saint of Kingston, won the Malcolmson international invitational bonspiel Thursday when Gladys Jordan of Lindsay, Ont., missed her last shot in the final to allow Mrs. Saint two on the last end for an 8-7 victory. Mrs. Saint reached the final with an 8-1 victory over Scotty Quinlan of Tillsonburg, Ont., while Mrs. Jordan advanced on a 7-4 win over Fran Shier of Toronto.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — John Cordia of Port Credit, Ont., is determined to make his racing season last all year. Fresh from competing in the Pan-American sports car series, Cordia has just signed to race snowmobiles for a Montreal manufacturer of the winter vehicles. Cordia has raced sports cars at Mosport race track for the last five years so he has an intimate knowledge of the course that will be used next Jan. 3 to 4 for championship snowmobile races. A purse of $2,500 and a trophy will be awarded to the winner of the 13-race program organized by the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation.

* * *

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Gay Brewer is playing less now and enjoying it more. "What he misses as big as they are now, you can afford to take more time off," the pug-nosed veteran said Thursday after shooting a course record-tying 65 and taking the first round lead in the $125,000 Danny Thomas-Diplomat Golf Classic. Brewer, a non-winner on the Professional Golfers' Association tour for more than two years, held a two-stroke lead over Tommy Aaron, R. H. Sikes and rookie Jim Jamieson going into today's second round on the 6,964-yard, par-72 Diplomat Presidential Golf Club course. Brewer, a graying 37-year-old whose last official victory was in the 1967 Masters, had played in only 26 previous events this year and hasn't been in action for three weeks.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market advanced moderately in light mid-morning trading today, continuing a rally that began late Thursday.

The recovery Thursday erased about three-quarters of the session's losses but the market still closed lower for the fourth successive session.

On index, industrials were up .46 to 185.08, base metals .94 to 114.86, western oils .54 to 190.31 and golds .12 to 155.43.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 565,000 shares compared with 538,000 at the same time Thursday.

Gains outnumbered losses 145 to 79 with 110 issues unchanged.

Twelve of the 17 industrial components were higher, five lower.

Oil refiners and pipelines led the industrial advance.

In oil refiners, Imperial rose ½ to 16¾, Shell ¼ to 28¼ and Gulf ¼ to 17¾.

Among pipelines, Inter-Provincial gained ⅝ to 23¼.

Falconbridge was up 1¼ to 170, Campbell Chibougamau 1 to 12¾, Southam ¾ to 66½, Consumers Gas ¼ to 20¾, Canada Cement ¼ to 19¾, Bell Canada ¼ to 62½ and Canadian Pacific ¼ to 22¾.

CPR slipped ¾ to 70¾, Oshawa A ¼ to 26¾ and Inland Gas ¼ to 19¾.

On index Thursday, industrials closed off .43 to 184.62 after rising from 2.00 in the first four hours of trading. Golds closed at a low for the year of 155.31, down .53. Western oils were up .51 to 189.77 after showing a four year low of 187.16. Base metals slipped .37 to 113.92.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active at higher prices for all grades of slaughter steers and heifers at the Ontario public stockyards this week. Lower grades were fully steady.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I hope you will print this letter to encourage Mrs. O.'s mother who needs heart surgery and is afraid to have it done. It will also help many others who are considering such an operation.

Five years ago I tried to take my life — but my manner wasn't up and God helped me pull through at the right time. I had sleashed my arms eight times with a razor and I lay in the bathroom all day until 3 p.m., when I came to and called the police. I was put under psychiatric treatment for five years. Last year I had gall stones removed and had heart failure. Two months later I ended up having open-heart surgery and the mitral valve was replaced.

Since then, every part of my body has improved. The doctors believe that insufficient oxygen in the brain caused me to lose control of my emotions, hence the nervous breakdown. My nerves have improved tremendously. My eyesight is better. I feel like a brand new person. I don't have to walk at a snail's pace anymore. Now, I am able to sing again. I was privileged to sing an entire solo in church, which is something I haven't done for about three years. I am able to work in an office eight full hours a day and keep house for my husband and daughter. Of course, I am not shoveling snow, but I do a lot of things around the house.

I have the greatest peace of mind I have ever known. I am now a young 63 years of age. One of my roommates in the hospital, who had a similar operation, was 88 years old and did very well, too. It is great to have faith and have God watch over us. I hope my letter will bring comfort and courage to heart patients who need heart surgery and are afraid to have it. — Mrs. G.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: About a month ago my family had a car accident. Our little boy who wasn't quite one year old needed three stitches in the top of his scalp. Our little girl age two, lost two upper front teeth and her upper lip was swollen.

What I am worried about is any possible after-effects. The doctor who examined them said they were okay. — Mrs. F.

Comment: As you mention no history of unconsciousness following the accident (and your doctor says everything is all right) my guess is that you are worrying needlessly about after-effects. Most children take their accidental bumps in stride; with no brain damage or other complications.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 5½ years old and I have had a period for nine months. Last year I had only two periods. Should a woman my age still use contraceptives? — Mrs. A.

Comment: The reason I keep reprinting letters similar to yours is the interest most women have in this question. I can only say pregnancy is possible but not probable! I talked with an obstetrician about this recently. He says, in his many years of practice, he has never known (or heard) of a woman past 50 becoming pregnant after she has ceased menstruating for at least six months. Would you bet on it, I asked him. He answered he'd give me any odds I wanted.

* * *

For Mrs. A.: Wearing copper jewelry is not "Dangerous for the system." It does not "throw off poison" into your body as your friends say, although occasionally it may cause local skin irritations.

Heart Surgery Makes Life Good

Strictly Personal

Prison Reforms Imperative

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Possibly not one American in 10,000 has ever so much as looked at a government report called "The Challenge of Crime in a Free Society"; which was published nearly three years ago by the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice.

In this report, leading experts in the field of penology recommend vital and sweeping changes in the way the U.S. runs its prison system — changes that would benefit not only the inmates themselves, but that would also reduce the cost to society of maintaining huge penal structures that only intensify the problem of crime.

There are about 1¼ million offenders in U.S. correctional programs, and each year correctional institutions handle about 2½ million admissions. If we could return most of these men to society as responsible and productive citizens, the crime rate would drop considerably — but most of them become repeaters, going on to more serious crime after a prolonged stay in prison.

The present institutions do not correct; they corrupt. Even the cautious and official report concludes that "the conditions under which many offenders are handled, particularly in institutions, are often a positive detriment to rehabilitation."

The report goes on to say bluntly: "Life in many institutions is at best barren and futile, at worst unspeakably brutal and degrading. To be sure, the offenders in such institutions are incapacitated from committing further crimes while serving their sentences, but the conditions in which they live are the poorest possible preparation for their successful re-entry into society, and often merely reinforce in them a pattern of manipulation or destructiveness."

More than half the men in prison have not completed an elementary school education. Most of them have no skills, and thus no job possibilities when they are released. They return to the same environment that produced them, only more bitter, more expert in the ways of crime, and more determined to "get even" for their punishment. Penitentiaries don't make them "penitent," but vindictive against society.

We must begin with the youth offenders, who too often are turned into criminals in the very juvenile detention homes that are supposed to "reform" them. We must get the communities, the schools and colleges to take part in rehabilitation programs. We must have work-furloughs and more flexible probation and parole policies. We must get better personnel, better trained, better paid, and better motivated than the present political hacks. Otherwise, all we shall get is "better" crime by men whose only ambition is retaliation.

A and P Workers Seek Raise

HAMILTON (CP) — Union negotiations with A and P Food Stores were to resume today, followed by a union meeting Sunday at which members will be informed of the results.

The amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America represents 950 full- and part-time workers at A and P's 27 Ontario stores.

The union is seeking a 91-across-the-board raise plus improvements in working conditions, hours, job security and health and welfare benefits.

Negotiations also are being conducted in Windsor and London. Similar meetings will be held Sunday in these centres.

Strike deadlines are expected to be discussed.

Employees in some centres, including Hamilton, are legally entitled to strike Monday. Others could strike Dec. 15.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Mr. and Mrs. E. Brooks left Monday for a motor trip to Kenora where they will visit their son.

George Cummings, Toronto is spending a few weeks at his home in St. Ola after recent surgery.

A miscellaneous shower was held for Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Carrol on Friday in the Legion Hall, Coe Hill.

The United Church Women will meet in St. Andrew's Church hall on Friday, December 5 at 2 p.m. for a Christmas party.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 6

Your birthday today: The making or breaking of relationships becomes the primary issue in the coming year. You are challenged to find a mature viewpoint. Growing intuition leads you well if you let it function and keep moderate personal habits. Today's natives often have difficulty deciding what vocation to pursue.

ARIES (March 21—Apr. 19): Group affairs and family pools are up for attention along with management changes.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Concentrate on the personal routines that have piled up through the week.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You are more likely to get your way about all sorts of personal matters. Make the most of it.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The task of finishing accumulated material and work details can be surprisingly successful.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Use the weekend for rest and dealing with your list of "things to do when there's time for them."

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Attend to errands and deliveries. Tidy up for the weekend. Start some serious study to develop new skills.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Take yourself out of general circulation today and concentrate on your own welfare. Line up accounts and budgets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Press projects vigorously, but avoid starting new ones. Try to smooth out any squabbles. Look after your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Financial ventures need further planning and preparation. Clear the way by getting rid of all the neglected details.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Time spent resting is not lost time. Your mind keeps working and even provides sudden inspirations in a quiet moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Spend more attention on adjustments and refinements. Don't start any new project.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Attend to routines, then focus on creative tasks. Determine what changes should be made in your wardrobe.

Two Congressmen Assail Immigration Quotas

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two congressmen introduced joint legislation Thursday to revise an "intolerable immigration quota system which is placing a severe strain" on Canadian-American relations.

The bill, sponsored by Representatives Frank Horton (Rep., N.Y.) and Michael Feighan (Dem., Ohio), would create a unified worldwide preference system and numerical ceiling in United States immigration policy.

"In my estimation this measure would eliminate the serious problem affecting our neighbors to the north and end the unfairness in the present law," Horton said in the House of Representatives.

He was referring to a 1968 revision of the U.S. Immigration and Nationality Act which placed a 120,000 immigration limit on Western hemisphere countries and established a first-come, first-served method of admission.

This slowed the free flow of Canadian immigrants and meant delays of six months or more in processing Canadian applications for visas.

The bill introduced Thursday would, after a three-year transition period, impose a worldwide ceiling of 300,000 on both hemispheres.

Horton said this measure would allow the traditional interchange between U.S. and Canadian firms.

"It would establish a non-immigrant category to permit executive, managerial and specialist personnel to enter the U.S. to assume employment with an international corporation for whom he had been previously employed abroad."

Canadian and American corporations had grown accustomed, he said, to transferring such personnel to and from offices in each other's countries without regard to nationalism.

He said the demand for immigration from the Western Hemisphere, especially Canada, is greater than can be satisfied with the 120,000 limitation. Some applicants have been waiting 11 months, and longer waiting periods were expected in the future.

In the five years prior to 1968, he said, Canadian immigration averaged 21,000 a year. In the 1969 fiscal year, fewer than 14,000 immigrant visas were issued to Canadians. In the same period, Mexican immigration stayed at about 40,000.

The difference in impact is that more Mexicans can establish exemption from labor certification requirements because of relationship to a U.S. citizen or permanent resident.

Horton said that Canadian government representatives have indicated that unless something is done, strong measures may be generated in Canada for reciprocal limitations on U.S. immigration to Canada.

Under the bill, the two-year foreign residency requirement would be inapplicable to aliens from economically developed countries on privately-funded programs.

Training Not Meant To Educate

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario director of the department of manpower and immigration Thursday brushed aside criticism that the federal adult retraining program is not furthering the education of trainees, saying the program is not meant to be educational.

"It is our objective to get a man a job," said Terrence R. Watts. Educating people is "the province's area of responsibility."

Mr. Watts was commenting on a report presented this week to a conference of retraining co-ordinators and administrators of adult education programs meeting at Timmins.

The report, prepared by a five-man committee commissioned by the Association of Applied Arts and Technology of Ontario, says the $80,000,000-a-year federal enterprise is falling short of its goal of helping the poor and hard-core unemployed.

It says that under the present program, "general education or fundamental social orientation — is rarely a consideration in the processing of individual clients."

The report levied harsh criticism against the manpower centre's policy of allowing only 52 weeks of general education for a trainee. It says a trainee cannot get a sound enough grounding to make subsequent specialskill training worthwhile.

Virus Seen As Cause Of Sarcoma

PARIS (AP) — Strong new evidence that a virus causes some human cancers was reported Thursday by American researchers.

Their work pinpoints a virus in sarcomas, the cancers of bone, cartilage and connective tissue.

It has not been proven yet that a virus is the actual cause of human cancers, nor has the virus been identified or isolated in pure form.

But if it can be isolated, the path could open to developing a vaccine against it.

The breakthrough was called "the most important in cancer research in the last 10 years" by Prof. Georges Mathe, director of the Cancer and Immunogenetic Institute of Paul-Brousse Hospital at Suburban Villejuif.

Mynah Tops Talk-fest

LONDON (AP) — A four-year-old mynah called Simon chalked his way to the title of Britain's top talking bird Thursday in a contest with seven other mynahs, two parrots and a budgerigar.

Simon startled the judges at the National Cage Birds Exhibition with his vocal imitation of a police car siren, human coughs, and a perfect rendering of the line: "Give mother a big kiss."

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — Bloomfield United Church Women held a tea and bazaar recently in the Sunday school room of the church.

Receiving baptism at Bloomfield United Church recently were Frank Richard Dunlop and Katie Anita Dunlop, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlop; Gregory Robert Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garry Foster and Yvonne Sylvia Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Foster.

Children at Home

Husband, Wife Hear News House Burning Over Taxi Radio

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A Belleville couple — the husband convalescent and just released from hospital — last night heard over a taxi radio that their home was burning.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Ialenti and their two children today are living with friends.

Their home at 184 Station Street was heavily damaged by a fire, cause of which is unknown.

Mrs. Ialenti said her husband, a truck driver for a catering firm, is still suffering back injuries and is unable to work.

He was released from hospital Wednesday and last night the couple took a cab to purchase a back support to aid his recovery.

They left, their children — Rena 10, and Vincent, nine, in the house.

Some time later one of the children dashed next door to the Clare Hendersons, raising an alarm. Smoke was pouring from the upper floor of the Ialenti home.

The Ialenis meantime, were returning home by cab. On College Street they heard a taxi driver informing other cabbies over the despatch radio of the fire at 184 Station Street.

Fire damage was confined to the upper part of the house, but the ground floor received heavy smoke and water damage.

Santa Claus Weather Greets Parade Crowd

Merry Mulhern

City Cheers Effort

Christmas crisply arrived in Belleville today — with thousands looking on.

Spreading a festive spirit warm as a yuletide log, Santa himself ushered in the happy time.

And the city didn't let the jolly gentleman down.

In Belleville tradition it greeted him with a glittering parade that marched him through downtown crowds.

But the big procession also was a symbol of something else — community spirit.

The parade was a triumph of community co-operation with individuals and organizations pulling together in an eleventh-hour effort to put the sparkle on the streets for Santa.

For Bellevillian Don Foster it also was a conquest. As the Santa who volunteered to fill the void, he inspired and organized the effort that produced the parade in less than a week.

The accomplishment was a Foster tour de force.

Some 26 floats, five bands, majorettes and a bevy of travel ling exhibits were marshalled by the Foster work force to greet Santa as he arrived in Belleville for the last Christmas of the 1960s.

The tingle of parade excitement was in the downtown air early.

More than an hour before the event was scheduled to move in on the city, clusters of youngsters and patient parents were choosing choice viewing spots along Front Street, a ready stream of spectators flowed downtown until a throng of several thousands lined the route from the West Moira Street fire hall.

The weather reflected the sparkle of the big show. Clear and sunny skies warmed through the morning, moving up from a low of nine degrees at 8 a.m. to 20 degrees by parade time.

Happiness Is A Parade

Happiness for thousands of Belleville youngsters today meant the city's annual Santa Claus parade. The big show went on as scheduled, despite earlier adversities. The response of the community's small fry is reflected in the faces of these young parade participants aboard one of many floats in gala.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government will decide within three weeks whether to grant financial aid to Canadair Ltd. for relief flights to Biafra, an official of the charitable organization said Friday. Dr. Edward Johnson, executive vice president of Canadair Ltd. said he was "most encouraged" by the government's attention to an agency request last week for a $1,200,000 cash distribution.

* * *

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Toy Testing Council said Friday that an electric toy car, the subject of questions in the House of Commons, should "only be used under the watchful eye of parents who have read the instructions. The car is powered by a wet cell battery.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — Conventional mortgage interest rates climbed to an average 10¼ per cent during November, the Mortgage Insurance Co. of Canada says, but at the same time house prices were down in most major centres. House prices have fallen noticeably in Toronto and the surrounding Ontario areas of London, St. Catharines, Sarnia, Peterborough, Hamilton, Kitchener, Windsor as well as in Montreal.

Quebec Stand Hardens

QUEBEC (CP) — The federal government's refusal to cede control over social security to the Quebec government was interpreted Friday as a threat to the survival of Canada.

On the eve of next week's constitutional conference at Ottawa, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand told the national assembly of Quebec that Quebec's position must be restated firmly "if we want Canada to remain."

Former premier Jean Lesage, who steps down as the Quebec Liberal party leader in January, lined the Liberals up with the Union Nationale in a common stand against the Trudeau governments position.

Mr. Lesage told the assembly Friday that he would be the last man to advise Mr. Bertrand not to be firm, especially on social security "where there is a continuity in policy independent of political parties."

Exchanged Prisoners

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israel today swapped 55 Egyptians— including six servicemen and 11 guerrillas—for two captured pilots in an exchange of prisoners across the Suez Canal.

Mass Media Hearings

No One On Trial Says Senator

TORONTO (CP) — The Senate committee on the mass media, which opens hearings in Ottawa Tuesday, proposes "neither a whitewash nor an inquisition, Senator Keith Davey said Friday.

Senator Davey, chairman of the 15-member committee, said at a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Public Relations Society he hopes the group will make a series of recommendations, and the government will be impressed enough by some of them to follow up with legislation.

Among other things, he said, he hopes the committee can strike a balance between the need for free freedom of the press and make some recommendations about a press council and about concentration of control of media.

One question that might be answered was: "What is a newspaper monopoly?"

"No one is on trial," the senator said.

What the committee hearings would do would be to create opportunities to explore opinion.

The work of the committee was in three phases: Research, public hearings and deliberations. It was hoped that a start could be made on writing a report next spring.

Senator Davey said there still was some confidential information to be obtained from the media. There had been extensive study of public attitudes toward the press.

About 150 witnesses will be heard in 90 sessions of hearings. They will range from newspaper publishers to editors of the underground press, and include unions and the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada.

'Electorate Going to Bite Us'

PC Soul Searchers Find Little Comfort

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Conservative party, comfortably in power for the last 25 years, is worried that it now may be alienating itself from large dissenting groups in society—particularly the urban voters.

At the provincial party's policy convention Friday, at least three Ontario cabinet ministers expressed fears that Queen's Park appears to the voter as a cold, indifferent bureaucracy, or that the Conservative party is irrelevant to emerging city problems.

They got little comfort from their party supporters. Delegate after delegate at the day-long panel discussions got up, like Mrs. J. C. Lyons of the Toronto borough of Etobicoke, to warn that local riding associations expect "the electorate is going to turn around and bite us in the next election."

"The people are unplugged from the political process, they feel powerless an emasculated," Barry Lowes, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto school board, told another panel.

"Our party riding associations are in jeopardy of becoming irrelevant along with the church and the family."

While the provincial Conservatives thrashed out their image problems, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield indicated to a news conference that the nation al party, too, is aware it has lost urban support and needs to develop policies to attract city voters.

He announced that the party will devote a national conference in 1970 to city problems as one way "of convincing the urban voter that we are relevant and are working toward meaningful approaches."

For Additional Stories See Page 8

Later, Bert Lawrence, Ontario's minister without portfolio, injected a note of "realistic optimism" into the soul-searching.

He forecast that the political climate of Ontario during the 1970s will be one of turmoil and grim party politics. It would be a technological era where alienated citizens would see all institutions as irrelevant.

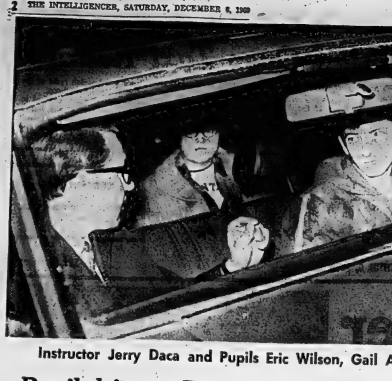
But fortunately for the Ontario government, he could see no reason to expect that the opposition Liberal or NDP parties would fare any better in the storm than the Conservatives.

Both Mr. Lawrence and Provincial Secretary Robert Welch warned that 90 per cent of Ontario's people will soon find themselves living in the anonymity of the urban environment, apt to envision themselves as the powerless victims of a mechanical government.

Mines Minister Allan Lawrence noted that numerical support for all political parties is dropping and, in the Conservatives' case, blamed his party for not reacting quickly enough "to the constructive implications of the thrust of modern-day dissent."

Many of the "growing numbers of dissenters" were urban-based—students, poor, trade unionists and ethnic groups—and they were all alienated from the Conservative party and its middle-class image.

"Today, I am not sure whether a grade union member or a poor person from my downtown Toronto riding of St. George could feel at home within our party," the mines minister said.



"It would seem to me that our success in the future would depend on our ability to bring into our movement, more successfully, dissenting groups such as the youth, the poor, the workers and the newer ethnic communities."

Pupil-drivers Discover Responsibilities Behind Wheel and on the Highway

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — It's Safe Driving Week in Canada, but to students of Trenton High School's driver education course, every week is safe driving week.

The students must have beginners' licences, but that is just the very beginning for those young (approximate average: 17-years-old), inexperienced students.

Before they graduate from the course they will have 43 hours of driver education under their safety belts. The majority of this — 25 hours — is spent in class studying texts, pamphlets and films and discussing driving with a qualified instructor.

A total of 18 hours is spent in the school's driver education car which is equipped with auxiliary brakes for the instructor, who sits in the front passenger seat.

Of the 18 hours, six are actual practice driving and 12 are spent observing fellow students drive. The present group of 21 at Trenton High School attended classes together but are divided up into seven groups of three for the practice driving.

The instructors are full - time secondary school teachers who gain both in - class and in - car training experience at a teacher preparation course held during the summer vacation. This two-week course at Toronto's Ryerson Polytechnical Institute is subsidized by the Ontario Department of Education and the Ontario Safety League.

And the driver education course which is approved by the departments of education and transport and the Hastings County Board of Education, is under the control of the school's principal.

Similar courses are held at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Moira Secondary School.

Car manufacturers — through local car dealers — are backing driver instruction in secondary schools by loaning cars free for approved courses.

The cars are new models and local dealers take turns in supplying Trenton High School with a car (automatic transmission and studded snow tires for winter use only are standard equipment) each year.

Expenses such as gas, oil and insurance are met by contributions from local service clubs and businesses and the department of education pays grants for the classroom part of an approved driver instruction course. The sole cost to the students is $20.

What do the students get for their $20.

Jerry Daca, one of Trenton High School's three qualified instructors (the others are Don Sinclair and Rod Mawer) said: "We stress defensive driving — that is keeping a space cushion between yourself and anything on the road.

"Many of the students haven't driven before but I think they learn to use their eyes more than the normal driver," he added.

Basically, the students are told and shown the proper and safe way to drive and given a chance to do so under a qualified instructor.

"We haven't seen the results yet but we instructors feel that they've learned to drive well," Mr. Daca emphasized, adding that the students took the course on their own initiative and were ready to learn.

The course does not interfere with other studies but is strictly extra-curricular and competes only with outside activities such as sports, clubs or arts and crafts.

Parental consent is required for every student taking the course. The instructor believes the course opens the door for the students as far as being allowed to use and are trusted with the family car.

Students' reaction to the four-month course is one of unanimous approval.

Trudy Hall, 16, says: "I've never driven before because my parents don't have the time or the patience to teach me."

A male classmate said: "It gives you a better understanding of driving. You learn the ups - by steps how - and why process of driving."

A second girl piped up: "I've learned from the students that it was good so I took it. It's proved very informative and has taught what I'm doing now when I'm driving. Dad lets me drive more now that I'm taking this course."

Another aspect entered into the picture when a boy volunteered: "It's definitely helped my driving" but I took the course to reduce the cost of insurance."

Instructor Daca then stressed that most insurance companies grant 5 - 15 per cent reductions for those who have taken a recognized course such as the one at Trenton High School.

The course alone doesn't make the students expert drivers for many of them still lack actual driving practice and experience at its conclusion, but it does appear to point them on the right track instructor Daca explained.

Trenton High School's driver education course is now in its fourth accident-free year.

But perhaps two more significant signs of its success are the fact that it will get a second car in the near future and that the instructors never have to worry about an empty classroom or course drop-outs because the waiting list is lengthy.

CN Department Relocation Plan Sparks Protest

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Local 126 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers is strongly protesting the proposed transfer of the CN regional revenue accounting department from Belleville to Montreal.

According to Herb W. Pointer, local chairman of the grievance committee, the transfer said scheduled for March 1, 1970, would mean the loss of 14 local jobs to the projected centralized operation in Montreal.

Most of the people involved have lived for years in Belleville and married and own their own homes.

Mr. Pointer says the 14 people involved have no working knowledge of the French language and would be working under heavy pressure in Montreal. He claims also that the transferred workers would have no seniority or job protection.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Reid said he had been informed of the proposed transfer of CN employees.

"When I learn the details I will try to do something," he said.

Harry J. Fast, CN Rideau area manager, was out of the city today and not available for comment.

Snowmobile Blitz Devours Licences

Belleville's motor vehicle licence bureau has been temporarily snowed under by the snowmobile boom.

Registrations have been mounting in volume in recent weeks and yesterday afternoon licence applicants were turned away by licence issuer George Olsen.

The reason?

The bureau just plain ran out of plates, explained Mr. Olsen.

He estimates there now are more than 1,300 snowmobiles registered in the city area — up to 300 of them licensed in the past three weeks.

The demand mounted to new dimensions this week, he said.

From Wednesday to yesterday 100 licences had been taken out by snowmobile owners.

Mr. Olsen expected to have a new supply of plates available some time next week.

PUC Drops Contest For Home Decoration

There is something missing from the Christmas scene in Belleville this year.

Well, maybe not missing completely — but any Christmas home — decoration scene will be strictly for appearances sake — not for competition.

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission has decided to discontinue its annual Christmas decoration competition for this year, although it possibly will be considered for another next year.

"We decided to give it a rest for this year," commented commission chairman Lyle A. Langabeer.

Woman Dies, Ore Train Wrecks Car

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

MARMORA — A woman was killed and her two teenage sons taken to hospital after their car collided with an ore train at Springbrook, six miles south of here today.

Mrs. Eileen Heath, 40, of RR 2, Campbellford was believed instantly killed, said provincial police.

Her 15 - year-old son, Gerry, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with possible internal injuries but reported in satisfactory condition. A second son, Lyle, 17, was released after examination.

The automobile was hit by Canadian National freight, headed for Marmoraton Mines here to load its 30 empty cars with iron ore pellets.

The train left Belleville for Marmora at 7.20 a.m. with engineer L. A. Courchamonche and conductor Harry Hodson.

The mishap was reported back to the CN despatch office in Belleville at 8.08 a.m.

JOHN FREDERICK DAVISON
(Flinton)

TWEED — Following a short Illness, John Frederick Davison, a well - known and highly respected citizen of Flinton, died at the Belleville General Hospital, recently in his 85th year.

The deceased was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davison. He was born at Flinton, and continued to live in the district where he took an active part in community affairs. He went into business in 1911 as a blacksmith. In 1946 his son, Douglas and Earl, joined him in farming.

Mr. Davison was keenly interested in the young people of the community. He was a member of the Kalador School Board for forty - six years, and was active in promoting the formation of the Consolidated School in Flinton. He was also active in sports, particularly hockey and baseball, and was a hunter for fifty - two years. He was the leader of the Flinton Sun Dial Club for twenty years.

Mr. Davison is survived by his wife, the former Janette Youmans, a daughter, Mrs. Arthur (Ina) Gardner of Lindsay, and by three sons, Earl Davison and Douglas Davison, both of Flinton, and Robert "Bob" Davison, Outlet Park, Fiction. There are 10 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Davison celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 25th, 1963.

The funeral was held from the Northey Funeral Home, Northbrook, to the Flinton United Church, where the service was conducted by Rev. E. V. Cook. The bearers were: three grandsons: John Davison, Reg Davison and Larry Murphy, Stafford Meraw, Arnold York and Stewart Hudgins.

Interment was in the Flinton United Cemetery. Mr. Hudgins was a member of the Flinton United Church, where he served as an elder and in years past as an honorary elder.

MRS. THOMAS H. SINE

Funeral service for Mrs. Thomas H. Sine of Sidney Street was held Thursday in the Hogle Funeral Home, Rev. J. Bruce Small officiating, assisted by Rev. John Weese of Frankford. Interment was in the Sine Cemetery in Sidney Township.

The bearers, all grandsons, were Gerald Sine, Dr. William McIntyre, Burton Sine, Keith Grills, Gerald Grills and Thomas Grills.

JAMES N. HARTT
(Grafton - Trenton)

The funeral of James N. Hartt of Grafton, former resident of Trenton and Bowmanville was held Wednesday from the Weaver Funeral Home where service was conducted by Rev. W. Ware of Grafton. Interment was in St. George's Cemetery.

Bearers were Ted Watson, David Watson, Ralph Murray, Paul Jones, Arnold Jones and George Graham.

Mr. Hartt died suddenly Sunday in Port Hope District Hospital. He was in his 68th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Hartt, he was a retired farmer and fruit grower. He was a member of the Anglican Church and belonged to the L.O.L. and Royal Black Preceptory of Trenton and Frankford. He was past master of the former Lodge and Royal Black Preceptory of Trenton and Frankford. He is survived by his wife, the former Gertrude Rykrman, and two sons, Frank Hartt of Grafton and Dr. Jack Hartt of Belleville. There are six grandchildren.

Also surviving is one sister, Mrs. Arthur (Marjorie) McConnell of Brighton.

MRS. HAROLD PRESTON STEINBERG

The funeral service for Mrs. Mary Aird Steinberg of Wooler was held Thursday in the Howes Funeral Home in Frankford. Rev. W. A. Adam, assisted by Rev. R. Foulkes, officiated. Interment was in McPhail's Cemetery.

The bearers were Fred Van Vaals, Everett Ellis, Noble Crosby, Alfred Goodin, Meghan Adams, Arthur Dorland.

Mrs. Steinberg died Monday in Belleville General Hospital following a lengthy illness. She was in her 81st year.

Born in Scotland, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Gunion. She resided in the Ill. Zion and Wooler areas after moving to Canada.

She was a member of the Wooler United Church and the United Church Women.

Mrs. Steinberg is survived by her husband, Harold Preston Steinberg; by one son, Douglas of Trenton; by two daughters, Mrs. Karl (Jean) Austin of Wesleymoon Lake and Mrs. Claude (Doreen) Thompson of Brighton; by six grandchildren; by two brothers, Thomas Gunion of Montreal and John Gunion of Hamilton; and by two sisters, Mrs. George (Nancy) Clapp of Trenton and Mrs. Jean Merrill of Hamilton.

She was predeceased by one brother, Andrew.

IN MEMORIAM

GELSTHORPE — In loving memory of my dear father, and grandfather, Christopher, who passed away Dec. 7, 1967.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Sweet memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Marion.

SEYMARK — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Harry who passed away Dec. 6, 1966.
There is a family that misses you,
And finds time long since you went,
We think of you daily and hourly
But try to be brave and content,
Your chair are in silence,
And we breathe a sigh of regret,
For one we were ours can ne'ermore be.
Though all the world forget.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by son Jud, daughter-in-law Doris and grandchildren.

MAHNEY — In loving memory of a dear brother Lynn Mahney who passed away suddenly Dec. 7, 1966.
He didn't have time to say farewell,
Nor I to say anything,
He was gone before I knew,
And only God knows why,
Please God forgive a silent tear,
As I whisper a prayer here,
In God's garden now at rest,
Peacefully sleeping lies one of the best —Ever remembered by brother Garnet, sister-in-law Monica and family.

BLY — In loving memory of my dear husband Frederick Bly who passed away 2 years ago, December 8th, 1967.
Surrounded by friends I am lonely tonight,
In the midst of my boys I am blue,
With a smile on my face I've a heartache,
Loneliest, dear husband,
—Never forgotten by wife Nellie and family.

MOLOWAY — In loving memory of a dear husband, father, father-in-law and grandfather, John Moloway, who passed away Dec. 6, 1965.
Time goes on with many changes,
Joy and sorrow, life and death,
But your memory we will cherish,
From the Master Funeral Home, Mrs. Rolland Harwood,
Lawrence of Kingston; in his 83rd year.
Resting at the Home Funeral Home, Frankford, Friday, Dec. 5, 1969, at 2 p.m. Requiem Mass will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 9 at 10 a.m. in St. Alphonsus Church. Wesley Rev. Father R. Hart officiating.
Interment, Codrington Cemetery.
Donations to Glendale Hospital Foundation would be appreciated.
28-31

KNOTT — In loving memory of our dear parents Ida and Jim Knott who passed away Dec. 6, 1966.
Time heals not the grief we bear,
Nor dries the tears we shed,
We miss you more than anyone
In each day passes our emptiness
The years we shed will wide away,
With a smile on my face I've a heartache,
No one knows the grief we bear,
Nor the tears we shed sweets and you're not there,
You left a sudden memory of thoughts unknown,
But you left us memories we are proud to own
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by daughters Lois, Jean and Dolly, Gladys, Phyllis, Betty and grandchildren Ronnie and Linda.

AYLESWORTH — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Mary Ann Aylesworth who passed away Dec. 6, 1932.
Dear Mary Ann we're thinking,
Of you as we do each year,
We selected you fair and,
Our hearts have been broken,
Our dear Mary Ann's gone,
But when we saw you sleeping,
Peaceful and free from pain,
We could not wish you back,
To live again,
—Ever remembered by mother, sister Ethel.

McLEOD — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Danny McLeod who passed away Dec. 6, 1964.
We little knew when we woke that morning,
The sorrow the day would bring,
When God called our boy home,
For the call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear,
Our hearts are sore, our minds can find no rest,
We wish we lost on that sad day,
But God knew best,
—Ever remembered by mom and brothers Ralph, Jack, Wayne and Pete.

BELCH — In loving memory of our dear parents Ida and Jim Knott, George Belch who passed away 2 years ago.
A wonderful picture woven in gold,
Treasured with love so fondly told,
In our hearts they are living yet,
We know they'll never be forgotten,
Resting where no shadows fall,
In perfect peace until we all,
Our God above will link them,
As one in love,
—Ever remembered by Edna, Pat, Helen, Keith and grandchildren.

BLY — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Frederick Bly who passed away December 7, 1967.
Time takes away the pain of grief,
But memories bring it back every day,
Till memory fades and life departs,
You live forever in our hearts,
—Sadly missed by son Fred, daughter-in-law Bessie and family.

Good Old Santa Claus Didn't Forget Belleville After All

Few problems showed up in parade preliminaries.

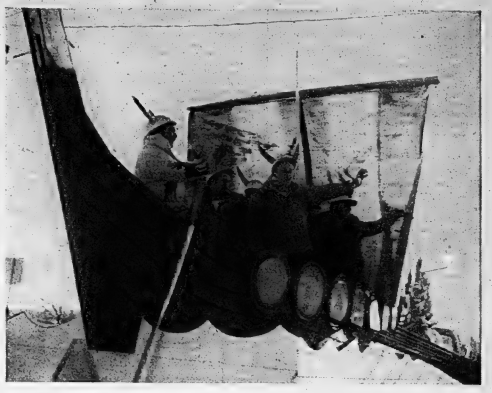
With the event now an established 15-year-old tradition most Bellevillians either parked cars uptown away from the parade, or walked from home.

Traffic congestion appeared minimized and vehicles flowed smoothly under police direction right up to parade time.

The event itself went off without an appareal hitch — revealing no traces of the hectic last - minute scramble to ensure its success.

Volunteers and community organizations worked through the week to finish floats by last night's deadline.

The result showed in the faces of Belleville's moppets as they greeted the final float bearing Santa himself.



As for the jolly gent, he never looked happier — and more welcome.

The parade lineup included: Pinton Pushers Motorcycle Club, Tri-County GRS Club, Western Horse Association, Dorothy Dickey majorettes, Versatiles band, Versatiles majorettes, Frank Howard combo, Quinte Home Builders float, Lions Club float, Kennel Club float, TB Association, Centennial Secondary School, area cadets band, army cadets, Harmony School, Quinte Exhibition, Trenton public works department, Corby's distillery, William Belch float, ANAF band, Valerie Smith majorettes, City Hotel stock car, Belleville Collegiate band, Senior Citizens, Chapman Majorettes, Girl Guides, City Ambulance.

Many of the floats—built at the Foster workshops — were seen in the Belleville area for the first time.

Crash Injures Man, Wife

TWEED — A Springbrook man and woman are in Belleville General Hospital this morning after a two-car collision yesterday afternoon at Madoc.

Clayton Allan Burkitt and his wife, Lena, were admitted to hospital after their car came into collision with a vehicle driven by Sharon Phillips, 20, of Madoc.

Mrs. Burkitt is reported in serious condition

Rail Crossing Closed

Canadian National Railways lost no time closing the Station Street level crossing at the east end of the railway yards after city council's approval.

Council approved the by-law at its meeting Wednesday night and the crossing was closed to vehicular traffic Friday morning.

Signs have been erected warning motorists that the crossing is closed coming into the city from the Second Concession of Thurlow now has to proceed either down Elmwood Drive to Dundas Street or along Byron Street through Hillcrest and down Cannifton Road.

Closing of the crossing was made necessary because of CN's enlargement program which will see two additional tracks extended beyond the crossing.

But closing of the crossing will be only a temporary inconvenience.

Eventually, the crossing will be replaced by a grade separation over the double tracks at the Haig Street extension.

'Pros' Will Learn New Ski Tips

Recreational skiing has been with us for many years and techniques could normally be expected to remain relatively the same, but even skiing instructors have to take refresher courses.

In preparation for commencement of the annual ski instructional program sponsored by the Belleville Recreation Commission, an instructors' refresher course will be conducted Sunday afternoon at the Oak Hills Ski Club. Eleven instructors, including three who are new this year, will take the course.

The new instructors are Mrs. Irene Harris, Elizabeth Zweck and Steve Martin, who took recreation commission ski training a couple of years ago.

Gordon McGaughey, owner - operator of the Oak Hills Ski Club, notes that participation in the ski training program has been increasing in leaps and bounds. This year, participation will jump to 135 from last year's 100.

The commission ski training classes are for juniors between ages 9 and 18 years.

Farm March Will Protest Medicare Cost

PICTON (Staff) — A citizens' rally bound for Queen's Park in Toronto left Picton by bus this morning from the county centre. The group, headed by members of the National Farmers' Union, intends to protest the high cost of medicare and its limited coverage.

A spokesman said this morning that about 30 representatives from Prince Edward County boarded the bus, planning to take part in the protest march at Queen's Park.

May Have to Borrow to Pay School Tax

The matter of whether municipalities are responsible for unpaid school taxes was again before city council this week.

Legal opinion is that municipalities must pay the county board of education on the basis of the school board's requisitions regardless of whether taxes are paid.

Municipalities cannot charge back interest on money which it must borrow to pay the school boards, council was told.

The school tax matter was brought before city council several months ago and was referred to the city solicitor for legal opinion.

This week the solicitor's opinion was received and Mayor J. Russell Scott observed that his suspicions were correct.

He said that unpaid taxes in the city could amount to as much as seven per cent and having to borrow money to pay the board for unpaid school taxes "places an unfair burden on the city".

"With school boards having borrowing power, we (the municipality) should have to pay over only what is collected," he said.

He asked that council give consideration to a resolution demanding that municipalities be required to pay over only the amount of school taxes collected or that it be entitled to charge interest which it is required to pay on uncollected school taxes back to the school boards.

"It could be an impressive item, and amount to as much as one half to one mill on the tax rate."

Also in connection with the school tax problem, council was advised by the Hastings county board of education that it could not agree to a requested writeoff of school taxes on Belleville YMCA property.

The board took the stand that is such a writeoff was approved, the action would subsidize an enterprise in the city of Belleville by all other municipalities in the county and that such a writeoff would be illegal.

A Traffic Issue

City Council is "playing it cool" as it were with regard to the use of snowmobiles. Operation of the vehicles, members have decided, is a provincial responsibility.

Reference, however, was made to the noise factor and to the possibility that for this reason by-law control over the vehicles' operation might be necessary.

In the Belleville area thus far their operation seems confined mainly to the open countryside, away from traffic, although not exclusively; as we pointed out the other day an area driver told of an unnerving experience when two snowmobiles with single lights seemed to be coming right at him on a curve in Rossmore.

In Peterborough meanwhile snowmobile operation has been the subject of a stormy discussion. City council discussed the subject for almost an hour after presentation of a petition signed by 1,200 Peterborough residents; it took issue with a proposed by-law which would greatly limit use of the machines within city limits.

The citizens' protest against what they described as a "discriminatory" by-law at least has caused council to pause. It voted to table the proposal to consider further amendments.

As of now it prohibits use of snowmobiles on sidewalks as well as 47 streets in the city, and curtails their operation between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m. on weekdays and between midnight and 8 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

The outcome of the Peterborough measure will be watched with interest here and in other centres. However, there can be no doubt that apart from any noise factor in urban areas snowmobile operators, as well as car owners, must exercise mutual caution.

Brockville meanwhile has just passed a by-law forbidding operation of "any motorized snow vehicle along or across any highway or part of a highway under the city's jurisdiction."

At the Peterborough meeting one member of the public present was in favor of the by-law, complaining there was a serious danger when snowmobiles tried to compete with "normal vehicles" on city streets. He cited an incident when one of the machines scooted across in front of him and he nearly hit it.

A responsible attitude by all vehicle operators will go a long way to avoiding accidents. Meanwhile, time will decide whether any municipal control is necessary.

Menace to Society

The New England states with the exception of heavily-populated urban areas like Boston, do not constitute a region one associates with a high incidence of crime.

We do recall an incident a decade or so ago when a Quebecer vacationing with his wife at Old Orchard Beach in Maine was shot and seriously wounded by one of the drifters who happened on the scene. The Canadian visitor survived but the affair illustrated the gun-happy mentality that prevailed then—as it does now, in the United States.

Still, considering the problem as a whole (some 17,000 people die of gunshot wounds in the United States annually) one associates such states as Vermont and New Hampshire peopled mainly by law-abiding and intelligent people. The many colleges and universities in this part of America beloken a concentration of intellectualism to be found in few other regions. Moreover, most of these places of learning have escaped the mindless displays of student arrogance and unrest so prevalent elsewhere.

Thus it comes as rather a shock to learn that a young woman suspect in the murder of actress Sharon Tate and four others at her Hollywood home last August has given herself up in Concord, New Hampshire, which as we all know is not far from the Canadian border.

But then, such is the geographical largesse of this continent that suspects in crimes committed in one area frequently are picked up hundreds of miles away, if not a couple of thousand or more as in this case. An incidence in our own area was the arrest in Vancouver a while back of two young men wanted in connection with a bank robbery in Consecon.

Really it does not matter where you travel in the United States, but each and every state has its quota of psychotics, schizophrenics and all the other mentally-debilitated or corrupt persons who constitute such a serious menace to American society.

Canada too has its problems in this regard, but happily not to the same extent. To keep it this way law enforcement demands all the support the public can render, to the end that this country remains largely free of serious crime and a safe place for its citizens.

Senate Moribund... While

Commons Flounders Amid Deep Aura of Boredom

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Despite the presence of the glamorous Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Parliament still is becoming one of the great bores of Canada.

The heart of the dullness on the Hill now is centred in the House of Commons itself where not so long ago the daily show was superbly entertaining, vigorous and often vicious.

Now it is dull and dreary.

The opposition says it is that is the way Prime Minister Trudeau wants it. Former prime minister Diefenbaker declares that Mr. Trudeau is "not a House of Commons man." The old chief, frowning in disapproval, affirms that Trudeau means to downgrade Parliament.

It is true that new rules introduced by the Trudeau government have curbed some of the old-time bickering and time-consuming argumentation of the Commons.

Also, much of the action that used to take place in the Green chamber is now in the committees.

And above all there is the hard fact that majority government has returned to Ottawa after an absence of six years.

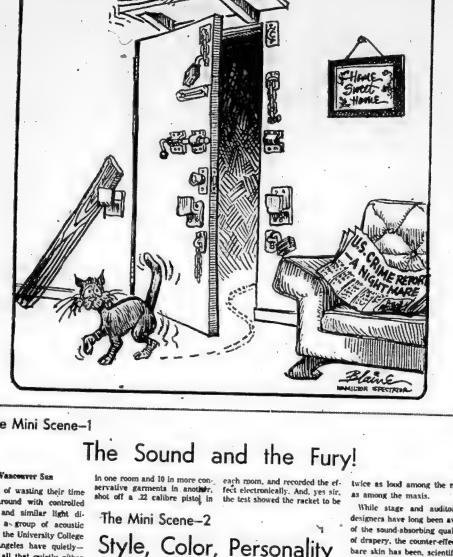
Where John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson duelled with one another daily with a general election hanging in the balance, now Mr. Trudeau coolly conveys his solid ranks of Liberals that can easily over-ride any combination of opposition votes.

There is no suspense in the Commons. Everyone knows there won't be another election until Mr. Trudeau chooses and that likely will not be until 1972.

If the new parliamentary script is dull, so are the actors. Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, now officially top dog on the opposition side, would have been lucky to make spearcarrier in the fulldress dramatics of prime minister or leader Diefenbaker.

And while Mr. Trudeau has more charisma than Mr. Pearson, the latter when he got his Irish up could be a considerably more impressive figure in the Commons.

The two together, Diefenbaker and Pearson, made a great parliamentary team. Their successors still have to play.



The occasional wistful lament for Parliament Hill nowadays recalls the Senate, topping this long-neglected institution might provide some life. Alas, it is as moribund as ever and even the presence of Paul Martin makes no difference.

Indeed, the neglect of the Senate by Mr. Trudeau via delaying appointments and the overhanging spectre of Senate reform, give the Red chamber a somewhat perishable quality.

Old-timers though say there should not be despair for the parliamentary institutions under Trudeau.

Casting back through the years, they say it was just like this through most of the reign of Mackenzie King — the Senate went about its somnolent ways and the Commons legislated in the dull, grey manner that Mr. King preferred.

Not to worry, advise these old gaffers as, stifling a yawn, they glance down at Messrs. Trudeau and Stanfield.

The Mini Scene—1

Vancouver Sun

Instead of wasting their time fooling around with controlled greenies and similar light diversions, a group of accountant boffins at the University College of Los Angeles have quietly—well, not all that quietly either — shown what research is all about.

They have been testing nothing less than the theory that miniskirts affect the transmission of sound.

And they do, they do.

The proof came when the boffins assembled 10 girls in minis in one room and 10 in more conservative garments in another, shot off a .22 calibre pistol in each room, and recorded the effect electronically. And, yes sir, the test showed the racket to be twice as loud among the minis as among the maxis.

While stage and auditorium designers have long been aware of the sound-absorbing qualities of drapery, the counter-effect of bare skin has been scientifical ly speaking, an unexplored field.

Acoustical design undoubtedly will undergo significant changes now that the scientists realize they've been approaching the problem from the wrong end.

The Sound and the Fury!

Style, Color, Personality

Letter to the Hamilton Spectator

This is a reply about the cry for school uniforms that has arisen lately.

Must we take the young people and put the same stamp on them all? Let them be individuals. Let them wear their glaring colors, fashions and style while they are young. I watch children of different creeds, races and sizes pass my door, going to schools each day. The particular personalities of these young people, wearing their miniskirts, maxi - coats, leather clothes, long, short, curled or straight hair on the five - year - olds up to the oldest teenagers, is a parade of youth that has no end, thank goodness. I find it beautiful and I enjoy them.

A uniform would lump them together. Life holds enough dullness for them when they are older; let them have their vivid clothes while they are young.

When the Creator made us he didn't pattern us all alike, thank goodness. Each insect, flower and animal is varied and unlike the other. My children are mine, yours are yours, what has clothes got to do with discipline and morals? The last generation and the one before that had long drab clothes and rigid rules, but that didn't stop two bitter wars. No, blame the proper things for morality. Let us take more notice what our children are reading, hearing, and learning in schools, than what they have on their backs.

Burlington

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The French freighter Mont Blanc with a cargo of benzol, picric acid and TNT and the Belgian relief ship Imo collided in Halifax harbor 53 years ago today—in 1917—with an explosion that wrecked the north part of the city, killing 1,000 persons. A tidal wave broke ships' moorings, drowned those near the shore and ruined the waterfront. The blast, which broke windows in Truro, 50 miles away, also injured 6,000, left 10,000 homeless and caused $35,000,000 worth of property damage.

Toronto's Richmond College Is A Mini University

Kingston Whig-Standard

The story of what must be the smallest university in Ontario—if not in whole of Canada — is an intriguing and beguiling one. This is the day of the multi-university, an endlessly proliferating conglomeration of faculties and departments held together by an impersonal bureaucratic structure — called with varying degrees of emotion, the Administration.

Richmond College is not like that. It is so small that it fits nicely into a former public school in three acres of land in Markham Township just out of the jurisdiction of Metro Toronto. Richmond rejoices in an enrolment which has doubled during the past two years since the college opened: 104 students. According to its registrar, Richmond may reach 1,000 students. It will then stop growing. His comment was pointed: "After that start another."

We have often suggested that those who experienced the days of the reasonably small university or college have been lucky. There is a great deal to be said for the intimate atmosphere of such an institution — provided, of course, that it was well-endowed and could afford reasonable facilities, including a decent library. But even at its worst, such a small institute of learning was in some ways a better place to attend than the modern fact-factory. Really good teachers can make up even for the lack of huge library facilities.

A true scholar and devoted teacher knows what he knows; knows how to pass on his enthusiasm; and knows where to find what he can't readily bring to mind. In these days of sophisticated transference of information the problem of getting the facts need not be crippling.

At any rate, Richmond seems to have the minimum requirements for a sound basic higher education. There are still people who want that kind of education; who are not interested, in becoming advanced technicians in any area — at least not until they have been exposed to education (as distinct from mere instruction). From all accounts everybody at this university is happy, productive and keen. And that state of mind breeds, and harried college of higher learning, is supremely to be desired, isn't it?

Costly Road Expenditure Escaped Council Scrutiny

Brockville Recorder and Times

Frank and open discussion on public affairs and the need for better communication were a campaign issues in Monday's civic election, and by co-incidence, a glaring example of the need in point was given the Brockville electors at the Tuesday night council meeting. At that meeting debentures were approved for a city road building contract. Not a question was then raised by council despite the fact that the road work had cost $75,000 more than estimated. Did this road really cost $2,000 a foot?

This is not to suggest that one should read into this matter anything more than a lack of interest or a lack of communication on the part of the council. Had such suspicions not enquired about the debenture issue and the total cost as related to the original estimate, it is possible that the information would not have been made public at this time. It is simply a case of the council not informing the public through discussion in open council meeting.

an over-spending. No one asked what the original estimates were. Indeed, very little was said about anything. Under such circumstances it may be presumed that out of two things obtained: Either council had discussed the matter in closed committee session or members of council weren't sufficiently interested in whether or not work cost $75,000 more than estimated. Did this road really cost $2,000 a foot?

This is not to suggest that one should read into this matter anything more than a lack of interest or a lack of communication on the part of the council. Had such suspicions not enquired about the debenture issue and the total cost as related to the original estimate, it is possible that the information would not have been made public at this time. GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 6, 1949.

At the Kiwanis Centre this evening a meeting will be held to institute a Labor-Religion Council. Rev. F. R. Harbach has been appointed by the Ministerial Association to be the liaison officer between the two groups.

"Integrating large numbers of displaced persons into citizenship in Canada is a challenge to us all," stated Earl Webster of the Community Program branch to members of the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon at the Kiwanis Centre. He stated there were more than 38,000 displaced persons in Canada to seek a new life and of these, 20,000 are enrolled in citizenship classes throughout Canada.

Montreal Centre Gives Clergy Psychological Assistance

MONTREAL (CP) — Many people go to priests and ministers for help.

What about members of the clergy who need help themselves?

Until recently, they had to turn to colleagues or superiors or get professional help at lay agencies and clinics.

Since September, however, a centre unique in North America has been operating in Montreal to offer psychological assistance to those in religious life.

Because of the nature of that life and the kind of people attracted to it "there's an awful lot of suffering—suffering without any sense," says Dr. Lucien Auger, a director of the Centre Interdisciplinaire de Montreal.

He adds, by way of explanation:

"One girl who came to us had entered a nunnery to atone for her sins of having sexual relations with her brothers when she was young. Because religious life didn't suit her, she was miserable for 20 years.

"To be productive, a priest or nun must be true to his or her self. We try to help them develop their potentialities as well as cure the problems."

The centre, in modern offices near the base of Mount Royal, has been so successful that plans already have been made to double its office space and open a branch in Sherbrooke, 70 miles east of here.

The idea for the centre was conceived a year ago by a concerned group of psychologists who realized a need for a service to meet the particular problems facing the clergy. The Centre Interdisciplinaire is a self-supporting organization.

It has received requests for help from South America and the United States, but is hampered by too little time and a lack of staff who speak English.

There are 15 full-time staff including 11 qualified psychologists, researchers and researchers—but only a couple speak English well enough to deal with English-language patients.

Dr. Auger says help is available to persons of any religion. However, with the centre located in Quebec, it naturally concentrates on problems of French-speaking Roman Catholics.

Within a five-mile radius of its Montreal location there are 12,000 nuns and 3,500 religious brothers and priests.

Similar centres exist in New York and Chicago but they're sponsored by local Roman Catholic dioceses.

"We want to have our hands free," Dr. Auger says.

Because religious life "has a very stable image," he says, it attracts persons who are very dependent, lack initiative and fear other people, especially men and sex.

"There are a large number of problems related to emotional immaturity, probably because religious life is too closed and has too little contact with real life.

"Living as a celibate has never been an easy task, especially in the times we're living in now. Many brothers and nuns have entered orders without any sexual experience and encounter the sex drive with desperate turmoil at the age of 40.

"It's a well-known fact that there are problems of homosexuality and lesbianism in religious orders.

"There are hundreds of isolated communities where five or six nuns have to live in very close contact and if two of them are involved with each 'other it leads to many problems."

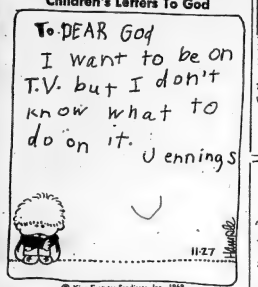
Dr. Auger says most persons in orders control the sex drive "through authentic religious commitment" while others can sublimate it into other activity.

"Entering religious life is a big risk to take," he stresses, "but chastity is not solitude or emotion cut off—it's an expansion of human love."

Problems with authority often come because the vow of obedience "has been disastrously interpreted as giving up the freedom to think."

"This leads to misunderstandings and repression of anxiety and hostility often causing a variety of psychosomatic illnesses."

Besides the problems special to religious life there are others which are more a reflection of today's society.



"The religious life is being challenged and this leads to insecurity," says Dr. Auger.

People are leaving religious life "in droves," he says, noting that between 5,000 and 10,000 gave up religious life last year in Canada.

Dr. Auger hopes that the centre can at least help some of those with problems.

"It's a drop in the bucket," he admits, "but in 10 years it can effect something."

Canadian Booth at YWCA Bazaar Raises Substantial Sum of Money

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite near disaster, the Canadian ladies firmly deny it was a put-up job to stimulate sales —the Canadian entry in this year's glittering YWCA International Fair was a best-ever success.

As a result, sales from the Canadian booth at the pre-Christmas bazaar that annually turns a downtown hotel ballroom into a sort of United Nations supermarket for a day totalled $1,500.

It, and the profits from the booths operated by the embassies of 31 other countries, go to the YWCA's World Fellowship Program for use in 73 countries.

The Canadian ladies, wives of diplomats, military personnel and news correspondents serving here, got things going last September at a working-coffee party given by Mrs. A. E. Ritchie, wife of the ambassador.

Co-chairmen of the operation were Mrs. Stuart Paddon of Picton, Ont., wife of Rear-Admiral Paddon, head of the Canadian military mission, and Mrs. Peter Tarr, wife of the senior Canadian minister.

The committee put together a 40-foot booth laden with bacon, home baking, samples of handicrafts, maple syrup, chocolates, pea soup and—eventually—Canadian cheese, always a favorite with the more than 9,000 shoppers.

But, for want of a missing bill-of-lading, the 1,000 pounds of cheese remained stranded in customs and disappointed early shoppers had to be turned away.

The ballroom loudspeaker gave progress reports and at high noon word came that "the cheese has been freed." A queue started forming and before long the last pound was sold.

The fair started in a modest way in 1950 when Washington's YWCA faced the problem of meeting its quota contribution to the world fund and a luncheon was held with six embassies providing native foods. By this year, more than 3,000 volunteers from the 32 embassies were involved.

Canadian items had to compete with French perfumes, Greek beads, carved lions from Israel, kangaroo soup from Australia, and the like for the shoppers' attention.

The Canadians, along with the embassies of France, Italy, Japan, The Netherlands and some others, also put up a typical national dinner setting.

Mrs. G. H. Blouin and Mrs. T. Price created the formal Canadian dinner table featuring the antique crystal goblets presented to the Canadian embassy by the late Governor-General Vincent Massey when he was ambassador here in 1927.

The suggested Canadian menu included habitant pea soup, Winnipeg goldeye meunière, Beauty Lake duckling with wild rice dressing, fiddleheads, Tantramar Marsh mushrooms, Oka cheese, McIntosh apple wedges and maple mousse with whipped cream and coffee.

Women's Institutes

RIVER VALLEY WI

Mrs. Ralph Carlisle and Mrs. George Grills conducted two sessions of the Home Economics senior course on the theme "The Main Dish Makes the Meal." The meetings were held at River Valley WI centre with 20 women present.

On the first afternoon three dishes were prepared and cooked. They consisted of stuffed fish, corned beef and liver. These dishes were served with a variety of cookies and coffee.

On the second afternoon a whole chicken was prepared and cooked Caribbean style. At the close the food was sampled by the women who provided a Waldorf salad, hot buns and jam.

The Summary Day will be held Tuesday, January 13, 1970.

Mrs. Vernon Harry expressed thanks on behalf of the group to the leaders who spent a great deal of time preparing the course.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

REDNERSVILLE WI

The November meeting of the Redeersville WI was held at the home of Mrs. R. Redner. Mrs. W. Fuller was in charge of the meeting.

A two minute period of silence was held for the late Mrs. M. Wilson. Mrs. A. Cairns read a letter from Loyalist College in regards to their application courses. There was then a discussion about a centennial quilt made in the county. A donation was made to the mental health institute and a special collection was made for toy fruit for Christmas for the older folks of the county home.

The December meeting will be held in the Albury Hall Dec. 17 with supper at 7.00 p.m. Mrs. Cairns read the letter about the plans for a swimming pool for Prince Edward County.

Conveners for the program were Mrs. C. Vanclief and Mrs. H. Montgomery. Mrs. Vanclief had some material on resolutions and she told of the origin of WI and its colors, home and country motto, pin, institute ode, grace and Mary Stewart collect. Mrs. H. Montgomery had the Tweedsmuir Book on display.

Mrs. E. Adams reported on the Rednersville band and Mrs. R. Stafford had her husband's band musical uniform and picture of the band on display.

Mrs. H. Montgomery displayed a survey plan of Redneersville in 1878 which showed many changes from today. She also told about the barley days in Prince Edward County. Mrs. F. Morden read about hop growing. Pictures were passed of the hop pickers and road gangs of those days.

Mrs. H. Montgomery also told about the Bay Bridge of 1887. She said it was 1921 when the bridge was free from toll.

The meeting closed with the Institute grace and lunch was served.

MELROSE

The November meeting of Melrose WI was held recently at the home of Mrs. Jack McLaren with a good attendance of members and guest entertainer, Mrs. J. Parrott.

Following the opening exercises the president asked that a moment's silence be observed in memory of a life member, Mrs. Ethel Clarke and who passed away recently.

The treasurer reported on the successful Thanksgiving Tea served at Achievement Day at Thurlow Community Hall on Nov. 26. The Institute sponsored girls' club and its leaders all attended the above event.

Sandra Weese and Susan Lanier received provincial honors, blue girls from the Melrose Clubs have received this award. The treasurer, Mrs. Ethel Clarke will buy a gift for the two girls which will be presented at a later date.

The Christmas party will be held at Gilead Hall on the evening of the 10.

The winter euchres will start at the township hall on the 3rd Tuesday in January.

Again this Christmas the sick and shut-ins will be remembered by cards.

The program for this meeting began with Mrs. Mae Turner speaking on the motto "If you want to get thinner, diminish your dinner".

Mrs. D. Lazier gave a reading entitled "The Hand that Rocks the Cradle Rules the World" and Mrs. L. McLaren spoke on "That Diet Sheet".

Mrs. Parrott played several instrumental numbers following which she showed slides of her latest trip to Hawaii.

The lunch committee served refreshments and thanks were extended to all who had participated in the program.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

"AT HOME"

As at home will be held for friends, relatives and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Everett McCaughen, Foxboro on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday, Dec. 13 at the Orange Hall in Canifton at 7 p.m.

At IODE Meet

Letter Read on Life in Labrador

MARMORA — Members of Marmora Chapter, I.O.D.E. met recently for their November meeting at the home of the Regent, Mrs. William Regan. The members voted to make a donation to the Legion for Christmas cheer baskets, and tickets were distributed for a draw on a basket of groceries to raise money for this purpose.

The educational secretary, Mrs. Gordon Bennett, reported that the Christmas parcel for our adopted school at Davis Inlet, Labrador had been sent. It was interesting to the members to hear a letter written to Mrs. Bennett from Mr. Fred Bruemmer, Montreal, who had written an article for Weekend Magazine about his visit to Davis Inlet and Father Peters. Mr. Bruemmer stated that: "Davis Inlet is a lovely place, inhabited by very charming and delightfully independent minded people.

Until recently the Naskapi Indians lived in tents the year round; now the Newfoundland Government has built homes for them, but most families still spend many winter months trekking through the interior of Labrador in search of caribou." Mr. Bruemmer further stated that, "Father Peters, the only white man, to my knowledge, to have a perfect command of this Indian language, impressed me very much.

He is a settlement's priest, his doctor, its handy man-at-chief, and the Indians' counsellor in their dealing with the outside world. The people are poor, their belongings few, and the possibilities of earning money from trapping or fishing are fairly minimal. Still, they are a proud and independent people."

A bake sale will be held on Friday, December 12 in Gordon Bennett's Insurance Office, and some articles for Christmas decorating will also be on sale.

Mrs. M. H. Borland, secretary of services, read excerpts taken from a letter from the Administrator of the Save the Children Fund (SCF) in Mesasad, Algeria. "On the 28th July, our team had the pleasure and thrill of opening 18 cases of clothing so generously donated and sent by your members. No matter how hot it has been during the day or how busy our medical staff, it seems impossible to stop them from opening the IODE clothing almost the moment it arrives. "We are giving a small parcel to each mother, with her baby, attending our Infant Welfare Clinic, and we have a small voluntary staff of local Boy Scouts making up parcels all day long. "If you could so some little mite arrive at the clinic — filthy, dirty, uncared for and undernourished and within a week bathed daily by its mother (to whom such an idea is amazing) well clad — just like any little Canadian baby, and attending our daily feeding sessions, then all the efforts of your members would seem really worthwhile."

Lovely knitted articles and a sample layette which the Chapter makes up and forwards to provincial head quarters for distribution, were shown to the members.

Following adjournment of the business meeting, the members enjoyed seeing a display of crocheted and knitted articles and dressed dolls, by the women at the home in Deloro operated by Mr. and Mrs. Kemp.

The December meeting will be a Christmas pot luck dinner at the home of Mrs. Gordon Bennett on Thursday, December 11. Members will take wrapped gifts of food, cookies and candy to be distributed at Christmas.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Richard Kotulski.

Rockingham Generic Term For Earthenware, and China

Picture Credit: Dundurn Castle Restoration.

Rockingham is a generic term for earthenware finished in a brown or mottled brown glaze. It is also the name of a fine quality china.

Rockingham became the accepted term for the rich brown manganese glaze used to produce brown and mottled brown 19th century pottery. The name was used by all potters. It was used in Bennington, Vermont as Rockingham glaze in this country is often called Bennington.

The cup illustrated is decorated with a heavy border of brown and some touches of pink and green. It is attributed to the Rockingham works at Swinton, Yorkshire although it is not marked. The attribution comes from the style, not the color, for the cup and saucer is china, not pottery.

Rockingham glaze and Rockingham china have only the name in common. The Earl Fitzwilliam, Marquis of Rockingham, was a patron and financial supporter of the pottery. The works started long before his time (1745) to make general pottery under the direction of Edward Butler. In 1765 he was joined by John Brameld and during that time the Brameld name stuck and may appear on pottery after 1765.

From 1806 to 1842 the firm was known as Brameld and Co. It is thought that the glaze developed here in 1826 the firm was making china marked with a winged beast (a griffon), with the legend, Rockingham Works, Brameld.

In 1830 a word, "Royal" was added and until 1837 the firm was permitted to mark, "Manufactures to the King". This permission expired when William IV died in 1837 but it is thought the firm continued to make some use of the mark until operations ceased in 1842.

Like the generic term for the glaze, much china is lumped together as Rockingham. The firm did put out representative china of the early Victorian era in the revived French asymmetrical styles known as rococco. These were characterized by relief decorations, off-centre designs, and low curving shapes, particularly in the teacups, but the teacup illustrated has none of these characteristics. Most dealers would call it Rockingham anyway.

Rockingham porcelain was advertised for sale in Canada in the early 1830's. Its value has been increased by the popularity of, and research into, Rockingham pottery glazes of the last century.

Use for Leftover Bananas

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: Do you ever have one or two bananas left that no one wants, and you are just too busy to bake with it; and you know it won't keep another day? Believe it or not. Mash it, put it in a small plastic bag and pop it into the freezer. Two weeks later except for being a little dark on top it was great for baking Banana Bread.

I enjoy your column very much. God Bless You. — J.S.

ANSWER: Thank you for this thrifty practical tip.

POEM

Dear Mrs. Moore:
I tried your recipe today
I measured it with care
I baked as you directed —
It was all written there.

It looked just like your model
And tasted good, 'tis true,
But it lacked a little something —
The magic touch of you.
— A.L.B.

ANSWER: Compliments are sure flying. Let the magician know any time she may help.

QUESTION: With an abundance of very tasty carrots from the garden this fall, I've been thinking of making Christmas Puddings to send in place of the usual box of chocolates, etc. I'm wondering if these could be made in advance if sealed with paraffin wax. I had thought of using the pound coffee tins with tight fitting plastic lids — would it be better to foil line first? Have you a recipe for Carrot Pudding that does not use suet? — Mrs. L.P.

ANSWER: Currants and raisins have a way of eating through aluminum and other metals if puddings are stored in them. They will "pit" it and also aluminum foil. So do not make your puddings for Christmas gifts too far in advance. If you use coffee tins line them with double parchment paper.

STEAMED CARROT PUDDING

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

French Artichokes Vinaigrette (see Friday); Oven-Fried Chicken; Tomato and Eggplant Casserole; Kernel Corn; Applesauce; Christmas Braid (see Wednesday); Tea.

One cup each grated carrot, grated potato; 1¼ cups bread crumbs; 1 cup each raisins, currants; 1 cup brown sugar; ½ cup margarine or ¾ cup suet, finely chopped; 2 tbsps. sour milk; ½ tsp. baking soda; ½ cup flour; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tsp. cinnamon; ¼ tsp. nutmeg; ¼ tsp. allspice.

Mix ingredients in order given. Pour into well greased moulds. Cover and steam individual moulds 1¼ hrs.; large mould, 3 hrs.

I will be giving you'r a recipe for richer steamed pudding next week I think.

BRASS RUBBINGS

"Most monumental brasses are found on the floors of churches and cathedrals." — Steve Scadding.

* * *

The mailman had just brought the November issue of The Readers Digest which features "brass rubbings" on its cover, when a friend called on the phone to say her neighbor has some beautiful brass rubbings, right here in Belleville.

Our caller was Mrs. K. Denton Taylor, her neighbor is Mrs. Donald Hill, who live at 180 and 184 McDonald Avenue, respectively.

"Yes, you are right, Mrs. Hill kindly explains, "when our daughter Susan and Steve married two years ago, they went to Cambridge, England, where Steve studied theology for a year." (We might add here, at the end of that year, the Scaddings returned to Toronto where Steven is now working for his Ph.D., in Biology at the University of Toronto, where he lectures.)

"That I was," continued Mrs. Hill, "both Susan and Steve became interested in the monumental brasses found in the cathedrals around, in and about Cambridge, and began making brass rubbings."

"Just what is meant by monumental brasses?"

"Steve explains they were made to honor the departed, and found throughout Northern Europe and England, and date from the mid - 13th through mid - 17th centuries. They are heavy, engraved brass plates varying in size from one to seven feet in height, set flush on a stone slab. Most are found on the floors of churches and cathedrals."

"But why are they considered important?"

"They are a valuable source of information concerning style of dress, be it of armor, priestly, academic or civilian dress of the period in which the brasses were laid. The brass figure represents the person in his or her occupational dress during life.

"How are they identified?"

"There is an inscription place of border usually, which gives the name and position of the person whom it commemorates as well as some admonition, such as 'pray for the soul of . . .' and because of the permanence of brass engravings, hundreds are extant today, most still in their original mounting.

"Many thousands, Steve says, were manufactured, but most did not survive the reformation (where brasses were destroyed because of their 'popish' inscriptions), the civil war; of the carelessness and havoc of later times."

"When did brasses first become recognized as being of value?"

"It was not until the mid-19th century that the value of brasses as historic records and as pieces of art, was recognized. Also, I understand, there was even a short revival of brass engraving in England, at this time, but the art had irrevocably declined."

"It must be difficult to make a brass rubbing. How is it done?"

"Steve described it simply as a positive image of the brass. A large sheet of paper is laid over the brass, fastened securely. Then the image of brass plate is rubbed up with a suitable wax stick much the same way the image of a coin can be rubbed up when placed under a piece of paper. The rubbings are valued for both their historic and decorative value. A variety of effects can be obtained by varying type and color of paper and wax."

To learn that the Scadding brass rubbings had stimulated much interest in Toronto is of special interest and pride in Belleville, that one of its former members has contributed toward so splendid an effort and achievement. An exhibition is being held at the Forest Hills Learning Researches Centre, 656 Eglington Avenue, West (near Spadina Road), from Tuesday Dec. 16 to Friday, Jan. 2

No Difference

REGINA (CP) — It is no more economical to pack a grocery brief full of clothing than to do a series of smaller, more loosely packed dryings, says a Saskatchewan Power Corp. home economist. "It takes the same amount of heat and power to evaporate a given amount of water whether you try to do it all at once or whether you do it in separate stages," said Lillian McConnell.

Ann Landers

Instruction on Care Of Pets Suggested

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My turtle died. We didn't know until it was too late that he was only a baby and should have been kept warm.

ANN LANDERS

Three days ago Ringo seemed to be hibernating. Mom called the pet shop and asked why Ringo was so anti-social all of a sudden. The lady said, "He is probably cold. Put a heating pad on him. After all, he is only a baby." By then it was too late. Ringo was already too sick. Probably pneumonia. He died the next day.

I think it is a crime to sell a pet and not give the owners instructions on how to take care of him. The man in the pet shop should have told us when we bought Ringo that he was only a baby.

I know you won't print this letter because it would sound stupid, but I'd like to express my grief to somebody and I think of you as my friend, Ann Landers. — FORMER TURTLE OWNER.

* * *

DEAR FORMER: I agree that pet shops should give full instructions to folks who buy animals — especially baby pets. Go back and tell the lady in the store your friend, Ann Landers, thinks it would be nice if she gave you another turtle.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem, to put it bluntly, is that I cannot get along with people. Before you toss this letter aside let me say I am a confused teenager. I am 41 and hold a very responsible position. I have no problems in my family life — only in my associations with others.

Something always seems to create a negative response. When I meet people for the first time they lose interest quickly. I've tried to make friends of my fellow-employees. I've failed. I eat lunch in the office cafeteria every day. Everyone seems to be with someone. I am always alone. Two years ago I joined a bowling league, hoping it would help. After a few weeks I felt as if I didn't fit in, so I quit.

I tried a chess club. The same thing happened. I realize I have a tremendous inferiority complex, but I've been rebuffed so many times I'm afraid to try any more. I'm suspicious of groups and reluctant to speak. After a while, I have an overwhelming desire to go off alone. At the same time I want desperately to stay. Does this sound insane? Is there any problem? Am I crazy? Is there any hope for me? If not, thank you for listening. — THE LONER.

DEAR FRIEND: David Reisman's book, "The Lonely Crowd" is full of people like you. You are not alone. Your name is among them.

Your problem is a lack of inner security. You think so poorly of yourself that you can't imagine anyone wanting to be your friend. You build walls instead of bridges — and those walls are constructed to keep people, at a distance so they cannot see your loneliness. The conflict of wanting closeness and fearing it can make a person sick.

I urge you to get counselling. You need to get to know yourself. When you discover that you are worthy of friendship you will then be able to extend your hand to others — and they will reach out and accept what you have to offer.

Successful Living

Count of Nutritious Calories Necessary for the Overweight

By DORIS CLARK

We live in a land of abundance. We are overweight and eating too much . . . yet hungry . . . always hungry! What the body really craves are not merely "calories" but all of merely "calories" but all of its and vitamins that made our great-grandmother, Cashmar strong, and enabled him to till his fields all day and make his boots at night.

We need fewer breakfasts consisting of black coffee and more consisting of fruit, eggs and 100 per cent whole wheat toast. Fewer luncheons of stopped together sandwiches and pop and more cottage cheese topping a luscious fruit salad.

Fewer dinners of hot dogs, French fries and pie and ice cream and more dinners of crisp-tossed green salad, two green vegetables, a protein dish, baked potato in its jacket and light fruit dessert.

Let's count nutritious calories to help us lose weight and make us feel and look better. — Lucille Young, in Canadian Calorie Counter's News Leaf.

* * *

Dear Doris: Recently I was asked by the Welfare if I would take care of a two-month-old baby whose mother had attempted suicide, for a six-month period. We took the baby.

I was stunned three weeks later when the mother called us say she would be flying up the following day to take the baby home. I checked with the Welfare and they said they had no hold over the baby. Apparently the mother kept only one appointment with the psychiatrist.

How does the Welfare justify taking the baby out of a good home when an unstable mother has neither home nor job to offer her? — Disillusioned.

Dear Disillusioned: If a child is in non-ward care, which implies some temporary difficulty, the mother can ask for the return of the child. You see this baby was voluntarily placed by the mother.

The hardest cases to deal with are those affecting parents who temporarily become mentally disturbed. The return of the baby may well restore health and self-image; and they may be quite capable.

Yet I can understand your anxiety. There are many areas where potential neglect may exist, in spite of our Canadian child welfare laws.

You show insight and concern for children. We need people like you to become vocal in foster parent associations, local councils of women, and other bodies that can influence our lawmakers. You have gone to the trouble to write to me. Try getting involved where you are.

Confidential to Over the Hill: Just about everybody who is working either for himself or someone else, has been contributing to the Canada Pension Plan.

If you retire next year and have reached age 65, you will be eligible for a retirement pension. If, on the other hand, you have decided to keep on working, you won't be able to receive what is coming to you until you are 70. At that point, you are eligible for the CPP Retirement Pension whether you have retired or not.

Another interesting point is that under this program, the benefits increase each year as the cost of living increases — which is more than you can say for some kinds of income security.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Nancy, you don't eat enough to stay well. I know you don't want to gain weight, but you really need more food. I'll fix you some toast and milk."

Nancy: "Oh Mother, that's too fattening."

Nancy: "My mother insisted that I talk to our family doctor about a low-calorie diet that would be well balanced. He said I would lose my sparkle and pep if my diet is deficient and he gave me a good one to follow."

A doctor may do better than a parent in convincing a teen-age daughter that there are more weight-producing calories in snacks than there are in three well-balanced meals a day.

Failure of Public to Demand Budget Cuts Astounds White

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Revenue Minister John White says he is astonished there has been no public outcry to cut government expenditures at all levels.

"I can't understand it quite frankly," he told a seminar at the Progressive Conservative Association annual meeting Friday.

In the present fiscal year the provincial budget increase has been seven per cent, the federal nine per cent and the increase in his hometown of London, Ont., 22 per cent. Yet in the London municipal election this week, not a single candidate of 78 made budget cuts a major platform.

And during consideration of provincial education estimates in committee at the legislature, no member of the opposition asked for cuts, he said.

Education Minister William Davis estimated after the committee sessions that if all the expanded services suggested by the opposition were implemented, they would cost the province $1,300,000,000.

Mr. White, who is responsible for collecting revenue for the province, said he would like to see a two or three-year trial period in which governments at all levels curtailed expenses rather than increasing taxes.

"But, I don't see any wide-spread feeling along these line. Why isn't this point of view represented by the Opposition whose duty it is to keep us on the straight and narrow?"

The seminar attracted about 40 persons, many of whom said they felt they would be among the "new poor" if many of the proposals of the federal white paper on taxation were implemented.

James Meakes, publisher of the Sudbury Star and a panelist, said: "Most of us here today will fall in that new bracket."

He asked what countervailing forces would be introduced to keep incentives up for the group which Mr. White has said will likely be the most heavily taxed in the future—those on incomes from $6,000 to $10,000.

Prof. Paul Fox, a political scientist at the University of Toronto and the other panelist, said if the tax burden falls too hard on this group, it will discourage enterprise.

The main reason for taxing the middle income groups, said Mr. White, is because "there aren't enough rich."

Robert Valentine of Hamilton said a capital gains tax would be self-defeating because it would discourage domestic investment so that more foreign income would have to be imported.

Mr. Meakes said workers at International Nickel Co. asked for and received more than their American counterparts after their recent strike at Sudbury. But middle management had not even achieved wage parity and he predicted a vast talent drain to the United States.

Both Prof. Fox and Mr. White disagreed, saying that Americans are moving to Canada to avoid social problems in the U.S.

Mr. White said: "My guess is that in 10 years we'll be overwhelmed with American immigration."

He told the delegates not to assume that the province is faced with insurmountable problems. He said the average income per family in London, Ont., is less than $7,000 now but in 30 or 40 years it will be $25,000.

"We're going to be rich beyond our comprehension," he said.

Medicare Plan Draws Fire

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government is trying to sell its new medical care plan to the people, but "first we have to get the administrative kinks ironed out," Health Minister Thomas Wells said Friday.

He defended the new Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan at the annual convention of the Ontario Conservation Association, but ran into heavy criticism from 40 delegates at a seminar.

"After all our purpose is to get back into power in the next election," said one delegate. "And I just can't sell it to the rural people. It isn't attractive, and they say it's costing them more money than the plans they had before."

Mr. Wells denied there was an increase, saying OHSIP's family premium is $14.75, less than the family premium of $19 under the old Physicians' Services Inc. plan. He agreed, however, that "some insurance companies" might have had lower rates.

Several delegates then complained about doctors' extra billing for the 10 per cent of their fees OHSIP does not pay.

Mr. Wells said he had originally hoped doctors would take advantage of the savings to send all their bills to one agency and forego the rest of their fee.

"But now it's come to light doctors aren't willing to do this. We're going to be looking at that, too."

THE BETTER HALF by Bob Barnes

"We barked at a policeman, chased a cat down the street, and had a chat with a redhead in the park."

Pet Lover 'Rather Die'

TORONTO (CP) — A seminar on the provincial government's agricultural program was interrupted Friday at the Ontario Conservative Association convention by a member of the Toronto Humane Society.

Nell Baines rose while Agriculture Minister William Stewart was talking and read a statement denouncing the government's proposed animals for Research Act.

"I can't for the life of me see why you people have to stick your nose in it," she read.

"I would rather die than think that my pets would have to die this way after having been raised with love and care," she added, referring to provisions of the proposed bill requiring operators of municipal pounds to make unclaimed animals available for research centres.

Mr. Stewart defended the bill saying "my dog is a Dalmation and I wouldn't want it to end up in research."

"I want to be as sure as anybody does that no animal is ever abused."

Ontario Faces Political Turmoil

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is entering "years of political fighting and even turmoil in a degree which we in this province have not experienced for decades," Bert Lawrence, minister without portfolio, said Friday.

Mr. Lawrence told a panel at the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association convention that the 70s will be a "rough and tempestuous" time for all three political parties in the province.

Fortunately for the government, the Ontario minister could see no reason to expect that the Liberal or NDP parties would fare any better in the storm than the Conservatives.

Mr. Lawrence's "realistic optimism" came close to being the lone hopeful note during day-long meetings that were marked by predictions from delegates that the government might lose the next provincial election.

Davis Studying Prefab Schools

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Friday his department is studying the possibility of using prefabricated components or modular ones, such as used at Expo 67's Habitat, in the construction of schools.

He told a cabinet meeting at the annual Ontario Progressive Conservative Association convention the study is aimed to see if building costs can be lowered by eight to 10 per cent.

He blamed labor costs and higher school enrolment for increased costs and said "good designing doesn't mean higher costs."

Later, Mr. Davis told a seminar that unless educationists find means of getting best value for the dollar, the education revolution may turn into the taxpayer revolution.

He said education costs are approaching their peak and may have reached it.

During a question period, Mr. Davis defended the creation last January of county school boards — a move that sharply increased taxes in some areas.

"The idea wasn't to reduce costs but to provide equality of educational opportunity" so that rural students could compete on an equal footing with those in the cities.

PCs Have Developed 'Red Tape Image'

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said Friday he gets the feeling far too often that many people view their government as a conglomeration of officers and red tape centred at Queen's Park.

He said the government must establish a program to help alleviate feelings of powerlessness and helplessness among Ontario's citizens.

He suggested specific areas with which the government must concern itself.

—The need for developing and articulating a strong and meaningful philosophy and establish a set of objectives and goals;

—The need to encourage greater communication and dialogue between the government and the people;

—To establish a more efficient system of collecting information to satisfy the information needs of individual citizens.

Montreal Goes Without Services of Laperriere

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens, in a tight race for the National Hockey League's East Division lead, will have to do without defenceman Jacques Laperriere for a while.

The Rouyn, Que., native received a three-game suspension Friday night from league president Clarence Campbell for shoving referee Bill Friday and linesman Pat Shetler in a game here last Saturday night.

Laperriere, 28, will miss tonight's contest against Minnesota North Stars, Sunday's game in New York with the Rangers —East Division leaders—and next Wednesday's contest here with Toronto Maple Leafs.

A win over the North Stars would give Montreal 34 points, the same as New York, making Sunday's game a first-place battle.

Laperriere, acclaimed by coach Claude Ruel and his team-mates as the backbone of the club's defence, joins left winger John Ferguson on the suspended list. Ferguson was suspended for six games by Campbell Nov. 27 for striking Gary Sabourin of the Blues with his stick during a Nov. 15 game at St. Louis.

Earlier this season, as part of the league's get-tough policy, Campbell suspended centre Mike Walton of Toronto Maple Leafs and goaltender Gary Smith of Oakland Seals for three games each for shoving an official.

For the same offence in two separate exhibition games, he hit Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins and Barclay Plager of St. Louis with $250 fines.

He also suspended Ted Green of Boston and Wayne Maki, then with St. Louis and now with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, for a stick-swinging duel in Ottawa Sept. 21 that almost cost Green his life.

Green received a fractured skull in the incident and is still recovering. Green and Maki were given match penalties, carrying automatic $300 fines.

The Boston defenceman was suspended without salary for the first 13 regular-season or playoff games he is able to appear in, while Maki has already served one month's suspension without pay.

Laperriere, who won the Calder Trophy as the NHL's top rookie in 1964 and the Norris Trophy as the league's top defenceman in 1965, picked up a minor penalty, a misconduct and a game misconduct last Saturday night at 17:31 of the third period in a game against Boston.

The misconduct and game misconduct penalties carry automatic fines of $25 and $50 respectively. In addition, Campbell ruled that Laperriere's salary for the three games he is suspended must be withheld by the Montreal club and submitted to the league.

While Laperriere was serving his time, Derek Sanderson scored a powerplay goal that gave Boston a 2-2 tie.

Referee Bill Friday called the minor on Laperriere for high-sticking Boston's Jim Lorentz. He got the misconduct for chasing the referee and protesting the call too vigorously. The game incident came as the result of a "cross-checking" shove he dealt the referee.

Linesman Pat Shetler received the same treatment when he attempted to intervene on behalf of the senior official. Finally, Montreal captain Jean Beliveau put a stop to Laperriere's actions by wrapping his arms around him.

The Canadiens likely will use Paul Curtis from Montreal Voyageurs of the American Hockey League in Laperriere's place. J. C. Tremblay, sidelined with a wrist injury since Oct. 22, returned to action in Chicago Thursday night, but worked only on two powerplay shifts.

That leaves veterans Terry Harper and Ted Harris, Serge Savard and Tremblay to carry the load in Laperriere's absence.

Kitchener Changes From Pushovers to Troublemen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Rangers only managed nine wins in 31 games last season and were considered pushovers by their nine Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series rivals.

The situation has changed so far this season and the improved Rangers are causing trouble.

Friday, the Rangers tripped fourth-place St. Catharines Black Hawks 3-2, exactly one week after checking first-place Toronto Marlboros with a 3-3 tie.

In other games Friday, Niagara Falls Flyers upset Toronto 3-2, helping Peterborough Petes fatten their first-place grip to five points. The Petes defeated Ottawa 67s 5-3 in Ottawa.

Rookie Tom Cassidy drove a shot behind St. Catharines' netminder George Hulme for Kitchener's winning goal at 17:49 of the final period.

The win was the 10th for Rangers and moved them four points back of the Black Hawks.

Bill Barber, who also collected two assists, and Gerry O'Flaherty also scored for the winners. Duane Wylie and Dennis Giannini provided St. Catharines with a 2-1 first period lead.

The Black Hawks removed Hulme in favor of an extra forward in the final minute and came close to tying the score. Cam Newton blocked Marcel Dionne twice in the final 11 seconds and Giannini missed a goalmouth tip in.

At Ottawa, Craig Ramsey led the first place Petes with two goals and Rick McLeish, the league-leading scorer, posted his 22nd goal of the season. Phil Brady and Jerry Andreatta also scored for the winners.

Murray Wilson, Connie Forey and Brian McSheffrey all scored once for Ottawa.

Kelly's Prediction May Become Fact

By CHUCK SYDOBA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Red Kelly insisted when he took over as coach of Pittsburgh Penguins this season that he would see the club in the Stanley Cup playoffs next spring.

For the first time since joining the league along with five other West Division clubs in the 1967-68 season, the Penguins appear to be on their way to at least one of the four top spots.

Those who looked at the Penguins' record of fifth-place finishes in the last two seasons may have doubted Kelly's prediction, but his work with the club in the first quarter of the season is gathering believers.

Going into tonight's game against the Maple Leafs in Toronto, the Penguins were tied with Minnesota North Stars, seven points behind West Division leading St. Louis Blues.

A 3-0 victory over the Leafs in their only previous meeting this season is part of the Penguins' record of seven wins, 10 losses and five ties.

Oakland Seals, who face the Kings in Los Angeles tonight, gained a 2-2 tie with Philadelphia Flyers in the only scheduled game Friday night.

Other games tonight see Minnesota North Stars against the Canadiens in Montreal, Chicago Black Hawks visiting Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings at St. Louis.

The Maple Leafs return the Penguins' visit Sunday while Montreal is at New York, Minnesota at Boston, Detroit at Chicago and St. Louis at Philadelphia.

A large part of the Penguins' rise this season has been the winning record of coach Kelly and a few key player changes.

Kelly, chosen an all-star six times in his 20 NHL seasons as a player, took Los Angeles Kings into the West Division quarter-finals in 1967-68 and the semi-finals last season.

The player changes involved the drafting of forwards Dean Prentice and Glen Sather, defenceman Bob Blackburn and goalie Al Smith last spring. The Penguins also made deals for forwards Nick Harbaruk, Brian Heyland and Ron Schock and defenceman Mike McMahon.

Montreal Powerhouse With Victory Over Buffalo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

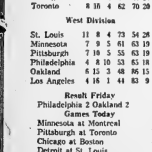
The two powerhouses in the American Hockey League cashed Friday night with the fledgling Montreal - Voyageurs emerging with a convincing victory.

The Voyageurs scored five times and even assisted their opponents in gaining a goal for a 5-1 win over Buffalo Bisons. The win kept Montreal in a four-point lead in the Eastern Division while the Bisons still hold a 19-point lead in the Western standings.

Springfield Kings, second in the Eastern Division, kept pace with Montreal on a 3-1 victory over Quebec Aces Friday while Providence Reds whipped Rochester Americans 9-3.

Alain Caron scored twice in spark the Voyageurs' drive before 4,328 fans in Montreal. Guy Lapointe, Guy Charron and Bart Crashley scored single Montreal goals.

Voyageurs' player-coach Al McNeil provided the visitors' goal when he accidentally kicked the puck into the Montreal net. The goal was credited to Bill Knibbs of the Bisons.



Bill Flett scored Springfield's first goal before 4,362 home fans and assisted on the second of Doug Robinson's two goals.

Battle for Second Spot In Senior A Tightens

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The race for second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series tightened Friday when Barrie Flyers dumped Galt Hornets, the defending national senior champions, 6-2.

Orillia Terriers widened their lead on the runner-up Hornets by belting Oakville Buks 6-1 in the only other Friday game, at Woodstock, the A's sank deeper in the cellar of the eight-team loop, losing 6-3 to Owen Sound Crescents.

A scheduled game at Belleville between Kingston Aces and the Mo Hawks was postponed to Dec. 9.

Barrie's win, combined with Oakville's loss, gave the Flyers third place, two points behind Galt.

John MacMillan and Pete Panagabko paced Barrie with two goals each. Jon Weeks and Mike Dobson also scored for the winners. Vance Millar and Ross Smith replied for the Hornets.

At Orillia, two goals by Clare Alexander helped trip the Oaks. Peter Spicer, Moe Galand, Carl Bowers and Al Osborne all scored once for the first place Terriers. Bill Sweeney, a veteran of 10 American Hockey League seasons, mostly with the old Springfield Indians, scored the only Oakville goal.

Owen Sound picked up its third win of the year to shift five points up on the A's in seventh place.

Keith Smeltzer with two goals and Dave McComb, Mayo Paquette, Joe Hambley and Bill Abbott scored for the Crescents. Bob Ruthig scored twice and Mac Stewart once for the A's who have only one win from 13 starts.

Canada's Fortunes in Moscow Take Upswing with Win

MOSCOW (CP-Reuters) — Canadian fortunes in the Moscow invitational hockey tournament took an upswing Friday as the Nationals trounced Finland 10-1 and East Germany upset contending Sweden 5-3.

After five days of the six-team, round robin competition, the host Soviet Union remains the only unbeaten team with two wins and a tie — a 2-2 deadlock with Canada Thursday. Canada has a 2-1-1 record, Sweden and Czechoslovakia each has two victories and one defeat, East Germany is 2-3 and Finland is winless in three games.

Russia was to play Czechoslovakia in the only game scheduled today.

In their romp, the Canadians got two goal performances from Ken Stephanson, Steve King and George Watson, while Corby Adams, Billy Harris, Chuck Lefley and Brian Conacher scored one goal each.

Canada, whose only loss was a 4-0 whitewashing by Czechoslovakia, took a 1-0 lead over Finland at the 12-minute mark of the closely-played first period, scoring while Lindstrom was serving a penalty.

But the Nationals found the scoring range in the second period to go out in front 3-0 and added five more goals to Finland's one in the third.

Canadian coach Jackie Mc-Leod said he was pleasantly surprised by his club's scoring spree Friday. He said his players felt more at ease than during the game with Russia, which he said was the toughest for the Canadians so far in the tournament.

Feeney Appointed as National League President

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The major baseball leagues' annual winter meetings, highlighted by Charles (Chub) Feeney's election as National League president and kept alive by 11 player trades, ended a two-long run today with little prospect of matching last year's bombshell finish.

On the final day of the 1968 meetings in San Francisco, the club owners abruptly dismissed Gen. William D. Eckert as commissioner. The stunning development set the stage for Bowie Kuhn's elevation to power and opened the door for baseball's young turks to mount a revolutionary" drive to reshape the structure of the game.

No such fireworks were expected today, but some sparks were expected to fly as the widely-differing club chieftains heard a report from the planning committee set up when Eckert was fired to explore the proposed restructure.

Kuhn, the former National League legal counsel who succeeded Eckert as commissioner pro-tem, since has gained the admiration of most of his colleagues and been rewarded with a seven-year contract. But the reorganization scheme, to include concentration of power in the commissioner's office at the expense of longtime league sovereignty, appears headed for a long stay on the drawing board.

Before Kuhn's selection as a compromise candidate, Feeney, a staunch advocate of retaining the separate identities of the two leagues, barely missed landing the top job in a power struggle drawn mainly along league lines.

The San Francisco Giants' choice of the NL owners to succeed Warren Giles, who has retired after 18 years as league president, intends to move the league office from Cincinnati to San Francisco, where he makes his home. One of the prerequisites for restructuring is the location of both league offices and the commissioner's office under the same roof.

Moreover, Feeney is a member of the planning committee, and any negative response he might make to proposals for change likely would have the solid backing of NL owners.

While the brass pearled for its last clash, the American League approved, with stipulations, the sale of Seattle Pilots to a 13-man group headed by Fred Danz and the wheeler-dealers Friday came up with three more trades and two straight sales of players.

New York Yankees, dealing for the second time in as many days, sent southpaw pitcher Al Downing and catcher-outfielder Frank Fernandez to Oakland Athletics, for first baseman-outfielder Danny Cater.

San Francisco swapped catcher Bob Barton, infielder Bob Etheridge and pitcher Ron Herbel to San Diego Padres for relief pitcher Frank Reberger. And in a five-man deal, biggest to date at the meetings in number of players involved, Washington Senators traded pitchers Barry Moore and Dennis Higgins to Cleveland Indians for second baseman Dave Nelson and pitchers Horacio Pina and Ron Law.

St. Louis Cardinals sold pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant to Oakland and purchased pitcher Bill Dillman from Baltimore Orioles.

The Seattle sale, not yet complete, was approved on the carried condition that the new owners bring antiquated Sicks Stadium up to AL standards and expedite the construction of a new, domed park, to be ready for play in 1973. The owners have been given a February deadline to meet financial obligations of the transfer.

The owners heard a report Friday on player negotiations from John Gaherin, their representative in the contract talks with the Major League Baseball Players Association.

Gaherin reported on 48 player demands submitted by the association, whose basic agreement expires Dec. 31. The players, asking for a shorter schedule, reforms in the reserve clause and higher minimum salaries, have threatened some form of action at the start of the season if the demands are not met.

Gaherin expressed confidence that a settlement can be reached, but the owners declined comment.

Los Angeles, Minnesota Clash Sunday in Big Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unbeaten Los Angeles and streaking Minnesota, two rough, tough clubs whose defensive lines like to meet at the quarterback, clash Sunday in the big preview of the Dec. 27 National Football League's Western Conference title game.

The Rams (11-0) and the Vikings, winners of 10 straight since their opening-day upset to New York Giants, will play before about 70,000 in the Los Angeles Coliseum which has been sold out for more than a month.

Both teams already have wrapped up divisional titles.

From the way both Viking coach Bud Grant and Rams boss George Allen are talking, Sunday's meeting sounds like the real thing—not just a preview.

"We'll play to win and play tough," says Allen.

"We anticipate a rugged contest," said Grant, who previously coached Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian Football League. "The Rams have the best record in the league . . . and they're certainly the best team we've played all year."

The Rams lead the NFL in quarterback dumps with 47 for 370 yards while the Vikings have 45 for 371. Minnesota has more trouble protecting quarterback Joe Kapp, who once played with British Columbia Lions, than the Rams in building a pocket for Roman Gabriel.

Minnesota's league-leading defense is first in pass interceptions with 25, but Gabriel has been intercepted only three times, low in the league.

Meanwhile, Dallas Cowboys, only divisional leaders who haven't sewed up a championship, should claim the Capitol crown easily Sunday against Pittsburgh Steelers, who have lost 10 straight since an opening triumph.

Second place Washington Redskins, who travel to Philadelphia, have an outside chance of overtaking the Cowboys—but one more Dallas victory, or a Redskin defeat, will send the Cowboys against Cleveland's Century Division champs for the Eastern Conference title Dec. 28.

In other games Sunday, Green Bay Packers meet Cleveland Browns, Detroit Lions play Baltimore Colts, St. Louis Cardinals are at New York Giants and Atlanta Falcons play host to New Orleans Saints.

San Francisco 49ers entertain Chicago Bears this afternoon.

Ottawa Scramble Into Tie for First Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Ottawa Gee-Gees rallied Friday night to scramble into a tie with Montreal Carabins for the lead in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association Eastern Division hockey circuit.

The Gee-Gees held a 41-33 shots on goal advantage in the game against the Carabins in Montreal but were trailing by one goal going into the third period. They rallied for three goals in the final session for a 5-3 victory.

In other games, University of Toronto Blues gained a 3-3 tie with University of Waterloo Warriors while University of Western Ontario Mustangs edged McMaster University Marauders 9-8.

Robert Aube scored twice for Ottawa with Bryan White, Bert Aube and Gilles Billette getting single goals.

Michel Guay, Pierre Paiement and Pierre Arsenault scored for the Carabins.

Warriors maintained their unbeaten record with the tie which came on a goal by Bob Reade midway through the third period. Jan McKegney and Dave Rodge scored in the first period with answering goals coming from Toronto's Bill Ruba and Paul Laurent. Dave Field gave the Blues the lead in the second period.

John Makins scored four goals in the Western attack at London, Ont. Bob Jeffery added two goals to the winning cause and Wayne Hexman, Steve Stefanko and Dick Oudekerk got one each.

Mill Chalapenko, Don Locke and Peter Popek scored twice each for McMaster with Gary Spoar and Ken Oficld got one each.

Lamonica, Dawson Look For Soft Spot in AFL Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Len Dawson's status was questionable, but Daryle Lamonica's was not as Kansas City Chiefs and Oakland Raiders headed into Sunday's action still looking for the key to the Western Division crown and the soft spot in the American Football League playoffs.

Dawson, who last week, reinjured the left knee that Jets him out of action earlier in the season, remained a questionmark as the Chiefs, in second place with a 10-2 record, prepared to take on Buffalo Bills at Kansas City. If Dawson can't go, Mike Livingston will.

Lamonica and his Raiders seek to maintain their hold on the top spot by adding to their 10-1 record at home against Cincinnati Bengals.

He has a personal target to shoot at—the pro record for touchdowns in a season. With 30, Lamonica has two games in which to tie or break the record of 36 touchdown passes held by team-mate George Blanda in the AFL and the retired Y. A. Tittle of New York Giants in the National League.

Both the Chiefs and the Raiders, who meet next Saturday in the regular season finale, have qualified for the post season playoffs, but are anxious to take the Western title—both for prestige and because 91, will put them in against the East's second-place team in the playoffs.

In the unique AFL playoff system tried for the first time this season, the first-place team in each division meets the second-place finisher in the other. The survivors moving on to the AFL championship game and a shot at a Super Bowl berth.

New York Jets, needing a tie or victory to clinch the East Crown, opened weekend action tonight at Houston, with the Oilers also needing a victory or a tie to nail second place and the last playoff spot over Boston Patriots and Buffalo Bills.

The Patriots, tied with the Bills at 4-8, are at San Diego Chargers in one of Sunday's two other games. The other has Denver Broncos at Miami Dolphins.

Lance Alworth has a chance to tie a pro record Sunday in the San Diego-Boston game.

Power Scores in Overtime To Give Sarnia Win Over Guelph

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dale Power scored with only two seconds remaining in sudden-death overtime to lead Sarnia Legionnaires to a 5-4 win over Guelph Beef Kings in a Western Ontario Junior Hockey League game Friday night. Power had signed with the Legionnaires earlier in the day following his Friday release from Port Hurm Flags of the International Hockey League.

Dale Dolmage was Sarnia's top scorer with two goals. Bill Bowker and Chris Gavaris each had single goals for the fourth-place Legionnaires.

Ken Kaye scored twice for the last-place Beef Kings while Brian Foley and Mike O'Doherty added single goals.

In another game, Fraser's goal after 55 seconds of sudden-death overtime gave St. Thomas Barons a 3-2 win over Brantford Foresters.

The loss snapped a three game winning streak for the Foresters and dropped them eight points behind the second place Barons.

Brantford led 1-0 after the first period on a goal by Murray Locke but Bob Fleming tied the score in the second period.

Gerelyn Bordelais regained the lead for Brantford at 10:02 of the third period and Marcel Cote forced overtime with a screen shot at 15:15.

Sudbury Holds Onto First

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudbury Wolves held onto first place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series with a 6-1 victory Friday night over North Bay Trappers.

The Wolves held a 1-0 lead after the first period and increased it to 3-0 by the end of the second.

John Heffern paced the Wolves with two goals and two assists. Single goals went to Al Hamill, Jerry Currie, Rick Spooner and Gary Holt.

Bob Thompson spoiled Claude Taillefer's bid for a shutout with the only North Bay goal.

In other games, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds trounced Chelmsford Canadians 13-3.

Greyhounds opening a 2-0 lead in the first period and ran it to 7-2 after the second period.

Bill Slewidge and Ed Bumbacco led the scoring for Greyhounds with a three goals each. Stan Brosso and John Campbell each scored twice while single goals came from Chuck Barbeau, Julio Francella and Bill Palmer.

Gary Chevrier scored twice for Chelmsford and Dave Carrisse got the other goals.

Look-out League Leaders Here Comes the Ellis Juniors

The Belleville Ellis Juniors have got more than one thing to be happy about after their Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey game at the Memorial Arena against the Trenton Golden Hawks last night.

Besides moving to within one point of fourth place Cobourg Cougars, Belleville beat Trenton for the first time in two years in a regular scheduled league game.

Ron Jury in just his second game as a Ellis Junior kicked out 22 Trenton shots to record the shutout. In the two games Jury has played for the locals he has only allowed two goals. When the siren sound ed to end the game the locals came off their bench like a hurricane and smothered Jury with congratulations.

"He should of had three or four goals," said Trenton coach Red Gravelle. "That kid in front nets robbed us blind."

The scoring was split up with two goals in each of the three periods. Teddy Watts and Brian Coughlin had two goals each for the Ellis Juniors. Other Belleville scorers were John McConnell and Terry Meagher.

After Colin Louden from Kingston, the leading scorer in the league, picked up five points earlier in the week, John McConnell is now four points behind in second place and Terry Meagher close in third one behind McConnell.

Thousands of screaming children all awaiting the big draw for the Shetland Pony seen the locals skate on the ice before the game got underway wearing their new sweaters. The Belleville club showed the merchants that sponsored them, that they made the right move.

"The score indicates how our team played," said Belleville coach Floyd Crawford. "Don't get me wrong, Trenton played a good game too."

Along with Jury's outstanding play, Red Mallory and Richard Lemieux displayed excellent ability killing penalties. John Hamblin and Kevin Dockrill "stood their ground" at the Belleville blue line giving Jury the required amount of protection.

For the second consecutive game the locals forwards were skating both ways, hustling back to check when Trenton were on the attack. Their forward was their second consecutive win.

There were 36 minutes in penalties handed out in the game with Belleville getting 15 minutes.

To top Belleville's annual "Pony Night", Coach Floyd Crawford's daughter, 14-year-old Susan Crawford a grade 11 Nicholson Catholic College student was the proud recipient of the Shetland Pony.

Other winners at last night's game were Paul O'Brien of R. R. 1, Belleville, Roy Tremble residing at 10 Spring St., Trenton, Andy Randell of 47 Montgomery, Belleville and Heather Bentley of 71 Boswell St., Belleville all receiving Switch 'n' Go race car sets.

Tony Maine of 34 Lambert St., Belleville and Vicki Dempsey of 182 Dufferin St., Belleville won hockey sticks.

Four free games of bowling were won by Brian Trent of 54 Trent St., Belleville, Wayne Hasden of 11 King George Square, Belleville and Susan Hedges of 75 Catherine St., Belleville.

Bicycles were won by John LaBarge of 369 Stock St., Belleville and Sack Hanley of R. R. 4, Belleville.

skate against third place Cobourg Cougars, game time 7.30 p.m.

The Moira students will have to have a good turn-out to surpass the number of Nicholson supporters during Nicholson night.

The students will have the opportunity to see fellow school mates defenceman Allan Jones, an 18-year-old Grade 13 student and goaltenders 18 year-old Grade 13 student Ron Jury and 18-year-old Grade 11 student Paul Hopkins.

These three boys are just a few examples of desire and ability on the local club.

Jury will go into tomorrow night's game with 80 consecutive minutes of shutout hockey, where the opposition has only had thirty-five shots on net.

Any Moira student in the possession of a Moira students card will be admitted into the game for 25 cents.

A win tomorrow would put the Ellis Junior club in fourth place in the six - team Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League.

Edmonton Has Four Rinks in Semi-Final

EDMONTON (CP) — Four qualified for the 16-rink, modified double-knockout Tina round.

Edmonton rinks reached the semi-finals of the B event to join four other Canadian open curlers in the Canadian open car bonspiel Friday night.

Bill McCallum, Wayne McElroy, Zane Kotyk and Doug ohnston managed narrow victories in late games. Merv Mann of Saskatoon, the defending champion, Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask., Vic Wintoniak of Edmonton and Doug Wankel of Elbow, Sask., all from the A event, are also in the championship hunt.

McCallum scored two points on the third end to eliminate Hersch Lerner of Winnipeg 10-9.

McElroy threw a perfect last rock takeout to edge Hec Gervais of Edmonton 8-7.

Kotyk's rink, skipped by Leroy Melenen, scored to an extra end before defeating three-time Canadian champion Mat Baldwin of Edmonton 11-10.

ohnston stole two points on the 11th end to beat Al Demage of Yellowknife, N.W.T., 8-5.

The quarter-final playoffs were to begin at 9 a.m. MST today and the semi-finals at 8 p.m. The final is at 2 p.m. Sunday.

In the women's event, 12 rinks

DA Seeks Murder Indictment Against Hypnotic Hippie Leader

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An indictment charging murder and conspiracy will be sought against the leader of a wandering band of occult-oriented hippie types, says a prosecutor in the slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

The grand jury action against Charles M. Manson—who, followers say, called himself "God," "Jesus" and "Satan"—will be asked on the basis of vicarious liability, said Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi.

In vicarious liability, he said, a person who joins in a conspiracy, is criminally responsible for any of his co-conspirators' crimes that further the object of the conspiracy.

Manson, 35, has not been charged in the murders. Susan Atkins, one of his followers, first linked his clan to the killings but said its chieftain was not there when the victims died, authorities reported.

Manson remains in jail in the mountain community of Independence on charges of possessing stolen cars.

The closed grand jury hearing into the killings of Miss Tate, blonde wife of film director Roman Polanski, and six others was continued until Monday with 16 more witnesses expected to testify. Six told their stories Friday.

Miss Atkins, 21, principal witness at Friday's hearing, described "all the details" of the stabbings and shootings, her lawyer said, and told the grand jury she was hypnotized by Manson. She has said she was at the murder scenes and that Manson ordered the victims slain.

"If the grand jury sees the evidence as we do, we'll have an indictment of murder against Manson," said Aaron Stovitz, another deputy district attorney prosecuting the case.

Stovitz said murder counts will be sought against at least five other persons, including Miss Atkins.

Prosecutors said the case probably will not go to trial for at least three months because of its complexity.

Miss Atkins is charged with murder of a Malibu musician.

Her lawyer, Richard Caballero, also a grand jury witness, said she repeated everything she had told him—describing how a band of black-clad Manson followers armed with guns and knives killed Miss Tate and four others Aug. 9, then killed a rich market owner and his wife the next night to prove they hadn't lost their nerve.

Five other witnesses entered the courtroom amid camera lights and shouted questions. All refused to comment to reporters.

Terry Melcher, 27, producer son of actress Doris Day, testified about Manson, a prosecutor said.

Followers said Manson played the guitar, composed songs and "sang like an angel," and that once he approached Melcher for a recording contract.

Melcher, then living in the mansion later rented by Miss Tate, refused Manson's request but is reported to have invited the clan leader to his house. After that, the friends said, Manson saw the house as a symbol of rejection.

On the death night, Aug. 9, the occupants were Miss Tate, 26; Abigail Folger, 26, a San Francisco coffee heiress; Jay Sebring, 35, a jet-set men's hairdresser, and Voityck Frykowsky, 37, a Polish playboy.

All were stabbed or shot. Steven Parent, 18, a friend of Miss Tate's caretaker, was killed outside the house.

The maid who found the bodies, Winifred Chapman, testified Friday.

Among those against whom authorities say they will seek indictments are:

—Charles D. Watson, 24, held in McKinney, Tex.

—Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, held in Mobile, Ala.

NATO Puts Conditions on European Talks

BRUSSELS (CP) — NATO has offered a prickly olive branch to the countries behind the Iron Curtain.

It gave a yes and no answer Friday night to the Warsaw pact nations' proposals for an European security conference and it surrounded the reply with conditions.

The alliance's response to the Communists was described as less positive than Canada would have wished but on the whole not unsatisfactory, since the Canadian delegation managed to slip in some of its ideas.

"We looked a little more forward than this formula," a Canadian spokesman said, "but we're satisfied that our views are reflected in it, though in some cases indirectly."

Canada had been inclined to take a more open-minded attitude toward the Warsaw pact's invitation to a conference, but got out-powered by nations such as the United States suspicious of Communist motives in calling for it.

The wording of a declaration issued after a two-day session of the NATO foreign ministers on the Warsaw pact proposals was described by a Canadian source as "perhaps a bit amorphous."

"We have preferred a more positive approach," he added.

However, it was largely at the instigation of Canada that the declaration contained even a mention of the Warsaw pact invitation. Many allies wanted just mention of preparations for negotiations without reference to the Iron Curtain initiative.

As the declaration was worded finally after hours of debate, it noted coolly that "preferences" had been made by Eastern European countries to the possibility of holding an early conference on European security.

There was agreement in NATO, the statement said, that there would have to be advance preparation and prospects of concrete results would be essential before such an East-West meeting should be staged.

Other conditions:

1. It should be made certain that any conference would not serve to ratify the present division of Europe.

2. There should be pre-conference bilateral and multilateral discussions on fundamental problems of European security, evidently including progress on the German question.

3. The United States and Canada must be full participants in any conference, a point on which the Warsaw pact countries remain hazy.

The general assumption after the sessions here was that a conference in the early part of 1970, as suggested by the Warsaw pact group, is out. There could be one in 1971.

Members of the alliance are insistent that there will have to be full laying of groundwork with some assurance of success before any conference is embarked on by them.

The view was that they want to see if East shows signs of co-operation in individual negotiations between nations on miscellaneous points before NATO takes the plunge.

As a Canadian spokesman put it: "We don't want a one-shot conference on the terms laid down by the Warsaw pact."

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

CUB AND SCOUT LADIES' AUXILIARY

A meeting of the Belleville and District Cub and Scout Ladies' Auxiliarids was held at Bridge St. United Church, Nov. 27.

Mr. Jae Rollins, president of district council—installed the new executive for 1969-70. They are: acting president, Mrs. Edyth Thomson, (11th Bridge St.) secretary, Mrs. Patricia Ross (19th Ensminger), treasurer, Mrs. Georgina Coxon (1st Cannifton-Corbyville), past president Mrs. Bette Fort (1st St. Thomas), committee chairmen: publications Mrs. A. O'Hara (6th Talcernacle), publicity Mrs. M. Miller (18th Parkdale), social, Mrs. M. Gilbert (2nd Christ Church) Contact, Grant (6th), communications, Mrs. R. Lloyd (19th), uniform exchange, Mrs. B. Collyer (19th), program, Mrs. B. Fort (1st Belleville), membership, Mrs. A. Wilson, (18th).

Mrs. Bette Fort discussed the meeting's theme: "What are we doing? and Where are we going?" She poinied out that there is a 'new' cub program, a 'new' scout program, a 'new' venturer's program, and new ideas in most programs involved with the scouting movement. She asked, "Are we going to carry on as we have or are we, as auxiliaries, going to get 'with it' also?"

After discussion in small groups, it was concluded that the most important goal should be to reach all the women and make each one aware of our function and our activities. Then the programs must be worthwhile, informative and interesting enough to hold their interest.

The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 19. It will be at Bridge St. United Church. Each woman present was asked to try to bring one guest to the next meeting.

Thank You

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who supported me and assure you that I will represent you and your interests to the best of my ability during the next 3 years.

HIGHER EDUCATION..... VIA A NEWSPAPER ROUTE

Why do educators frequently encourage youngsters to apply for a newspaper route? And why are more and more schools giving "credit" for newspaper route experience?

Because the attitude of a boy towards higher education frequently changes, when he is a paperboy. Instead newspaperboy, in business for himself, he begins to understand the value of book learning combined with practical experience.

He buys at wholesale—sells at retail—makes his own deliveries and collections—learns simple bookkeeping—and often develops into a surprisingly good salesman.

And the money he banks while a newspaperboy frequently makes it possible for him to attend the college of his choice.

If you think your son or some other youngster might profit from newspaperboy experience, have him come in and talk to us.

Employment News

By J. R. Staveley,
Manpower Counsellor

It is evident to counsellors at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre that the community's economic environment has changed from the patterns of past years.

Generally, as we entered the first week of December, the employment opportunities covered the temporary help required by various firms for the Christmas business. Publicity was also directed at maintaining a maximum level of construction, home renovations and other avenues of work to provide winter employment.

This year, locally, as we approach winter, there is, in addition to the previously mentioned temporary seasonal demand, the prospects of increased employment opportunities on a longer term.

Construction presently underway and planned for the record high. The labor requirements from construction should remain strong for the immediate months ahead. The ancillary effects of this trend will be felt in all related employers.

The two new plants which will be in operation by January 1970 will add to the diversity of our industrial complex. Of more importance to those persons seeking work is the fact that these new plants will provide increased opportunities for permanent work.

It is observed at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre that the growth of the community has increased the number of persons seeking the assistance of this office for suitable permanent work. Of interest to employers is the fact that there has been an increased number of inquiries made by former district residents, now employed elsewhere in Ontario, who would like to return to the Bay of Quinte area, if suitable permanent employment is available.

This economic growth and interest is evident in the southern portion of this Canada Manpower Centre's area.

In the northern part of our area, there has been active mining exploration taking place throughout the year. It is hoped that, in the not too distant future, mining operations will be resumed to provide additional permanent work for our northern clients.

The Belleville Canada Manpower Centre, located at 224 Church Street, Belleville, telephone 962-8881, invites anyone seeking labor information or related facts to contact the counsellors at their earliest convenience. Other Canada Manpower Centres in the Bay of Quinte district are located at Trenton, Napanee and Picton.

The Canada Manpower Centres are your Service and we invite you to use them.

L. and A. Association For Mentally Retarded Holds Annual Meeting

NAPANEE — Frits Julijan-son will serve his third term as president of the Lennox and Addington County Association for the Mentally Retarded. He was re-elected recently at the annual meeting held in the Adult Rehabilitation Industries building, formerly the Happy Day School.

Gordon Kimmett was elected 1st vice-president; Charles Brooks, 2nd vice-president, and Mrs. Gerald McCracken, 3rd vice-president. Mrs. Eugene Dowling was returned as treasurer. Recording secretary is Mrs. Clifford Pringle, and Mrs. Gerald Benn is corresponding secretary.

A chairman for each of the eight committees will be appointed by the executive, and each in turn will appoint his committee.

While each committee is important, the feeling of the meeting was that the committee for home care and that for recreation should be very active. Parents of each retarded child in the Lennox and Addington County area are invited to attend the A.R.C. industries, or workshop, should be visited at least once each year, and should be given full information regarding what is being done for their child, and what can be expected of the Association. At the same time, they should be urged to become active members. Many of the parents are not even members.

Feeling has been growing that the school children, especially the older ones, together with the employees in the workshop, should get together in some form of recreation, if only for occasional parties in the workshop. Sleigh rides were also suggested. The Association members will welcome suggestions.

Increased mobility was also stressed, and it was pointed out that many people still do not know that the school at Morven, and the workshop on the Slash Road are now entirely separate. Since January the school has been entirely under the authority of the County Board of Education. The workshop, on the other hand, is the responsibility of the Association, which estimates that it must raise at least $40,000 annually to keep it running. It receives a monthly grant of $20 for each trainee for transportation, but has no other grants.

When a pupil of the school reaches 18 he can no longer attend the school. He then becomes the responsibility of the Association as a trainee in the workshop.

Tweed

TWEED — Several of the pupils of Carcenden Central School, at Plevna, were successful in the contest held by the Education Arts of Industry. The school was awarded a prize of ten dollars for the quality of the pupils' entries. The following pupils won prizes: Rodney White, Pamela Tooley, Alberta Weber, Murray White, Heather Card. Prizes ranged from $1.00 to a pair of skates.

Mrs. Don Rodgers of Plevna, was the winner of a set of Corning Ware that was drawn by the ACW recently.

Predominant UN Group

Of the 126 members of the Unfited Nations, 41 are in Africa. The predominant group in the UN, the Africans have major support on many issues among the Asians and the Soviet bloc countries and find much sympathy among Europeans, the Latin American and North American countries. Since all are developing countries, they pay the minimum, or close to it, on UN assessments. Voting power is not affected, with the one-vote, one-country rule applying under the UN charter. The temptation to use their voting strength cannot be resisted, but it stirs occasional misgiving among countries normally sympathetic to the overall objectives of the Africans.

Council Lacks Authority To Reduce Speed Limit

WOOLER — Murray township council must appeal elsewhere to safeguard students crossing Highway 33 at Carrying Place school.

Council will be unable to act on its own authority since the municipality has no jurisdiction over roads after intersection, it was learned.

The junction is administered by the department of highways, Northumberland and Durham County and Ameliasburg township.

Murray council this week decided to contact all three government groups, Northumberland and Durham board of education and Russell Rowe, MPP Northumberland.

Council will seek a speed limited reduced from 50 to 30 miles an hour and more school warning signs.

Reason for the move was an accident in which a six-year-old boy was seriously injured Nov. 24 while crossing the highway on his way home from school. A councillor noted four fatal accidents have occurred at the intersection in the past 20 years.

A record of mishaps at the scene will accompany correspondence seeking action.

Carrying Place school is on the intersection and has an enrolment of 70 youngsters in Grades 1-4. An estimated 32 pupils cross the intersection each day, council was told.

Construction of a new post office at the intersection will increase pedestrian traffic, a councillor was told.

Brighton OPP, education officials and councillor James Quinn co-operated on a study of traffic control atthe intersection.

A NEW FIGURE

Television star Jackie Gleason's new figure represents a loss of nearly 70 pounds as did it by dieting on fish, meat and eggs, supplemented by walking 1½ miles each morning with a 12-pound lead weighted belt around his midriff.

Council Discusses Location of New Manufacturing Plant

CAMPBELLFORD — Two deputations addressed Campbellford Council at the regular December meeting one from Canadian Flight Equipment concerning a water main and one from OWRC re appointment of an advisory committee for sewage disposal.

The Canadian Flight Equipment representative asked to have a water main extended along Trent Drive where the property on which they are now constructing a new manufacturing plant. Canadian Flight had originally purchased 14 acres on the Industrial site but found the area on the corner of Trent Drive and Highway 30 to be under water at times so they moved the building location some distance east on Trent Drive. At the present time a trench is being dug to contain pipes for the new sewage disposal plant and Consumers' Gas. Flight asked if their water main might be laid in the same trench since when the gas pipe is laid, further blasting will not be allowed in the same area.

There will have to be some consensus of opinion with regard to disposal facilities for the Ontario Water Resources Commission. An engineering firm will be engaged to do a survey.

The new location of the Flight building is further from Highway 30 than the original plan with the corporation. This will entail more survey work so it was decided that the firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki and Associates will be engaged to make the necessary survey. A meeting will be held in two weeks to reach some agreement.

Housing Development Contemplated Soon

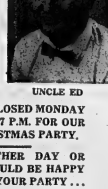
DESERONTO — The meeting of the town council held recently was purely routine except for one item of business which council felt should be dealt with by the incoming council.

A special meeting the previous week had met with Mr. Samuel Guarnaccio, who contemplates a housing development on the Harold Mastin property. The block is bounded by Dundas St., and Pearl St. where sewers and water will be installed according to plan, by Quinte St. which has never been opened; and two blocks on Thomas St., one of which has not been opened. The developer wished to assure himself that these unopened streets would be opened so that services would be available there also.



He stated that in this area he proposed to build possibly 50 three - bedroom houses, with attached garages, to sell in the price range of $22,000.

At that time council advised him to present his proposal in writing at the meeting. A letter from his solicitor again asked for an assurance that facilities would be provided by the town, but as no written description of the proposed development had been included, the matter was tabled over to the property committee to be dealt with by the new council which comes into being in January.

This council holds its final meeting Dec. 15.

TOO MUCH SALT

SALTON CITY, Calif. (AP) — The Salton Sea—already more brine than the ocean—is getting even more salty and it may be only three to four years before it can no longer support fish, says Kerry W. Mulligan, chairman of the state water resources control board. The Salton Sea was created when the Colorado River overflowed from 1905 to 1907 and started filling the basin. At present, 75 per cent of the water flowing into the 350-square-mile sea comes from agricultural waste waters carrying more than 10,000 tons of salt a day, Mulligan said.

Cash Advance to Grain Farmers Snapped Up But Said Too Little

OTTAWA (CP) — Although a cash advance bill for western farmers was labelled too little and too late by opposition critics, it was speedy Commons approval Friday.

The government bill, piloted by Otto Lang, minister without portfolio in charge of the wheat board, extended cash advances to cover unharvested grain to a maximum of $3,000 per farmer.

As before, farmers are eligible for a maximum of $1,000 in advances on unsold grain on the farm. The new bill permits half to be advanced on unthreshed grain.

Richard Southam (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) described it as belated but reasonable legislation. At the same it amounted to "crumbs from the master's table."

Both George Muir (PC—Lisgar) and Hon Diefenbaker, former Conservative prime minister, supported the bill as did Mr. Southam, but they claimed it did not go far enough in solving the farmer's cash shortages.

Mr. Diefenbaker (Prince Albert) accused the government of spreading "unadulterated fiction" to the effect that Canada is maintaining its traditional share of the world wheat market.

He said it has declined to 19 from 27 per cent in the last two years. It would be 15 per cent this year when all the figures are in.

Anxious to get the bill through, MPs waived the usual referral to a House committee for further study after giving it second reading. They debated it a while, then gave it third and final reading.

There were many ideas from all sides of the House on how to improve the position of the farmers.

Rod Thomson (NDP—Battleford-Kindersley) suggested a Canadian bread breaking display at Expo 70 in Japan in an effort to convince Asians to eat bread made from wheat rather than eat rice. He suggested selling the fair-made bread at 10 cents a slice.

A. B. Douglas (L—Assiniboia) advocated "a massive extension" of the cash advance system. Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) sought a moratorium on paying of interest rates and repayment of loans held by western farmers.

In other developments, the Commons gave third and final reading to a government bill to permit appointment of two Supreme Court Judges in Alberta, five lower-court Judges in Ontario and one district court judge in Alberta.

The Commons gave approval to an amendment to the Children of War Dead Education Assistance Act in order to extend educational assistance to 80 children of veterans not otherwise qualified for aid under the act. The special aid is for training beyond secondary school.

Trade Minister Pepin announced export controls on nickel and ordered Canadian producers on both copper and nickel to meet the needs of Canadian industrial customers in full ahead of export markets.

It was also disclosed in the House that Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will visit the Northwest Territories and Manitoba July 5-15 for centennial celebrations in both.

Strong Reaction Expected To Capital Gains Tax

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton can expect a "violent reaction" from other provincial treasurers to federal proposals for a capital gains tax during the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa next week.

He told a seminar group at the annual meeting of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association Friday a capital gains tax is inevitable, but "the form and method as proposed by the federal government concerns us very much."

Robert Valentine of Hamilton said Canada is not ready for such a tax when 40 per cent of capital is "imported" and the treasurer agreed.

Mr. MacNaughton said the federal proposals contained in a white paper on taxation will undoubtedly come up at the conference, and he expects not only vigorous but violent reaction from his fellow tres ayers.

He said the proposals are inappropriate for a country that hasn't reached our growth potential "in a country mile." And he is seriously worried about the effects on the small entrepreneur.

Robert Wishon of Windsor, Ont., asked the treasurer if many people were moving from provinces with high taxes to other provinces.

Mr. MacNaughton said there was some movement of capital to tax haven provinces. The Ontario government would be willing to abandon succession duties if new charges if the federal government would give the province a larger share of what it collects.

Tweed District Personals

The recent turkey supper that was held in St. Luke's Church basement, Denbigh, and the bean supper that was held at the same location a week later, were both deemed a huge success.

Dr. Robert Conn, of Buffalo, N.Y., passed away at his home suddenly. He had spent many summers at Ardoch at his cottage there, on Long Lake, and had a wide circle of friends in that area.

The recent card party held in Queensboro by the Women's Institute, was a success and the prizes were awarded as follows: women's high, Mrs. Kenneth Cassidy; men's high, Albert Ramsey; men's low score, Carl Gordon; Mrs. Marguerite Blakely won for the most lone hands. The door prize went to Mrs. Harry DeClaire.

A surprise bridal shower was held recently for Jayne Doran, of Read, who will soon be a bride.

Mrs. Norman Inwood of Denbigh, is a patient in the Renfrew Hospital.

The ice sheet has been laid in the new Land O'Lakes curling club in Tweed, and the ice has been painted in preparation for the coming winter curling season.

There was the annual Legion turkey roll, at the Canadian Legion club rooms, Wednesday, December 3. Proceeds will go to Tweed Minor Hockey.

The annual Knights of Columbus turkey bingo was held in the Township Hall, (Hungerford) on Friday, Dec. 5.

In Ontario, a $100,000 estate left to a widow is taxed $38,081 by the province in succession duties. He said Ontario might lose $25,000,000 by giving up succession duties and taking a larger share of federal estate taxes.

But the loss would be worth it because of people who would decide not to relocate their estates outside the province.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Acne Big Problem To Youngsters

We get older. We forget. The problems that bother our youngsters seem so unimportant when we consider our own health, financial and family upheavals. So, too often, they suffer in silence. Communication between them and parents is a bust. I receive hundreds of letters each month from frustrated and unhappy teenagers who complain of their problems — big to them, little to grownups.

For example, consider acne. Often they get this answer from parents too busy to emphasize: "I had pimples when I was your age. You'll get over them. They won't kill you." And the youngster retreats in to himself and tries to hide behind his pimply skin as he walks the corridors of school. Life is burdensome; life is no fun.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 15 year-old girl. I'll be 16 next month. I am plagued by acne pimples, blemishes, black heads. Sometimes it is worse than others. It's really starting to get me down. I have completely excluded chocolate, peanut butter, nuts, fried foods and greasy things from my diet. I get plenty of sleep. As for exercise and fresh air I walk home from school every day. I drink water and try not to let my nerves get the best of me.

But what happens? I still suffer from acne. Lately it has been worse. It has spread to my back and chest. I try to be as careful and my efforts are in vain. All my friends have such lovely complexions. I feel so embarrassed all the time. I've asked my parents if they would take me to a dermatologist. They say they'd only be wasting money and drop it at that. Nobody seems to care. If only people knew how much it meant to me and how I'm trying to defeat it.

I used to think I was going through a stage in life and it would soon pass. But it does not look that way. If possible, please put this in the newspaper with your advice so others like me can receive some kind of reassuring help. —Miss R.

* * *

Comment: I have written here about acne quite often. But, as your letter indicates, not often enough. For it is true that too many parents — like yours — underestimate the importance of acne. If they had it when youngsters, then they have forgotten the heartaches. If they've never had it, then they had better realize how important it is to the growing boy and girl.

I can't give you a treatment routine that will "fit" your big problem, Miss R. So I can't offer you the specific advice you crave. But show this column to your parents. It does nothing else, it may alert them to how bad you feel. Perhaps they are unaware of it. Perhaps now they will think it important enough to give you the benefit of medical attention.

Diet is important. Exercise. Fresh air and sleep (all of which you are getting) are important, too. But special applications to the skin may be necessary. Only your doctor can prescribe them. Perhaps your type of acne will improve greatly under treatment with special ointments. Again, such treatment will depend upon your doctor's judgment.

* * *

Besides, you will need someone to lean on during the "down" days. Your parents should realize that only a sympathetic doctor can help. It may be true, as your parents say, that "acne won't kill you." But you know too well, that it can kill your spirit.

I hope this column sparks them into a realization that your "little" problem is a "big one," and make an appointment with the family doctor.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For December 7

Your birthday today: Your coming year has a strong drift toward crisis and conquest in all matters relating to material possessions. You may be revised to fit harder conditions. Intuitive promptings become strong — and must be heeded. Today's natives often have premonitions of coming events.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your home and neighborhood this Sunday are infinitely preferable to travel or activity in public places. Local visiting may produce sudden tension and annoyances.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You must quietly consider the plans and schemes of mate or partner and the confusion and stress caused by lack of cooperation from strangers.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Disagreement is so easy this Sunday. Avoid getting into squabbles.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Friends and relatives are comfortable to meet today, but nothing else is in proper perspective. Pleasure seeking is expensive beyond dreams and produces little results. Frugality will bring more enjoyment later.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): No matter how you look at it, the day turns out to be strenuous. Any trifle is enough to upset somebody around you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Tolerance can avert misunderstandings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Find a middle course. Avoid commitment wherever you can. Leave financial deals and vocational questions for the workweek.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Nobody is going to agree completely with any of your plans today, so make sensible compromises without complaint.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): For once physical expression is not quite as satisfying as mental exploration. Find a scene of beauty and contemplate its details and changes. Enjoy business alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It is difficult to change plans to fit new conditions. Some people are not on hand to occupy their usual places. If you are asked to fill the empty spot in the interim, do so gracefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Do not indulge in your usual habits this Sunday. Visit some less familiar locale and seriously plan vacation.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your patience is of prime importance. Your own success and those around you. If you must comment, keep it simple and go right to the heart of the matter.

For December 8

Your birthday today: The coming year requires that you simplify your life, but with care and much planning. Whatever you give up is apt never to return. If you are to get full joy in the future, however, it is essential to give up many bad habits, and old attitudes, and old personal resentments. Let romantic interests develop naturally without demands for long-term commitments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The week begins with a sudden release from recent tensions. Enjoy getting back to work. Catch up on matters involving strangers and people who live far away.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you are trying to fulfill your obligations, good luck is more than likely to come along.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Good hunpered co-operation is a lot easier today. Share your ideas so they can be tested.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Everything you do today brings better results.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Add something new to your work during this period. Enlist help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): News comes to you from strange sources.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Get moving early. Travel is rather productive for new contacts as well as inspiration for creative ventures. Correspondence should not be neglected now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): A favorable surprise is indicated in financial or material form. You may receive a favor from somebody who does not wish to be noticed. Take immediate advantage of all opportunities without fuss or quibble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your plans are subject to revision and sudden progress, visits take on stronger importance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 —Jan. 19): If you have persons doing things for you, give them a chance to function properly to see what they can accomplish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Old and new friends are beneficial and receptive to your projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Business progresses well. Your new idea may be a winner. Determine how you can apply it.

No One Happy with Imposed Trusteeship on Young Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons broadcasting committee, alarmed by chaotic conditions within the Company of Young Canadians and infiltration by subversives, recommended Friday that the three-year-old experiment be placed under trusteeship.

The committee passed along to the government for decision Montreal's request for a royal commission inquiry into subversion not only in the stormy metropolis but in all Canada.

There is a revolutionary plan in Canada," the inquiry was told last week by Michel Cote, chief Montreal counsel. "Part of that plan is being financed through federal funds. Please stop paying for it. We will do the rest of the job."

Montreal's angry submission, added to the disorganization and warfare the inquiry found within the CYC, led to the tough report.

Committee chairman John Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River) said "marked deterioration" of the company was evident in the last year. He said 85 per cent of committee members voted for trusteeship as the only means of keeping the company alive while it is reorganized.

Georges Valade (PC—Montreal Ste. Marie) expressed the Conservative view that the CYC should be disbanded and a fresh start made with a new organization.

Mr. Valade said trusteeship was "a hypocritical way" of killing the company slowly. Conservatives in a statement blamed the government for much of the CYC's trouble.

New Democratic reluctantly accepted the trusteeship . . . but said the report is "so repressive" it may throttle the company.

Both opposition parties said the committee had not enough time, because of its Dec. 5 deadline, to carry out an adequate inquiry. Field projects had not been visited and witnesses such as Marc Lalonde, a member of Prime Minister Trudeau's staff and the CYC provisional council, had not been heard.

Duncan Edmonds, a Winnipeg consultant who says he talked former prime minister Pearson into the idea of the CYC in 1965, also was angry with the committee. It had not respected "elementary justice" in having Mr. Cote and Lucien Saulnier, Montreal executive committee chairman, as final witnesses.

It was Mr. Saulnier's charges that led State Secretary Gerard Pelletier to order the inquiry in mid-October. Altogether, 24 witnesses were heard in 34 hearings beginning early in November.

The two-month-old CYC governing council, which pleaded with the committee for time to sort things out, was angry too. Chairman Jack Johnson said the proposed trusteeship "is a personal insult" to the council.

"We depend on a fairly rare breed of socially dedicated people," Mr. Johnson said. "They want the freedom to work in the field and they won't even bother to join with a government bureaucracy over them."

Council members were the first witnesses at the inquiry but were not called back, despite a plea to be heard after Mr. Saulnier and Mr. Cote.

The council plans a meeting here Dec. 13-15.

Parliament has yet to concur in the committee report and even if it does, action would be up to the government.

Committee sources said the idea of trusteeship is to give Mr. Pelletier and the council time to work out changes in the CYC. The three-man trusteeship might not even prove necessary.

Among the major recommendations:

—Makeup of the council, now dominated by volunteers, invited distortion and should be changed. The committee was told it is impossible for volunteers on the council to be objective about projects.

—Executive directors should be appointed by cabinet alone and their authority clarified. The executive director now was "hamstrung" by the CYC setup.

—The company should keep out of other jurisdictions unless invited or unless they agree to CYC operations. The company fought this move, saying governments with real problems never want an outsider to take a look.

—CYC books should come under the auditor-general of Canada and the company should be accountable to Parliament.

—All projects should be reviewed and evaluated.

The committee said the current lack of administrative procedures is chaotic and financial procedures are questionable and unconventional.

It said evidence of infiltration particularly in one region, "by individuals who have used the company as a base for acts of subversion, violence and illegality" was presented to it. There also was evidence public funds may have been diverted to these purposes.

Calley Questioned by Army In Closed Hearing at Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lieut. William L. Calley Jr., maintaining a public silence on charges he killed 109 South Vietnamese civilians, has been questioned by a special United States Army committee at the Pentagon.

Calley was tight-lipped and looked straight ahead Friday as he made his way quickly through a crowd of reporters and photographers upon his arrival. He declined to answer questions.

He left the building by another route after appearing before a hearing which seeks to learn whether field officers tried to cover up any mass killings in their initial investigation after a U.S. military operation in March, 1968, at My Lai.

Calley was the leader of a platoon which took part in the operation and is the only one charged with murder so far in the alleged massacre.

Calley's military lawyer, Maj. Kenneth A. Raby, a public information officer, and the pilot who flew them to Washington from Fort Benning, Ga., accompanied Calley to the Pentagon.

There was no report on what Calley said at the closed hearing which is being conducted by Lt. Gen. William Peers.

The investigation is not connected with the court martial of Calley which is expected to start early next year at Fort Benning.

On Thursday, the investigating committee heard from Capt. Ernest Medina, who was Calley's company commander. Medina later told reporters he had neither ordered a massacre nor saw or heard of one, although he said he shot one wounded South Vietnamese woman he thought was about to harm him.

Medina's lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said Friday in Columbus, Ohio, that he thinks it is unlikely any charges will be made against the captain.

Meanwhile, Deputy Defence Secretary David Packard and Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland said the alleged My Lai massacre should not be considered an indictment of all U.S. soldiers.

"I can assure you the army is not attempting to hide anything," Westmoreland said while visiting Fort Campbell, Ky., Friday. "We should continue to pursue our investigation and any trials that may result with diligent thoroughness and full respect for the due process of right of the accused."

He said that to picture the alleged massacre as typical of the army is a "gross distortion of facts."

"Never before in our history while fighting a war have we concentrated so intensely on helping people," Westmoreland said.

Packard made similar comments in a Pentagon news conference.

Most American troops, he said, "have made great personal contributions to the improvement of the life of the South Vietnamese people."

In another development, Senator Thomas J. Dodd (Dem., Conn.) said he will introduce a resolution urging U.S. financing for reconstruction of My Lai and payments to survivors of the attack.

The resolution says there can be no doubt "that the hamlet of My Lai suffered cruelly in the course of an American military action and that many scores of Vietnamese civilians, including women and children, were killed."

Nuernberg Dilemma Haunts U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 25 years after the Second World War, the My Lai massacre accusations may revive a central issue raised in defence of Nazi war criminals.

The issue pivots on a soldier's responsibility to obey orders.

Some members of a United States Army company involved in the alleged mass killings in South Vietnam have said the shooting of at least 109 civilians resulted from orders. The company captain denies giving such orders, or that there was mass killing of civilians.

U.S. government lawyers say it is conceivable that obedience to orders may be offered as a justification by men brought to trial in the My Lai case, even though this defence was rejected by war crime tribunals which tried thousands of Nazis.

The lawyers are dusting off records of Nuernberg tribunals and other war crimes courts as the government prepares for what could become a series of U.S. prosecutions growing out of the My Lai incident on March 16, 1968.

The justice department is reported searching for a basis on which to try former soliers now back in civilian life.

Army lawyers contend that U.S. soldiers cannot claim superior orders as a defence, that only as grounds for lighter punishment if convicted.

They argue that a soldier's obligation to obey only "lawful orders" is spelled out under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The Manual for Courts Martial says:

"An order requiring the performance of a military duty may be inferred to be legal. An act performed manifestly beyond the scope of authority, or pursuant to an order that a man of ordinary sense and understanding would know to be illegal, or in a wanton manner in the discharge of a lawful duty, is not excusable."

Army lawyers agree this puts a considerable burden on a soldier to judge for himself whether an order is lawful.

Many observers wonder whether this is a fair burden to place on a soldier, who may be young and legally inexperienced.

They ask whether it is reasonable to expect a soldier of 19 or 20, for example, to decide in the heat of the moment—possibly under fire—whether to follow an order about which he may have some doubts.

If he guesses wrong, and the order turns out to be lawful, he runs the risk of facing charges of refusing to obey in the face of the enemy. The penalty for this would be severe.

Army officers stress that soldiers sent to Vietnam are prepared with instructions on the Geneva convention stipulating:

"All persons in your hands, whether, suspects, civilians or combat captives, must be protected against violence, insults, curiosity, and reprisals of any kind."

The instructions also make clear that "mistreating any captive is a criminal offence" and that "every soldier is personally responsible for the enemy in his hands."

As late as 1940, the U.S. field manual on the rules of land warfare declared that a person who committed a war crime under superior orders was not personally responsible for his act.

However, this attitude changed drastically during the Second world War and by August, 1945, the Allies, including the United States, agreed on a charter for post-war tribunals providing that "the plea of superior orders did not free an individual from responsibility."

The charter did allow the courts "to consider this circumstance in mitigation of the sentence."

In 1970 the Canada Pension Plan will take two important steps forward for your benefit

1

Retirement Pensions payable at 65

In 1970 the Retirement Pension age will be reduced from 66 to 65. If you are 65... if you've been contributing to the Canada Pension Plan, and if you've retired from regular employment, contact your Canada Pension Plan Office now. If you will be 65 in 1970 get in touch with your Canada Pension Plan Office three months before your birthday. The people there will help you fill out the application form that starts your pension cheques coming. They'll explain how your pension is worked out . . . and when you become eligible. You'll get all the answers to questions about your retirement pension. Payment is not automatic. You must apply. The address of your nearest Canada Pension Plan Office is listed below.

2

Disability Pensions payable for the first time

Disability Pensions for contributors to the Canada Pension Plan will become available in 1970 for those who have contributed for 5 years. Generally, a person is considered to be disabled if he has a physical or mental disability that is so severe and likely to continue so long that he cannot get steady work. Benefits will also be available for a disabled contributor's dependent children.

The Canada Pension Plan also may provide rehabilitation measures where practical. Eligibility for a pension will be based on an assessment of an applicant's medical condition. If you think you might be eligible for a Disability Pension contact your nearest Canada Pension Plan Office. The address is listed below.

Getting Over Winter

Winter may be just starting but men like Gordon Row have found one way of getting over the snow. Yesterday at Oak Hills Ski Club he led instructors in preparations to help others enjoy winter. The experts soon will teach young Bellevillians ski techniques under a city recreation program which has drawn enthusiastic response. For details see page 3.

At Least Four Killed As Ice Coats Highways

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least four deaths were reported from icy road conditions when a band of freezing rain Sunday swept across southern and central Ontario.

On Lake Erie the worst storm in 45 years, whipped up by 70 mile an hour winds, heavily damaged a dock at Port Stanley.

Police issued warnings of hazardous driving conditions Sunday, especially in the Barrie and Orillia districts where high winds were coated with ice.

Four Toronto citizens, David William Orrell, 21, Roy Clark, Lorne C. Clark, 39 and Alice Clark, 49, were killed and another person injured when a car was in collision with a transport truck on Highway 11 about nine miles north of Barrie.

In Orillia one motorist said it took him an hour to cover the distance he normally covered in five minutes.

The freezing rain covered an area from west of London, north to Muskoka and as far east as Peterborough and Kingston.

The Belleville area, however, escaped almost all of the freezing rain as temperatures milder than anticipated flowed into the area. For further details see story on page two.

At Kitchener, where police issued warnings to stay off the roads, ice was a problem for a time. In western Toronto, street lights were out for about an hour and a half after a power line came down.

Weather today was expected to be cloudy and mild with some snow flurries in Northern Ontario.

Minister Of Science Suggested

PARIS (CP) — The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development published a report today urging that Canada appoint a science minister, a recommendation rejected in advance.

The OECD has already been told that the Canadian government believes Treasury Board President C. M. (Bud) Drury is fulfilling the role it would ascribe to a science minister.

The OECD, an international consultative body established by the major industrial countries of the West, including Canada, has been undertaking studies of science policy in each member country.

Youth Wounded By Policeman Accidentally

RODNEY, Ont. (CP) — A. E. Ayers, district provincial police superintendent, described as a "accidental" the shooting Sunday of Joseph Simpson, 19, of Rodney by Cpbl. John Crowe of the Dutton detachment OPP.

The youth was shot in the abdomen in a field near Rodney after Const. Crowe halted a car whose occupants were being sought in connection with damage done in the washroom of a Highway 401 service centre.

Simpson was in fair condition in hospital in London late Sunday following surgery in which a bullet was removed.

Rodney is 25 miles northeast of Chatham.

Nixon to Face Grilling on TV

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon goes before the country during prime television time tonight to face questions from reporters about Vietnam and a budding congressional revolt on tax reform.

White House sources said that Nixon will have no prepared statement when he holds first news conference in more than two months.

Since his last major public statement on Vietnam Nov. 3, there have been three developments which could affect Nixon's Vietnam policy:

—The Nov. 15 demonstration which drew 250,000 people to the capital in protest the war;

—The resignation of the chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, Henry Cabot Lodge, and —The uncovering of the alleged My Lai massacre and army charges that Lieut. William Calley, Jr. killed 109 civilians in the incident.

The president has said he would not be affected by demonstrations. But the arkansas-lodgement by Lodge that the Paris peace talks have achieved nothing throws the burden on the president's alternative peace plan, Vietnamization of the war.

This involves gradual U.S. troop withdrawals as South Vietnamese forces assume a greater share on the combat burden.

Advance reports from officials about the conference tonight indicate the president does not seem to be ready to announce new withdrawals beyond the 60,000 already brought home.

Instead of new peace moves, the president is likely to try to hold what he terms "the silent majority" behind him against the onslaught of new anti-war demonstrations and widespread publicity about the alleged My Lai bloodshed.

Massacre Inquiry Is Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has been urged by two influential Democrats to appoint an independent fact-finding commission to investigate the alleged massacre of civilians by U.S. soldiers at the South Vietnamese village of My Lai.

The proposals came separately Sunday from Senator John C. Stennis, chairman of the Senate armed services committee, and former vice-president Hubert H. Humphrey.

Stennis said the commission should be composed of persons "outside the government and outside the military" and should survey the March, 1968, incident, determine the facts and make a special report to the president.

Humphrey told reporters the commission should be similar to the Warren commission, which investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The former vice-president said in Los Angeles "enough has been said that there needs to be an examination."

Stennis said the commission's investigation could be undertaken while trials of the accused are under way.

Won't Treat Indians

Dentists 'Fed Up' With Department

TORONTO (CP) — The principal of a Fort William high school said Saturday that Indian students in his school can not get dental treatment.

Paul McRae said between 25 and 30 students at Sir Winston Churchill collegiate have been unable to get the needed treatment "because the dentists are fed up with the problem of dealing with the Indian affairs department."

He was speaking at the final meeting of the Ontario division of the Indian Eskimo Association of Canada.

Mr. McRae said the dentists told him the department will not pay for any dental work unless the Indians' dental problems are first appraised by the dentist and a report submitted to Ottawa.

"It normally takes three months for approvals to be given," he said. "When the child comes back he normally needs more work done than was provided for in the appraisal.

"So there must be a second appraisal and another three-month wait. This is the way it goes on and on and on."

The Soviet move in Bonn Sunday was the latest in a flurry of diplomatic exchanges leading toward the talks.

After years of sporadic exchanges on the non-aggression issue, the Kremlin made a major move in September during the West German election campaign by proposing the start of direct negotiations in Moscow.

Brandt's socialist liberal coalition government responded favorably, and slightly more than three weeks ago Allardt handed over a note to Moscow expressing willingness to start the talks today.

The Russian reply was held up until Sunday, almost certainly because they wanted to inform and consult with their Warsaw pact allies who met in Moscow at the summit level for two days last week.

The West German and Kremlin positions have in the past remained far apart because Christian Democrat governments—including that of former chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger—refused to yield on five basic Soviet demands.

These were legal recognition by Bonn of Communist East Germany, acceptance of all post war European borders, recognition of West Berlin as a separate entity, abandonment of all claims to nuclear weapons and declaration as null and void of the 1938 Munich agreement ceding Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland to Nazi Germany.

Brandt promised more flexibility on these issues when he took office in October.

Russia and West Germany to Consider Non-aggression Pact

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia and West Germany, will begin negotiations on an exchange of non-aggression declarations later today, a West German embassy spokesman announced.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko will head the Soviet side, and West German Ambassador Helmut Allardt will head his country's team, the spokesman added.

Diplomatic sources here said they did not expect Gromyko to head the Soviet team throughout what may be a protracted period of negotiations, but merely to attend today's opening session.

But even this is a sign of the importance the Kremlin attaches to the talks, they added.

A West German foreign ministry spokesman in Bonn said Sunday night Soviet Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin informed George Gerdinand Duckwitz, state secretary at the foreign ministry, of the Kremlin's willingness to begin negotiations.

The Russian move was viewed in Bonn as an important advance for the Socialist-led government of Chancellor Willy Brandt in its drive to improve relations with Eastern Europe.

Talks Open Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario has thrown down the gauntlet.

Premier John Robarts, in political trouble at home for the first time in the 25 years of Progressive Conservative governments, spelled out his position for today's opening round of federal-provincial talks in a tough speech to his party's annual convention in Toronto Saturday.

As a result Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau knows now that he faces, in addition to a potentially rebellious Premier Bertrand from Quebec, a stubborn fight on a day-to-day Premier Robarts.

In Saturday's speech, Mr. Robarts gave every indication he is ready for a game-of confrontation with Mr. Trudeau.

Part of his complaint deals with the federal government's "deaf ears and closed mind" to Ontario's proposals for a national medical care scheme. Medical care is a favorite topic with Mr. Robarts these days, and a major source of his political difficulties at home.

Another complaint he has been making since 1966, when federal and provincial government leaders began the current series of talks about fiscal relationships, is that Ontario's allowance from Ottawa isn't enough to pay the bills.

To prove his point, Mr. Robarts is bringing along some of his own problems: Four representatives of Ontario municipalities.

Ottawa, Mr. Robarts said Saturday, is moving closer to a centralist position and refuses to listen to the problems of the provinces.

In an apparent reversal of government attitudes, he attacked the federal white paper on tax reform, made public by Finance Minister Edgar Benson la-t month.

When the paper was published, Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, who is a member of Mr. Robart's delegation this week, hailed it as a "step in the right direction."

It was so good, Mr. MacNaughton said, that Ontario

Robarts Urges Tax Allowance For Mortgages

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts suggested Saturday night that mortgage payments be made deductible from income taxes to help Ontarians buy their own homes.

As a further encouragement to home owners, he said, it might be a good idea if the municipal property tax also was made deductible from income taxes.

New Police Team

OPP Here Puts on Dog

BY HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Kemo had his first crime case Saturday.

The newest recruit posted to Belleville district provincial police headquarters weighs in at 80 pounds and must be driven everywhere.

But, it's a boon to have him on the side of law and order, say his superiors.

For Kemo can sniff crime in the air, track suspects with implacable determination and fight with dogged ferocity.

Kemo is the latest graduate of an OPP training program for police dogs. He's also the first canine assigned to regular police duty in the Quinte district.

With his handler, Const. Ted Arthurs, he forms the newest crime-combat team in the area.

The unit went on duty late last week after more than three months introductory boot-theresss at a Mount Forest police training school.

Togetherness is the key element in the team's makeup, Kemo lives at the Arthur home on North Park Street, depending on the officer for everything from calories to comradeship, then reports for daily duty with his best friend.

Assisting Christmas Exchange

Kiwanis Toy Fund Needs Help

By LINDA GELBART
Staff Reporter

If the Kiwanis Toy Fund is successful, Christmas will definitely be on its way to the more than 1,100 needy children in the city.

The club working in conjunction with Belleville Christmas Exchange, has placed 200 red and white Toy Fund cans in retail outlets, banks and other businesses as part of their project to bring Christmas to little ones less fortunate.

Kiwanis President Wilf Mills revealed that regardless how much or how little toy fund donations total, the club will donate $500 to the Exchange.

This means that if Toy Fund donations fall short of the $500 figure, the Kiwanis Club will donate the remainder of the money.

Cans were placed in outlets about three weeks ago, and according to Mr. Mills, response has been minimal.

One of the biggest problems organizers face is the fact the majority of today's toys are no good. New toys must be purchased to replace them — and that costs money.

Because most of the toys on the market are plastic, more money must be sought to enable the Exchange to purchase enough to go around.

"In the few places I have checked to gauge response," said Mr. Mills, "it appears not good at all."

Mr. Mills particularly stressed that the public bring old toys are being repaired this year, as they have been in the past.

"This is the reason why we need the complete support of the citizens of Belleville more than ever before. Their contributions help purchase toys of all description: candy, mitts, socks and coloring books," he said.

Looking at the response to the Toy Fund so far, Mr. Mills was slightly pessimistic about the situation.

"I don't feel donations or support are coming as well as it could. Now, more than ever, we need the public behind us so we can buy toys for these youngsters."

"In this affluent society, there will be many children who won't have a Christmas. We are depending on the citizens of Belleville to assist in making their Christmas a happy one — by supporting us in our campaign for funds," added Mr. Mills.

OPP Has Dog-and-constable Team

Kemo rides patrol in a cage at the back of a cruiser driven by the officers.

Kemo won't pay "particular attention" to anyone else.

"He's my buddy," says Const. Arthurs.

Saturday morning the team went into their first detection action — a burglary at Shannonville.

Kemo found the trail — but was hampered by his faintness.

The track left by burglars was more than 16 hours old.

Had Kemo been sent for earlier it would have been a different story, Const. Arthurs is confident.

The canine half of the team has an uncanny knack of detection, says the officer.

It will show particularly during night-time property checks, a lonely chore on the OPP patrol routes of country villages and highway hamlets.

There, lying low awaiting the departure of police, now face an opponent loaded to his fur coat with intuition.

"If anybody is there in the area he'll sense them," says Const. Arthurs. "He's got a real good set of ears - and sense of direction."

Kemo is one of seven dogs now serving with provincial police detachments in Ontario.

While tracking is a police dog's most important asset, the canines also are security guarantees for their officer companions.

Criminals usually are deathly afraid of police dogs, not knowing how they will react to threats of violence, say police.

An armed foe knows he must kill a dog with the first shot — or suffer the consequences of tangling with a wounded animal.

But there's little sign of Kemo's potential ferocity around the Arthurs household. He has been permitted indoors since his arrival. As yet, however, he spends his time between patrol in a pen in the back garden.

The pet loves getting in the cruiser," says Const. Arthurs.

New Assessement Set-up Means City Hall Changes

The province's January 1 takeover of the municipal assessment function will result in re-organization of city hall administration.

Under present policy the city assessment commissioner has appraised land for sale and negotiated the purchase of lands required for municipal purposes, while in addition the assessment department has also prepared the local improvements assessment rolls.

With the provincial takeover of the assessment department at the first of the year, it has been suggested the above functions be transferred to other city departments.

Local improvement assessment rolls responsibility will be transferred to the city engineering department which will take on an additional qualified draftsman, while responsibility for purchase and sale of lands will go to the city clerk's department.

To take care of the additional work in the clerk's department, a deputy-clerk will be hired.

In addition to negotiating the purchase of lands required for municipal purposes the committee recommended the city-owned lands for sale, the deputy-clerk will also act as secretary-treasurer to the committee of adjustment, act as secretary of council committees, give out information to the public on local bylaws and direct requests and complaints to the city departments concerned.

Also proposed to be hired next year will be a professional planner for the planning department. City council has approved the staff addition, but this must be approved by Sidney and Thurlow townships which form part of the suburban planning area.

Planning director Bert Kenny told council that the addition of another professional planner would speed up the preparation of the city's long awaited official plan.

He said the new planner would handle routine work, thus allowing experienced staff to work without interruption on the official plan.

More Pennies Needed

Kiwanis Club president Wilf Mills listens for the sounds of generosity as he gives one of the Club's Toy Fund Cans a shake. Purpose of the cans, which have been placed in businesses throughout the city, is to gather enough money to buy additional toys for needy children, in co-operation with the Christmas Exchange.

Robarts Turns Tough

might drop its plans for a separate income and corporations tax program, if federal officials proved to be co - operative.

But Mr. Robarts said on Saturday that federal officials "are not really interested in meaningful discussion."

He said Ontario wants to be treated as a partner, as supreme in the responsibilities of its fields of jurisdiction as the federal government is in its own.

"Any inflexible stand, especially on tax-sharing, ignores the fact that there is only one taxpayer and he can only pay so much."

Federal proposals—for constitutional recognition of a position of equality in social and welfare programs with the provinces and for a paramount position for federal law in some areas of traditional provincial responsibilities—are contrary to the principles of Confederation which Mr. Robarts expounded, the first tax-structure conference in 1966.

MRS. FRANK SWEET

Funeral service for Mrs. Frank Sweet of 118 Hastings Street North, Marmora was held in St. Andrew's United Church on Thursday, Rev. Douglas Miller officiated. Interment was in the Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

The bearers were Ralph Nasl, Harry Loveless, William Barlow, Hiram Mumby, Arnold Naylor and Vaughn Glover.

Mrs. Sweet died Tuesday in the Belleville General Hospital following an illness of one month. She was in her 78th year.

She was born in England and was educated in Peterborough County. She also resided in Fort William before moving to Marmora.

Mrs. Sweet was an active member of St. Andrew's United Church, of the Unitgd Church Women and the Order of the Eastern Star No. 267. She also was a member of the Women's Institute and Marmora Senior Citizens' Club.

A special service by members of the Order of the Eastern Star was held Wednesday evening at the Howden Funeral Home.

Mrs. Sweet is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Patrick (Peggy) Bertrand of Marmora Township and Mrs. Jack (Wilma) William of Peterborough; by one son, Robert Sweet of Westport; by eight grandchildren and by three great grandchildren.

She was predeceased by her husband, Frank Sweet, in 1955.

INFANT TRENT ROBERT DOLAN

Infant Trent Robert Dolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul Dolan, 17 Glenarden Crescent died Friday at Belleville General Hospital at the age of 3½ months.

Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, Troy Ronald Dolan.

The funeral will be held Monday, Dec. 8 from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service at 11 a.m. will be conducted by Rev. Alfred Poulton. Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

Friends are invited to call at the funeral home after 7 p.m. Saturday.

OLD INDIANS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California has honored two American Indians—proclaimed the state's oldest citizens with 232 years between them—by presenting them with hand-carved wooden statues of grizzly bears.

Lt.-Gov. Ed Reinecke officiated at the brief ceremony for Mrs. Takuhmbie DuPes, a 120-year-old Paiute, and Chief Sitting Bullson, who claims to be the 112 year-old son of Sitting Bull.

MRS. WILLIAM JAMES FAYERS

In poor health for some time Mrs. Gertrude Fayers, 163 North Front Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday in her 81st year.

Mrs. Fayers was born in Belleville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Beer and had resided in the community all of her life.

She was a member of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. She was a member of the senior choir and the Dorcas Group of the church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Bert (Irene) Girling, Mrs. John (Helen) Harvey, both of Belleville, Mrs. Russell (Margaret) Neslon, Kingston, one son, Edward Fayers, Toronto; four grandchildren and six great grandchildren. She was the last of her family, her husband, William James Fayer, died some years ago.

Mrs. Fayers is resting at the Grant Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on Tuesday, Dec. 9 at three o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery with Rev. J. Arthur Sibell officiating.

IN MEMORIAM

WANNAMAKER — In loving memory of "Mat" Melvin W. Wannamaker, who passed away December 9, 1967.
Time takes us one by one,
Leaves us here to weep,
But still within our sad, aching heart,
His memory I keep.
—Lovingly remembered and missed by Ruth.

COLE — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Sybil Cole who passed away 1 year, 10 years ago, December 9, 1957.
God put your arms around her,
Dear her up to rest,
Make up for all she suffered,
For she was the best.
Sadly missed by her daughter Margaret, son-in-law Winston and grandchildren.

Past and Present

Bruce Holton, Westminster United Church elder, wields historic trowel in symbolic cementing of church cornerstone yesterday. New Wallbridge Road church consolidates seven rural congregations. Trowel was presented to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Belleville publisher who became prime minister, during 1872 church opening.

Tribute to Community Spirit, Togetherness New Westminster Church Officially Opened

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Belleville area has a new church — its beginnings as much a symbol of community spirit as its presence denotes a new trend in church administration.

Westminster United Church, which yesterday held its inaugural service, centralizes smaller churches in Sidney Township.

But its realization—on Wallbridge Road, a half-mile north of the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway — also is a tribute to co-operative zeal.

Contract cost bids called for the structure nearly two years ago exceeded hoped-for estimates. Ways were found to trim the cost, said Rev. John F. Bunner, Westminster's pastor.

Prominent among the trimmers were members of the new congregation, who offered their time and effort in on-site work.

"We also did all the electrical work ourselves — saving about 10 per cent of the cost," says Rev. Bunner.

In all, the community seal pared costs by about 25 per cent, he estimates.

The effort was "rather unique", he adds.

"That was something of our aim in the beginning — to hope we might encapture, in a a modern pluralistic society, something of the spirit of a rural community."

The pastor also paid tribute to Napanee contractor Charles McConnell for his cooperation.

Also assisting was a 20-per-Church's Board of Missions, under the church's rural consolidation program.

All in all, efforts of church, contractor and congregation, meant Westminster could open with 60 per cent of its debt paid, said Rev. Bunner.

The church grant is believed the only one given in the Belleville area.

Westminster, seating 300 and a 20-member choir, was packed for Sunday morning's inaugural service.

Afterwards, the congregation watched as the church's cornerstone was symbolically tapped in place — using a trowel once owned by Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the Belleville newspaper publisher who became prime minister.

The trowel, wielded by Bowell descendant and church elder Bruce Holton, was used in 1872 at the opening of the first Christian Bible Church in Belleville.

Westminster consolidates the former Sidney Township parishes of Aikens, Centenary, White's and Wesley.

City's Snow Removal Budget Melting Rapidly

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

City officials are not exactly worrying about the situation, but with still more than three weeks to go the local public works department is getting close to the bottom of the snow removal budget barrel.

As of the end of October the city had approximately $15,000 of its $78,600 snow removal budget left. So far this season there have been two storms which necessitated use of city snow removal equipment.

"We don't worry about it (possible big snowstorms). The work has to be done, so we just go ahead and do it," is the way City Engineer Wilbur Purcell explained the annual winter maintenance problem.

Even with the recent snowstorms Mr. Purcell estimated the works department still had about $7,000 to $8,000 in its year's snow removal budget.

City roadway and sidewalk plows have been out following both snowstorms, but snow hauling — one of the two major items of winter maintenance — has so far not been too costly.

The only snow hauling costs so far were last week when it was necessary to remove snow from the downtown area.

This year the city works department had $27,000 budgeted for snow hauling, and $30,000 for sanding roads.

Plowing sidewalks was estimated to cost $9,500, roadways $7,000 and sanding sidewalks $4,500.

Waves Rip Up Dock

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (CP) — Waves eight feet high, whipped up by 70 miles per hour winds on Lake Erie Sunday, ripped away an estimated 500 feet of government dock at this town eight miles south of St. Thomas.

May Sell Cemetery

Another portion of the historic graveyard surrounding St. Thomas Church may disappear under asphalt in the future.

Hastings County Board of Education has authorized a committee to meet with St. Thomas Church representatives to negotiate for an area south of BCI for bus loading and unloading.

The school buses coming to the school now approach from Church and John Streets and load and unload at the curb.

The committee is empowered to make "mutually acceptable arrangements" to allow school bus loading and unloading and general parking on the cemetery property.

Some years ago, headstones were removed from a portion of the cemetery and the land graded to extend the church parking lot.

Before a cemetery can be disturbed the Lieutenant-Governor - in - council must deem the move "expedient", and the bodies and headstones must be removed to another cemetery.

Notification of the next - of - kin of those buried in St. Thomas church yard could prove difficult. The lot was set aside for church use in 1816 and existing headstones date back to 1820.

Half-century-old Plumbing Firm Closing

A local plumbing firm which has been in business for almost half a century will close its doors at the end of this month.

The Thomas J. Holland Company at 122 Pinnacle Street, has been carried on by Mrs. Holland since the death of her husband 22 years ago. Mrs. Holland is retiring from the plumbing business and has sold the premises to the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Headquarters for the T. J. Holland Company since 1922, the one-time Methodist Church on Pinnacle Street is one of the oldest buildings in the lower Pinnacle Street area. It is the site of the earliest Methodist church in the city. The present brick structure was built in 1847. After church use of the structure was discontinued, the building served as a railway station and as a Masonic Temple.

The church-railway station-Masonic Temple had seen use as a storage house before it was taken over by Mr. Holland in 1922.

Following the death of Mr. Holland in 1937, T. V. Scanlon acted as operations manager of the plumbing firm. He was succeeded by Earl Hinchliffe.

But always behind the scenes has been Mrs. Holland, who has manned the front office and since the death of her husband, kept an eye on business details.

She never did any of the actual plumbing but that doesn't mean she was a stranger to the dozens of fittings required for a particular job.

"You can't work in a business for nearly half a century without knowing something about it," is the way Mrs. Holland modestly puts it.

Interim Report Wednesday On Urban Renewal Study

Just what the city of Belleville got for the more than $50,000 costs of its urban renewal study will be learned at first hand this week from consultants Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon.

Wednesday, Mr. Allen Brass, planner for the Toronto consultants, will officially present a first interim report on the urban renewal scheme to a joint meeting of city council, Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and the 20-member citizens' committee on urban renewal. The meeting will be held at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium at 2.30 p.m.

The first interim report on the urban renewal study was received by the city some weeks ago, but the report has never been officially explained or presented by the consultants.

Since the receipt of the report, the urban renewal study was ordered discontinued by city council which has now been offered $5,000 by downtown merchants as the city's share of having the study completed.

Salvation Army Polishes Christmas Fund Kettles

Belleville Financial Appeals Review Board has approved Salvation Army plans to hold its Christmas Cheer campaign this month.

The familiar Christmas Kettles will be placed in public places on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 12 and 13 and the following weekend the 19 and 20. The campaign realized just under $1,600 last year, and the Salvation Army hopes to increase this to $1,600 in 1980.

Revenues from the Christmas kettles, which were supplemented by the general appeal for funds of the Army last year, are used to provide Christmas dinners, hampers and vouchers for a large number of Belleville families. In addition, residents of the city's various institutions are given Christmas treats.

The Financial Appeals Review Board was pleased to learn of the low costs of conducting such a campaign, and recommended to city council that the Salvation Army's application be approved.

Storm Fury Detours Area

A forecasted heavy rain, snow and ice storm failed to materialize in the Quinte area over the weekend.

Although snow, rain and slippery conditions did occur Sunday, area activity was not affected, testifying to the fact that Quinte residents are now prepared for the onslaught of winter.

CFB Trenton's duty forecaster said this morning that Sunday's snow amounted to 2.8 inches in the Belleville Trenton area, with only a trace of rain.

Since midnight last night .1 inches of rain has fallen on the Quinte area and mild temperatures have turned many streets and roads into slushy bogs.

The duty forecaster predicted mild temperatures would persist into tomorrow, but rainfall would stop sometime today.

Belleville City Police reported six minor accidents over the weekend, but only half of them occurred during the hazardous driving conditions Sunday.

Belleville OPP also reported a routine weekend of driving activity.

Storm activity north of Belleville was also slight, although the Madoc detachment of the OPP reported seven minor accidents. No one was injured in the mishaps.

Ontario Hydro here reported there were no power failures during the storm.

Instead of being harassed by wintery condjions, Quinte area residents took the opportunity of an early winter to indulge in snow recreation.

Snowmobiles, toboggans, skis and sleighs were the order of the weekend, as outdoors enthusiasts headed for the wide open spaces for fun and adventure.

Near Final Stage Suggests Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday the federal provincial conference opening Monday approaches "the final or semi-final stage" of constitutional reform, the division of powers between the two senior levels of government.

The questions to be settled, h said, are "what government will do what" and "what happens when there is a contradiction between the two."

The prime minister was interviewed on a CBC TV weekend news magazine show.

Mr. Trudeau said the federal and provincial governments appear to be in agreement on some questions, but it would not be advantageous to conclude agreements in a piecemeal fashion.

"It is not necessary to sew up little parcels as you go along," he said. "You want to see the total picture."

He said there is a clearer picture of Canada emerging from the series of constitutional conferences, embodying legal, cultural and other agreements.

Skiing Instructors Shape Up, Training Class Snowed Under

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Skiing has grown by leaps and bounds in the Belleville area.

So much so, a city recreation program has been snowed under.

At Oak Hills Ski Club yesterday, instructors began honing up for the third year of a skiing program sponsored by Belleville's recreation commission.

Today, recreation officials are still working to find room for all the student applicants.

The course, scheduled for four Saturdays each in January and February, was first launched in 1967.

"But it's really grown this year," said a recreation official.

Indications of a heavy response came early — when registrations opened last Monday. The same night, the program had been booked to its projected maximum of 110 students. Now there's a waiting list of up to 70 more students.

Recreation officials are working on transport and instructor availability to accommodate the overload.

A revised, expanded program may be announced later this week.

Students range in age from nine years to 18. Their instructors are supervised by club experts who are members of the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance.

Instruction methods are techniques approved by the Alliance for Canadian ski schools.

Book Store Theft Nets Culprit $200

A thief escaped with $200 cash following a weekend break-in at Upper Canada News of Oak Street, police reported this morning.

The money was taken after thieves broke into a Coke and coffee machine in the building.

Entry was gained, some time between noon Sunday through an upstairs window.

Police also reported the discovery of a counterfeit $10 bill at the Liquor Control Board on Station Street over the weekend.

The serial number of the bill is T-E 8621081. It was passed some time Thursday, police believe.

Rich and Poor

Think about it for a minute . . . but is it not a fact that Canada is near the top in the affluence stakes? True, not a few Canadians do have to worry about where their next meal is coming from, but with the Swedes we are right up there, not far behind the Americans, as the people with the highest standard of living in the world.

Here, from a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce survey of agriculture, is an indication of just how comfortable we are: "Today, Canada is substantially urban, and while agriculture's relative role in the country's economy has shifted, it still remains important — not just to those directly dependent upon it for their livelihood but also to Canadian consumers who spend more than $8 billion on food each year.

"The latter amounts to about $400 per person and about 21 per cent of all personal expenditures on goods and services. In this age of 'convenience' foods, the close relationship between agriculture and food is easily forgotten. Nevertheless, the fact that each year Canadian consumers enjoy an adequate supply of wholesome food products is in itself evidence of the important role played by Canadian agriculture . . ." (and as the survey adds, in co-operation with farm supply and related operations).

Advances in farm productivity, the survey goes on, is illustrated by the increase in the number of persons who can be fed from the production of one farm worker. In 1946, one farm worker supplied 15 persons with food. By 1967, this number had increased to 39 persons.

All well and good, but such words and phrases in the above as "livelihood . . . personal expenditures on goods and services . . . convenience foods . . . and adequate supply" serve to underline just how smugly comfortable we as consumers tend to be in relation to our material ease and wellbeing.

But consider this message from Maurice Strong, president of the Canadian International Development Agency. Differences between rich and poor, he told the Vienna Development Institute recently, have never before existed on such a scale." And while it is unrealistic to expect underdeveloped countries to match the wealth of the affluent nations in the foreseeable future, nevertheless dire poverty, he said, must be overcome. Failure to accomplish this, according to Mr. Strong, could mean civilized life on this planet "may not survive much beyond the end of this century.

"A new dark age," he suggested, "is not a vague threat. It is a real possibility."

Think about it then, but more than that Canadians must act. We cannot tell what the world will be like at the end of the century from what Mr. Strong and others are saying, is that the have-nots must at least be able to subsist — and ideally, reach the point where they can become self-supporting. Already progress is being made to this end in countries like India and Pakistan.

For this country's part, there is plenty of evidence of growing awareness of the problem, both at home and abroad. Today is Pictou's Biafra Week, for example, in which community churches, schools and organizations are campaigning to support relief programs for the starving people of the Nigerian territory. In our own midst there was Nicholson Catholic College's student effort in obtaining 700 cans of food for the Christmas Exchange, and on December 22 the Rotary Club is having a get-together for underprivileged children.

To think not of ourselves but of the needs of others is the first consideration. These are encouraging examples.

Ulster's Problem

Northern Ireland's tortured political scene seems to be upsetting the mother of parliaments at Westminster.

MPs are reported to have argued for more than 17 hours about the functions of the new volunteer force introduced to replace the disbanded B Specials, ending up by calling each other names.

At the height of it all, civil rights leader Bernadette Devlin, a young woman with a keen sense of the dramatic, produced a rugged stick impaled with nails. Before she could explain its use, it was carried out of the House, labelled as an offensive weapon. Miss Devlin said later the stick was used as a "riot control" weapon by one member of the mainly Protestant Specials.

The rioting is over, but reports from Ulster suggest it could break out again anytime. And so long as hotheads like Miss Devlin help perpetuate the old hatreds so long will the Ulster tragedy drag on.

Problems of the GI in A Frustrating War

In Vietnam Life Is Cheap and Cynicism Rampant

AP News Analysis

Allegations that U.S. soldiers massacred South Vietnamese civilians during a raid on a village last year have stunned the United States. In the following story, John T. Wheeler, who reported the war in Vietnam for The Associated Press for several years, gives an insight into the conditions of a struggle war in which anything can happen.

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Staff Writer

To try to understand the alleged mass slaughter by United States soldiers of civilians at My Lai it is necessary also to understand the atmosphere of a war which has led many U.S. fighting men to feel they are as much at war against Vietnam as for it.

While the communiques speak of battles involving companies and battalions, each soldier carries with him the certain knowledge that in any village there may be men, women, and even children who are also the enemy, waiting for the time and place to attack him.

Brutality, and indifference to human life, are commonplace in Vietnam.

In Vietnam, the killing of civilians was a practice established by the Viet Cong as a major part of the war long before the first U.S. ground troops were committed in March, 1965.

By official count, more than 20,000 civilians had been murdered by that time in executions aimed at so thoroughly terrorizing the countryside that none would resist. The total now is more than 40,000.

American troops were told to kill the Viet Cong who were bad and woo the peasant who only aided the enemy because he had no choice.

Given a chance, the official line went, Vietnam wanted to be free and democratic, just like the U.S.

But the U.S. soldiers found a war of sundered families, and divided allegiances to any regime, either Viet Cong or Saigon.

There is no front in Vietnam, no rear, no safety. To the U.S. soldier of a rifle company everyone outside the perimeter can be suspected of plotting to kill him.

The Pentagon say that today's U.S. soldiers are the most sophisticated in history. But more than being able to operate intricate electronic equipment and the like, in Vietnam they also see at first hand the corruption, the indifference of South Vietnamese soldiers to winning the war, the contrast between the poverty in the countryside and the comparative wealth of the cities and the way South Vietnamese merchants gouged them. Added to this were the deaths and maimings of friends.

Cynicism mixed with anger rapidly replaced the early idealism among combat troops. Vietnamese were called "gooks" and "slopes" in a way that sometimes translated as subhuman.

No spare sets off a fire unless it falls into combustible material. The sparks that ignite American soldiers are snipers, mines and booby traps. The major cause of casualties in Vietnam are mines and booby traps. Snipers also are a major factor.

The three are all the more hated because each is hidden and after the damage is done, there usually is no chance to even the score.

Often intelligence will pinpoint a village as the source of the mine and booby-trap makers and snipers. Repeated sweeps through the hamlet turn up little or nothing except more casualties.

And hatred builds up for the villagers who know the snipers and know where the hidden traps are but don't tell. Then one day something snaps in one or more men.

There are indications that these things might have been at work on the men who are accused of massacre in My Lai last year.

The U.S. command's position has been from the beginning that civilians are not to be harmed. But the case for the sanctity of civilian life is weakened by the knowledge that there are South Vietnamese assassination teams—sometimes led by Americans—operating in the countryside killing enemy officials, often in their beds at home, Viet Cong style.

And soldiers who have searched out a village after American bombers have done their work cannot help but be a bit cynical about orders not to molest civilians.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

American forces under Richard Montgomery and Benedict Arnold began the siege of Quebec City 194 years ago today—in 1775—during the American War of Independence. The siege was unsuccessful and Montgomery was killed during an attack on the city Dec. 31. Arnold was compelled to retreat the following spring.

1660—The first female appeared on an English stage.

1941—The United States declared war on Japan.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—American troops landed on the west coast of Leyte Island, seized the centre of the Yamashita Line from the rear and split the enemy forces in two, wiping out a 13-ship Japanese convoy in an aerial attack during landing operations. Superfortresses bombed Iwo Jima in Bonin Islands from bases on Saipan.

Meter Maid Plan Flops

Vancouver Sun

How many people, we wonder are aware that the plan to employ meter maids to police on-street parking in Vancouver has become a dead issue? Probably not many. The proposal that, looked like such a sure thing a few months ago died not with a bang but with a whimper.

No, not quite a whimper — if the plea from Police Chief John Flak can be said to constitute its last words.

Checking meters and ticketing offenders, said Mr. Flak, takes up important police manhours which should be used on more important matters. He said further that a change to civilian enforcement also would help improve police-community relations.

These were, and are, valid reasons for switching parking enforcement from police to civilians, accepted by major cities all over the world. Council's abandonment of the idea, despite its approval in principle last November, is less easy to understand, although no one in considering a contract service to the exclusion of a civic employee service just might have something to do with it.

Like the plowmen, the meter maid idea, we'll wager, will rise again.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1949.

Gordon Davies, for many years a club member and well known locally as a figure skater has been named president of the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club for 1950.

Just 40 years ago, The Belleville Rifles Band, a forerunner organization of 43 players recruited from the best of our Canadian musicians at that time, toured the world playing in 21 countries. This carried the name of Belleville to the far corners of the earth and has never been equalled in placing the name of Belleville, Canada, before the peoples of the different countries visited.

30 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1939.

More than 450 elsewomen of Ontario and Quebec, Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture representatives, prominent dairying and farming men of the district and provinces and their wives tossed aside convention cares last night, to pay tribute to the "best cheese exhibition as yet held in the Dominion of Canada" at the three-day convention of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association, and the Third British Empire Dairy Show.

40 YEARS AGO

The members of the GWVA will give a Christmas tree party to the soldiers' kiddies in the Armories on the evening of December 23rd. To date cash subscriptions have been received from citizens in aid of the undertaking amounting to $449.75.

At the closing meeting of the Hastings County Council for this year, a motion was passed unanimously thanking the retiring warden, Judson Gunter, for the able and courteous manner in he had presided over the deliberations of the council.

Subversion — or Social Justice?

Ottawa Le Droit

We have already said on the subject of accusations of subversion . . . that they must be examined with prudence. Revolution and agitation by some people can sometimes mean social justice for others. And we hope to obtain concerted proof from Mr. Saulnier on the link between the CYC members and the alleged established.

Up to now, the "proof" furnished by Mr. Saulnier does not convince us on this particular point. It establishes that there are elements which would overthrow the established order with violence. Everyone knows that. The proof that is required is to know if the influence of revolutionary forces has been diverted by the CYC.

But we don't know that. We only know that among the volunteer workers (in the CYC) there are radicals. The opposite would shock us. And government authorities indeed would have been naive to have shut a voluntary corps of this nature would have attracted only simon-pure little angels. . . . We believe that the Montreal attitude is unfair in not making a distinction between a just and effective issue, a just reform of our institutions and real sedition. We also believe that Montreal's attitude is negative in not offering alternative ways of improving the lot of the socially disfavored.

Election Scene 'Down Under'

Ottawa Journal

Australian and New Zealand general elections have confirmed acceptance of the new order.

A leading issue in both countries was participation in the Vietnam war where their troops fight alongside Americans. This is part of the Australian and New Zealand policy of interesting themselves primarily in the affairs of their own part of the world. With Britain pulling out of her defence role in the Far East, the Antipodes countries look to new alliances. Nothing is now more natural to them than warm co-operation with the United States.

In both elections the opposition Labor parties had said they would withdraw troops from Vietnam if elected. In Australia the Liberal Prime Minister, John G. Gorton, saw his majority reduced from 38 to seven, but divisions within his own party were a factor in the decline. In New Zealand, the National Party led by Prime Minister Holyoake slightly improved its standing in the House of Representatives, having won 44, and perhaps 45, seats in comparison with the 43 it held.

In the two great wars Australians and Zealanders crossed the oceans to fight with British and Canadian troops in Europe and Africa. Now their troops fight closer to home to stem the advance of Communists who appear as dangerous as the Kaiser or Hitler in their day.

Montreal Impresses Westerner

Hamilton Spectator

A man from Saskatchewan, out East to see the Grey Cup football game, was asked by a TV interviewer what he thought of Montreal. "It's great, just great," the Westerner said, "I'd never been here before, and I love it."

Most people feel that way about Montreal, it's hard not to love it. Even when it's on its worst behavior, people can find, something good to say about it (you know how it is with a beautiful woman) and are soon willing to forgive and forget.

Montreal was on its best behavior over Grey Cup weekend, despite the efforts of the "yelr Toronto press" to frighten people away with dire warnings of frightful events sure to happen. It was almost as if Expo had suddenly come back to life bringing with it the sea of smiling faces, the joie de vivre, the cosmopolitan atmosphere.

More Westerners should visit Montreal, just as more Quebecers should visit the West. They'd find, as did the man from Saskatchewan, that Montreal is a great city, a beautiful city, a treasure.

Helsinki Talks May Bear Fruit

New Zealand Herald

The subject matter of the talks at Helsinki is even more complicated than in previous disarmament talks, so that lengthy exchanges seem inevitable. But before dismissing the task as hopeless, it is worth recalling that persistence has, in fact, brought agreements on such matters as peace in the Antarctic, the partial atomic test ban, outer space and the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons; negotiations on uses of the seabed are also well advanced. Moreover, ratified agreements have up to the present been honored by the powers concerned.

UN Dilemma Over China

Melbourne Age

In its turbulent history the UN has failed to make good its claim to be an effective representative of international morality, and it has succeeded in disciplining its more unruly members. But before it can increase its authority it must spread its net to cover all nations. Some of the 800 million mainland Chinese must take over the seat held by the 12 million Taiwanese. Indications of a change in attitude by the Peking regime are too significant to be disregarded. If New Zealand is adventurous enough to speak out in favor of new initiatives, Australia might gain some courage from its example.

Area Farmers Among Medicare Protest Marchers

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Representatives from Prince Edward County joined a citizens' rally at Queen's Park on Saturday, protesting the cost of Medicare and what they believe to be its limited coverage.

Director for District 10 of the National Farmers' Union, Kenneth Marriett, yesterday expressed optimism following the weekend rally which saw more than 3,000 persons turn out to support the marchers.

"I think the size of the crowd and the number of organizations supporting us should carry influence," he remarked.

Mr. Marriett said that participants in the rally marched to Queen's Park, gathering at the Parliament Buildings where speakers from each sponsoring organization were heard. Supporting the proposals forwarded by the Ontario Federation of Labor and endorsed by the NFU, were Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and NDP Leader Donald MacDonald. Their remarks were heard by Thomas Wells, Minister of Health.

Describing Mr. Wells' replies in these addresses, Mr. Marriett commented, "He said that the cost of medicare was receiving consideration, adding that they would like to improve it and he implied that his heart was with us. He led us to believe that they are doing all that they can.

"There was no applause following his speech, but there were some boos," reported Mr. Marriett.

Prince Edward County delegates to Queen's Park left the community centre in Picton early Saturday morning accompanied by representatives from Hastings, and Lennox and Addington Counties. According to Mr. Marriett they returned determined to continue their protests against the cost of medicare. "We intend to carry on," he said, "and unless there are promises of change soon we will make a number of different efforts."

Mr. Marriett outlined a six point program of change for the present medicare program forwarded by OFL and supported by members of CFU. The first suggestion describes a system of collective bargaining between members of the medical profession and OHSIP to set fees. It is recommended that OHSIP pay 100 per cent of the agreed costs. It is suggested that private carriers — as collecting agencies—should be phased out and integrated under the administration of OHSIP.

A further proposal urges that returned cash revenues accumulated by private carriers before October 1 should be returned to subscribers or added to the public treasury.

Outgoing Fire Chief Honored

Ex - fire chief of the Wellington Volunteer Fire Department, Jack Ogilvy, was the recipient of a plaque and a life membership in the Hastings and Prince Edward Firemen's Mutual Aid organization recently at a mutual aid meeting.

Mr. Ogilvy has also been president of the mutual aid in the past and this year is serving as first vice - president.

He was with the Wellington department when it was formed in 1951, serving as a fireman for three years, before spending nine more as deputy chief. He was fire chief for six years.

As a result of Mr. Ogilvy's resignation Oct. 31, Otto Bowerman is acting fire chief on six months' probation.

Montreal Man Cement Firm Superintendent

Plant No. 5 of the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne has a new superintendent.

Mr. Lynn Johnston has been transferred from the company's headquarters in Montreal to take command. He succeeds John Legate as the plant head.

The new plant superintendent has been associated with Canada Cement since 1956 when he joined the engineering department at Point Anne. Mr. Johnston was at Point Anne until 1960 and since then has been associated with company plants in both Northern Ontario and Eastern Canada. He expected to move his family to Belleville early in the new year.

County 4-H Members Collect Raft of Awards

Approximately 350 4-H members, parents, friends and representatives of the various organizations and companies donating special awards attended the Hastings County 4-H awards program Friday at the Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc.

Malcolm Sharp, president of the Club Leaders' Association, was chairman for the evening.

Guest speaker was Hastings County Warden Donald W. Rodgers, introduced by Mr. W. D. Tipper. Mr. Rodgers spoke about the position young people were in today and the role they can play in community affairs.

Mr. Rodgers was presented with a plaque by club leader Harry Bates in appreciation of the support given by him through county council to the 1969 program.

More than $1400 in prize money and 70 awards for outstanding achievement were presented to the 4-H members during the evening.

Robert Jarrell and Mary Tumman were winners of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Bulova watches for outstanding 4-H achievement and leadership during their 4-H careers. Both members gave very well prepared valedictory addresses.

A list of 4-H members winning outstanding awards in the area are as follows: Royal Bank award — Glen Jarrell, outstanding showman; Mackenzie Feeds Limited awards — Glen Jarrell, best exhibit; Robert Eggleton, highest scoring novice member.

Belleville Rotary Club award — Stephen Clare, highest score in the Belleville Rotary 4-H Calf Club; Belleville Rotary Stockmen's award — Glen Jarrel, exhibit and showmanship; Tyendinaga Township Council award — Nancy Clarke, highest points in the club; Bank of Montreal award — Patricia Walsh, top novice; Melrose Women's Institute trophy — Donald Treverton, top showman; Mackenzie Feeds Limited Special — Peter Walsh, high scoring dairy calf and Patrick Walsh, highest scoring novice.

Alton Hadley trophy — Robert Jarrell, highest score in Hastings County 4-H Machinery Club; Hastings County Plowmen's award — Robert Jarrell, top score in South Hastings Section Machinery Club; Hastings County Wardens' shield and award — Dianne Gunning, highest scoring member in the Hastings Senior 4-H Club; Eastern Breeders Incorporated award — William Treverton, second highest score (Senior Club); Donald G. ## Wartman Tops Percy Election

WARKWORTH (Staff) — Percy Township electors gave incumbent Arthur Wartman a total of 432 votes to head the polls in the council election here Sunday.

Arthur Meneilly, the other incumbent seeking re-election, was defeated in the five-man race for three council vacancies.

Newcomers Wayne Pollock and John McCracken made successful bids while James Stevens finished last.

Earlier, Reeve Daniel Lawson was returned by acclamation and incumbent Councillor Everett Maynes was acclaimed deputy-reeve.

Township Clerk W. G. Allen reported turnout was approximately 50 per cent of the eligible electorate. Council positions carry a one-year term.

In the local election for three police village trustees, John Bowen and Douglas Eaver tied with 163 and Clare Campbell had 156.

William Johnston polled 144, but was defeated by a narrow margin.

Nearly 55 per cent of those eligible voted in this election.

County Council Year-end Meet To Last 2 Days

Hastings County Council will hold its final session of the year starting Tuesday morning for what is expected to be a two day confab.

The session is a general windup of 1969 business including reports from various committees.

Tuesday evening, county councillors and the Hastings County Board of Education will meet informally for dinner at the Sun Valley Motor Inn. Purpose is for free discussions in an attempt to establish better liaison and a base of understanding between the two bodies.

RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY TAX REDUCTIONS FOR 1969

A Special Notice to Tenants and Landlords

Tenants in apartment buildings should receive a little extra money this month under the Ontario Government's property tax reduction system. The system eases the burden of municipal and school taxes on homeowners and tenants. In effect, the Province is paying part of the property taxes for each eligible house and apartment.

Tenants should receive their reductions on or before December 31. Many tenants who vacated premises earlier in the year will have already received their reductions.

Here is what should happen:

IF YOU ARE A LANDLORD...

You must pay the full reduction to tenants who have occupied the premises throughout 1969. Payment must be made on or before December 31, 1969.

A tenant who moved in during the year and is still occupying your premises must receive one-twelfth of the total reduction for each month of tenancy. It must be paid on or before December 31.

A tenant who moved out during the year must receive a similarly proportionate amount within 30 days of the date he terminated his tenancy or on December 31, whichever is earlier.

If a tenant is in arrears, the tax reduction may be deducted from such arrears. However, the reduction must not be withheld because of damages or losses.

IF YOU ARE A TENANT...

You should receive your reduction from your present landlord on or before December 31, 1969.

If you moved out of an apartment during the year and have not yet received your share of the reduction, you should contact your former landlord immediately to make sure he knows where to send your payment.

Tenants in apartment buildings such as duplexes and highrises are usually eligible for the tax reduction. Tenants of flats or basement apartments in houses may not qualify because the premises they rent are not separately assessed. For example, roomers are not eligible. If you are unsure of your status or eligibility, contact your municipal tax office.

IF YOU ENCOUNTER PROBLEMS...

You should either telephone Toronto 363-7501 or write the Municipal Subsidies Branch, Department of Municipal Affairs, 801 Bay Street, Toronto 181. Officials are available to assist you.

Pamphlets outlining details of the 1969 tax reduction system can be obtained on request.

Consumers Do Not Complain Enough Says Director

CALGARY (CP) — Consumers don't do enough complaining, says Eric Luxton, public relations director for the 25,000-member Consumers' Association of Canada.

If you are dissatisfied with a product complain to the manufacturer, he says. Often the manufacturer does not realize there is a problem and it's up to the consumer to point it out.

"That's the only way the situation will be remedied."

It was consumer complaints to a manufacturer of electric stoves that made the company aware that controls on the front of the stoves made it easy for children to turn them on.

"Now most electric stoves come with their controls on the back," Mr. Luxton said.

Mr. Luxton was in Calgary on a tour of CAC branches in Western Canada. The association is a voluntary one with only eight permanent employees. Purpose of the trip was to keep the head office in Ottawa in touch with the problems of the branches and to begin plans for Consumer Week in Canada, next March 1 to 7.

CAC members, of which about 20 per cent are men, pay $3 a year. As well, the association receives a subsidy from the federal government. Last year's was $30,000.

"But there are no strings attached," Mr. Luxton said.

"It's part of our job to prod government and we wouldn't accept the money if there were any strings."

Major concerns of the CAC at present include poor packaging and inadequate labelling of food products and other items, such as clothing.

One area where the association feels it is making progress is in standardizing packages and labelling food products so that the shopper can more easily compare price, quantity and quality.

. . . "There are all sorts of dodges used to confuse the consumer, and the federal government is loath to put out any more regulations than it has to. We feel if standardization can be accomplished voluntarily it would be better."

The association also is on guard against misleading advertising, Mr. Luxton said.

"If it is flagrantly misleading we take it up with the department of consumer and corporate affairs."

Feted by Government

Appollo-wives Live Quite Normal Lives

OTTAWA (CP) — They are the heroines of three of this country's most famous men, and for the last five weeks they have been feted by governments and cheered by crowds around the world.

But Mrs. Neil Armstrong, Mrs. Michael Collins and Mrs. Edward Aldrin say they still live a "very normal life."

At a news conference here Tuesday the wives of the Apollo 11 astronauts said they feel being married to spacemen does not put them in a class by themselves.

"You're a wife to a man, not a job or position," said Patricia Collins, a recreation director with the United States Air Force in France when she met her husband.

Joan Aldrin agreed.

"They were pilots for years before they got into the space program. The whole thing evolves so gradually, you don't know what's happening. And you grow with it."

Asked about their feelings during the moon trip, Mrs. Armstrong, wife of the Apollo 11 commander, said she was "not fearful, but a little anxious," and more concerned with the ascent of the spaceship than any other aspect of the trip.

Princess Anne Prefers Big Hats

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne's taste for big hats seems to have influenced London milliners in designing their new spring line.

The cowboy look is the thing for 1970, as shown here Wednesday. And the see-through look has finally reached the top, with many hats in lacy, transparent straws and organzas.

The show was staged by the Millinery Institute, which selects highlights from the collections of several British hatters. One feature was outsize Mexican sombreros intended to top pooches, currently in favor with the young and trendy.

The headgear is said to go well with the maxi-look, but for those who opt for a small, neat head there are turbans and toques among the spring chapeaux.

Lots of hats are trimmed with long scarf bands, and a few are banded with flowers.

More Muscle and Fewer Utensils in Pioneer Cooking

TORONTO (CP) — Ruth Keene has learned to cook like her great grandmother. She says she uses more muscle, more muscles and fewer utensils than she does at home.

"I like to manage with a few pieces of equipment because I don't imagine they had too many things. I like to work that way better now, and I do it at home, too. Electric mixer sounds almost like a swear word now."

Mrs. Keene was strictly a family-only cook until three months ago when she became one of the "housewives" who grace the kitchen at old Fort York, demonstrating pioneer-style cooking.

She works with a 170-year-old brick oven and fireplace, with sketchy old recipes and authentic iron and copper equipment. Mrs. Keene says you develop muscle and technique for handling the heavy kettles and pans.

She makes her own yeast from hops and uses modern ingredients that come as close as possible to what a pioneer family might have had—for instance, whole wheat stone-ground flour, brown sugar or molasses and the smallest eggs available.

"Often if an old recipe calls for two eggs, we can manage with one."

A great grandmother who had a reputation as a good cook earned it. Written help was rare and skimpy. She had to be able to judge heat and timing in her oven.

Mrs. Keene has also had to learn to make allowance for the way things used to be. A light, towering modern cake would have seemed spectacular to a pioneer cook.

"I think yeast is better now. I think heavy bread would have been quite normal in those days, but you are used to the whole-wheat flour in cake and bread and get, so you prefer it.

"You have to experiment with those old recipes. I've come to the conclusion that women would put down roughly by what was wanted and the rest was imagination.

"A recipe would say use so much yeast in water, but they wouldn't say you need water to make it work. They wouldn't write it down because they would think everyone knew that.

"There are lots of things I don't know, so I guess. Who's to say what is a pinch of something?

"After three months, my judgment is getting better."

Mrs. Keene has discovered that her brick oven is heated to about 375 degrees when she can hold her arm there to the count of seven. A big pot of water takes about 30 minutes to boil over the fire. It takes about half an hour to make butter in a dash churn, using about a quart of cream. There isn't enough fat in today's ordinary available milk to use it.

Mrs. Keene has a do-it-yourself project she suggests to children touring Fort York.

"You can make butter in a screw-top jar. You just make sure the lid's on tight and shake a bit of cream in the jar and pretty soon you see little specks of butter forming. Then you just wash it in cold water to wash the milk out, and use it plain if you like sweet butter, or add some salt."

Mrs. Keene and her colleagues hand out copies of the recipes they work with at the fort.

The interest in pioneer cooking is strong enough that the Toronto Historical Board, which runs the fort, filled a class of 81 for a series of lessons this fall, and has a waiting list if they decide to hold another series.

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

The November - December meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held at the church on Wednesday evening. Mrs. R. Jones opened the meeting and welcomed all.

Miss Frieda Matthews and members of the Loyal Group led in devotions, the theme being 'Love for Others'. Recordings of children from the Cecilia Jeffrey Indian Residential School, Kenora were enjoyed by all. Mrs. R. Michaud gave treasurer's report, and also a report from the annual bazaar which was most gratifying.

Annual reports were given by secretary Mrs. R. Kempster; flower convener, Mrs. A. McCreary and card convener, Mrs. B. Sine.

The meeting was turned over to Miss Frieda Matthews for election of officers and Mrs. V. Weir presented the slate of officers for 1970.

Rev. A. L. Sutherland commended the ladies for work being done by the Women's Guild and installed the officers.

Officers are as follows: honorary presidents, Mrs. A. L. Sutherland and Mrs. W. H. V. Walker; past president, Mrs. V. Weir; president, Mrs. R. Jones; vice-president, Mrs. S. Fraser; secretary, Mrs. R. Kempster; treasurer, Mrs. R. Michaud; flower conveners, Mrs. C. Bateman and Mrs. A. McCreary; card and parlor convener, Mrs. B. Sine; kitchen convener, Mrs. F. Brooks; pianist, Mrs. W. Maude; representative to Board of Managers, Mrs. C. Barragar; christian education, Mrs. S. Hay; camera clinic, Mrs. H. McKay; auditors, Mrs. T. Anger and Miss J. Cunningham. Group leaders were also selected.

Mrs. R. Jones thanked everyone for her re-election and the support in past year.

After the business meeting the Sunshine Group served refreshments.

Sr. Citizens Hold Annual Meeting

MARMORA — Regular meeting of Marmora Senior Citizens' Club, attended by 26 members, on Wednesday was presided over by Mrs. Eva Post. A minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Ada Sweet, who passed away on December 2.

A motion was passed that tickets will be sold among members only on a junior bed quilt. A decorated Christmas fruit cake will be raffled before Christmas. A donation to the Club by Miss Jean Thompson will be used to purchase a clock for the club rooms. A vote of thanks was extended to the executive and members who had assisted with quilting, card parties and any projects which had contributed to the Club's success during the past year.

At the annual meeting which followed, Mrs. John Glover installed the new executive for 1970 as follows: president, Mrs. Eva Post: 1st vice-president, Mrs. Florence Fluke; secretary, Mrs. John Brewer; treasurer, Mrs. William MacDonald; trustees, Mrs. Harold Gunter, Mrs. R. E. Beer. Committee chairmen were also appointed.

U.C.W. Meetings

AFTERNOON UNIT

DESERONTO — The Afternoon Unit of the Deseronto UCW was invited to Tweed manse for its December meeting. There was a good attend ance with the leader, Mrs. George Stuart opening the meeting, and calling on Mrs. Ralph Vandewater to conduct the devotional period. Mrs. George Cole assisted by reading the Scripture and Mrs. Rockwell Howling read the meditation, which Mrs. Vandewater had prepared.

Turning to the business meeting the women heard the minutes for the last meeting, and the financial report given by Mrs. Merton Cummings, secretary - treasurer. Both were accepted. The report of proceeds from the recent bazaar and tea was gratifying and a vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Hendry, mother of the manse, who has been over-all convener of the project.

Rev. William Hendry spoke to the women on science and religion. "Christianity is for th ebetterment of man, but so is science although in a different way," he stated. "Horizons are constantly being widened by science. Sometimes scientific findings startle us, are a traumatic experience. Religion endures in spite of these findings."

Mrs. Herbert Aylsworth and Mrs. Harold Truman gave a report of their activities. They felt that they had been of assistance, and were assured by the staff of the home that such assistance was welcome, and that any small favors done for the residents added to their happiness.

The McGillivray Nursing Home has only women patients and the Bon Secours Nursing Home with the women from the McGillivray home as guests. The two women who were reporting stated that they had been asked to assist at this party also.

At the close of the formal meeting Mrs. George Cole and Mrs. Charles Cole assisted the hostess to serve refreshments.

Tweed Kiwanis Club Entertains 4-H Calf Club

TWEED — Members of the Tweed Kiwanis Club and their wives recently entertained the members of the 4-H Calf Club at a banquet held in the Odd Fellow's Hall, Tweed. This years' leaders of the calf club were Edmund Reavie and Allen Thompson, who reported a very successful year, with about twenty members taking part in the club.

The president was Neil Reavie with Dianne Gunning, Dairy Princess for Hastings County, acting as the secretary for the season.

The Bank of Montreal silver tray was presented by Kiwanian Les Rawlings, manager of the local branch, to Neil Reavie. The Ralston Purina Trophy was presented by Gerry Albert, on behalf of Chisholm's of Roslin Limited, to Bruce Thompson for high standing in the ten leading contestants also on behalf of Chisholms of Roslin Limited.

The Tweed Feed Mill Limited awards were presented by Mrs. Doris Hodgins to Neil Reavie for the best in showmanship. The other members all received an award in recognition of their efforts in the calf club.

Following the presentation of the awards, Kiwanian Edward Way, introduced Dr. Keith Harrison of Roslin, who gave a travelogue on his trip to Europe, where he and his wife, enjoyed travelling through several countries. While in France Dr. Harrison purchased a registered Charolais heifer, which will be shipped next spring.

The speaker was thanked by Kiwanian Ray Wallrey; Kiwanian George Sinclair thanked the women of the Tweed Rebekah Lodge for providing the banquet.

Curlers Attend Pot Luck Supper

TWEED — Approximately 125 curlers and their guests attended a pot luck supper held in the new Land O'Lakes Curling Club building in Tweed on November 30. The evening's program included the din ner, curling and cards.

A mixed invitational bonspiel is planned for this coming weekend, December 5 and 6 with 24 rinks taking part. All but two rinks are expected to be from out of town, from as far as Montreal and Hamilton, according to the president, Kenneth Thompson.

A formal opening of the new Curling Rink is in the planning stage. The date and the program will be announced at a later date.

POWDER USEFUL

Skim milk powder may be used in cooking or baking. Sift it into the dry ingredients and add the same amount of water as the recipe states for milk.

River Valley W.I. Holds Card Party

RIVER VALLEY — On November 28 River Valley Women's Institute held their last card party for this year at the centre with 11 tables in play.

The Historical Research Group covered the party and provided the refreshments. The prizes, first and second were as follows: women's, Mrs. Ed Hoxsman, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe; men's Leonard Waterfell and Glenn Morrow. The next party will be January 9, 1970.

WHAT WILL THE 70s BRING? — As the world of fashion enters a new decade, women wonder what new lengths they will be wearing. They started the 20th century with ankle-length bubble skirts and enter 1970 with the maxi-coat like the officer's coat at left in grey wool flannel by Stavtopoulos. Skirts could be headed for the mid-calf, as in Kaspar's patchwork silk-on-velvet with satin blouse. (CP Photo)

Way-out Clothes Proved Popular Fashion Trend of the Sixties

NEW YORK (CP) — Fads have almost overshadowed true fashions in the 1960s. What, then, are the prospects in the new decade looming ahead?

One trend reaching its peak at the end of the 1960s has been the popularity of far-out clothes with short life spans — a product of the increasingly affluent society. This is especially true of the teens-into-20s group.

Some years ago the advent of Mary Quant in London set the stage for the rash of boutiques that has spread around the world. These boutiques have featured medium-priced, kooky clothes that made international and local reputations for a number of designer owners. But by now this young buying generation has had its own fashion fling and the more perceptive are beginning to realize that a fad is not fashion.

However, they have discovered the fun of rapidly changing styles. Boutiques and their often way-out styling have definitely found a place in the fashion structure, and there will continue to be sudden fad revivals.

But during the 1970s, boutiques are more likely to consolidate their position than to expand. New boutiques aren't likely to be flinging wide their bizarre and colored doors every other week as they have in the larger Canadian cities during the last few years.

If fashion never stands still, it does repeat moods. The 20th century opened on a wave of romantic Edwardianism. Females were all female, with hourglass figures that enhanced bosoms and revealed real or busiled curves, and feathered hats made ladies out of women regardless of their inclinations.

Men, too, liked fashion elegance and played up top hats, lounge suits and high, stiff collars.

Now a new 10-year cycle starts with the same fashion viewpoint. Femininity for women came back in 1969. Cover-up rather than nudity in dress is this winter's theme and, from advance resort and spring fashion news, women are due to continue feminine. Even in swimwear, the cover-up is expected to outsell the bikini. And the now-fashionable pastels and subdued colors add to the demure look.

As for the men, they are still in the Edwardian mood of fashion elegance although the actual Edwardian influence is turning. But having tasted the excitement of new styling and color, men certainly won't return to their previous dreariness. Even cautious businessmen have succumbed to colored shirts and a slightly waisted look. The wedge can lead to a complete breakthrough.

But between the Edwardian and present femininity, there were several fashion explosions. Two world wars and fabric restrictions brought about the first knee-revealing skirts since ancient times and then, in 1947, the dropped skirt. This was the ugly ankle length imposed on willing women by the late Christian Dior.

Women have been through a revival of the Empire look, those high-waisted clinging styles introduced by Napoleon's Josephine, and also through the chemise look, a throwback to the shapeless dresses of the Roaring '20s. Women loved the chemise, gained at least three extra inches around the waistline and loudly proclaimed they'd never let them go. But of course they did.

Two seasons ago waistlines were reintroduced and will carry through into the 1970s. But spring fashion news does hint at a not-too-distant future return of the chemise.

Most recently women have adopted pants for street and evening wear. This is a comparatively new fashion concept although Oriental women have worn trousers for centuries. There have been unconventional trousered women, it's true, like novelist George Sand. But it wasn't until Marlene Dietrich showed how elegant trousers could be that women really accepted the idea. Certainly the trousered costume will continue to be important next spring.

This fall women went back to the long coats again. It's been some two years for the length to catch on, but there's been such a demand for the maxi-coats this fall that manufacturers are confidently carrying them over into a big spring promotion.

With the growing interest in this maxi length, the 1970s could well herald a return to longer skirts in dresses. A whole generation which has never worn anything but short-to-shorter skirts will find fun in the longer lengths.

Women will be glad to cease competing with the young, on youth's fashion level. And everyone should heave a sigh of relief that those heavy thick thighs of so many mini-midi-dedicated young girls will be fashionably covered.

One Can Hold Out for Courteous Treatment

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I had occasion to buy a pair of shoes. After standing in line to pay cashier I finally got to the counter and politely moved over to one side to allow two other ladies to get near the counter too.

Now the clerk saw I had been there first, but when she returned lo and behold if she didn't take the other two ladies before me (they had their arms stretched out further than mine).

Now tell me, were they just all being rude, or do I have to learn to be more aggressive in this world? — Too Soft

Dear Too Soft: More aggressive? No. A salesclerk who knowingly takes customers out of turn will never reach the top. And the customer who is so tense and hurried as to be unable to wait her turn, won't even get a passing mark when it comes to human relations.

You don't fight fire with fire; but there are times when you can hold out for courteous treatment. Next time try saying something like: "I'm sorry but I have been waiting quite a while. Would you mind looking after me?" Say it with a smile!

* * *

Dear Doris: Thank you for answering me about property rights. I was grateful for the first letter, and the second one came as a bonus. I now know where I stand. I enjoy the advice you give.

It's a dismal day outside, but the fact that someone is willing to help you sure brightens it up. — Granny

Dear Granny: Well, I am willing to help, and that's for sure.

For my part, my best fun is when I dig out an answer and then get a note saying what I said solved a problem. Thank you for that second note.

* * *

Dear Doris: Should a middle-aged widow who enjoyed a successful married life with her first husband look for a widower for her prospective companion, rather than for a divorcee or a separated man?

Would her chances for adjustment and compatability be better with a man who also at one time had a successful marriage? — In the Same Boat

Dear Boat: I'm told that a person who has once been married makes a better marriage risk than one who has not. A widower has adjusted to the ways of a woman, in a way that a mature bachelor has not.

But there is no certainty that a divorcee would not be a good bet. A man who has had a poor marriage is more likely to choose more carefully the second time and to appreciate happiness when he finds it.

We simply cannot generalize about such things. I've known times when a person who has had one happy marriage trusts everybody, and takes too little care in choosing a second mate.

Home and School Association News

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

MARMORA — Members of Marmora Home and School Association at their meeting last week at Intermediate School had the opportunity of participating in a panel discussion on School Bus Safety.

Chairman and moderator was Ron Lee, Safety Supervisor of Canada Cement Company, and Chairman of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association for the Belleville, Picton and Trenton area.

Members of the panel were D. Edwards of the Accident Prevention Agency, Department of Transport, Toronto, J. Bancroft, Manager of Transportation for the Hastings County School Board, Belleville and Constable Bill Willis, Chief Safety Officer, OPP, Belleville.

Panelists gave startling but accurate figures as to the number of students travelling by bus per day in the County and in the whole Province, as well as the number of vehicles and drivers involved, and total miles covered per day.

A most informative question and answer period on this relevant topic followed the talks by the panelists who were thanked on behalf of the Association by vice-president Clayton Tompkins.

Jiggs Dinner with Vegetables

By MARY MOORE

Christmas is approaching all too rapidly for comfort's sake but you still have to fit three meals a day into your baking and shopping chores. I thought a piece of corned beef brisket would make a delicious corned beef and cabbage dinner and with luck you might have some leftover for a future meal. This meal is attractive and in all it calls for five different vegetables.

JIGGS DINNER

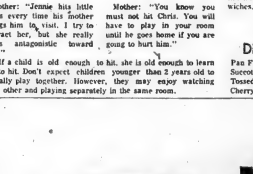
3½ - 4 lb. piece of corned brisket beef
½ bay leaf
1 tsp. celery seed (optional)
1 clove garlic
6 peeled white onions
6 scrubbed medium carrots, quartered
1 small turnip cut into strips
6 pared medium potatoes
1 medium-small cabbage cut into 6 wedges

Soak the corned beef brisket in cold water to cover for 1 hr. Drain. Place in large kettle and barely cover with hot water, add ½ bay leaf, celery seeds (if used), garlic clove (no need to), ½ tsp. black pepper could be added if desired) and bring to boil. Reduce heat to simmer and cook covered 3-3½ hrs. or until tender. Turn brisket over once at half time.



One hour before mealtime peel and add onions. Three-quarters of an hour before mealtime add carrots and turnips. Half hour before mealtime add potatoes. One-quarter hour before mealtime add cabbage wedges. This timing turns out just right — each vegetable is tender but not mushy and cabbage wedges retain their shape.

To serve lift brisket to platter and surround with vegetables attractively arranged. We served a spoonful of the broth over the vegetables and passed prepared mustard for the meat.

Cold corned beef brisket is unexcelled for sandwiches if sliced wafer thin and two or three slices are used for each sandwich. Spread one slice of sandwich bread sparingly with mustard for corned beef sandwiches.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jennie hits little Chris every time his mother brings him in, visit. I try to distract her, but she really feels antagonistic toward him."

If a child is old enough to hit, she is old enough to learn not to hit. Don't expect children younger than 2 years old to actually play together. However, they may enjoy watching each other and playing separately in the same room.

Mother: "You know you must not hit Chris. You will have to play in your room until he goes home if you are going to hurt him."

Unethical Dentist Should Be Reported

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago my mother went to a dentist for a set of upper plates. They worked fine. Two months ago she began to have trouble with her remaining teeth so she went back to the same dentist. He extracted all her lowers. She paid him $175 in cash. He asked her to leave her uppers as he could adjust them to the lowers. She was to return in five days for both the uppers and the lowers.

Five days later my mother returned and was shocked to see a For Rent sign on the dentist's door. His phone had been disconnected and the receptionist in the office across the hall said he had been talking about moving to Ontario.

My mother would like to get her uppers back. Also her $175. Please answer as soon as possible, Ann. This is an emergency. — V.S.

DEAR V.S.: Advise your mother to contact the local Dental Society, either city or county. The dentist will be reported to the ethics committee. The committee may or may not be successful in helping your mother recover her choppers and the money. She should not wait, however. The woman needs teeth and she needs them now. Urge her to go to another dentist at once

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Add my name to the list of people who never thought they'd be writing to Ann Landers.

I was a widow who married a widower. I had known him 15 years.

After we married, I discovered his 21-year-old daughter didn't like me. She let me know in every way she could — even to change clothes and sleep. I refused to let them run me like they ran their father. This caused trouble between us. The boy mouthed off at me once too often and I told him to move. His father would have none of it. He said, "If he goes, I go, too." That night all three of them left.

I bought this beautiful home with my first husband's money. It is a lovely but a lonely castle. My pastor said we all should have had counseling. I was willing but the others were not. Did I make a mistake somewhere along the line? If so, what was it? — GRIEVED.

DEAR G.: You made three mistakes. Your first was not knowing the children better before you married their father. The second mistake was ordering the boy to move. The third mistake was not getting counseling for yourself — even though the others refused. And now, don't make a fourth mistake by getting a divorce before you do everything in your power to effect a reconciliation. The kids will be gone before long and you and your husband might have a life together after all.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever my husband and I are out in a social group I am embarrassed to tears. All my husband wants to talk about is sex. He tells such raw jokes I want to crawl under the table and stay there. He doesn't seem to know any clean stories — only dirty ones.

To listen to him talk you'd think sex was the most important thing in his life. And that is what baffles me. To put it bluntly, Ann, he is completely over the hill. And I mean completely.

Wouldn't you think a man who can't perform would stay off the subject? Please explain. — RALEIGH, N.C.

DEAR R.: Men who can perform do stay off the subject. The ones who are over the hill have the one track minds — and the track is usually muddy.

The non-performers talk about sex because that's all they can do — poor things. Now do you get it, honey?

Juniors Blast Cougars From Fourth Spot Perch

By GREG McLEOD
Staff Sportswriter

Moira Secondary School students' vocal support was a prime factor for Belleville Ellis Juniors' third consecutive win and a fourth place spot in the Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey League.

Last night was Moira Night at the Memorial Arena as the surging Juniors skated to a 10-3 victory to replace Cobourg in the six - team league's fourth spot.

Attendance: 500
Referee: Pat Haggerty
Linesmen: Bernard Howe, Gary Martin.

"Isn't it beautiful," beamed Ellis coach Floyd Crawford. "Now Belleville has two winning teams."

The Moira students' yelling and cheering was not in vain as classmate Al Jones a second - year defenceman with the juniors — played one of his strongest games of the year on the blue line, also collecting a goal and two assists. And Moira alumnus Ron Jury gave his fellow students something to murmur in the halls about with outstanding goaltending for the Juniors, who have not lost since he donned the pads for them in games ago.

Belleville was leading 6-0 halfway through the second period when Cobourg scored their first goal of the night on Jury to break a 114 - minute shutout string by the most recent and valuable Ellis addition.

Belleville showed Cobourg, as Trenton last week fine positional hockey and hustle.

Al Jarbeau and Terry Meagher had two goals each for the Ellis Juniors. Reid Mallory, Keith McConnell, Al Jones, Danny Lapenestre, John Mulvihill and Greg Burkitt all scored one goal each.

Cobourgh goal - getters were Dave Peers, Alan Fenton and Greg Watson with one goal each.

Brian Coughlin and Al Jarbeau played a strong two-way game for Belleville, tying opposition forwards up before they could manage to establish a big offensive threat.

Reid Mallory was another standout on the local squad, skating through the entire Cobourg team to score Belleville's fourth goal.

Referee Pat Haggarty handed out 34 minutes in penalties, a number of them for roughing and four majors for fighting.

The locals were allotted 22 minutes.

The next Belleville Junior game will come Sunday Dec. 14 when the Trenton Golden Hawks once again visit the Memorial Arena for a 7:30 p.m. hockey game.

Down and Out

Cobourg Cougars' goalie Mike Caine and defenceman Steve Bradford get a front-row seat for Ellis Juniors' Terry Meagher's first-period goal. Caine's crease was a popular area Sunday night, as Belleville replaced Cobourg in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League's fourth spot by whipping the Cougars 10-3 at the Memorial Arena.

Second Mo-Hawk Line Far from Second-best

GALT (Special) — Fortunately for Belleville Mo-Hawks, "Second" doesn't mean "second best."

The so-called "second line" centred by playing-coach Danny Jones, with wingers Wayne McConnell and rookie Ray Johnston was first and foremost in a 6-5 overtime upset of Gal Hornets here Saturday night.

The trio figured in all the Belleville scoring as the Mo-Hawks hung on to fifth spot in the eight-team OHA Senior A standings and boosted their record to a respectable 8-7-2.

Each member of the recently-scored once including Ray Johnston's game - winner at 7:58 in the 10-minute sudden-death overtime period — and McConnell, who had two assists on Lionel Rolly's third-extra session.

"We're playing things strictly by ear," Jones commented on the importance of Tuesday night's vital home game with Kingston Aces, who, at a scant two points behind the Mo-Hawks in sixth place.

A lineup full of holes is the main reason for Jones' philosophical approach to things. Billy Armour missed his third game in succession Saturday night, still sidelined with a head injury and defenceman "Wener" Brown, and forward "Shaker" Baker were also on the sick list.

Of these, Jones is only optimistic of having Brown's services tomorrow night when the Aces hit town.

He dressed Peterborough defenceman Pete Nelson in Galt Saturday, in the event "something happens to Beth. Joe Kazowski, or Greg Marchen, but Nelson never stopped on the ice.

Rolly's goal was his second of the year, putting the steady defence veteran well ahead of his self - set three-per-season pace.

Goalie Dave Rese also came in for some Jones' praise.

"He kept us in the game for the first two periods," Jones observed. Rese, who has been whittling his goals - against av-

Batawa Skiers Get Sunned In

By ELMER BOXTER

BATAWA — Few members would agree but the decision to postpone the official opening on Saturday probably means the Batawa Ski Club was given a better position to offer improved facilities.

Club officials were visibly upset when they were compelled to scrap plans when the four inches of snow forecast to fall in the area Friday night failed to arrive.

The club executive, however, took advantage of the disappointment seeking instead most of Saturday on a new rope tow that will be operated solely for junior members. The installation necessary to speed up novice instruction and junior members activities in general is west of the high downhill run.

The Batawa club, with the extra tow in operation, will be providing its membership with three separate lifts for the first time since the popular sports facility began to function 11 years ago.

The club officer busiest of all was membership chairman Jacob Wellstein, father of Peter Wellstein, the club's representative on Canada's national ski team. An influx of membership renewals and providing information for adults and youth interested in becoming members tested his endurance throughout the weekend.

Encouraged by the enthusiasm in response to the current drive for members, chairman Wellstein expects the club's strength to equal and possibly exceed the 350 total reached last season.

Club president John Cormack reflects the spirit of co-operation and courtesy a visitor finds among hard working executives of the non profit organization. One of his most important functions appears to be offering helpful advice to young people curious to learn more about the facilities before physical participation in the sport.

The club has enjoyed considerable success with its sponsorship of a 14 - member racing team. In Nancy Green Little League competitions last year the local representatives gave a good account of themselves. In fact the executive expressed intention to back a second team this year for competition with clubs in Toronto, Peterborough, Oshawa and Saguenay.

The Batawa Ski Club board of officers comprises John Cormack, president, Serge Fetchwailer, vice president, George Rud D Eye, treasurer, Howard Ackerman, secretary, Jacob Wellstein, membership chairman, Tony Dekker, building chairman, Earl Hewison supply chairman and Gus Sonets, Little League chairman.

No Fury Like BCI Girl Scorned

BCI's girls' junior basketball team lost the Bay of Quinte Championship by just nine points but Saturday they showed the opposition they weren't going to be denied COSSA.

The BCI girls captured COSSA by defeating Lake Ontario champion Curtis 39 - 34 in semi-final play then downing Bay of Quinte Champs, Quinte Secondary School 45 - 44 in the COSSA finals played at Centennial Secondary School.

In the BCI - Curtis game, Janice Sled had 15 points along with team-mate Debbie Kerr. Debbie's sister scored 11 points.

In the final game Janice Sled bagged 25 points with Debbie Kerr adding 15 points and Diane Kerr 5 points.

Quinte earned their right to play in the finals by defeating Adam Scott Secondary School from Peterborough 37 - 24.

Gladys Stephenson had 14 points for Quinte with team - mates Sue Morton scoring 13 points and Regyna Armonas 8 points.

Regyna Armonas was high scorer for Quinte in their COSSA final against BCI, scoring 12 points.

'Y' Pool Project Goes Over the Top

The weekend YMCA "Swimathon" made an even bigger splash than most of the local association members anticipated.

"Thrilling" was the only adjective women's program secretary Maureen Kelly and David Hahn, program secretaries Maureen Kelly and David Hahn, and 'Y' General Secretary Bert Messacar.

Member Dorothy Irwin made it a family affair when she joined daughters Kim and Ginny in making 100 length contributions.

The $4,800 in pledges represents 6,212 lengths of the 20-yard "Y" pool. Last year's swimathon netted some $1,400 for YMCA World Service, a varied program of aid to underdeveloped countries around the globe.

Ten-year-old Sandy Walker made a Sunday swim worthwhile. She and 90 others raised more than $4,800 in pledges in a YMCA Swimathon for the Y's World Service programs Here, women's program secretary Maureen Kelly gives Sandy a towel after her 50-lap contribution.

Of the 99 water-bound fundraisers, 62 swam the maximum 100 lengths Saturday and Sunday, including lifeguards Meredith Geneau and Brian Hallam, program secretaries Maureen Kelly and David Hahn, and 'Y' General Secretary Bert Messacar.

"We'll put some of the surplus to work right here in the pool for equipment," Miss Kelly beamed in the wake of the 99 - swimmer performance that involved everyone from tiny Paula Lockyer — at six, this year's youngest participant — to Belleville 'Y' president Harry Fast, who attracted some $1,200 worth of per-length sponsorship by himself.

Tuesday night's acid test against Kingston now shapes up as a classic, particularly in the wake of the November Mo-Hawk road win in Kingston that broke a three - winter home - ice bug maintained by the two teams.

Game time is 8:30 at the Memorial Arena.

MOSCOW (CP) — Canada beat Sweden 5-2 Sunday to join the Soviet Union in the lead at an international hockey tournament here.

Canada and the Soviet Union have seven points each, but the Russians need only a draw from their final match against Sweden today to clinch the round-robin tournament.

Earlier Sunday, Finland beat East Germany 9-3 to record its first victory in the six-country tournament and leave the East Germans in last place.

The Canadian scorers against Sweden were Bill MacMillan, Fran Huck, Billy Harris, Barry MacKenzie and Chuck Lefley. Lundstroem and Hedberg scored for the losers.

The other team in the tournament, sponsored by the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, is Czechoslovakia.

The Russians, only unbeaten squad in the round-robin tournament after six days, beat Czechoslovakia 8-2 Saturday.

Canada's team, which held the Russians to a 2-2 tie Thursday, had bowed 4-0 to the Czechoslovaks last Monday in its opening game.

Canada now has three victories in addition to a loss and the tie.

Russia has three wins and the tie with Canada. .

The Canada-Sweden match was marred by a brawl at the end of the second period which resulted in four players being penalized.

Like the Arnie Palmer of old, the world's winningest golfer displayed these expressions as he charged to a victory in the Danny Thomas Diplomat Golf Classic at Miami. (AP Wirephoto)

Charging Pays for Palmer

MIAMI (AP) — The charge and the shouting, stampeding gallery was there and so was Arnold Palmer.

"Charge, Arnie, charge," they shouted, and he responded like the Palmer of years gone by, charging up from six strokes off the pace with a seven-under-par 65 that brought him the title in the $125,000 Danny Thomas Diplomat Golf Classic and left Gay Brewer — the front-runner for three days — behind.

"This thing, this winning, means everything to me," said Palmer, a non-winner for more than a year and now author of consecutive triumphs.

"Getting it going again is probably the thing I wanted most in my life. I knew I was going to play again, but I didn't know how successfully. There were some doubts in my own mind."

The gallery was relatively small, about 10,000, but they all were with Palmer.

"Go, baby, go," they pleaded. He started to move on the fifth hole, canning a 10-foot birdie putt while Brewer, with a six-shot lead going into the day's play and playing one two-some back, took the first of three consecutive extra strokes.

Palmer put a wedge six feet from the pen on the next hole and canned the putt. He just missed a hole in one on the ninth, tapped in for another bird, and turned just one shot back.

Brewer, who finished with a 7 for 272, and Palmer parred the next three holes but Gay went one more ahead with a birdie 4th 13. He might as well have waved a red flag at a bull.

Palmer put a four iron eight feet from the hole on 14 and made the putt. He was one stroke back. A nine iron to four feet on the 15 and it was even. Gay was one over on the 16th from the woods and Arnold was alone in front.

He nailed it down with birds on the last two holes, two-putting the par five 17th and running in a 12 footer on the last hole.

Lee Trevino closed with a 66 to take third at 274 with Hal Underwood and Larry Hinson sharing fourth at 275, each with a final 69. Masters champion George Archer had a course record 64 and was alone at 276. Palmer's victory pushed his earnings past $105,000 for the year and put him in the top 10. It was only the third time in his remarkable career — which now includes 35 tour victories — that he had scored consecutive triumphs. The last time was in 1962.

Vikings Bring Rams Down to Earth

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An early happening in Los Angeles helped shatter the Rams' h dreams of an unbeaten season.

"That kickoff return was something that just happened," Minnesota coach Bud Grant said Sunday after the Vikings handed the Rams their first defeat of the season—29-13—after 11 straight victories.

What happened on the return of opening kickoff was a 78-yard run by Charlie West in the Los Angeles 22, setting up Dave Osborn's four-yard touchdown that gave the Vikings a lead they never lost.

It was the 11th straight victory after a season-opening loss for the Central Division champion Vikings, who will play the Coastal Division champion Rams for the Western Conference title Dec. 21 in Minnesota.

Dallas Cowboys, 9-2-1, struggled through the rain and snow in Pittsburgh to edge the Steelers, 1-10, 10-7 and clinch the Capitol Division and the right to meet Century Division winner Cleveland for the Eastern Conference championship.

In other NFL action Sunday Washington Redskins outlasted Philadelphia Eagles 31-29, New York Giants smashed St. Louis Cardinals 49-6, Cleveland Browns topped Green Bay Packers 20-7, Atlanta Falcons drubbed New Orleans Saints 45-18, and Detroit Lions tied Baltimore Colts 17-17. San Francisco 49ers walloped Chicago Bears 42-21 Saturday.

After Osborn scored, Minnesota Vikings took a 14-0 lead on Bill Brown's one-yard touchdown run. Bruce Gossett then kicked a 37-yard goal and the Vikings' Fred Cox booted a 29-yarder as Minnesota built up a 17-7 halftime lead.

Cox and Osborne exchanged second half field goals and then Roman Gabriel brought the Rams their touchdown on a four-yard pass to Larry Smith with about three minutes left.

Dallas built a 10-0 halftime lead on Mike Clark's 22-yard field goal and quarterback Craig Morton's 12-yard touchdown run, then held off Pittsburgh the fourth quarter. The Steelers' touchdown came on a 29-yard pass from Dick Shiner to Jon Henderson.

Vince Lombardi, in his first season as Washington coach, was assigned at least a .500 season when the Redskins got past Philadelphia. Trailing 16-13 at halftime, Washington defensive end John Hoffman recovered a Norm Snead fumble for a touchdown. Sonny Jurgensen fired his second scoring strike and Larry Brown scored from one yard out. Snead passed for two Philadelphia touchdowns.

Veterans Joe Morrison and Fran Tarkenton sparked New York past St. Louis, snapping the Giants' losing streak at seven games. Morrison caught six passes for 96 yards and two touchdowns and ran 36 yards for another score. Tarkenton connected on 19 of 31 passes for 232 yards and four touchdowns.

Leroy Kelly turned in the best individual rushing performance of the season, rambling for 151 yards in Cleveland's victory over Green Bay.

Bill Nelsen passed for one Cleveland touchdown and Ernie Kellerman ran 40 yards with an interception for another. Don Horn threw for Green Bay's score.

Running back Harmon Wages and quarterback Bob Berry were the big guns in Atlanta's trouncing of New Orleans. Wages scored on an 88-yard pass from Berry, ran 66 yards for a touchdown and passed for another. Berry also passed for two other touchdowns.

Errol Mann, who missed four previous attempts, kicked a 12-yard field goal late in the game to give Detroit its tie with Baltimore.

Blues' Pennant Hunt Based on Power Play

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The St. Louis Blues' power-play attack, which provided four goals in weekend National Hockey League action, looms as one of the biggest factors in the club's drive for a third consecutive West Division championship.

The power-play goals Sunday night earned the Blues a 4-1 victory over Philadelphia Flyers and kept St. Louis in a six-point lead over Minnesota North Stars in the West Division.

The Blues now have scored 31 of their 78 goals with a player advantage for the best power play in the league. Boston Bruins rank second with 24 of 90 goals coming with the other team penalized.

In other Sunday games, New York Rangers maintained their lead in the East Division with a 6-3 win over Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks whipped Pittsburgh Penguins 5-1, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and Minnesota tied Boston 2-2.

The North Stars scored Montreal, 4-3 Saturday while the Maple Leafs beat Pittsburgh 4-0, Boston defeated Buffalo 6-1, Detroit whipped St. Louis 5-1 and Los Angeles Kings beat Oakland Seals 5-3.

Phil Goyette—whose three assists Sunday pulled him within two points of the league's scoring leader, Bobby Orr of the Bruins—and Bob Woidzky lead the St. Louis power-play attack with seven goals each. Red Berenson scored twice Sunday to push his power-play goal total to six.

McDonald scored his 11th season goal in the second period Sunday to start the Blues attack before a crowd of 13,760 at Philadelphia. Berenson followed with his 11th and 12th season markers and Gary Sabourin scored his third power play goal and sixth of the season to wrap up the St. Louis scoring.

Gary Dornhoefer scored the only Philadelphia goal against goalie Ernie Wakely. Bernie Parent stopped 24 St. Louis shots on the Flyers nets.

Rod Gilbert scored a first period goal and set up two in the third to lead the New York rout of the Canadiens before 17,250 Rangers fans.

Gilbert assisted on goals by Jim Neilson and Jean Ratelle while Juha Widing, Rod Seiling and Real Lemieux provided the other New York goals.

Henri Richard, Jacques Lemaire and Christian Bordeleau replied for the Canadiens who dropped four points behind the Rangers in the standings.

New York belted Canadiens goalie Rogatien Vachon with 39 shots while veteran Ed Giacomin was tested 27 times in the Rangers nets.

The victory stretched New York's unbeaten streak to 13 games.

Bobby Hull scored his 39th season goal and added two assists as the Black Hawks moved to within one point of fourth-place Detroit in the East Division.

Eric Nesterenko, Doug Mohns, Stan Mikita and Lou Angotti also beat Detroit goalie

RED BERENSON
Power Play Threat

Roy Edwards to delight the 16,666 Chicago fans.

Gordie Howe took advantage of a power-play opportunity to put the puck behind Chicago goalie Tony Esposito who made 33 saves in the game while the Black Hawks had only 26 shots at Edwards.

Rookie centre Michel Briere scored twice before a crowd of 7,310 at Pittsburgh and veteran Dean Prentice scored his 11th season goal for the Penguins victory.

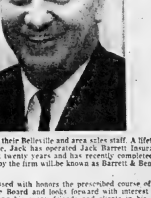
Brit Selby and Ron Ellis tallied for the Leafs who remained in the East Division cellar, four points behind Chicago.

Goalie Bruce Gamble faced 38 Pittsburgh shots while the Leafs tested Penguins netminder Les Binkley only 23 times. The wins kept Pittsburgh within one point of Minnesota in the West.

The North Stars gained the Sunday tie on a goal by Bob Barlow with five minutes remaining in the third period before a crowd of 14,311 at Boston.

Danny Grant beat Boston goalie Ed Johnston for the other Minnesota goal while Phil Esposito and Dallas Smith each got one of 44 Boston shots past goalie Cesare Maniago.

The tie and Saturday's victory moved the Bruins into a tie with Montreal in the standings, five points ahead of the Red Wings.



Detroit goalie Roger Crozier blocked the season's first penalty shot in the contest Saturday at St. Louis. The free shot was awarded to Andre Boudrias of the Blues after he was pulled down by Detroit defenceman Gary Bergman.

Boudrias fired from 20 feet and the puck deflected off Crozier's arm. Frank St. Marseille spoiled Crozier's shutout bid by scoring with less than seven minutes remaining before 16,269 fans at St. Louis.

Howe, Frank Mahovlich, Garry Unger, Pete Stemkowski and Nick Libett scored for the Red Wings.

Lamonica Tosses Three For Revenge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Daryle Lamonica of Oakland and Jan Stenerud of Kansas City sparked their teams to victory Sunday and advanced them into the battle for the American League's Western Division title next Saturday.

Lamonica threw three touchdown passes as the Raiders avenged their only defeat of the season—they have an 11-1 record—by downing Cincinnati Bengals 37-17.

The Chiefs, 11-2, defeated Buffalo Bills 22-19 on Stenerud's fifth field goal of the game, a 25-yarder with two minutes left.

Elsewhere, San Diego Chargers beat Boston Patriots 28-18 and Miami Dolphins downed Denver Broncos 27-24. New York Jets clinched the Eastern Division crown Saturday with a 34-28 triumph over Houston Oilers.

Lamonica raised his season total to 33 touchdown passes, three short of the record, He completed 11 of 22 for 199 yards and hit Warren Wells for touchdowns of 51 and 16 yards and Fred Biletnikoff for 16.

Team-mate George Blanda who shares the mark of 36 scoring passes with Y. A. Tittle, kicked three field goals and four extra points, giving him an AFL record 153 consecutive conversions. His passing late in the game also enabled him to pass the 20,000-yard career mark, another AFL record.

Stenerud's five field goals gave him 18 in a row over a six-game stretch, erasing the pro standard of 12 by Cleveland's Lou Groza in 1953.

Buffalo, trailing by 10 points much of the game, tied it 19-19 with eight minutes left when O. J. Simpson reeled off his longest run as a pro for 32 yards and a touchdown.

The winner of Saturday's Western Division showdown goes into the playoffs. The loser tackles the defending Super Bowl champion New York Jets.

John Hadl came off the bench to throw two touchdown passes, including a 76-yarder to Lance Alworth, as San Diego held off Boston.

Alworth tied a pro football record by catching a pass for the 95th consecutive game, matching the mark of 27 years ago by Green Bay's Don Hutson.

Tied at 17-17, Miami recovered a fumble punt by Bill Thompson at the Bronco 15 and three plays later Jim Kiick blasted over for a go-ahead score. Karl Kremser's 15-yard field goal following an interception by Lloyd Mumphord provided the winning three points.

Joe Namath's two scoring passes started the Jets' Saturday victory. The Jets had a 34-10 lead before the Oilers scored two late touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions.

The Jets intercepted six passes, recovered three fumbles and dropped the quarterback nine times.

Liston Down and Out After Loss to Underdog

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Leotis Martin battered former heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston with a sudden left hook and right cross to win a ninth-round upset knockout victory Saturday.

Martin, who weighed 199, trailed through the first seven rounds because of Liston's constant left jabs.

Liston, who came in at 219, floored Martin in the fourth round of the scheduled 12-round bout, but Martin quickly got up. It appeared several times that Liston was going to knock out Martin, but the 37-year-old former champion couldn't come up with the big punch.

Liston, a 13-to-5 favorite, had won his last 14 bouts after losing twice to Cassius Clay in 1964 and 1965.

Liston remained flat on the canvas for a full minute after the knockout at 1:28 of the ninth.

Martin, ranked No. 3 among heavyweights by the World Boxing Association, caught Liston in the ninth with a left hook and then a right cross that flattened Liston.

Muhammed Brawl in March ?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Sunday Bulletin says a Joe Frazier-Muhammed Ali world heavyweight title fight is being set for a March date in Miami.

The paper says the decision will be up for Gov. Claude Kirk of Florida.

Ali, once known as Cassius Clay, holds a licence from the Miami Boxing Commission. The Bulletin says that under pressure from groups angered by Ali's refusal to be drafted into the United States armed forces, Kirk could revoke the licence.

The paper quotes lawyer Bruce Wright, who is secretary for Clomerlay Inc., the Philadelphia corporation backing Frazier, as saying he would be in New York today to settle the Miami fight details with Bob Arum, Ali's personal lawyer.

Conference Site

The renovated concourse of Ottwa's old Union Station is readied for the federal-provincial conference. The prime minister and 10 provincial premiers and their staffs will be seated around the horseshoe-shaped table. The building, with classic pillars and vaulted ceiling, has been fitted with translations booths, lounges and facilities for live television and radio coverage. (CP Wirephoto).

Simple Agenda Belies Stands Of Provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau sits down with the 10 provincial premiers here today for another round of discussions on constitutional change, with a guaranteed annual income a major topic on the agenda.

Debate is not expected to be acrimonious, but most of the provincial leaders have stated their case strongly.

A single five-point agenda has been set out for the three-day meeting.

Division of Powers, with three sub-headings—income security and social services, the spending power; federal grants to provincial governments and taxation—heads the list.

But the second item—Regional Disparities—is of prime concern to the Atlantic provinces.

Other items are simply: reports from committees of ministers; future program of work and other business.

It is called the third meeting of the current series—that is the third since Mr. Trudeau became prime minister. It is actually the fourth. The first, in February, 1968, when Lester Pearson was prime minister, is remembered chiefly for the lively and sometimes bitter debate between Mr. Trudeau, then justice minister, and the late Daniel Johnson, then premier of Quebec.

In a television interview Sunday night, Prime Minister Trudeau said this week's conference approaches "the final or semi-final stage" of constitutional reform.

He said a clearer picture of Canada is emerging from the conferences embodying legal, cultural and other agreements.

Asked about the federal stand on incomes insurance, Mr. Trudeau said the federal government has jurisdiction in the area of social insurance

He said the debate with Quebec over constitutional law has been less acrimonious recently. Quebec spokesmen now are expressing equal concern about economic and other questions.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, however, made it clear that he would not back down from his position that the provincial government should have exclusive jurisdiction over social security including old age pensions, family allowances, health and hospitals and manpower and training.

Federal officials nevertheless have taken hope from Mr. Bertrand's recent firm statements in favor of federalism and against separatism.

No other province is demanding as complete a control over social spending as Quebec, but most reject the federal government's moves towards centralism.

Ontario's Premier John Robarts has insisted that the provinces be treated as equal partners as supreme in their fields of jurisdiction as the federal government is in its own.

Mr. Robarts was the only premier not to reach Ottawa by Sunday night. With bad weather closing in, the Ontario party came by train, arriving early this morning.

Mr. Robarts gave his views on the federal-provincial conference at an Ontario Progressive Conservative party convention over the weekend.

"The federal government is approaching this week's conference from fixed positions that would shove all parties into adversary positions," he told his supporters.

He said Ontario was not interested in any change that would centralize all power in Ottawa.

"Any inflexible stand, especially on tax-sharing, ignores the fact that there is only one taxpayer and he can only pay so much."

Ottawa also wants federal law to over-ride provincial law in any conflict over retirement insurance and wants the constitution to spell out that the federal government has a residuary power with the provinces' to make income support payments to persons—as in the case of family allowances

No Ultimatums: Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Sunday night Quebec province would neither make nor accept ultimatums at the constitutional conference.

He arrived from Quebec City aboard the Quebec government's jet, accompanied by Claude Morin, deputy minister of intergovernmental affairs. Mr. Bertrand told reporters: "We didn't come here to make ultimatums nor will we accept them. We came here to negotiate."

This is Mr. Bertrand's third constitutional conference since he replaced the late Daniel Johnson as Quebec premier.

Asked about the federal government's refusal to grant Quebec exclusive jurisdiction over social security programs like family allowances, Mr. Bertrand indicated he will take a strong stand on his province's rights in that field.

"I come here with the force of Quebec behind me. This includes everybody."

The premier said the Opposition Liberals and the Quebec separatists in the national assembly of Quebec agree with the governing Union Nationale party on the social security question.

West Endorses Fixed Income But Not on Ottawa's Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — Alberta and British Columbia each brought to the federal-provincial constitutional conference today proposals for Ottawa to embark on a guaranteed national income plan.

And at the conference the federal government is seeking equal powers with the provinces to make income support payments to persons. This could include guaranteed income measures.

In interviews Sunday night, and in position papers for the conference, Premiers Harry Strom of Alberta and W. A. C. Bennett of B.C. spelled out slightly differing views of such a plan.

But both agreed it should be handled on the national level through agreements with the provinces. Ottawa, however, is talking in terms of constitutional powers in this area.

Alberta and B.C. also seek a larger slice of the federal tax pie and attention to western economic issues. Premier Ross Thatcher hoped to get an audience for Saskatchewan's grain and potash problems.

Ed Schreyer, Manitoba's NDP premier, made no statements except to say he has no strong feelings about a guaranteed income system.

Among other things, the Alberta delegation suggests a liaison system be established as the provinces have some say in the drafting of federal policies.

Provincial appointees to the Senate would provide one avenue, Alberta said, and a permanent federal-provincial commission could look at all aspects of shared taxation.

Alberta supports Quebec's position that provinces which stay out of shared-cost programs should get financial compensation—paid to the provincies, not the individual citizen.

Mr. Bennett, premier and finance minister in B.C.'s Social Credit government, said that after almost 25 years of peace and prosperity, now is the time for a guaranteed annual income scheme.

He asks Ottawa to give to the provinces the direct tax fields, such as income taxes, except to the extent necessary to finance a national guaranteed income plan.

It could be started by Ottawa and a majority of the provinces —as long as they represent a majority of Canadians. If a province does not enter it should not receive financial compensation.

The scheme could be handled through a cost-sharing agreement, Mr. Bennett said, and provinces could add their own supplementary payments. But if Ottawa enters, it should not be allowed to pull out.

Mr. Strom, Alberta's Social Credit leader, said he could go along with an income plan—with some reservations. For one thing, he said, all provinces should belong.

It should not copy the federal medical care plan which, he said, forced some provinces into a cost-sharing scheme they didn't want or weren't ready for.

Mr. Strom wondered aloud about Canada's ability to pay for expanded welfare schemes. Productivity had not risen as fast as that of many other countries, for example Japan and West Germany.

The Alberta premier also expressed fear such a plan could reduce incentives to increase productivity.

Mr. Thatcher, a Liberal, was definite on this matter.

"How am I going to get my Indians up North to work if their income is guaranteed?" he asked. "We're unalterably opposed to payments if people can refuse to work."

Ottawa Begins Talks On Municipal Affairs

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban affairs, constitutionally a provincial field, get an airing in the federal Parliament today.

A Commons debate on urban matters, initiated by the Progressive Conservatives, is running simultaneously with another meeting of the continuing federal-provincial constitutional conference at which some provinces have municipal representatives in their delegations as observers.

However, there is no connection between the two events.

For their last official opposition day before Commons Christmas adjournment, the Conservatives are introducing a motion calling for a Commons committee on urban affairs.

Prime Minister Trudeau has resisted federal involvement urban matters on the grounds that the constitution gives the provinces jurisdiction over all municipalities.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday in Toronto that "the present government seems to have a constitutional hangup, an attitude of withdrawal about urban problems, and is using the constitution as an excuse."

G. W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said Sunday several Liberal back-benchers from urban centres have become progressively more irritated at the government's "failure to do anything" about such urban problems as transport, poverty and use of drugs.

Former transport minister Paul Hellyer, who resigned from the cabinet in April, and Perry Ryan, Toronto Spadina MP who left the Liberals last week to sit as an independent, cited frustration over the governments "inactivity" in urban problems as part of their dissatisfaction, Mr. Baldwin said.

Philip Givens (L—York West), former mayor of Toronto, and other government members will be asked to support the Conservative motion, Mr. Baldwin said.

Mr. Givens engaged in an argument with the prime minister on urban matters at the Nov. 21-23 Liberal policy conference at Harrison Hot Springs, B.C.

Mr. Baldwin said a standing urban affairs committee would provide a forum for mayors and others concerned with urban problems.
